The ten farms are:—Secretan, 443 miles west of Winnipeg; Rush Lake, 489 miles miles west of Winnipeg; Swift Current, 510 miles west of Winnipeg; Gull Lake, 546 miles west of Winnipeg; Maple Creek, 597 miles west of Winnipeg; Lorres, 615 miles west of Winnipeg; Dunmore, 651 miles west of Winnipeg; Stair, 668 miles west of Winnipeg; Tilley, 713 miles west of Winnipeg, and Gleichen, 785 miles west of Winnipeg. So that these farms, it is plain to be seen, are not in one locality, but at regular distances throughout the whole Northwest. The names of the farms are painted above the grain which is exhibited from each. The grain is of four kinds, namely, Spring Wheat (Red Fife), Peas, Oats and Barley. The berries of the grain, though not of a large size, are plump and of a good quality. The roots and vegetables exhibit which are grown on the farms, are of a large size. One ordinary cabbage weighs twenty-five pounds and one red cabbage weighs fifteen pounds. All common kinds of roots are represented including the turnip, the mangold, potatoe and one new variety, the Kohl Rabi, a half cabbage and half turnip, is also exhibited. The size and quality of the products affords occular proof of the fertility of these farms, the barrenness of which has been until now so much spoken of.

The eastern end of the car is set apart chiefly for the Manitoba products. Instead of the wheat decoration, the sides of the car is covered with bundles of native grasses, in all forty-three varieties. Underneath these are the exhibits of roots. A separate department is given to the potatoe exhibit of Mr. S. J. Jackson, M.P.P. for Stonewall, wherein twenty-one varieties, all grown on his farm, are shown. At the north-eastern corner is situated the Calgary department, which is filled chiefly with minerals. Samples of different kinds of coal brought from mines in the vicinity of Calgary, of silver and copper ore, and of native brick are arranged for inspection. The car is artistically decorated with Union Jacks and other ornamentations. Over the windows are hung views of North-west scenery and over the centre window is placed a photograph of the de-departments occupied by Manitoba products in various exhibitions throughout the world, and also two gold medals awarded to the Manitoba exhibit are to be seen. The soil, taken from the various farms, which is shown in glass jars, is of a rich sandy loam. Samples of the soil taken from Winnipeg, the eastern limit of the prairie region, and from Calgarry, are also shown. That of the eastern extremity is slightly darker than that of the western part.

Messrs. W. A. Dicker, a superintendent of the farms, and W. D. Scott, of the Land Department, have charge of the car, and furnish information to visitors.

During the day, and especially during this afternoon, the car was crowded with visitors. It will leave at 8 o'clock this evening.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Strong westerly winds and gales, decreasing in force by night; cloudy to fair, decidedly colder weather, with snow-flurries.

The Good, the True, the Beautiful.

What elevating thoughts and ideas arise, and how the heart swells with the proud knowledge of the enobling capabilities of our race, as those words are repeated—the Good, the True, the Beautiful! The Good, which includes benevolence and all the charitables acts of the noble and self-sacrificing people, who minister to the wants of others, physical, mental and moral; the True, which comprises those principles of truthfulness and straightforwardness that make life bearable, and the strength of friendship upon which are at times happy to rely; the Beautiful, which adds pleasure to existence, brightens those gloomy periods of life and makes the happy periods more blissful. The noblest principles of noble souls—the highest elevation to which we can ascend—the grand platform of the Good, the True, the Beautiful! There is no one so devoid of good aspirations that he does not admire those principles. And they are as necessary in our thoughts and actions. A good suit of clothes, a true fit and reliable material, and withal beautiful goods, is what all desire. This want can be supplied in Peterborough, and the place to go is at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall, George street.

XMAS CARDS.

We have now our full stock ready, which we will be pleased to show to our customers. No stock could have a better assortment of more elegant Cards, and as to Cheapness, we simply ask the public to inspect and price Goods. A. L. DAVIS & Co.

POLICE COURT.

INFRINGEMENT OF THE FIRE BY-LAW.

MONDAY, Nov. 23.—Dr. R. Kincaid was charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having erected a wooden building within the fire limits. The Dr. stated that the building referred to was merely a temporary one for providing shelter for his buggy. The case was enlarged for one week so as to allow removal.

W. Yelland was charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having infringed on the Fire By-law. He pleaded not guilty, and pleaded that it was simply a renewal of the roof of a shed whereby he decreased the fire risk instead of increasing it. Mr. E. B. Edwards appeared for the town, and stated that the constables were doing their duty and that there was no malice in the proceeding. The case was adjourned for one week so as to allow the defendant to comply with the by-law.

Charles Stapleton was charged by P. C. Adams with having had a roof shingled without mortar. The defendant pleaded guilty, but stated that it was his intention to have had the roof covered with mortar, and that it was merely a misunderstanding between the workmen and himself. The case was enlarged so as to allow the application of mortar.

R. Z. Rogers was charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having erected a wooden building on the south side of Hunter street, within the fire limits. Mr. J. Burnham appeared for the defendant, and stated that the building was erected with the consent of the Building Committee. The case was adjourned for two weeks.

John Halpin was charged by P. C. Adams with having erected a wooden building within the fire limits. The defendant pleaded guilty, but urged that his house was newly built, and that he intended to have it bricked outside. The case was adjourned for a week.

Thos. Bradburn was charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having erected a wooden structure on the north side of Simcoe street, within the fire limits. The defendant stated that the structure was a verandah, which had been rebuilt. The old one was in a dangerous condition, and there was no more fire risk to be incurred than by the old one, and there was much less risk to passengers. The case was adjourned for two week. Mr. Geo. Edmison appeared for the defendant.

Geo. Kingdom was charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having infringed the fire by-law by repairing a wooden shed to two thirds its value, within the fire limits. The defendant pleaded guilty, but stated that he intended to brick the building. The case was adjourned for two weeks.

Wm. Cluxton was charged by P. C. Adams with having erected a shed on the west side of Chambers street, within the fire limits, which was not in accordance with the building by-law. Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the defendant. The case was adjourned for two weeks.

Valentine Best was charged by P.C. Pidgeon with having erected a wooden building within the fire limits. Mr. Geo. Edmison appeared for the defendant. The case was adjourned for two weeks.

W. G. Ferguson, President of the Curling and Skating Rink Company, was charged, as the head of that company, by P.C. Adams, with having erected a building within the fire limits not in accordance with the provisions made by the building by-law. Mr. E. H. D. Hall appeared for the defence, and stated that the rink had been erected with the full consent of the neighboring ratepayers, the Town Council and the Building Committee. The case was adjourned for two weeks.

Giroux & Sullivan.

OUR GREAT

CLOSING SALE

A Decided Success.

We are giving more Bargains and a better class of Goods than any other house that advertises a Clearing Out Sale.

The Reason Why

The people are satisfied to buy from us: They buy their goods at one price during this sale, not as some people who are selling out and charging three or four prices. This we know to be true, so beware of such places, and buy your goods from a responsible house and that is at

GIROUX & SULLIVAN'S.

By strict application of the Motto "Small Profits, Fixed Prices, Plain Figures and Cash," Giroux & Sullivan enjoy a reputation for Cheapness in its true meaning, namely Real Economy.

Kindly tell your friends we are holding a Great Closing Out Sale and are selling goods 20 per cent. cheaper than any house in the trade.

Small Profit and Quick Returns, it is the quantity sold that pays us.

See the Bargains we are giving in,

DRESS GOODS AND SILKS

Velvets, Plushes, Satins, Prints, Wincey, Mantle Cloths, and Sealettes, Hosiery and Gloves, Carpet and Floor Oil Cloths, Skirts and Shawls, and Wool Goods.

"Stockings we are selling out,
And now's the time to buy,
In values they have made a rout,
If in doubt you'd better try."

We can discount any other quotations we have seen.

This is a grand opportunity sor parties to buy Good and Cheap Goods, during the Xmas holidays.

AN EDITOR IN TROUBLE.

Mr. Geo. Wilson of the Port Hope Guide Again Assaulted.

Correspondence of the Review.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 24.—Mr. George Wilson, editor of the Guide, was thrashed on Walton street on Friday morning by Mr. Henry White, a clerk in the law office of Mr. D Chisholm. An insulting reference was made to Mr. White in Thursday night's Guide, and as he had previously warned Mr. Wilson that if he referred to him in a slighting way in his paper again he would publicly chastise him for it, he made good his word. Mr. White gave Mr. Wilson's face a vigorous slapping, but otherwise did him no injury. The editor of the Guide is rather unfortunate, this being the sixth time he has been assaulted for inserting offensive personal allusions in the Guide

ANOTHER ASSAULT.

Mr. Wilson was again assaulted on Saturday evening, the assailant in this instance being Mr. Samuel Seulthorpe, owner of one of the Port Hope elevators. The assault took place in the office of the Midland Banking Co., but Mr. Wilson escaped by the back door with very little injury. The cause of the assault in this instance is unknown.

OUR SIDEWALKS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—For the last two months I have been wondering if our town (the crack one of the Province) has a street inspector, paid by our Town Council, if so—the sooner he attends to his official duties the better. Will he be kind enough to take a trip from Water street to the Dickson mills, and examine the sidewalks?

Yours, etc.,

A Fatal Spot.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 24.—The nineth day since the four Wolf Islanders were drowned has passed and there is no trace of the bodies. Thirty-eight years ago a similar accident occurred and the bodies of four were never recovered. Several years later a man driving a horse and sleigh went down and was never heard of afterwards.

A Terrible Trapeze Accident.

At the Princess theatre, Valencia, Spain, Miss Leoni Dare, the American acrobat, was suspended from the roof of the theatre by her feet, and had in her teeth the ropes of a trapeze bar on which a male acrobat known as M. George was peforming. Miss Dare was seized with a nervous fit and dropped the trapeze. Mr. George and the apparatus dropped to the floor. Miss Dare clung to the roof, screaming hysterically and was rescued with difficulty. Mr. George is dying.

Returned With Interest.

Somewhere in 1860, while Dr. Holmes, the present county treasurer, was attending the Toronto school of medicine, a fellow student named Bell borrowed a book from him, which was worth about $3. The doctor forgot all about the circumstances until a short time since, when he received a letter from his comrade (who is now in California) with an enclosure of $8—$3 for the book and $5 for interest.—Clinton New Era.

An Erring Man's Eloquence.

When Robert Collingwood was brought up for sentence before Judge Sinclair at Hamilton on Saturday he made a dramatic appeal for mercy:—"I would strongly recommend your worship to suspend sentence until Monday next, and think over it. I am the victim of unfounded inferences from fictitious facts, and I repeat that the angles in heaven will become blind with weeping. The evidence should be conclusive; the story verbatim et literatum should convince the court of my guilt, but it miserably fails. I deny that I am guilty of larcency, for on the evidence it is plain that I merely "shoved" the hammer. I pray you to keep the glorious uncertainties of the law from being pushed to their extravagance or sapped to their foundation." The Judge gave him three months in the central prison.

Apache Atrocities.

ANTONIO, Nov. 22.—Lieutenant Eggleston, who was ordered in pursuit of the Apache Indians who have been raiding in Presidio County, last night telegraphed the result of his scouting to General Stanley. He said farmer Petty had been shot three times in the head, and his wife had been outraged and murdered. Three children were also found butchered. The Indians were trailed to where they crossed the Rio Grande into Mexico, and Lieutenant Eggleston gave up the pursuit at the river, as the reciprocal treaty for the crossing of troops has expired. Lieutenant Eggleston believes if he could take up the trail on the Mexican side of the river he could overtake the Indians in five days. General Stanley has written to the authorities at Washington urging the immediate renewal of the reciprocal connection with Mexico.

A TARDY REPARATION.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—About 280 former comrades of Gen. Gorgei, the noted Hungarian leader, presented him yesterday with a manifest exonerating him from the charge of treachery which was made against him after the surrender of the Hungarian forces in 1849. Count Andrassy, Gen. Kapka and many other distinguished men signed the document. Gen. Gorgei was greatly affected, and said that he had been resigned to die under the accusation of treason, but he greeted with joy the courage of his comrades in restoring to him his reputation to take with him to the grave.

TAE CONGO CONFERENCE.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—Experts hold that England has no claim to Bonnie Benne and the upper Niger river and can claim only the real mouth of the Niger. It is semi-officially stated that France has concluded two conventions with the African International Association, one defining the Congo territories and the other acknowledging the Association formally. At the last meeting of the committee of the Congo Conference the Italian delegate proposed that the powers should contribute for the protection of all missionaries, travellers and savants who visit the Congo region. Mr. Stanley advocated the construction of a railway from Vivi to Stanley-pool, in order to cheapen the transport service to the interior.

SPAIN ON THE ORO.

MADRID, Nov. 23.—The El Liberal, referring to the report that Spain had taken possession of territory in West Africa, on the Oro river, says that only the commercial factories established on that river and at Cape Blanco have been placed under the protection of a Spanish man-of-war.

AT A STANDSTILL.

HONG KONG, Nov. 24.—It is asserted that the reports of victories by the French in Formosa are fabrications, and that French successes in Tonquin have been greatly over-rated. The invaders of Tonquin are making no progress. Their operations are at a standstill, and they are confined to the Red River. In Formosa the French have no foothold except at Kelung. The Chinese are now assuming the offensive in Tonquin and Formosa. If the French are to continue their course of taking reprisals, they will require 15,000 men as a reinforcement in Tonquin and 10,000 in Formosa. The expedition against Pekin direct would be cheaper for France.

CYCLONE IN INDIA.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—India advices state that a terrible cyclone recently visited the Madras Presidency, causing immense damage. Dykes burst in many places, stopping the water supply of the city of Madras.

THE ADAMS-COLERIDGE CASE.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Judge Mamstey, of the Court of Queen's Bench, has ordered a stay of execution in the Adams-Coleridge case. The judge explained that his action in overruling the jury was taken in the interest of both parties. If the Court of Appeals overrules his decision, a second trial will not be necessary.

MOB DISPERSED BY MILITARY.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—After the workingmen's demonstration yesterday, hundreds of men rushed through the streets crying "To the baker shops." The police were unable to stop them, and the mounted gendarmes were obliged to charge on the furious people, and finally succeeded in dispersing the crowds, after wounding many and arresting 100 of the ringleaders. Radical newspapers accuse the Government of angering the crowd on Sunday by a needless display of police and military force. The organizers are determined to make a demonstration next Sunday when emeutes are expected.

TURKISH TROOPS IN VARNA.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 24.—The dissatisfaction in the Varna has been quieted by the Government agreeing to pay the troops part of their arreare, and to reduce the term of service by two years.

PARLIAMENTARY.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Parliament will adjourn about the 12th December.

ENGLAND AND THE NIGER.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The Figaro states that England's decision not to permet the Congo Conference to establish an international commission for the regulation of the Niger, was intimated at the first session of the conference. The British delegate declared, in explanation, that the commerce of the Niger was exclusively British, and the tribes in the Niger Delta were under British protection. England, he asserted, would pledge herself to clear the river, regulate navigation, and throw the river open to the world.

EGYPTAIN FINANCES.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—Germany and Russia intend to demand a representation in the Caisse de la Dette Publique of Egypt.

ADMITTED TO BAIL.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.—At the request of Mr. T. M. Healy, M. P., Fredrick Allen, committed for trial on the 13 inst., on a charge of treason-felony, has been admitted to bail.

KRAPOTKIN AT WORK.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—Prince Krapotkin has completed his work on "Nihilism in North Russia." His health has recently improved, and he works several hours daily in the Clairvaux prison.

PILLAGIN IN MASSOWAH.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A Massowah despatch describes the district ceded by the English to King John of Abyssinia as a scene of pillage, fire, and massacre. The tribes throughout the Bagos province have revolted and destroyed the tobacco plantations and plundered the caravans coming to Keren. Foreign traders in Massowah have been ruined, and are uniting in a petition to their Governments to insist upon their indemnification by the English Government.

THE BRITISH ADVANCE.

DONGOLA, Nov. 24.—The British are advancing rapidly, though many boats have been injured.

THE CHOLERA.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The sanitary commission has ceased to hold daily sessions. The cholera epidemic is considered at an end.

A DEMONSTRATION.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.—Thousands of people paraded last night at Waterford, with banners and torches, in honor of the memory of Larkin Allen, and O'Brien, the Fenians executed at Manchester.

NEW ENGLISH MEN OF WAR.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Admiralty has invited tenders for building new men-of-war, from the ship builders on the rivers Clyde, Tyne and Mersey, among whom the orders will be distributed to remedy the present depression in the ship-building trade.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone said he hoped to introduce the Redistribution Bill next Monday, and move the second reading the following Thursday. The Income Tax Bill passed the third reading to-day. Lord Salisbury will call a meeting of the Conservative leaders to consider Mr. Gladstone's Redistribution Bill.

AGREED.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Mr. Gladstone and Lord Salisbury have arrived at a definite agreement upon the Redistribution Bill. Mr. Chamberlain, President of the Board of Trade, still resists Radical pressure and continues to support his colleagues. The Cabinet is thus united upon the question. Parliament will adjourn about the 12th December.

THE SMALLPOX OUTBREAK.

Additional Deaths — Precautions to Prevent the Disease Spreading.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 24.—The City Board of Health contradict the rumour that a case of smallpox has occurred here, and state that they have taken all necessary means to prevent the introduction of the disease here. They advise all the inhabitants who fear the disease to have themselves vaccinated.

In Elsiver no additional cases have occurred beyond the one already reported. In Hungerford the strictest precautions have been taken, the schools being closed and Sabbath services in the various churches prohibited for the time being. It is reported that the Roman Catholic priest at Stoco has been attacked by the contagion. Three more death are reported to have taken place in Hungerford.

THE DOMINION PREMIER.

Sir John Macdonald Entertained by the Prince of Wales and Banquetted.

A special despatch to the Mail from London, dated Nov. 24th, says:—Sir John Macdonald returned to-day from visiting the Prince of Wales, at Sandringham palace, where he met a select company and was most courteously entertained by His Royal Highness. This evening he was the guest of the Beaconsfield Club, in Pall Mall. There was a large and distinguished gathering present. Sir Stafford Northcote took the chair, with the guest of the evening on his right. Sir John Macdonald, in responding to the toast of the British Colonies, associated with the name of the Canadian Premier, after returning thanks for the very hearty reception that had been accorded to him, dwelt on the colonial relations of the Dominion to the Empire. He contrasted Canada of the present day with Canada of forty years ago, when he first entered political life, referred to the material advancement of the country and the national spirit that prevailed, and the sentiment of devoted loyalty that was everywhere apparent. His remarks were received with hearty applause.

A TERRIBLE OPERATION.

A Man's Tongue Cut Out to Avoid an Awful Death—Warning to Smokers.

A terrible surgical operation was performed at the General Hospital in this city on Saturday last, when a man's tongue was cut out in order to prevent him from dying a painful, if not an excruciating death. The victim was a man, apparently about 50 years of age, who came to the General Hospital a few days ago to be treated for what he supposed was simply a sore tongue. The doctor, after making an examination, found that the man was suffering from a cancer which had formed on his tongue, and the only remedy was immediate amputation of that most useful organ. The unfortunate individual decided to submit to the operation rather than suffer the torture to which he had been subjected for some time past. When he had given the surgeon the facts with reference to his case they found that the disease was simply the result of the habit of excessive smoking. The patient had been a smoker. The pipe which he had generally smoked was a common clay one, the stem of which had been broken off short, leaving a ragged edge. This had, at first, caused simply an abrasion of the skin, which became painful. The smoker, not dreaming of the cause or the result of the continuance of the practice, kept on smoking his short clay pipe until after some time his tongue became so irritated that it was only with intense pain that he could speak, and was unable to take any solid food. At last the pain became such that he deemed it advisable to visit the General Hospital in order to get relief if possible. Amputation was the only means of relief. The operation was performed by Dr. Macfarlane in the presence of a large number of students and physicians. Of course the latest scientific appliances were used to make the unfortunate man suffer as little as possible. He is now doing quite well at the hospital, and although past the middle age, will likely live some years, but without the power of speech or sense of taste. This is an awful warning to all who have become habitual excessive smokers.—Toronto Globe.

Spiritualistic Fanaticism.

GAMBIER, Ohio, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Welker, a spiritualist, refused medical aid while sick, and was persuaded to submit to treatment by a man named Burrows, who said he was a medium under the influence of the spirit of an Indian chief Burrows said the woman was afflicted with devils, which he proceeded to drive out by beating her about the head and shoulders, and otherwise maltreating her, from the effects of which she died on Wednesday. Burrows said the evil spirits then entered his wife, and he beat her savagely. The house where Mrs. Welker died was locked up, and no one was permitted to enter until Saturday, when it was forced open and the corpse found stretched on a bed in a state of nudity. It is thought Burrows was insane.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1884.

THE fact that among the reasons urged by some independent journals against Imperial Federation is the fear that the National Policy would have to be sacrificed to attain such a federation, shows that the feeling is still strong that the N. P. has been and is a benefit, and that if it were abolished the country would be the loser, notwithstanding the persistent attacks of the Reform press upon that policy.

THE Reform journals have found two ways of endeavouring to blind the eyes of the country to the wholesale bribery practised by their party in Lennox. One way is to abuse the Conservative party and use liberally the tu quoque argument. The other is to abuse the voters for accepting their bribes. In attacking both the Conservatives and the voters they appear to find congenial work, but the men who brought the Mysterious Stranger to the constituency, drove him around, spoke of the electors as "cattle," bribed all who gave way to the temptations they held out to them, and set to work systematically to corrupt the constituency, they endeavour to spare, because they were Reformers.

OUR NORTH-WEST.

THE exhibition car of the C. P. R., which has been on view in our town, gives a very satisfactory idea of the fertility of our North-West. Especially gratifying is it to see such produce from the ten experimental farms, since thus a very practical contradiction is given to the false statements made by the unpatriotic opponents of our great national railway, and indeed of the country itself, so long as it places its confidence in Conservative statesmen. Reform politicians and Reform journals have stated over and over again that the C. P. R., for a great portion of its route through the prairies, traversed a desert land quite unadapted for agricultural settlement. Of course this, combined with similar calumnies, had the intended effect of prejudicing to some extent the land sales of the Company, besides its financial credit. It also put the Company to the expense of establishing experimental farms in order to refute these false statements. The refutation was ample; even under the disadvantageous circumstances attending the hasty establishment of these farms, they proved successful to an extent that left no ground for the falsehoods of the unpatriotic men who had been vilifying their own country from mere political pique.

The plain fact is now evident that our North-West is a most fertile country, not in isolated spots, but throughout its breadth. False statements by so-called "Reformers" may have delayed the acknowledgment of this fact, but it is now most thoroughly established.

FALSE PRETENCES.

Nearly two years ago members of the Mowat government and other leading Reformers discovered that Ontario was badly in need of creameries. The need was so urgent that immediate legislation was absolutely necessary. Conservatives fully agreed that the creameries were needed; but they did not think the hurry was so great as to call for legislation before information could be collected and a feasible scheme decided upon. They pointed out that while the export of cheese had increased to enormous proportions the export of butter was barely holding its own. They fully agreed that any system of teaching which would increase the average selling value of all the butter produced in the country by even a cent a pound would be of enormous benefit. But they thought the whole project had better wait till the proper system could be devised and agreed upon than to endanger success by injudicious and ill-considered experiments. The Government, however, was very firm. The country not only wanted creameries, but "wanted them bad." And they rushed a measure through the Legislature with little ceremony.

Nearly two years have passed; and the creameries, O where are they? They are still among the things that may be. There is no hurry; the elections are over. There will be a great hurry for them just before the next elections come on. But it is evident the pretenses made were false and hypocritical. There was no hurry for the act. Ministers knew there was no hurry for it. They deliberately deceived the country.

About the same time the same men pretended that they were much interested in a new extension of the franchise. Conservatives had pointed out that a great injustice had been done. Farmers' sons living with their parents were given a right to vote, but the sons of men living in cities and towns were not given a like right. One would think this to be a serious wrong and that it should have been remedied before the election; but Ministers who so keenly felt the pressing need of creameries, could not see the pressing need of an act of justice. They have not yet seen it. They will not see it till the voice of the country forces them to do so.

While our friends the workingmen are discussing political questions would it not be well for them to ask why the Ontario government has given a right to vote to the sons of farmers and has denied the right to the sons of merchants.—Hamilton Spectator.

A Wealthy Pauper.

An aged woman called "Old Eliza," who has been living at the Home for the Aged, Toronto, died on Friday evening. On Saturday her box was examined and found to contain $1,200 in gold and a considerable sum in bills and silver, making in all over $3,000. She has been supported by charitably disposed persons for the last thirty-two years. Her husband, who it is said was a tailor, died about thorty-four years ago. Since that time "Old Eliza" has been saving money until she acquired the sum which was found in her box.—Mail.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

THE LENNOX ELECTION.

The evidence in this case is most discreditable. If the Liberals cannot secure seats without resorting to such means, then they had better aim only at being for ever in opposition.—Montreal Times (Reform).

CROAKING WITHOUT CAUSE.

Some people in Ontario, too, and in other eastern provinces would be the better of having their attention directed to favourable features of the situation. There is a great deal of apprehension and of croaking for which there is insufficient cause.—Monetary Times.

JUST AS USUAL.

The Grit journals have nearly all of them made the subject of Jamaica annexation the foundation for pitching into Sir John. This was one of the mistakes so frequently made by the party papers. Sir John acted very properly in the matter.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

GOOD EVIDENCE.

The people are not everywhere feeling poor, however, is proved by the demand for good tweeds, good overcoatings and the like in their orders for fall suits from country tailors—by the prices paid for fur cloaks, caps, coats and sleigh-robes in increased quantity—by the proportion of "good goods" chosen of shoe dealers—by the request for better teas and first-class groceries.—Monetary Times.

SERVICES RECOGNIZED.

Sir John Macdonald has had a new order conferred upon him by the Queen, having received the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath. This was worth his while going to England for, and is a standing rebuke to the attacks of the Grit organ and all who would have us believe that Sir John is not a truly good man. It is an honor to the country, as well as to the individual, and Canadians should feel that it is something to be proud of that one of their number has been deemed worthy of such marked distinction—not that there is anything in these titles themselves, for in this country there is not, but in the fact that it means a recognition of distinguished services. Sir John's many friends and admirers will rejoice that he has been called forward to receive this additional token of his Sovereign's favor, and it may be taken for granted that not even his strongest political opponents will begrudge him the possession of it.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.)

THE GROUNDS ARE NOT APPARENT.

It is stated on apparently good grounds that Sir John went to England fully expecting to be made a peer.—Brockville Recorder (Reform.)

WHAT THEY SHOULD CONSIDER.

When the fury of the battle shall have subsided, and the dust shall have been laid, patriotic and sober-minded Americans will perhaps begin to consider what must be the effects on national character and political security of a system which exposes the Republic to the perils of a monarchy with a disputed succession, besides stirring up the worst passions from their depths, bringing every issue to a dangerous head, dividing society, disturbing commerce, leading to a vast waste of money on demoralizing objects, and turning the minds of the people from the calm and wholesome discussions of public questions to a carnival of violence, calumny and corruption.—The Week.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

The Reformers acceded to power at the close of 1873. The net debt on the 1st of July of that year was $99,848,461. On the 1st of July, 1878, it had increased to $140,362,069—an increase of more than eight millions a year. On the 1st of July, 1883, the net debt reached $158,466,714—an increase of $18,104,645, or about three and a half millions a year. The economical Reformers increased the debt much more than twice as fast as the extravagant Conservatives. But during their five years the Reformers spent on public works $38,500,000, or two millions less than the increase in the debt. During the next five years Conservatives spent $43,600,000 on public works, or $25,500,000 more than the increase of the debt.—Hamilton Spectator.

ELECTRIC LIGHT EXPOSING MATTER OF INTEREST.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The illiberality displayed by some of our Councillors in treating questions of importance by haggling and foolish talk is disgusting and painful to anyone, sufficient to destroy the desire of attending such a meeting again. The electric light question has afforded ample proof, when it requires several meetings to settle it. Oh! no! A compromise had to be hit on, or they might have got stuck up to the time for the election of the new Council, and so it was agreed by a signed petition of ratepayers from the second ward to defray the expense for four lights burning after midnight, and by such means the Gordian knot was cut. I would like to know the fairness in such a division, to which I for one protest in contributing to, however little the cost may be. Residents for years past in Peterborough can well recollect what the South Ward of the town has been, and whether the improvements in fitting up, boulevarding streets and building miles of sidewalk could have been done for the taxes collected from that portion of the town, and is it not the Second Ward that contributes largely for the improvement of the outside Wards, but whenever the former puts in its claim a local tax is the answer of our allwise Council. The reason for such apathy exhibited by ratepayers of the Second Ward against such a one-sided proceeding is that many of our business men live in a different Ward, hence their indifference. If local tax is made the rule for the Second Ward, why then is it not made a rule in general also for the other Wards? Councillor McNeil is putting forward a claim for a new heater for the fire engine. I hope that this will be treated by the Council in the same way as a local tax, as George street has the water works to depend on for protection, and I may here express myself in precisely the same way as some of the Councillors did, when the question of night watchmen came up; what business have we to protect the rich man's property? Now, Mr. Editor, I beg to differ from that rule altogether, and my view in that direction is more liberal, as I hold that every individual is morally bound to protect whenever there is a chance, rich and poor alike, and moreover I hold that the Council is in duty bound to see us protected all alike, rich or poor; for such duty they are elected, and only for such consideration have we to pay taxes. There have from time to time come up questions of greater importance as regards expenses, such as filling up Spaulding's Bay, &c.; is this not also a question of local tax? Should such feeling exist, no consideration for the well-being of the town, but jealousy over local matters. Looking back on the year's action of our Council, what has been done by them of which they can boast? Many questions affecting health, trade and protection have been brought before their notice, and all have been treated with contempt. The question of drainage, our police force, and that important matter, trade with the country east of us. Such urgent demands have been completely ignored as being too expensive and not feasible, but there are other exhibits though in a question coming up, where our Council can air their dignity, such as the entertainment of the York Pioneers, where the vote for the expense is carried without dispute.

Now look at their wisdom in rebuilding the Hunter street bridge in such a season of the year, where the expenses must be more, the delay to the unfortunates, who have to pass daily to and fro, most embarrassing, and the work, no matter how well executed under the circumstances, being not so satisfactory as if built earlier in the season. The reason is not far to seek for such bungling, as if that bridge was required in the Frst Ward it would have been built long ago. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space.

Yours, &c.,
WM. LECH.

Bible Competition.

The publisher of the popular humorous work, entitled "Our Joshua as a Reporter," anxious to dispose of the limited number of copies on hand, has offered a special inducement. The persons sending the first correct answer to the following Bible question before the 15th Jan., 1885, will receive ten dollars in gold ($10 in gold); the person sending the next five correct answers, one dollar each; and the five persons sending the last correct answers, one dollar each; in all eleven rewards.

Each person competing must enclose twenty-five cents with their answer, and will receive by return mail a copy of "Our Joshua as a Reporter," a humurous work of 160 pages, of which the Provincial and United States press have spoken most favorable. Name this paper.

In the last competition only 28 had the correct answers. Prizes were taken by 13, as follows:—

1st, Mrs. H. H. Mowfatt, Canaan Horton, N.S., fine oil painting; 2nd, Ena Cogswell, Yarmouth, N.S., oil painting; 3rd, Laura Delay, Great Village, Col. County, N. S., old painting; 4th, Carrie Stewart, Dartmouth, N. S., $1; 5th, Eliza B. Hamilton, Upper Magaguadavic, N. B., $1; 6th, T. Tardiff, Perce, Quebec, $1; 7th, Alfred D. Shea, Grafton, Carleton County, N. B., $1, 8th, Dr. S. C. Murray, Albert, N.B., $1; 9th, Lizzie J Townsend, Passakeag, N. B., $1; 10th, Minnie Goodwin, Barrington, N. S., $1; 11th, Mrs. S. L. Dow, Beaufort, N.B., $1; 12th, Mrs. R. W. Sloan, Churchill, Ont., $1; 13th, Lucias A. Toiman, Randolph, Mass., $1. Try, you have every chance for a prize.

QUESTION.—Multiply the number of elders that John saw in his revelation by the number of years Satan was bound, divide by the number of gates in the New Jerusalem, add number of shekels of silver taken by Achan from Jericho, subtract the number of false prophets killed on Mount Carmel, divide by the number of Moses' sons, and subtract Eli's age at his death.

The correct answer and names of successful competitors will be published in the New Brunswick Reporter, a copy of which will be forwarded.

It Couldn't be Him.

"Mrs. Jones," said Mrs Blinkin to her next-door neighbour, "you have the stubbornest husband I ever saw."

"You don't say so," was the quiet answer, "What's the matter now?"

"Why, he stood in front of my husband to-day, and wouldn't budge, though he asked him once or twice to do so."

"It wasn't my husband."

"I know better."

"Well, I say it wasn't. I've known that man for thirty years, and, if he ever refused to budge when anybody invited him to, then he ain't my husband, that's all."

Mrs. B. got a slang distionary to see what "budge" meant.—New York Star.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto
Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Heel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

Mr. Thomas may be seen at the Grand Central Hotel.

"Independence, Texas, Sept. 26, 1882.
Gentlemen:

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Has been used in my household for three reasons:—

1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.
2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.
3d. As a dressing.

It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,

THE REASON WHY
Our Shoe Store is always Crowded

With Customers is very apparent to those that have visited it and seen our immense Stock and compared our prices with those asked elsewhere for the same goods. Never have we had such Bargains in Boots and Shoes as now. Never have we sold as many as now, and the more we sell the

GREATER BARGAINS

we have, as we are able to buy in larger quantities and at corresponding low prices. We retail as many Boots and Shoes as most jobbers sell at wholesale, consequently manufacturers make no difference in price to us than wholesale trade, while smaller dealers are obliged to pay which is about the same as our regular retail price for the same quality of goods. It must be very evident to any thinking person that there must be a reason for our immense Shoe Business, and that our low prices, complete stock, and attention shown to our customers can be the only attraction powerful enough to draw such crowds to our store, and place us, with but two years' growth, as one of the largest retail Shoe Houses in Eastern Ontario.

JOBBERS' PRICES,

Remember our system of business is square with all. Goods marked in plain figures and no second or third prices made.

FENELON FALLS.

BROKE HIS ARM.—On Monday evening a little boy about three years of age, eldest son of Mr. John Dinney, of this village, fell from a high chair and broke his right arm midway between the elbow and wrist. Dr. A. Wilson set the fracture, and the little patient is doing well.

SCALDED.—On Tuesday afternoon Dr. A. Wilson's eldest child, a little girl about two and a half years old, fell into a small low tub that had just been partially filled with water from the boiler, and scalded her right leg from the hip down to the ankle so severely that the greater part of the skin peeled off. Fortunately the doctor was in the house at the time and instantly adopted the remedial measures; but the poor little thing was badly injured, and it will be some time before she fully recovers.

THE GRIST MILL.—We took a walk as far as McDougall & Brandon's new mill a couple of days ago, to see how it was progressing, and found half a dozen men at work putting the engine together, and it is expected that steam will be got up and a "trial trip" made next week. The boiler was placed on its brick foundation some time ago, and the smoke-stack, which is nearly seventy feet high and five and a half feet in circumference, was erected early this week. More of the machinery is expected daily.—Gazette.

AN ECONOMIC SCIENCE ASSOCIATION.

We do not often agree with the views of the Peterborough REVIEW on subjects of public interest, but we do heartily agree with it as to the desirableness of forming in this country an Association for the Promotion of Economic Science. It is a science of great practical utility, and upon the proper understanding of it much of our prosperity as a people depends. It is also a science of fascinating interest, and a society formed for its promotion would doubtless attract a large membership of the best minds in the country. Our Legislatures are called upon every year to deal with matters affecting trade and commerce, public works, banking, the relations of capital and labour, the education of the people, the development of the natural resources of the country, etc.; yet the number of parliamentary representatives possessed of the requisite knowledge to deal with such subjects intelligibly is very small, and the action usually taken is one favored by political considerations rather than one supported by the conclusions drawn from a wide survey and close study of facts. We want more of the spirit of scientific enquiry—the accumulation of a large body of facts, and a thorough and unprejudiced study of them—in order to know what is the best course to be taken in the public interest, and believing that such enquiry and study would be advanced by an association formed for the promotion of economic science we cheerfully endorse the REVIEW'S proposal.—Toronto Globe.

THE INTERNATIONAL PARK.

Proposed Action to be taken on the Canadian Side—The Projected Plan.

BUFFALO, Nov. 23.—A Niagara Falls, N.Y., special says: Our friends across the border have by no means forgotten the international park scheme, and the probabilities are that some action will be taken in regard to the matter during the winter. A meeting was recently held at Clifton, at which Sir Alexander Campbell, of the Dominion Government, was present, and a scheme was discussed which seems very feasible. It was assumed that neither the Government of the Dominion, nor that of Ontario would at present undertake the establishment of an International Park, and the next best thing would be to renew a scheme advanced about a year ago. On the Canadian side of the river the Government owns a strip of land alongside the river bank sufficient for a good road, which must always be kept open. The project of a year ago was the incorporation of a private company under the protection and control of the Ontario Government. To this company the Government was to give the land around the falls, and under Government control it should be empowered to secure additional land for a park, that the company should keep the park and the view of the falls always free to the public, but that they should have the right to improve it with tramways, place hotels and other attractions in it, subject to the right of the Government to regulate the charges to be made therefor. It is also understood that the park should be subject to a tax for municipal purposes. Sir Alexander Campbell, Sir Alexander Galt, Sir William Howland, Hon. William McMaster, Hon. G. W. Allan, Walter Shanley, Dr. Ferguson, and other leading men of Canada have consented to act as provisional directors of the proposed park company. The company has been formed with Sir Alexander Campbell as President, and the application for a charter from the Province of Ontario has been filed.

A Singular Accident.

On Monday morning, at 8 o'clock, Mr. Coroner Jones and a jury held an inquest at the morgue upon the body of a man named Edouard Ouimet, who met his death on Saturday evening, under somewhat singular circumstances. The deceased and a man named Louis Lecours were engaged in a stable belonging to Mr. Jas. Strachan, 142 German street, receiving a load of straw into the hay-loft over the stable. While engaged in the work both men fell through the hay-loft door into the stable beneath, the loft door falling upon Lecour's back. When the latter had extricated himself, he turned to look for Ouimet, but he could not be seen, and he concluded he had gone away. However, upon removing two bundles of straw, he came upon him, but he was then quite dead, having, in the fall, broken his neck. Mr. Strachan, being apprised of the accident, had the deceased removed to a sofa in his dining room. Mr. Jones having been notified, the latter ordered the removal of the body to the morgue. The foregoing facts having been deposed to at the inquest and Dr. Verner having stated that death resulted from the breaking of the neck in the fall, the jury found a verdict of accidental death, but recommended that all trap doors in hay lofts or elsewhere should be protected with hinges.—Montreal Witness.

At the Grocery in 1900.

In 1900 a little boy will run to the corner grocery with a can in his hand and say:

"Ma wants a quart of your best electricity."

"How'd your ma like the last?" the grocer will ask.

"All right."

"That's Johnston's; Johnston makes good 'tricity," the grocer will remark, as he turns the little boy on a quart. "What's your ma using it for to-day?"

"She's going to wash, and wants it to turn the washer and wringer."

"There you are, my little man. Look out and don't spill it." And the grocer will give the little boy a bunch of raisins.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

A Marvellous Escape.

A couple of inebriates named William O'Connor and David Fraser, were saved from a terrible death by a vigilant Toronto policeman. It appears that the couple arrived in the city Friday from Whitby, and they proceeded to celebrate the event by visiting every saloon they came across. At an early hour Saturday morning they were found by P.C. Veitch a short distance from the Don railway station, lying across the tracks with their heads on the metals. The constable had hardly pulled them off the line, when a freight train thundered by. They were brought before the magistrate Saturday, but allowed to go after being severely reprimanded.—Mail.

Midnight Mechanics in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—The safe in the New York hotel, on Lagauchetiere street, was broken into last night by thieves, who are suspected to have been guests of the house, and $3,100, all the money it contained, belonging to Mr. D. A. Melvin, the proprietor, carried off. The tools with which the drilling was executed were left behind. Detective Kellert thinks he has spotted the thieves, and expects to have them soon in custody. Burglars are still holding high carnival here and in the suburbs. The convent of St. Cunegonde was broken into and a large amount of goods carried off. No clue to the thieves.

A Chance for Life.

QUEBEC, Nov. 23.—The investigation into the charges made against the guardian and certain jurymen during the recent trial of Mrs. Boutel has resulted in the discharge of the guardian. What will be done with the jurymen is not yet known. It is said that the charges have been substantiated and that the Attorney-General will issue a writ of error. It is generally believed that Mrs. Boutel will not hang now. A petition is being extensively signed by most influential parties here for the commutation of her sentence.

NEW TWEED ULSTERINGS in Unions and All Wool at Alexander's, from 50c. up.

Chained in a Log Hut.

A special despatch to the Philadelphia Press says: A representative of the state board of charities to-day discovered that Nicholas Scidel, an insane man, 77 years of age, was confined in a small log hut on a farm near Reading, where he has been kept chained for a period of thirty-six years by a nephew who lives on the farm. The latter refused to permit the visitor to see the unfortunate man. The case will be reported to the state officials, and the man will probably be removed to an insane asylum.

A New Polish.

A lake near Wiarton drained by Peter A. Scott presents a bed of fine clay, which on analysis is found to contain excellent polishing preparations. Mr. Scott carried a small lump of the material round with him Saturday and polished up everything polishable that came in his way, the surface on which it was used being rendered bright and shining after a slight rubbing. Mr. Scott intends to place the article on the market.

Earthquake Shocks in New Hampshire

CONCORD, Nov. 23.—A slight shock of earthquake was felt here at 12.39 this morning, followed sixteen minutes later by a very heavy one, lasting several seconds, during which large buildings were shaken. The second shock was accompined by a heavy rumbling noise sufficiently loud to awaken people. The shocks were felt in various parts of the state.

Earthquake in Peru.

LIMA, NOV. 22—A strong shock of earthquake was felt this morning. There was no unusual electric disturbance. Clouds of dust were visible from three to five miles from Callao, where portions of the cliff were shaken down on the beach. The walls of many houses were cracked, and some shaken down.

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD has been elected an honorary member of the Le Trappeur snow shoe club, Montreal.

EVERYBODY should keep such a thing as Zopesa in the house, and by regulating the bowels and system, keep away headache, heartache, dejection, indigestion. Zopesa invigorates the liver, makes the family happy by making health.

JAMES BEATY, jr., M.P., QC., who is now in Britain, replied to the toast of the colonies at a recent banquet at Plymouth.

AFTER years of patient research among the flora of his native land, Dr. Van Buren discovered a little plant that is fast making his name famous on both sides of the Atlantic. From its health-giving sap he has given to the world a preparation now known as Dr. Van-Buren's Kidney Cure, which promptly relieves and permanently cures all kidney disease.

TWENTY-FIVE cents invested in "Hub" Cough Cure saves sweating under a cough. It stops a cough quick and sure. Think the price for a cough. Ask J. D. Tully.

NATIONAL PILLS acts promptly upon the Liver, regulates the Bowels and as a purgative are mild and thorough.

CHIEF DESERONTO'S memory is perpetuated at the village which bears his name by a fine new spire which has just been added to the Upper Mohawk Church.

A SUCCESSFUL RESULT.—Mr. Bloomer, of Hamilton, Ont., suffered for many years with a painful running sore upon one of his legs, which baffled all attempts to heal until he used Burdock Blood Bitters, which speedily worked a perfect cure.

PROMPT MEASURES.—Prompt measures should be used to break up sudden colds and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually.

AN AGREEABLE SURPRISE.—Those who try Burdock Blood Bitters as a regulator of the bowels, or to purify the blood, aid digestion, regulate the liver and kidneys, or strengthen tired nature, are agreeably surprised at the prompt benefit derived.

GLADSTONE, according to a Yorkshire paper, will not seek re-election to the new Parliament, but will accept a peerage after the passage of the franchise bill.

A SAFE INVESTMENT.—Investing twenty-five cents for a bottle of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best throat and lung healer known. Cures coughs, bronchitis, asthma and all pulmonary complaints.

IF you are a professional man, an editor, lawyer, clergaman or doctor, so thoroughly overworked that now every mental effort is attended with a sense of weariness, followed by headache and more or less severe nervous prostration, take a dose of Dr. Austin's Phospha tine along with your meals every day for a week or more, and we are certain it will relieve you. For sale by all druggists.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Corps de Ballet.

Do not miss Madame Le Cardo, the beautiful Italian danseuse, and her CORPS DE BALLET in their brilliant costumes and graceful evolutions. Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, 27th and 28th insts. Reserved seats at Hartley's Music Store.

Evening Concert.

A concert was held in Bradburn's Opera House on Monday evening for the benefit of the building fund of St. Peter's Cathedral. The hall was fairly filled and an interesting programme was presented. To judge from the encores the efforts of the performers were appreciated.

A Narrow Escape.

While Mrs. Charles Robinson was carrying a lighted lamp on Saturday night, she accidentally struck it against a crock and broke it. The coal oil was spilled over the table and floor and saturated her clothes, but by holding to the burner and extinguishing the flames Mrs. Robinson escaped injury.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate winds, from south and south-west, fair to cloudy weather, with light local falls of snow, slightly higher temperatures.

EVERYBODY in need of good Dress Goods at reasonable prices should buy from Alexander.

Westward, Ho!

A party of four, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Breakenridge, Miss Striker, and Mr. Stinson, departed last night for Cedar Rapids, Iowa. They started from Peterborough over the Grand Trunk Railway. At Detroit they will take the Chicago and Grand Trunk for Chicago, and thence to their destination per Chicago and Northwestern Railway.

Ankle Sprained.

On Sunday evening Mr. James Howlen was walking down the line of the Lakefield branch of the Grand Trunk Railway. When he came to the Smith street bridge he was about to leave the track and cross the bridge, but in doing so his foot caught on a rail and he was thrown forward down the grade. His ankle was severely sprained and he received several minor scratches and bruises.

A Prize for Court Peterborough.

Mr. H. W. Watson, Deputy Dirtrict High Chief Ranger for the county of Peterborough, will give as a prize to the member of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters, who brings in the largest number of new members during the next six months, a handsome piece of engraved silverware. The months of November and April, inclusive, is the allotted term. An enterprising member, on the night of the last meeting of the Court, brought in no fewer than five new members, so that he has now a good start, and his chances are fair for winning the prize.

OTTOMAN and Brocaded Mantle Cloths just received at Alexander's. Prices right.

A Sudden Death.

The many friends of the family of Mr. Robt. S. White, of Montreal, will join with us in sympathizing with them in their bereavement through the sudden death of Mrs. White, the following account of which is given by the Montreal Star:—

"The wife of Mr. Robt. S. White, of the Gazette, died very suddenly on Monday morning at about half past nine o'clock, at her residence, 7 Platt street. On Sunday she was in her usual health, and until about eleven o'clock at night gave no evidence of indisposition. About that hour she became suddenly ill, losing consciousness, which she did not recover until she passed quietly away next morning. Mrs. White was the daughter of Mr. George Macdougall, of this city. She was married about two years ago. Mr. White, who is the eldest son of Mr. Thomas White, M. P., has the heartfelt sympathy of a large circle of friends in his sudden and terrible bereavement. The deceased lady was only twenty-three years old."

Another Visit.

The product car of the Canadian Pacific Railway which was in town yesterday, we are informed by Mr. Manhard, the Travelling Passenger Agent, was visited by more than a thousand people. A constant stream of visitors was kept up from before noon until the time for leaving came. To-day the car is at Norwood, but to-morrow it will, to enable a large number of people from town and the surrounding country to see the fine products of the North-West, again visit Peterborough. Mr. Manhard extends a cordial invitation to the ladies of Peterborough to come and visit the car. Messrs. Scott and Ducker, who have charge of it, will be most happy to make any explanation or furnish any information which may be desired. We advise the ladies to take advantage of the opportunity offered, for the exhibit is well worth inspection. The car will be open from 9.30 a.m. until 9 p.m. The next day it will go through to Perth.

LADIES' single and double Wool Shawls, and Small Shoulder Shawls a good variety, in tartans, greys and mixtures at J. ERSKINE'S.

Evening Entertainment.

An evening entertainment was given in connection with St. Luke's Branch of the Church of England Temperance Society in the Sunday School room on Monday night. It was opened by an instrumental trio (1st and 2nd violin and piano) by Messrs. A. Young, B. Tate and R. Hartley. The selection was well given with the exception of a slight relaxation of one of the violin strings. The performers were heartily received. Mr. Rowlie contributed a recitation, "Elsie," with rare execution. Miss Ellsworth sang two songs, "One Day" and "True to the Last," which brought out her voice to good advantage. Mr. Beatty gave two readings and received each time merited applause. The fifth and thirteenth pieces on the programme were songs by Miss Begley, who acquitted herself with her usual care, grace and excellent style. Although on account of the length of the programme it was understood that there were to be no encores, yet when "In the Starlight," a duet by Mrs. Bowman and Miss Stevens, was given so decided was the encore that they were obliged to respond. Mr. F. Clarke, in his banjo solos, and in his duet with Mr. Rowlie (violin and banjo), was shown marks of appreciation. Mr. T. Cooper gave a reading, "The Doctor and his Apprentice," in a creditable manner. Miss Stevens and Mrs. Bowman each rendered solos which were in keeping with their reputation as vocalists.

The combination of Good Value with Cheapness is an idea relished by the public generally, and duly appreciated by them. Come and see our Xmas Cards. A. L. DAVIS & Co.

Piano Tuning.

Geo. G. Gumpricht, tuner for Messrs. Mason & Risch, Toronto, is in town for a few days. Orders left at Mr. T. Menzies' bookstore, or Messrs. Taylor & Macdonald's drug store wil be promptly attended to.

Dr. Vincent's Lecture.

Our readers will be glad to learn that the Rev. Dr. Vincent will deliver a lecture on Monday, December 1st, in the George Street Methodist Church, his subject being, "On the Heights." Those who heard Dr. Vincent lecture on "That Boy," and "That Boy's Sister," on his previous visits, will not fail to attend on this occasion, for he is a very eloquent and pleasing lecturer, both his matter and his manner being such as at once to delight and to benefit his audience.

Larceny Case.

John Ferguson, charged with having stolen a watch from Henry Noyes last summer, was brought before His Honor Judge Dennistoun this morning for trial. The prisoner desired to have his election of being tried by the Judge to being tried by a Jury. Mr. C. A. Weller, who acted for the prosecution, and His Honor complied with the request. Mr. A. P. Poussette appeared for the prisoner. The trial will take place on Tuesday next.

Cut by a Razor.

On Monday morning Mr. Geo. A. Morrison, of the firm of Wilson and Morrison, insurance agents, was using a razor, and being busily engaged did not observe his little two-year-old daughter come toddling up to him. Before he saw her or had time to see what she was about to do, she struck the keen edged razor with her little hand, and an ugly cut was immediately the result. Dr. King was at once summoned and the flow of blood was checked. The doctor informs us that had the cut been slightly deeper the main artery must have been cut. Fortunately such was not the case, and the little patient is now, under careful attendance, doing as well as could be expected.

PURSES,

The Rev. J. R. Teefy, M. A.

It was announced on Sunday last in St. Peter's Cathedral that the Rev. J. R. Teefy, M. A., of Toronto, will deliver a sermon in that church next Sunday evening. A collection will be taken up in aid of the building fund. Father Teefy's learning and eloquence are well known to church-goers in Toronto. In reference to the reverend gentleman we clip the following from a recent copy of the Toronto Telegram:—

"The inaugural address of Father Teefy, President of the University College Literary Society, delivered before its members at the public meeting on Friday night, was a credit to the reverend gentleman and to the Society which has elected him at its head. The Society is to be congratulated on placing in so high a position one who differs from nearly all of its members on religious matters, and the Catholic College, which Father Teefy is intimately connected, must appreciate the honor as much as he does. The address was of the most liberal nature, and showed that the undergraduates made no mistake when by their liberality they made the choice of chairman they did."

Chit Chat.

—Quite cold.

—Has winter come?

—Prepare your sleighs for service.

—The Court of Chancery sits on Thursday.

—The Otonabee River was frozen over in several places last night.

—Building operations are carried on under difficulties at present.

—An end has been put to the skating on the small ponds by the recent snow fall.

—The case of the alleged burglars comes up in the Police Court to-morrow morning.

—Three electric lights now blaze forth at night on George street. The rest of the lights will be put in operation shortly.

—Every one should make it a point to see the produce car at the Ontario and Quebec Railway station to-morrow.

—The adjourned judicial sale of town property which was to have been held in the chambers of the Master in Chancery on Monday afternoon was again postponed.

The Good, the True, the Beautiful.

What elevating thoughts and ideas arise, and how the heart swells with the proud knowledge of the enobling capabilities of our race, as those words are repeated—the Good, the True, the Beautiful! The Good, which includes benevolence and all the charitables acts of the noble and self-sacrificing people, who minister to the wants of others, physical, mental and moral; the True, which comprises those principles of truthfulness and straightforwardness that make life bearable, and the strength of friendship upon which are at times happy to rely; the Beautiful, which adds pleasure to existence, brightens those gloomy periods of life and makes the happy periods more blissful. The noblest principles of noble souls—the highest elevation to which we can ascend—the grand platform of the Good, the True, the Beautiful! There is no one so devoid of good aspirations that he does not admire those principles. And they are as necessary in our apparel as in our thoughts and actions. A good suit of clothes, a true fit and reliable material, and withal beautiful goods, is what all desire. This want can be supplied in Peterborough, and the place to go is at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall, George street.

Furs.

The high favor with which my furs are regarded by the public is well attested by orders coming in, as to keep me fully busy at them. The repairing of furs has been suspended long ago until after the holidays. I would, in fact, feel more embarrassed were it not for the unusually mild season. The public has found out long ago that to buy of dealers in cheap wholesale made up furs, purposely made up for a sell won't pay, as the seller, with all his pushing and puffing energies, does not know himself what goods he is offering. The deceiving trade carried on by them of goods under ficticious names, such as Baltic seal, French seal, and many others, as British sable and all sorts of sable, will secure of dupes a better price, but will leave the furs muskrat or rabbit, &c., all the same. Furs, unless bought of a reliable manufacturer, can be more deceiving than jewellery, and hence the reason of so many dabbling in goods, which often do not stand for one reason. The advantages are therefore manifold if you have the assurance of the manufacturer, as he will be accountable, but not so with the dealer. Are your furs wanting repairs? Then you know from whom you bought them, and can get the necessary repairs done when brought in the proper season. WM. LECH.

XMAS CARDS.

We have now our full stock ready, which we will be pleased to show to our customers. No stock could have a better assortment of more elegant Cards, and as to Cheapness, we simply ask the public to inspect and price Goods. A. L. DAVIS & Co.

Personal.

Messrs. Ducker, Manhard, and Scott are deserving of credit for the courteous way in which they showed the visitors through the produce car on Monday, and for the pains they took in all necessary explanations.

Mr. Hugh Bacon, one of the engineers who surveyed the line for the "Missing Link," is in town. His many friends in this town will be glad to learn of his arrival. He will remain in town for a few days, for which time he is domiciled at the Oriental Hotel.

Freight Rates.

Mr. W. H. Chamberlain, proprietor of the popular restaurant, informs us that the freight rates on ten hogsheads of ale (5,000 lbs.) from the brewery of Messrs. Bass & Co., Burton-on-Trent, Eng., to Peterborough, cost him $22.61. On the same number of hogsheads from London, Canada, weighing the same number of pounds, the freight cost $23.04. Probably the lowness of the freight from England lies in the fact that Messrs. Bass & Co. have extraordinary low freight rates on railway and steamship lines throughout the civilized world.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

Everybody Eats Them.

Every true lover of a good wholesome Oyster buys them at Faucher's Bodega and Restaurant.

A Lost Schooner.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—News has been received of the fate of the schooner La Victoria, before reported lost, and over which there has been great anxiety felt here. Two men, just arrived from Isle Aux Condres, state that towards nightfall of the 5th inst. they saw off the Cape's lighthouse a schooner on beam ends with a number of people clinging to her sides and appealing to the lighthouse keeper for assistance. They say the keeper heard them and immediately prepared to go to their rescue, but was prevented by his wife fainting from fright.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla thoroughly cleanses the blood, stimulates the vital functions, and restores the health and strength. No one whose blood is impure can feel well. There is a weary, languid feeling, and often a sense of discouragement and despondency. Persons having this feeling should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify and vitalize the blood.

Stranger Than Fiction

are the records of some of the cures of consumption effected by that most wonderful remedy—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Thousands of grateful men and women, who have been snatched almost from the very jaws of death, can testify that consumption, in its early stages, is no longer incurable. The Discovery has no equal as a pectoral and alternative, and the most obstinate affections of the throat and lungs yield to its power. All druggists.

Cruelly Murdered.

In the Province of Ontario every year thousands are being slowly murdered by taking unsuitable, untried nostrums for such complaint, as Costiveness, Indigestion, Liver Complaints Kidney Troubles, etc., who might easily gain lost strength and energy by using McGregor & Parke's Speedy Cure. To convince them that such is the case we will give them a free trial bottle at John McKee's Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00 bottle. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

A Remarkable Escape.

Mrs. Mary A. Daily, of Tunkannock, Pa. was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give do relief. Her life was despared of, until last October she tried a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50lbs, in a few months. Free trial bottles of this certain cure for all throat and lung diseases at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

OUR GREAT

CLOSING SALE

A Decided Success.

We are giving more Bargains and a better class of Goods than any other house that advertises a Clearing Out Sale

The reason why the people are satisfied to buy from us: They buy their goods at one price during this sale, not as some people who are selling out and charging three or four prices. This we know to be true, so beware of such places, and buy your goods from a responsible house, and that is at GIROUX & SULLIVAN'S.

By a strict application of the Motto "Small Profits, Fixed Prices, Cash and Plain Figures," Giroux & Sullivan enjoy a reputation for Cheapness in its true meaning, namely, real economy.

Kindly tell your friends that we are holding a Great Closing Out Sale and are selling Goods 20 per cent. Cheaper than any house in the trade.

Small Profits and Quick Returns, it is the quaniity sold that pays us.

See the bargains we are giving in Dress Goods and Silks, Velvets, Plushes, Satins, Prints, Wincey, Mantle Cloths and Sealettes, Hosiery and Gloves, Carpet and Floor Oil Cloths, Skirts and Shawls and Wool Goods.

This is a grand opportunity for parties to buy Good and Cheap Goods, during the Christmas Holidays.

Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1884.

NOTORIOUS NEWBOLD.

He Appears Before the Court at Toledo—A Postponement Refused.

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—The Neville bigamy case was called at Toledo this morning. Counsel for the defence argued for a postponement, but the court refused to grant a continuance in the case and ordered the trial to proceed. The defence demanded a struck jury. The taking of testimony will not be commenced before to-morrow morning. George W. Moore, of Detroit, attorney for C. J. Whitney, whose daughter Lillian participated in Neville's last matrimonial adventure, appeared for Mr. Whitney. The latter gentleman was also in court. Miss Lillian Whitney was not present but is in the city.

A POPULAR PREMIER.

Sir John Macdonald a Guest of the Queen at Windsor Castle.

A special despatch from London to the Mail, on Nov. 25th, says:—Sir John Macdonald is popular with all those with whom he has been made acquainted. He created a very favourable impression last night at the banquet given him by the Beaconsfield Club. This evening he was entertained at a state dinner at Windsor Castle, which was honoured by the presence of the Queen. After dinner Sir John Macdonald had a long and almost unceremonious conversation with Her Majesty, Mr. Gladstone and Earl Derby, the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The Premier remains a guest at Windsor Castle until to-morrow. He has greatly improved in health during his stay in England, and expects to return to Canada with a new lease of life early next month.

JUST OPENED, New Black Cashmere Jerseys, beautifully braided. Ask to be shown Alexander's.

EVOLUTION AN ERROR.

Dr. Talmage's Laughable Criticism of the Darwinian Theory.

At the meeting of the Baptist ministers in New York on Monday, the Rev. Dr. Talmage made an address on "Evolution." He said:—There is no contest between science and revelation. Who gave us the telegraph? Morse, a Christian. Who swung the cable? Cyrus W. Field, another Christian. Evolution is out and out infidelity. Paine, Hume and Voltaire did no more disbelieve the holy scriptures than those who believe in evolution. There is one dogma of evolution which we are particularly asked to adopt, viz., the survival of the fittest. But do the fittest survive? Garfield died in June and Guiteau was alive nearly a year afterward. (Applause.) The origin of the doctrine of evolution is attributed to Herbert Spencer and a few others; but evolution existed long before Spencer began to evolve. (Laughter.) It is an old heathen corpse set up in a morgue, and Darwin and Spencer have been trying to galvanize it. (Roars of laughter.) If a pair of apes had a man for their descendant, why should not all apes have that honour? According to the evolutionists, a man is a bankrupt monkey. Talmage reviewed Darwin's theories and said they were brutalizing.

THE VIRGINIAN PLAGUE.

Contrary Accounts of the Existence of the Disease.

LYNCHBURG, Nov. 25.—General Imboden publishes a letter denying the truth of the statements regarding the plague in south-west Virginia counties, particulary the statements of existing destitution among the people. The following is from a well-known preacher in south-west Virginia, and is entitled to full respect:—

Latest advices concerning the cholera epidemic of Urise, Lee, Dickinson and Buchanan counties are heartrending. In Guests River county, within a radius of four miles there are thirty cases. Twenty-four of the Baker family have died. In one instance father, mother and six children died. Many die for want of attention. Business is suspended and all are concerned with the sick and dying. Six persons were buried in one graveyard in one day. The disease is assuming milder form in some localities. Not less than one hundred and seventy-five of the best citizens of Urse county alone have died. The last few days the disease appeared in Lee county, and several deaths occurred. More worthy people never called more loudly for relief than these. They need nurses, medicine, and a committee of intelligent physicians to diagnose the disease and stop its horrible march.

THE REPORTS SAID TO BE BOGUS.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 25.—The Times publishes an interview with a friend of Joe Mulhatton this afternoon, saying the report of the scourge in West Virginia and Kentucky emanated from Mulhatton, who is now in the South. Mulhatton is said to have spoken of the scheme before he left Louisville. Several people have died in eastern Kentucy from some species of dysentery, but the county papers and correspondents do not record any decease of the character of the reported scourge.

NO SECOND CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Mr. Gladstone stated in the House of Commons last night that the Government had no intention of proposing a second conference of the Powers to consider Egyptian affairs.

REJECTED.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Times says the Cabinet has rejected the Earl of Northbrook's scheme regarding Egypt as a whole. The essential features of the scheme were not embodied in the proposals recently submitted to Europe.

THE MEHDI'S FORCES.

DONGOLA, Nov. 26.—Spies, who have arrived here, report that the forces of the Mehdi are encamped around Khartoum. They number between 15,000 and 20,000. Cattle and native produce are still procurable for a long distance south of Dongola.

THE EGYPTIAN DEBT.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Morning Post states the proposals for the settlement of the Egyptian debt sent by the English Cabinet to the powers are:—First, an offer to raise a loan of £5,000,000 sterling, to be guaranteed by England. Second, the issue of £5,000,000 preferred stock with Egyptian security. Third, the reduction of the interest on the Dette Publique to one-half per cent. The Post believes the scheme will be acceptable to English bond holders, but its acceptance by the powers is doubtful.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—M. Waddington, the French ambassador, and Marquis Tseng, are conducting negotiations through Earl Granville which give some promise that a peaceful settlement of the dispute between France and China will be reached. The main points of the agreement which would be satisfactory to China and France are known to both diplomats. These indicate that both countries must make large concessions. China repudiates all responsibility for the Langson affair, but will make honorable concessions to France to secure a peaceful settlement. England will be satisfied if she can be the means of restoring the former accord between France and China.

THE DUKE OF CUMBERLAND.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—The North German Gazette says the Duke of Cumberland will continue to be a determined adversary of the Emperor and the Empire on account of his intimate relations with the party of the centre. The Government cannot consent to make Brunswick the headquarters of the Guelph's policy or sacrifice the peace of 45,000,000 people to the particular interests of any house, ancient or distinguished.

FATALITY OF PETE FIRES.

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—A strange feature of the Irish Register-General's report is that 4,376 deaths, or 22 per cent. of the whole number of violent deaths in Ireland during the past year, were caused by burns or scalds, due, of courses to the open peat fires on the floors of cabins. Over one-half of these were children under five years of age, and two-thirds of the remainder were women.

GEN. GORDON'S POSITION.

DONGOLA, Nov. 26.—Native traders arrived here state that Gen. Gordon has permitted aged people to leave Khartoum, they preferring to join the village tribes rather than risk the hardships of a prolonged siege. The Mahdi's followers are menacing all the caravan routes, frequently debouching to the river near Debbeh and preventing supplies of cattle and camels reaching Khartoum. Gen. Gordon has repeatedly repulsed the attacks made by the rebels in their strenuous efforts to capture Omdermun on the opposite side of the river.

A Toronto Defaulter.

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—Considerable excitement has been caused in commercial circles here over the disappearance of Geo. E. Wingate, confidential clerk of Scarth, Cochrane & Co., and assistant commissioner of the Scottish Ontario & Manitoba Land Company, with over $9,000 of the former's funds. Wingate obtained leave of absence last Tuesday to visit some friends in Hamilton, and he has not been seen since. On Saturday a false entry was noticed on the books, and a careful investigation showed defalcations by Wingate of over $3,000. Every effort was made to keep the matter quiet, but it got whispered about this afternoon. It is believed Wingate did not take much money with him, but lost most of it by speculating in Northwest lands. He was a married man, and a native of Hamilton. His present whereabouts are unknown, but it is thought he has skipped to Mexico.

The Plenary Council.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25.—The divorce law is understood to have been the subject of discussion at to-day's session of the Plenary Council. That law has never been recognized by the Catholic Church, and although some are in favor of relaxing the rules relating to it, it is not considered likely that any change will be made. Parochial schools and their improvement were also discussed this afternoon. To-night Bishop Kean, of Richmond, preached on Catholic societies and the influence they exerted. Thanksgiving services will be held in the Cathedral on Thursday.

SMALLPOX IN HUNGEREORD

Alarm at Belleville and Throughout Hastings—A Large Death Roll.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 25.—The city is considerably alarmed on account of the reported rapid spread of smallpox in North Hastings. Dr. Tracy, Chairman of the city Board of Health, yesterday through the Ontario Board, urged the advisability of vaccination on all the inhabitants of the city and the Board has taken precautions to prevent the introduction of the disease, which yet has certainly not appeared here or in the immediate vicinity. Rev. Mgr. Farrelly advised the members of his congregation to be vaccinated. Meanwhile reports from the north are alarming. In Hungerfod, the largest township in this county, the disease has existed for about five weeks, and until last week, when a Board of Health was organized, little was done to check its ravages, or isolate infected houses and persons. There are four villages in the county, Georgetown, Tweed, Stoco and Thomasburg. Tweed, which is the largest, contains a population of 1,200, is situated on the Moira, about twenty-five miles from Belleville. It is connected with Peterborough by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The news is that an outbreak had occurred at Tweed. The alarm is so great there that it is reported the stores were closed. Seventeen deaths were reported from the Hungerford epidemic up till Saturday, and new cases are daily announced. The Reeve of Elzevir, who passed through Tweed yesterday, says the village is not yet affected, but one of Mgr. Farrelley's curates, who went out to attend to the afflicted people, wired yesterday that Father Flemming, who has been fearless in attending to the sick, is down with a slight attack. Warden Faulkner is to bring the outbreak of smallpox before the County Council today, and advise, if necessary, the stoppage of trains and stages between Belleville and the infested district.

The Buntin Case.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—This morning Mr. Justice Monk gave judgment upon a motion for arrest of judgment and acquittal of Mr. Alex. ander Buntin, against whom had been rendered a verdict of "guilty of giving himself an undue preference as a director of the Exchange Bank." His Honour first held that he could only take into consideration the exceptions taken to the indictment itself. The first of these was that Mr. Buntin could not as a director give to himself an undue preference. His Honour thought it had been proved quite sufficiently that he could, and that he had done so, therefore this objection could not stand. It was held that the second count of the indictment accusing Mr. Buntin of taking the money he had concurred in getting, was not an offence in law, and, therefore, that the general verdict could not stand. He would not hold that the second count was altogether bad, but he would hold that the general verdict resting upon the first count of the indictment "which was unavailable" was good. As to whether it was a private misdemeanour or not there might be some doubt, but he was of opinion that it was not private nor was it compromisable. As, however, there was no evidence that the case had been directly compounded, it really did not matter as to whether the bank was really insolvent. He did not doubt that Mr. Buntin in the hurry and worry of the momnt, and in entire ignorance of the law took the money, not dreaming that it was in any manner a wrong thing, but this could not overset the finding of the jury. Mr. Buntin was then admitted to bail on his own recognizance until called upon to hear judgment pronounced upon him, and as it is stated to be the intention of the private prosecution not ask for judgment, here the matter will likely stop.

A Domestic Tragedy.

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 24.—Mrs. C. C. Williams recently left her home at Cambridge, Pa., because her husband had threatend her life, and took refuge at a hotel in Edinboro, Saturday night her husband and stepfather, James Redmond, found her there. While her husband was with her in a room cries of murder summoned the guests, but too late to prevent the tragedy. Williams had fired two shots, mortally wounding his wife, and then wounded Redmond, who was the first to respond to the cry. The murderer immediately blew his brains out, falling beside his wife's body. Mrs. Williams had been three times married. Her second husband was Redmond, from whom she was divorced, and who afterward became her mother's husband. Williams was jealous of Redmond.

Fatal Runaway.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Mr. Ben. McMehan and his hired man named Michael Smith, were on Saturday returning home from Sarnia, and when within a few rods of their home the horses suddenly started, throwing Smith violently to the ground and breaking his neck, the waggon passing over part of his body and neck severing the juglar vein. Mr. McMehan received a broken arm and several bruises, but he will recover from his injuries. Both were farmers living about five miles from Sarnia.

Foot and Mouth Disease.

England is declared to be at last absolutely free from the dreadful foot and mouth disease with which her cattle have been so long so continuously afflicted. The loss it has entailed has been most serious, and the occasion is a fitting one for gratitude and rejoicing. As has been observed, what with the good harvest, the spread of the silos, there are now 610 of them in the United Kingdom, and the extinction of the foot and mouth disease, the prospects of the British farmer are distinctly improving,

Address THE PETERBOROUGH REVIEW PRINTING AND PUBLISHING COMPANY Limited), Peterborough.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1884.

WITH very bad taste the London Advertiser sneers at Sir John Macdonald for receiving from our sovereign a title which is reserved for those who have performed exemplary public services. This is very inconsistent in a journal that parades daily a title before the name of one of its staff in its business announcement at the head of its editorial columns.

THE Brockville Recorder has the following editorial note :—

"The Peterborough REVIEW suggests the establishment of an 'association for the promotian of economic science' in Canada. It might be a good thing, but it would be sure death to the economic doctrines taught by the REVIEW."

We are quite willing that our doctrines should take their chance, for we wish to uphold no doctrine that will not stand the test of investigation and fair trial. It may be that it will be the economic doctrines taught by the Recorder that will be shown to be faulty.

WE are glad to find that we have convinced the Globe that we and other inhabitants of Peterborough have cause to be happy. The Globe concludes its remarks by saying :—

"We would cheerfully accept all the raillery the organ is capable of crowding into its columns if every industry in the country were equally busy and every workman similarly employed."

If the Globe only remains open to conviction, and listens to the truth from other places, it will admit that it is not alone in Peterborough that industries are busy and that workmen are employed. We are happy to have done our share towards combatting the false and suicidal statements that our country is sadly depressed commercially and financially.

IMPERIAL UNION.

An Argument in Favour of the Federation of the British Empire.

Mr. J. H. Long, of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, has recently contributed to the Montreal Witness several able papers on the future of the Dominion of Canada. His previous papers have combatted most effectively the ideas of annexation and independence respectively. We give in full his concluding paper advocating a united empire as follows :—

A SCHEME.

When the time for the change arrives, as indicated in my last article, the question is whether the British Empire shall or shall not be disintegrated. It is urged that all past history points to disintegration, that colonies always fall away from the parent state, just as adult sons always leave the parental roof. Now, apart from the fallacy contained in the last statement, for sons very frequently enter into partnership with their parents or establish branch houses of the old business; it is questionable whether there is an instance in history in which colonies, situated as is Canada, have separated from the the old state. All analogies drawn from Greece, Rome, Spain or Holland, are entirely fallacious; as, with these countries, the term "colony" had a meaning essentially different from that attaching to it with us. The only instance at all applicable is that of the thirteen North American colonies; and, in that case, had Great Britain shown a little more prudence, and the colonies a little less impetuosity, no separation would have occurred. Far from the tendency of the age being towards disintegration, it is in a directly opposite direction. Italy, Germany, the Dominion of Canada, the proposed Australian confederation, are examples. Everywhere there is a growing desire to groupe together peoples having the same traditions, living under the same governmental system, and speaking the same language. Acting upon this general principle, it has again and again been proposed to confederate the British empire; the fundamental idea in the proposed union being that the colonies, termed colonies no longer, should be represented according to population in an Imperial or Pan-Britannic Parliament, dealing with strictly Imperial matters, while they should contribute in just proportion to strictly Imperial expenditure. Now, it must be confessed that there is something very grand in this conception, and its promoters deserve the gratitude of all who are opposed to dismemberment of the empire. Unfortunately, however, there are grave difficulties in the way of its practical working; two of which, it is to be feared, would destroy its efficiency. These are :—(1) The unwillingness of the colonies to be drawn into entanglements in which they have no direct interest (e. g., the Soudan war), along with the unwillingness of Britain to submit her policy in these matters to outside criticism and supervision. (2) The unwieldy and heterogeneous character of the proposed Federal Parliament. Most thinking men, therefore, are beginning to see that Imperial Federation, as ordinarily understood, is a non-workable scheme.

But cannot the same end be attained in a much simpler way? Why—when the time for change comes—may not the empire be made to consist of an aggregation of British states clustered round about the old "Mother of nations," under one head, with one flag, one common citizenship, one army, navy and consular service; each part managing its own local affairs, and Britain having exclusive control of matters, such as those of India and Egypt, in which she alone is greatly interested? It would be necessary, of course, to have some sort of council in London; but this, instead of being an incongruous federal parliament, discussing all sorts of questions and binding by its votes the whole empire, would consist merely of high commissioners or agents-general, the duty of the colonial commissioners being to keep their own lands prominently before the British people, their own governments informed upon all matters transpiring in Britain and affecting their interests, and to act as mediums whereby their own governments could explain their views and wishes upon the questions which would continually arise. They would, in fact, be ambassadors from the outlying parts of the empire, and, along with the commissioners and representatives from Britain, would form an advisory council, the nucleus of which is already to hand in the Agents-General of the Australasian and South African colonies and the High Commissioner from Canada.

But, it would be asked, would Britain agree to this, would she be willing to defend members of this confederation all over the world, without receiving anything from them in return? This, too, when she had nothing to do with their government! But does she not do as much now? What has she now to do with the government of the colonies? Do they not pass what fiscal regulations they please? Apart from this, however, Britain is, and ever will be, benefited by the keeping intact of the empire. She is benefited in that word which it has become lately the fashion to ridicule, "prestige," a word which represents much that is intangible (although not less valuable on that account) and also much that is tangible in pounds, shillings and pence. Whether trade follows the flag or the flag follows trade, the two go together, as is proved by incontrovertible figures. But there is certainly very little likelihood of the outlying parts of the empire drawing Britain into foreign complications, as their tendency is towards a peaceful development of material resources, not toward warlike aggrandizement.

In a war also they would give Britain coaling and re-fitting stations for her fleet, furnish her (as we have recently seen) with recruiting grounds to a limited extent in her small wars, and in a life and death struggle with recruiting grounds on a large scale. But the most important fact to be remembered is that the existence of such a union of British powers would be the best guarantee of a permanent peace, as this union would be simply invincible.

Again, it is said that the outlying parts would not be benefited by such a Confederation. Well, to mention nothing further, Canada would be saved from annexation, and the Australasian and Cape colonies from falling into the hands of some foreign power—results extremely likely to follow upon independence. In addition to this, there are the numberless benefits which Federationists have always, and so rightly, insisted upon; prominent among which is the possession of a political horizon coterminous only with the ends of the world. This and the opening up of all military positions in the Empire to colonists (now colonists no longer) would have a most liberalizing and broadening effect upon the minds of British citizens all over the world. The results of the absence of a world-embracing horizon are seen in the United States, where newspapers confine their intelligence almost entirely to home politics and events, while English (and, to a modified extent, colonial journals) devote considerable space to matters of interest in the various parts of the Empire, that is, the whole world. In this age, when the tendency is somewhat towards self-complacent satisfaction with our own little aims and plans, too much stress cannot be laid upon the good which accrues from being brought into close and intelligent connection with matters happening in distant parts of the Queen's dominions. For example, there can be no doubt that just now Egypt and the Soudan are objects of far greater interest to Canadians than to Americans; while the former are daily brought face to face with the great questions now agitating Britain to her centre; questions in which the latter take, of necessity, a much less lively interest. The obvious result of all this is that British subjects ought to learn (and I believe do learn) more fully than subjects of any other Government, the meaning of the old saying "Beyond the mountains there are also men."

But, it is urged, under the proposed Confederation, the outlying parts would be exposed to danger from Britain's foreign wars. Well, so we are at present, and yet since 1812-14 we have not suffered therefrom. The little wars effect us not in the slightest degree; and with the Empire kept together, there is very little danger of a great war. But, even during the Crimean war, Canada was not affected, save beneficially, by a rise in the price of wheat. The only thing the outlying parts would be required to do in the event of a great war, would be to assist in their defence were they invaded. Were Britain very sorely pressed they would, I think, be by no means loth to render aid in both money and men.

It would be quite consistent with such a limited confederation that the outlying parts should (if there were any advantage in so doing) elect their own chief magistrate, subordinate, of course, to the ruler of the Empire. They might also (if preferable to the present method) treat upon purely commercial matters directly with foreign powers, treaties so made to be subject to ratification by the Government of Great Britain as giving no unjust preference to foreign countries. If, as free traders believe, free trade principles shall one day be universally accepted it might be possible to have an Imperial Zollverein as a first step towards this end. This would, however, be no essential part of the scheme under consideration.

But there is a grander view than that of mere local advantage in which this question presents itself. That is, the influence of a United Empire upon the world at large. There is no doubt that it would be the world's surest guarantee of peace, civilization and evangelization. We should more clearly understand this did we more clearly understand the greatness of our heritage. The population of the Queen's dominions now is 310,000,000, or six times that of the United States, an increase of 55,000,000 within the past fifteen years. Their area is about 10,000,000 square miles, or three times that of the United States, the Australasian colonies alone having as large an area as the latter. The tonnage is more than sixty per cent. of the tonnage of the world, which means that three out of every five ships upon the sea fly the old red cross flag. The trade reaches the enormous total of $5,500,000,000 per year. The amount expended for charitable and missionary purposes is more than that contributed by all the rest of the world. The capital, London, with (including its suburbs) more than 5,000,000 of people, and its increase of 70,000 per year, is not only the greatest city in the world to-day, but the greatest city the world has ever seen! Did we but remember these and many other like facts, and that we Canadians have confided to us the development of one of the noblest parts of this wonderful empire, we should find ample scope for those patriotic emotions of which nationalists sing so loudly.

And great as are the present limits of our empire, they will year by year be indefinitely increased, and this not through any "land hunger"—for after the Afghan, Abyssinian and Zulu wars no territory was annexed—but simply and solely because to Britain and her dependencies has been given the duty of opening up to Christianity and civilization the dark places of the earth. And, surely, no similar opportunity has ever existed for a world-wide Imperial union. Everything is ready to hand; a small central state, rich in wealth, population and historical associations; vast dependencies ready and willing to receive the surplus millions of Europe; the control of the world's banking and carrying trade; and, as a capital, the world's commercial, literary and political metropolis. Nor need it be feared that Great Britain and Ireland, owing to their small area, will be outrun in the race for supremacy. Under an improved land system, whereby the valleys of the Highlands shall be re-peopled; with the resources of Ireland developed as they will be; and with the $700,000,000 now annually spent in drink diverted into productive channels, there is no reason why the present rate of increase should not be augumented, and the population in thirty or forty years reach fifty millions; a population amply sufficient for the chief state in any empire, however large.

We in the colonies, then, shall most worthily fulfil our part in the great historical drama whose first act opened as Cæsar's legions beheld the Kentish cliffs, by developing our own resources, by discouraging all tendency toward political union with foreign powers, and by encouraging a strong love for and pride in our imperial connection. All this we can do for several years to come as colonists; afterwards, when we have outgrown our position, as outlying members of a vast confederation. In this way, there is no reason why Imperial unity, for which so much blood has been shed, should not endure for all time, and our empire stand, like the rocky bulwarks of its parent isles, the world's great barrier against tyranny, anarchy and wrong.

HON. GEORGE BROWN.

Unveiling of His Statue in Toronto by Hon. Alexander Mackenzie.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—The statue of the Hon. George Brown was unveiled this afternoon in the Queen's Park by Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. The weather was bitterly cold, with a driving snowstorm, but the crowd was large, although the demonstration was not a party one. The statue is of bronze, larger than life, and erected on a pedestal 12 or 15 feet in height, the whole presenting a handsome and dignified appearance. It is placed on the western side of the Park, near the entrance to the University domain, and not far from the monument erected to the volunteers who fell in the Fenian raid of 1866. After the brief ceremony of unveiling and a few words from Mr. Mackenzie, a portion of the assemblage adjourned to the University Conversation Hall, where speeches were made by Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, Hon. Mr. Mowat, the Provincial Premier, Hon. G. W. Allan and others.

Frauds in the U.S. Navy Department.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—With respect to the investigation of the affairs of the bureau of medicine and surgery of the navy department, Surgeon-General Gunnels says the result has been the discovery of a large number of vouchers amounting to many thousand dollars. It is not yet possible to state what is the total sum of the loss to the government, many vouchers evidently and entirely fraudulent being for articles never needed nor delivered.

The Weak and the Impure.

The merry little mountain brook, as it lightly dances over the rocks and sparkles in the sunshine on its way down the river, is pure and clean. It is active; therefore, it is healthy. It is vigorous; therefore it resists impurity.

But the sluggish pool, where the current is not strong enough to keep the water in motion, is stagnant and foul. Dirt and rubbish are thrown into it, and stay there. Impurities and vile odors make it a breeder of disease and an object to be avoided.

When the blood is strong and rich and red, and vigorously courses its accustomed rounds through arteries and veins, the system is hearty and healthy.

When the blood is thin and poor and weak, impurities and defilements creep into it, and it has no strength to cast them out. Then the system runs down.

Shaker Blood Syrup, purifies and enriches the Blood; curing Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Ulcers and Skin and Blood diseases of every discription.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Heel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

☞Mr. Thomas may be seen at the Grand Central Hotel.

THAT QUEEN OF PERFUMES FOR THE HANDKERCHIEF.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND PERFUMERS.

Price, 75c. per bottle.

Davis & Lawrence Co. (Sole Agents,) MONTREAL.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

OF BAYLOR UNIVERSITY.

"Independence, Texas, Sept. 26, 1882.

Gentlemen:

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Has been used in my household for three reasons :—

1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.
2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.
3d. As a dressing.

It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,

WM. CAREY CRANE."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is entirely free from uncleanly, dangerous, or injurious substances. It prevents the hair from turning gray, restores gray hair to its original color, prevents baldness, preserves the hair and promotes its growth, cures dandruff and all diseases of the hair and scalp, and is, at the same time, a very superior and desirable dressing.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

SOMEWHAT LIKE PORT HOPE.

San Francisco journalism has its little drawbacks. Indignant citizens whose names have been mentioned unfavourably in the papers have an unpleasant fashion of calling on the editor.—Toronto Telegram.

FALSE REPORTS.

Our friends, Messrs Costigan and Curran, are sought to be made appear,in certain quarters, as being at sixes and sevens. Happily, we are in a position to state that there is not the slightest grounds for the rumours in question. These gentlemen are not only political allies, but warm personal friends, and it is needless to add the reports that have been wired in different directions were sent by those who wish neither the Minister of Inland Revenue nor the member for Montreal Centre God speed.—Montreal Post (Indep.).

DEVOID OF PATRIOTISM.

Discont appears to have been caused in Rat Portage with the Ontario Government, whose solicitude for the district has greatly abated since they gained their object. The Progress expresses the general sentiment thus:—"Mr. Mowat, who nursed us so carefully prior to the settlement of the boundary question, has cut off the supplies in the shape of police court fines, and it looks as though he intends to make up as rapidly as possible what he has heretofore expended." Mr. Mowat's object all along has been mercenary and devoid of true patriotism. He and his party have both decried the usefulness of north-western Ontario and magnified its resources as it suited their purpose, and nobody need expect them now to pursue a straightforward course.—Port Arthur Sentinel.

NOW AND THEN.

The Globe has ceased to be a patriotic paper. It is for party—nothing but party; and very wishy-washy, though pig-headed, partyism it is at that. It is a libel on the grand record of the journal, which in times past fought the battles of the people, honorably, nobly and manfully, to compare its watery utterances of to-day with the earnest and patriotic tone of its articles in the time of the Browns. It was for its party then; but it was for country first. George Brown joined hands with his old opponents to bring about confederation,and lent all the power of his paper to advance the cause. The controllers of the Globe to-day would not,apparently, assist the opposite party to bring about the millenium.—Ottawa Sun (Indep.)

SPECULATIVE POLITICS.

Canada may remain as she is; or her present commercial relations alone may be changed so as to make with all other portions of the Empire a world-wide zollverein; or her political ralation alone may be changed so that, while retaining the sole management of her local affairs, she may have in common with all others a voice in the management of great general interests; or without a change of either trade or political status, she may become a party to an arrangement for the common defence and development of the whole British world.—St. John (N. B.) Sun.

NORTHWEST RANCHES.

So far as the settler is concerned, the existence of ranches is not only not a drawback to him, but a positive and very substantial benefit. The leases do not interfere with him. There are millions of acres of better wheat-growing land from which he may pick his homestead. It will be years and years before settlement renders cancellation necessary; meanwhile the ranches are raising cheap horses, cheap beef and cheap mutton, which are among the first essentials in the production of cheap wheat.—Mail.

SIR JOHN'S NEW HONOUR.

A graceful compliment to a Canadian statesman from a source which all British subjects should respect.—Montreal Star (Indep.)

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Township Council met in Warsaw on Nov. 8th. All the members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Jacob White was appointed Township Engineer in the terms of the "Ditches and Watercourses Act, 1883." Under "The Public Health Act, 1884," the Reeve reported to the Council that a local board of health had been appointed and organized,but had really done no work; that there was said to be several cases of diphtheria in different parts of the township; but only one death from that cause as far as he knew. The health of the township in other respects was good. The report was received and adopted. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

S. P. Ford, M. D., amputating arm and attendance on Frederick Rattles	$25 00
W. Darling, refund of A. L. Davis & Co's. account	1 25

A By-law was passed to appoint a township engineer, and one to provide for the payment of money. The Cauncil adjourned to meet in Warsaw on the 27th of December next.

"Painting the Town Red"

"That's an old expression—painting the town red—do you know where it originated? Well, I'll tell you. On my last tour through the country with Cellendar's minstrels—a year ago or more—I had as advance agent a man named Campbell. Campbell was a genius at advertising and never permitted a rival to get ahead of him. One day in Buffalo, I said: "Campbell, I hear that Barlow and Wilson are covering my bills with their paper; I want that stopped.' I told him that he would strike them to Adrian, Mich., and when next I saw him he had huge bundles of bills ready for shipment to Adrian. All were printed in bright red. 'What are you going to do?' I asked. 'I am going up to Adrian to paste these bills over Barlow and Wilson's, and on every dead wall in that place. I am going to paint the town red,' and he left. When we got to Adrian it looked as if the town was on fire so thoroughly had Campbell done his work. That expression 'painting the town red' was so comic that the coloured minstrels caught on to it, and whenever there was any excitement or anybody got particularly loud, they always said somebody was 'painting the town red.' Of course it spread, and is now in use by everybody.—Interview with Billy Welsh, the minstrel.

Dreadful Encounter with a Bull.

Particulars have reached Dublin of a shocking occurrence near Mullingar, by which two lives were lost. A farmer named Mulvihill was attacked and killed by a young bull, and literally hacked to pieces, his body lying in a pool of blood. During the struggle word was conveyed to the farm of what was taking place, and the servant woman, Mary Moran, about thirty years of age, at once started with a shovel in her hand, and, reaching the field, got between the bull and her master's body, which was still being gored by the infuriated animal. The bull then turned on the brave woman, who used the shovel with all her might. The conflict, however, was of short duration, and a violent blow from the bull's horns threw her violently to the ground. The bull then commenced goring the unfortunate woman's body, until a number of men arrived, when a desperate struggle ensued between them and the beast. Eventually the woman was got away, but she died a few hours afterward from her injuries.

A Lying Crowd.

"Where were you when the first shot was fired?" asked an Austin lawyer of a female witness in a shooting scrape.

"I was lying on the sofa."

"And where was your husband?"

"He was lying down on the back gallery."

"And where were your children?"

"They were all lying on the bed fast asleep."

"Any other member of the family lying down?"

"Not that I know of, but if my brother had been there he would have been lying down in the court house. He is a lawyer like you."—Texas Siftings.

New Bishops.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—It is stated that the creation of a Roman catholic archbishopric of montreal has been decided upon by the Holy See, and the elevation of Mgr. Fabre to a higher dignity is also said to be a certainty. Newbishops, it is beleived, have determined upon for Hull, Joliette, St. John, Beauce and Beauharnois. It is also beleived that Mgr. Taschereau will return to this country a Cardinal.

Panic in a Crowded Theatre

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—In the burlesque at the Grand Opera house last night smoke from one of the wings was blown upon the stage, causing a cry of fire. In an instant a thousand people were on their feet and two or three women fainted. One of the actors stepped quickly to the front and explaining the cause quieted the fears of the people.

Rushing Freight Business

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—The demand for transmitting freight is so great on the Canadian Pacific railway that four hundred flat cars are being converted into box cars at Perth for the object. This looks as if traffic business was reviving, as some time ago men were discharged from the shops on account of their being plenty of rolling stock to meet exigencies, and now all the men offering are being employed.

A Beautiful Cavern.

KINGSWOOD, W. Va., Nov. 24.—A remarkable cavern has been discovered on the Cheat River, near here. A small aperture led to a series of seven chambers, the smallest of which is 75 feet long by 40 feet broad,and 30 feet high. The caverns have not all been explored, but are believed to be very extensive. The formation is rock crystal, exceedingly beautiful, and the explorers believe they will rival the Luray caverns.

Wholesale Bribery.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 24.—It has been developed at a hearing before Commissioner Breck in the case of Riggs, Jarvis and others, against Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghiogheny Railroad, a suit for $100,000, in which a verdict for $15,000 was granted to plaintiffs by jury, that the grossest kind of bribery was practised. The evidence showed that the attorney for plaintiffs offered $10,000 for evidence that would implicate certain railroad officials of trying to bribe jurymen.

Nicaragua Canal.

PANAMA, Nov. 24.—The Official Gazette of Nicaragua announces that owing to the failure of the New York Provisional Company to fulfil the terms of its contract or to take advantage of the concessions and extensions granted by the Nicaraguan Government, these have been declared null and void, and the Republic has reacquired the right to negotiate with other companies upon the subject of the interoceanic canal. The Gazette says Nicaragua has spared no sacrifice to ensure the construction of the canal, but all her efforts have proved useless, and attention will now be directed to DeLesseps' work at Panama.

British Claims on Chili.

LIMA, Nov. 24.—The Anglo-Chilian tribunal, now sitting in Chili to pass upon the claims of British subjects for losses sustained during the war, has rejected almost every claim presented, and has so astounded the foreigners of all nationalities possessing like claims that they have held meetings here and taken combined action in order to abolish the different conventions and have an independent court of arbitration appointed. In many of the decisions rendered by the tribunal an adverse vote of the English representatives has been overruled and the interests they represent sacrificed by the will of the majority. It is asserted that British interests are not well represented, and that the Chilians are jubilant over their constant failures to obtain equitable awards for losses clearly proven and undoubtedly brought home to the brutal and frenzied soldiery in their hour of triumph. It is said the American claims will share the same fate.

Agricultural Examinations.

The circular containing the regulations for the second of the annual examinations in subjects having a direct bearing upon practical agriculture, which were inaugurated by the Council of the Agriculture and Arts Association of Ontario last year, has been issued, and copies may be obtained upon application to Mr. Henry Wade, Secretary of the Association. The examinations will be held at the same time, at the same places, and subject to the same rules, regulations, as the High School intermediate examinations of July, 1885, and as the place and date of which due notice will be given through the local press. Intending candidates are required to send in their names, accompanied with a statement as to whether they have ever attended any agricultural school or college in Canada or elsewhere, and also of the place at which they desire to present themselves for examination, to the Secretary of the Association at Toronto, before the 1st of May, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Corps de Ballet.

Do not miss Madame Le Cardo, the beautiful Italian danseuse, and her CORPS DE BALLET in their brilliant costumes and graceful evolutions. Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, 27th and 28th inst. Reserved seats at Hartley's Music Store.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Fresh, westerly winds, fair weather, and not much change in temperature.

EVERYBODY in need of good Dress Goods at reasonable prices should buy from Alexander.

The "Trumpet."

The Trumpet, the official organ of the Saved Army, published in Peterborough, has been enlarged and is now an eight-page paper. It presents a neat appearance. It publishes Army news from the different stations and contains a quantity of carefully selected matter, besides publishing each week one of the Rev. Dr. Talmage's discourses.

Chancery Sittings.

The following is a list of cases which will come up before His Lordship Chancellor Boyd on Thursday: McIntyre v. McIntyre, Crowley v. Galvin, Kerr v. Kerr, Gilmour v. Strong, Dawson v. Rathbun, Crowley v. Crowley, Patterson v. Roxburgh, Morrow v. Midland Railway Company, McMartin v. Irwin, King v. Alford, McMullen v. McMullen, Township of Emily v. Midland Railway Company.

The Small-Pox Scare.

For some days rumours and reports have been rife to the effect that there are cases of small-pox in certain quarters of Peterborough and Ashburnham. Dr. Clarke, the Medical Health Officer, wishes to emphatically deny that there is such a case in either municipality. However, this contagious disease is raging less than a hundred miles from us, and it would be well for the people to take the necessary precaution of vaccination. Prevention is better than cure.

Rally Round the Flag.

A novel feature of the bazaar to be held shortly in aid of St. Peter's Cathedral will be a contest between the licensed victuallers and those in favour of prohibition for a handsome flag presented by the ladies of No. 1 Ward. Now that there is so much discussion going on in our midst as to the probability of the Scott Act passing in our county, this will be a fair test of opinion, and one that will be narrowly watched. If the party in favour of temperance poll the majority of votes the flag is to be presented to Peterborough Council Royal Templars of Temperance.

Hard to Digest.

This morning a leading hotel keeper was having some sport with his brown spaniel dog by means of flipping a quarter dollar coin in the air and catching it before it came sufficiently near to the floor for the dog to catch it. Each time it was thrown upward the animal cast anxious eyes at it, and each time it descended his mouth would mechanically open with expectancy. Unfortunately for the proprietor he failed to catch the coin as it descended for the last time. It passed his hand and the next instant was in the maw of "Major," who scampered off with evident glee. If he feeds on that kind of edibles he will become dyspeptic ere long.

A Large Number Have Visited It.

During Tuesday, when the product car was at Norwood, it was visited by a large number of people. To-day a constant stream of foot passengers are coming and going to and from the Ontario & Quebec Railway station, where the car stands. The invitation extended by Mr. Manhard to the Peterborough ladies has been very generally accepted. During this forenoon and afternoon a large number of ladies have gone down to see the sights. The car will remain open until eight o'clock to-night instead of until 9 o'clock, as was previously announced, an account of the inability to attach the car to a certain train. The car will be illuminated this evening and the products may be inspected until the time of its departure.

Storm Beaten.

Messrs. Shook & Collier, the well known theatrical managers, will again appear in Peterborough, on Monday, December 1st. The Peterborough theatre-goers will remember with pleasant recollections the way in which the "Lights o' London" was presented by the same managers only a few months ago. Messrs. Shook & Collier will no doubt be greeted with a crowded house at the rendition of their new play, "Storm Beaten." The Toronto World of a recent date says:—

"This play is a series of thrilling pictures and situations. From a peaceful English village the scene suddenly changes to the rigor of an Arctic winter, and then back again to the village. The plot is strong but overdrawn, though that only intensifies the situations and the pictures. It all turns on a brother's determination to avenge himself on the betrayer of his sister. Where he meets the villain at sea, most of all where he casts him off the iceberg, and then when they meet again on the same iceberg in the last extremity of want, suffering and desolation, the strength of 'Storm Beaten' comes well to the front. The scenery and stage business is magnificent. There never were on a stage in Toronto such realistic icebergs, auroras and sea-settings as were shown last night. The piece is interspersed with sea songs and village choruses and dances."

The Market.

The markets for the past week have been well attended. The prices for wheat are low, and the quantity marketed this week is considerably less than that of last week. Both spring and fall wheat sells at from 68 to 70 cents, which is generally believed to be the bottom price. The feeling is now that it will react. The supply of barley is noticeably diminishing. It sells at 58 cents. Peas and oats continue to be scarce, and the prices are firm at 60 cents for peas and 32 cents for oats. The wood market is well supplied. More of this kind of fuel has been brought into Peterborough by railway and steamboat than during any previous season up to this time. The quality of the wood is very fair, and consists chiefly in beech and maple. In addition to this influx the usual amount of wood is brought in from the surrounding country. The wood taken from the car or steamboat sells at $4.50 per cord, and that from the country sells at from $3.50 to $4.00 per load. The movement in dressed hogs has been very heavy during the last few days, and the demand is fully equal to the supply. As a proof of this the price since Saturday has increased nearly one dollar per hundred. The supply of beef, mutton and fowl, and vegetables in season, has been very fair.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

THE BURGLARY CASE.

The Prisoners Discharged—The Magistrate Gives Them Sound Advice.

The case of Robert Duncan, jr, and Wm. Noble, charged with having taken a quantity of furs from the store of Mr. J. Mills, on the 23rd of October, came up before the Police Court this morning.

Mr. C. A. WELLER, appearing for the prosecution, stated that no further evidence had been obtained and that there was no probability of getting the necessary evidence. He had hoped to obtain it during the last week, but had been unable to do so. He did not think there was sufficient evidence to commit the prisoners for trial; in fact, there was no evidence against them. The Magistrate would have to determine the case upon the evidence which he had already heard.

The MAGISTRATE said that under the circumstances there was nothing to be done but to discharge the prisoners. Fortunately for them, the prosecution had failed to get sufficient evidence to connect them with the robbery. He might just say to Duncan that he had been in this Police Court for the third time on similar charges to the one he was just discharged from. He was living in the wrong way. Though he had not been convicted of any charge, yet his conduct had been such as to bring him into the Police Court upon grave suspicion. If this course were pursued an end would come—one that would bring dishonour to both himself and his parents. He was a young man and there was no reason why he should not take a respectable place in society, and he should make up his mind to be an honest man. The hardest earned money was that gained by dishonesty. He then discharged the prisoner. As for Noble, there was no evidence against him. It was the first time he had been before the Court and he hoped it would be the last. He admonished the young man to avoid those of an uncertain character. There was no reason why he should not be accounted thoroughly innocent of the charge. Noble was also discharged.

Next Week.

An entertainment will be held in the School Room of St. John's Church, under the auspices of the Temperance Society, on Tuesday evening next. The programme will include vocal and instrumental music, tableaux, recitations, &c. Tickets, 10cts.

OTTOMAN and Brocaded Mantle Cloths just received at Alexander's. Prices right.

Siding Bridge.

The work of the construction of the bridge across the creek at the Ontario and Quebec Rrilway, for siding purposes, is being vigorously prosecuted. A pile driver has been put in operation and it is expected that the bridge will be completed in a few weeks. The recent delay was caused by the lack of suitable material for construction. The bridge will be built exclusively of wood.

Chit Chat.

—Cool and clear.

—Bright and bracing.

—The merry jingling of the bells is now heard on every side.

—The small boys again resort to their favourite amusement.

—Who will be the first to be taken of his feet by their swift sleighs?

—The water column at the Ontario and Quebec Railway Station will be ready for use in a few days.

—One hundred and fifty three years ago to-day Cowper, the poet, was born.

—Sidewalks are being laid approaching the the temporary bridge on Hunter street.

LADIES' single and double Wool Shawls, and Small Shoulder Shawls a good variety, in tartans, greys and mixtures at J. ERSKINE'S.

The Holiday Season.

Once more the merry tingle of the sleigh bells is heard on the streets, reminding one of the near approach of the holiday season—a time when hearts are made glad by the return of friends and relations to gather around the family circle at Xmas, the happiest and most beloved season of the year. It is in keeping with the time-honoured custom of Canadians to interchange pretty presents and other tokens of affection at this particular time of the year. Mr. Andrew McNeil has an excellent variety of very useful and pretty goods that are just the thing for holiday presents. You can choose from hundreds of articles at various prices. Last season Habiliment Hall went in for this line of trade, and made a splendid show; this year renewed efforts will be put forth to present a handsome display of all the latest novelties in fancy and useful articles. A. MCNEIL, Habiliment Hall, George Street.

The Williams Pianoforte in Peterborough.

We the undersigned residents of the Town of Peterborough, having purchased and used the Pianos from the manufactory of Messrs. R. S. WILLIAMS & SON, Toronto, desire to add our testimony in appreciation of the merits of these well-known instruments.

For power, and singing quality of tone, elasticity of touch, superior finish and durability, we prefer THE WILLIAMS PIANO to any other. They have given us entire satisfaction, so that we can heartily recommend them to all intending purchasers.

Our dealings with the firm have always been of the most pleasant character, and we have never regretted having made the selection of a Piano in favor of the well-known firm of R. S. WILLIAMS & SON.

LOCAL BUSINESS ITEMS.

Furs.

The high favor with which my furs are regarded by the public is well attested by orders coming in, as to keep me fully busy at them. The repairing of furs has been suspended long ago until after the holidays. I would, in fact, feel more embarrassed were it not for the unusually mild season. The public has found out long ago that to buy of dealers in cheap wholesale made up furs, purposely made up for a sell won't pay, as the seller, with all his pushing and puffing energies, does not know himself what goods he is offering. The deceiving trade carried on by them of goods under ficticious names, such as Baltic seal, French seal, and many others, as British sable and all sorts of sable, will secure of dupes a better price, but will leave the furs muskrat or rabbit, &c., all the same. Furs, unless bought of a reliable manufacturer, can be more deceiving than jewellery, and hence the reason of so many dabbling in goods, which often do not stand for one season. The advantages are therefore manifold if you have the assurance of the manufacturer, as he will be accountable, but not so with the dealer. Are your furs wanting repairs? Then you know from whom you bought them, and can get the necessary repairs done when brought in the proper season. WM. LECH.

If you want Underclothing, don't procrastinate, but avail yourself of the twenty per cent. discount now being offered on all sales of Winter Underclothing at Andrew McNeil's.

Smith's Market.

Friends will kindly look over our list of goods and compare the quality and prices with other offerings, and if goods are quite as low as elsewhere, would be pleased to share your patronage.

OUR GREAT

CLOSING SALE

A Decided Success.

We are giving more Bargains and a better class of Goods than any other house that advertises a Clearing Out Sale

The reason why the people are satisfied to buy from us: They buy their goods at one price during this sale, not as some people who are selling out and charging three or four prices. This we know to be true, so beware of such places, and buy your goods from a responsible house, and that is at GIROUX & SULLIVAN'S.

By a strict application of the Motto "Small Profits, Fixed Prices, Cash and Plain Figures," Giroux & Sullivan enjoy a reputation for Cheapness in its true meaning, namely, real economy.

Kindly tell your friends that we are holding a Great Closing Out Sale and are selling Goods 20 per cent. Cheaper than any house in the trade.

Small Profits and Quick Returns, it is the quaniity sold that pays us.

See the bargains we are giving in Dress Goods and Silks, Velvets, Plushes, Satins, Prints, Wincey, Mantle Cloths and Sealettes, Hosiery and Gloves, Carpet and Floor Oil Cloths, Skirts and Shawls and Wool Goods.

This is a grand opportunity for parties to buy Good and Cheap Goods, during the Christmas Holidays.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1884.

LIBERAL CONSERVATIVE MEETING.

OUR readers will see that a meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association of the West Riding of Peterborough has been called for Saturday afternoon, December 6th. We would suggest that it is very advisable that there should be a full attendance from all parts of the Riding, as there is business of importance to be transacted. Among other business is that of the selection of delegates for the Convention to be held in Toronto on Wednesday, December 17th, who will also take part in the reception on the following day of the Rt. Hon. Sir John Macdonald to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of his entrance into public life. His services to Canada during that long period has been so great and valuable that the recognition of them should be on a befitting scale.

PACIFIC STEAMSHIP LINE.

A Line of Steamers to be Established Between Canada and Japan.

A special despatch to the Globe, dated at London on Nov. 26th, says:—I understand that Mr. Stephen, as the result of his present visit, has ascertained the possibility of establishing a line of steamers to run from British Columbia to Japan. This can be done either by arrangements with existing lines or by building special steamers for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. On his return to Montreal a decision will be made as to which course will be adopted by the Company Mr. Stephen represents. It may be considered certain, however, that a steamship line will be established by the time the Canadian Pacific Railway is completed.

A Misguided Woman.

WESTFIELD, Mass., Nov. 26.—The house of Isaac Bronson, which is located near here, has been the headquarters for Spiritualists. Recently Mrs. Bronson, who had been a prominent Spiritualistic worker, asked her husband if he would feel very bad if her spirit were to leave its mortal frame, and only be with him on the occasion of her visits from the spirit land. He told her he would not grieve if it was the will of God. Then the wife told her husband she had swallowed two tablespoonsful of Paris green. She asked him to watch by her until her spirit had burst its earthly bonds, and throughout the night he kept a faithful vigil by her bedside. At times her excruciating agony drew tears from his eyes, but he called none of the other members of the family. The woman died in the morning, and the authorities granted a permit for her burial without making an investigation.

Frontier Fray.

TUSCON, Arizona, Nov. 26.—A tragedy occurred at the Canones copper camp at Sonora, on Saturday, resulting in the death of six men and the wounding of a number of others. Mexicans stoned an American teamster. Other Americans armed themselves, and the attempt of the Mexican police to disarm them caused the affray.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

THE LATE RIOTS AT ASTON.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The inquiry into the causes of the Aston riot began to-day. Right Hon. Mr. Chamberlain, President of the Board of Trade, testified that he had received all the affidavits concerning the riot which he used in the House of Commons from the Liberal Association. He denied that the affidavits were procured at his suggestion.

BISMARCK DEFEATED.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The Richstag to-day by a vote of 180 against 99 adopted a resolution in favour of the payment of its members for their services as legislators. The resolution was strongly opposed by Prince Bismarck. The result is considered a signal defeat of the Prince.

THE BRUNSWICK SUCCESSION.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Dr. Windthorst made a declaration in the Reichstag that the Local Court of the Duchy of Brunswick is in favour of the Duke of Cumberland as the successor of the late Duke.

THE TONQUIN CREDIT.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day the debate was resumed on the Tonquin Credit Bill. M. Freppel, defending the Government and advocating colonial expansion, said it behooved France as a great maritime and civilizing power to possess colonies. He contended that the conquest of Tonquin was worth the sacrifices it demanded. De LaForge apposed the bill, and declared the Chinese question unworthy the sacrifice of a single French soldier. He considered the colonial policy of the Government as being out of question while the Provinces of Alsace and Lorraine were in the hands of foreigners. M. Granel (Republican) and others pressed the Government to make a clear statement of its intentions regarding the Chinese question.

THE CONGO.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—It is expected that the delimitation of the Congo basin will be settled at the meeting of the Conference on Thursday. The basis will be Stanley's scheme, slightly modified as regards the eastern coast. Most of the Powers are disposed to accept the indicated settlement of the question, and it is hoped Portugal will also do so.

MISSIONS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

ROME, Nov. 26.—The Vatican has requested heads of mission stations in West Africa to furnish reports to be used as the basis for negotiations with the powers at the Congo Conference for improving the position of missionaries in the Dark Continent.

EUROPEAN OFFICERS.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 26.—A German admiral and other European officers are employed in the Chinese Northern fleet.

SUPPLIES WANTED.

ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 26.—Telegrams from the front ask for large additional supplies for the Nile expedition.

EARTHQUAKES.

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—Five heavy shocks of earthquake were felt at Graetz yesterday.

DESTRUCTION.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—An attempt, believed to be by Fenians, was made to-day to destroy by explosion the Royton Town Hall, near Oldham. The damage was slight and no arrests were made.

THE EXCHEQUER.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Mr. Childers, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will probably be succeeded by Mr. Goschen, owing to his failing health.

DIFFICULT OBSTACLES.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Regarding the conference of the Liberal and Conservative leaders at Mr. Gladstone's residence to-day, the Standard says there is good reason to believe that an amicable solution of the redistribution problem is by no means certain, as there are several very difficult obstacles to overcome.

GOVERNMENT SUSTAINED.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 26.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day adopted the order of the day, declaring that the House was satisfied with the explanations of the Government, and negativing a motion by Frere Orban censuring the home policy of the ministry.

AGAIN BANQUETTED.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Empire Club banquetted Sir John Macdonald, Premier of Canada, to-night. The Marquis of Lorne presided and proposed the health of the guest in a complimentary speech. Sir John, replying, reviewed the forty years of his public life in Canada, and said whether he was speaking in the backwoods or the cities of the Dominion the sentiment of loyalty to England was always welcomed by his hearers. The Dominion of Canada would, of its own choice, always remain in close connection with Great Britain, but it was obvious that there ought to be closer connection. He considered the proposal for a direct representation of the Dominion of Canada in the British House of Commons as entirely impracticable.

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TEMPERANCE.—A large temperance meeting was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening last. Addresses were delivered by Mr. T. W. Casey, G. Sec. G. L. I. O. of Good Templers, Rev. Jno. Tozeland, Messrs. W. J. Campbell, D. Massie, K. Mark and others. A temple will likely be organized before long in this village. A second meeting was held at Mather's corners on Wednesday evening, at which there was a very large attendance. Mr. Casey was the principal speaker. The temple is to be revived in that locality. These meetings are supposed to be the first step in a Scott Act contest in this county.

ENDORSATION.—We see that the Peterborough Times endorses our views expressed a few weeks ago about our council. Now, who will make the first move in the matter? Now is the time to bring the candidates out and secure their election. We have plenty of first-class material in our thriving village.

PUBLIC GENEROSITY.—Dr. Harrison has been the means of having a sidewalk laid from his residence to the Keene Hotel. We would like to see a few more enterprising enough to complete the said walk to Mr. English's corner.

THE FOURTH SEASON.—Winter seems to be here at last and the air is filled with the music of the tinkling sleigh bells.

RINK.—Mr. R. B. McIntyre, who has managed the Victoria Skating Rink here during previous years in so successful a manner, intends to have skating next week if possible.

FROZEN OVER.—Rice Lake is at present frozen over, and the steamer Whistle-Wing became frozen in while attempting to reach Peterborough. Captain Carson left the steamer near Magdaline Island on Tuesday afternoon last.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. C. Bowman, while working at Dr. Harrisons house, fell and sprained his ankle slightly. He expects to be around in a few days.

HISTORY OF PETERBOROUGH COUNTY.—Agents have been in this vicinity this week delivering the above work.

MARKET.—Grain is moving very slowly at present, and as a consequence business is rather dull.

BOOTS AND SHOES.—Mr. Wylie has had to engage an assistant owing to the press of work.

HOUSES WANTED.—More houses are wanted, as a number wish to reside in this village, but are kept away because of there being no houses to rent.

KEENE MILLS.—Our new miller is doing very well and is well pleased with our village.

CONCERT.—Look out for the Victoria Brass Band concert and hop next month. Wait for it.

NEWBOLD ON TRIAL.

A Pathetic Meeting of Several of the Wives of the Notorious Bigamist.

TOLEDO, Nov. 26.—The trial of Sir Charles E. Neiville, baronet, alias Sir Roger Arthur Tichborne, alias Charles Newbold, charged with bigamy, was resumed this morning. Miss Lillian Whitney, daughter of C. J. Whitney the millionaire publisher of Detroit, who is one of the ten wives Neiville is alleged to be married to, was in court, as were also her father and mother. They excited considerable curiosity among the crowds who flocked into the court room. Neiville was unconcerned. He told the reporters he was certain to be cleared, and that he would develop some interesting points before the closing of the case. The general opinion is that he is a crank, and that he will be convicted. A large number of witnesses are here from New York, Canada, and Michigan. A meeting yesterday of several victimized women formed a pathetic scene.

BELLEVILLE.

BURGLARY AND ARREST.—On Tuesday, night, between nine and ten o'clock, the boot and shoe store of John Grant was entered, and six dollars in money and a pair of gloves stolen. The thief, Chas. Adams, was traced, and arrested with a revolver in his possession. He was committed for trial this morning.

Six Lions Loose.

Crockett made the greatest name for himself of any lion tamer, not in England alone, but also in France, Germany and America. I remember well the time when the six lions were loose at one time in Astley's. The Sangers had shut the beasts up from Edmonton the night before. Nobody to this day knows how they got out of their dens; but it was thought at the time that some one of the grooms—with whom the manager was very unpopular, he used to fine them so mercilessly—had let them loose maliciously, that they might get at the horses. There they were, anyhow, loose and mad in the place, smelling the horses and mad to get at them. They had already killed a man and half eaten him, when Crockett arrived; without halting an instant, he dashed in among them singlehanded, with only a switch in his hand, and I'm blest if he didn't manage to den them all single-handed. That was a nerve for you. At that time Crockett never drank.—Archibald Forbes.

LADIES and children's Clouds in white, grey and cardinal. J. ERSKINE.

The Military Forces in Ireland.

Returns prepared for the information of the Secretary of State for War show, notwithstanding the repeated statements to the contrary, that the average strength of the army in Ireland last year was nearly 5,000 less than in 1882, and 2,000 less than in 1881, the total standing thus—1881, 26,525; 1882, 29,268; and 1883, 24,523. The total of 29,268 in 1882 was the largest which has been reached for a period of over twenty years. At the present time the strenght is stated to be under 22,000.

A Royal Visitor Coming.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Prince Albert Victor, the eldest son of the Prince of Wales and the future King of England, is to make a tour of the United States and Canada next year. He will be 21 years of age on the 8th of January next, and his birthday will be celebrated with imposing ceremonies at his father's palace at Sandringham. Soon after this celebration the young Prince will start for the continent and will sail for the United States some time next spring.

Body Snatching.

QUEBEC, Nov. 25.—A medical student, named Henri Sayard, has been committed for trial by Mr. Cimon, J.P., of Murray Bay, on a charge of having stolen a corpse from the cemetery of of that place on the night of the 16th October last. The proceedings were instituted by Mr. Augustin Bouliane, of Murray Bay, whose sister was the resurrected subject. The accused has been admitted to bail.

Killed by a Meteor.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 25.—Julius Robb, a farmer, was instantly killed this morning by a meteor which decended through a tree, cutting a limb clean off. It then passed through Robb's body from the sholder obliquely and buried itself in the earth. It was dug up to-day and found to be an iron pyrite of the size of a teacup. There is great alarm among the people of the county since the occurrence.

The Boutet Case.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—On review of the circumstances surrounding the trial of Mrs. Boutet, the woman sentenced to be hanged for murder at Quebec, the Governor-General has been pleased to commute the sentence to imprisonment for life in the penitentiary.

"Keep warm! Keep warm! Keep warm!" Twenty per cent. reductionon all Winter Underclothing at A. McNeil's.

Dress and Mantle Making.

Notwithstanding the great and urgent demand for Dresses and Mantles at the "Golden Lion," Miss Johnston is most attentive and prompt in executing all orders most satisfactorily.

"THE LARCHES."

When shafts of light shoot o'er the gilding hills
And shed their brightness in the slumbering vale,
And wake all nature into smiling beauty;
The music of the morn begins to fill
Us with the gladness of the coming day;
Just o'er the heath that like a clouded brow
Lends brightness to earth's happiest declivity,
Dwell flowers of Nature and fair flowers of God
And mingled loveliness like haze at noon
Makes light itself run double brilliance there;
These are thy beauties, O, thou happy spot!
Thy Larches, flowers and garden and sweet dell
The least of these is not by me forgot,
And in my memory shall forever dwell.

J. HAMPDEN BURNHAM,
Peterborough, Nov. 25th.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain and cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind, colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

THE LATE HON. GEO. BROWN.

THE formal unveiling and presentation to the public of the statue erected at Toronto in memory of the late Hon. Geo. Brown, is one of those events that it is a pleasure to record. It is fitting that the memory of the leading men of a country should be thus honoured and that their influence for good should live after them. Even in the case of vigorous combatants and active leaders in political struggles, the bitterness engendered by the strife should certainly end with the grave, even if in a measure excusable during life, and the public services may be remembered without giving undue prominence to difference of opinion. We are glad to find that such has been the feeling in regard to the Hon. Geo. Brown; in Peterborough we know that many who did not agree with his political views united in this mark of respect for his memory, and we believe the same was the case in other quarters, the fact that the Hon. G. W. Allen was among those invited to deliver addresses at the ceremony giving embodiment to the same idea.

If it had been on account only of one episode in his career the Hon. Mr. Brown would have earned his statue. The briefest summary of the history of our Dominion must record the fact that Mr. Geo. Brown, laying aside for a time the antagonisms of political strife, combined with his opponents to carry out the confederation of the scattered Provinces of Canada, and to aid in welding them into a nation. Thus he has taken his place among the Fathers of Confederation, the founders of the Dominion of Canada.

As journalists, we cannot forget that Mr. Geo. Brown was a great journalist. With his great abilities and indomitable energy he built up a newspaper that was a credit to Canada. If we and those who think with us had often occasion to disapprove, sometimes very strongly, of his policy and his method of enforcing his views, it must be admitted that he was always a manly opponent and an able antagonist.

By his model farm at Bow Park and his well-bred herd, Mr. Brown also rendered no slight benefit to his country.

We are glad that a statue should have been erected to the Hon. Geo. Brown, and especially that his memory should be thus preserved by the action of the people generally, not of any political party. We are not of the number of those who think apparently that allegiance to their party requires them to see nothing but bad in political opponents and even to vilify them when they are doing public service. It is a good thing that Canada should have its public statue of the Hon. Geo. Brown.

IF Sir John's G. C. B. suit should realize expectations he ought to be in great demand for carnivals this winter.—Globe.

This paragraph is a continuation of the appeal of the Globe to the prejudices and humour of the people to obtain a verdict against royal favours, especially the decoration of the Grand Cross of the Bath. But the suit no doubt suits Sir John, Sir John suits the Canadian people and the Reform organ is non-suited.

"WHO is the coming man? is the leading question," remarks a contemporary, referring to the approaching municipal elections. Who will be the leading man? is the coming question, and one that will cause more excitement than the interrogation of our contemporary.

Sherman and Davis.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—In a speech here a few weeks ago, Gen. Sherman said the secession was merely a conspiracy, and that Jeff Davis was a conspirator whose aim was to use the confederacy as a fulcrum with which he could operate against other sections of the country looking to a practical dictatorship. Davis has sent a communication to the papers here, in which he says that Sherman's statement that he had written as letter to a gentleman who is now a United States Senator declaring he would turn Lee's army against any State that might attempt to secede from the confederacy is unqualifiedly false. The assertion that he had any purpose or wish to destroy the liberty and equal rights of any State, north or south, is reckless and shameless falsehood. If Sherman had access to any letters purporting to have been written by him which will sustain his accusations he demands that he shall produce them or wear the board of a base slanderer. Sherman says he will settle the matter with Davis.

Governor Cleveland's Views.

BUFFALO, Nov. 25.—A Washington special says Governor Cleveland is reported as saying that the wants of the country are different from what they were in the old Democratic days, and the party need to take new departures on many questions. He intimated that he would pay a good deal of attention to the young and progressive material of his party in selecting his advisors.

Mormon School Laws Attacked.

SALTLAKE, Nov. 25.—The Gentile tax payers have begun a suit to resist the collection of a special tax voted by the polygamists of the 7th ward. They allege that the tax is illegal and that the school is conducted in the interest of the Mormon church by Mormon teachers exclusively. This is the first test ever made of Utah's secrstarian school laws.

PRIVATE MAD-HOUSES.

How They Are Made to Serve as Prisons —The Modern Lettre De Cachet.

The lettre de cachet was one of the institutions of Bourbon tyranny which aided in bringing about the French revolution. Thanks to a slip of paper to which the king's name was attached, any man, no matter how innocent of crime, could be snatched from friends and family and consigned to a hopeless dungeon in one of the prisons of the state. There was no appeal for him and no redress. He was arrested at the pleasure of the king, and could only be released at his pleasure. Men who had been guilty of no wrong were thus made the victims of spite and enmity or of self-interest, and no men's liberty was safe.

In his "Tale of Two Cities," Charles Dickens shows the operations of this infamous tyrrany, and Barriere made it the backbone of his once famous play, "The Dead Heart." By Carlyle the lettre de cachet was truthfully described as a slung-shot in the hands of a foot-pad who never showed his face.

The French revolution swept the lettre de cachet out of existence in the last Empire of the Bourbons. Some years later all England was horrified to find that the very practice it had condemned with such detestation while it was in use across the channel was in active existence in the right, tight little island itself, only in England it was not the King who signed the lettres de cachet, but the doctors. At the will of any unprincipled physician, ready to sell himself for money or position, a sane man could be declared a madman, and condemned to a living death in a private lunatic asylum.

The law worked very simply. If the relatives of a rich man coveted his estate, or if anyone had a relative whose existence or freedom was obnoxious, they had only to swear he was mad, obtain the attestation of a couple of doctors to his eccentricity, and he could be carried off and locked up, to remain so long as the annual cost of his maintenance was paid by those interested in keeping him confined.

Incredibable as it may seem in a country governed with such rigorous respect for the law, this detestable outrage upon the commonest rights of man was continued for many years, and only terminated by the most terrific battle in the courts. In Charles Reade's "Hard Cash," and Warren's "Ten Thousand a Year," it was shown with all the graphic power of the novelist how easy it was for a man to lose his liberty in free England, and how difficult to regain it.

This infamy of the private mad houses seems to have been transferred from England to America. If recent revelations in our courts go for anything, it is quite as easy for the mad doctor to do his fell work here now as it used to be for him in England 30 years ago. The boasted land of liberty enjoys the lettre de cachet as completely as the favorites of the King used to enjoy it in the happy days when Madam Dubarry ruled France with the crooking of her finger and the lifting of her painted eyebrow.

"There are in this country," said a prominent physician to a Dispatch reporter, "over 100 private asylums for the care of the insane. These asylums are run upon the plan of prisons, and are nothing more. They have organized and drilled armies of keepers, who go armed and ready for the fray. They have barred windows and iron doors, their lodging rooms are cells, and they are surrounded by grounds with high walls, watched over by savage dogs, and little less savage warders armed to the teeth. Over this community the resident physician presides like the governor of a prison—an autocrat against whose law there is no appeal.

"Once incarcerated in one of these shameful institutions, the victim is lost to the world. Nominally they might write to their relatives, but really they could not, for the mad doctor had control of the mails and read every letter that was sent out or in, destroying or delivering them at his discretion. Nominally they could receive visitors, but in fact they could receive only those the mad doctor chose to admit. They were, in short, as absolutely jailed as any murderer committed for life to the gloomy cells of Clinton prison.

"To these places of torment and despair any man or woman in the land may be consigned. All that is required is the testimony of a couple of medical experts and the indorsement of a judge. Now let us look at the details of the process. You are a rich man, we will assume, and have a wild son. He is a burden and an expense to you, and you wish to be rid of him. All you need prove is that he is crazy, and to do so you get medical testimony to his eccentricity and your work is done. Any judge will sign the commitment, and he is carted off to an asylum, where you pay for his maintenance till he dies. In the same way the children of a rich father may get rid of their parents and grasp his coveted fortune. When you consider how common eccentricity is among us, you will understand how easy it is to make a man out a lunatic according to law.

"These victims of an outrageous law have no defence. It is impossible for them to escape the asylum, because they may be committed and kidnapped without their knowledge. Once in, they may get out if they can. In order to do so they must communicate with the outer world; but to do this is almost impossible. Occasionally they contrive it. But for every one who does so scores remain, abandoned to hopelessness and despair. The vigilance of their keepers is well paid and unrelaxing. To bribe them is impossible—to escape their keen supervision almost equally so. There are in our private asylums to day hundreds of prisoners who should not be imprisoned at all. Yet they are there and are likely to remain there, unless a change in the law or a revolution delivers them."

A lawyer who has been instrumental in securing the release of several of the mad house victims, made these comments:—"I have never had a case in which the managers of the asylum did not offer every obstacle to the course of justice. They are dead to all considerations of humanity, and work simply for the money which comes from a full asylum. The chief trouble is that the law imposes no restrictions on them. Countless violences and even murders occur in these institutions which the public hears nothing of, because the authorities of the asylums do not permit them to be reported. They rule their private jails without interference, and will continue to till the law takes them in hand, as it should have done long ago."—New York Dispatch.

Curious Facts About Silk Worms.

A writer in Land and Water says the idea of the ancients upon the subject of the origin of silk was rather vague, some supposing it to be the entrails of a spider, which fattened for years upon paste, at length burst, bringing forth its silken treasure; others that it was spun by a hideous horned grub in hard nests of clay—ideas which were not dispelled till the sixth century, when the first silk worms reached Constantinople, introduced and cultivated, like many other benefits, by the wandering monks. From thence they were soon imported into Italy, which for a long period remained the headquarters of the European silk trade, until Henry IV, of France, seeing that mulberry trees were as plentiful in his southern provinces as in Italy, introduced silk worm culture with great success. Kirby mentions the following interesting article from the Courier De Lion, 1840, as showing the extraordinary quantity of silk there annually consumed at that period. "Raw silk annually consumed there, 1,000,000 of kilograms, equal to 2,305,714 pounds English, on which the waste in manufacturing is 5 per cent. As four cocoons produce one grain (grain) of silk, 4,000,000,000 of cocoons are annually consumed, making the number of caterpillars reared (including the average allowance for caterpillars dying, bad cocoons and those kept for eggs), 4,292,400,000. The length of the silk of one cocoon averages 500 meters (1,526 feet English), so that the length of the total quantity spun at Lyons is 6,500,000,000,000, or six and a half trillions of English feet, equal to fourteen times the mean radius of the earth's orbit, or 5,492 times the radius of the moon's orbit, or 52,505 times the equatoral circumference of the earth, or 200,000 times the circumference of the moon."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

A CHANGED PARTY.

Mr. Brown was a Conservative by instinct but his sympathies were all with the Reform party, although what he would think of it if he could see it at the present time is not easy to say.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.).

BUT THE REFORM PRESS ARE NOT.

Just now the Tory press are greatly shocked over the evidence of bribery which has led to the unseating of Mr. Allison.—London Advertiser (Ref.).

UNFOUNDED CHARGES.

The Grits have thrown up the sponge with regard to the remaining suits against Conservatives of the district, for alleged bribery and corruption. This is additional confirmation of our charge that the actions were foundationless and vexatious. The cases against Messrs. R. P. Perry and Robt. Nichols were thrown out of court for lack of prosecution, and Mr. G. F. Marter's case was also abandoned. There is now only one case before the court — that against Mr. R. Mills.—Muskoka Herald.

NOT VERY "DEPRESSING."

It is estimated that the population of Hagersville is fully one hundred and fifty in excess of the census at this date last year, and had we sufficient house accommodation for them we feel sure it would be nearly double. Families are moving in every week, and the enquiry for houses to let is brisk. There is not a better opening to be found for capitalists to invest in real estate that in Hagersville, and judging from the amount of town property lately bought up this opening is being fully realized.—Hagersville Times.

SLAUGHTER OF BIG FISH.

An Exciting Hunt with Harpoons, Lances, Scythes and Knives.

A despatch from Provincetown, Mass., says: For three days the tip end of Cape Cod and the waters hereabouts have been the scene of most sanguinary excitement and slaughter. Everybody big enough to handle a weapon has been killing monstrous prey. The unequal battle began on Saturday afternoon, when the whistle at Cook's oil works on Long Point blew a long blast, which soon brought all the men in town to the shore. The cry of black fish greeted them and then everybody possessing water crafts of any description put off in the wake of the courier boats which had brought the news ashore.

A black fish chase has become very rare of late years and the great fish were never known before in such numbers in these waters. The fish is of the whale family, from ten to twenty feet long, and its oil is, perhaps, more valuable than that from any other fish of the sea. The school was about two miles off shore when sighted, and the water was alive with the great creatures, which were disporting themselves lazily upon the surf. The first boats that arrived soon changed the scene to one of excitement. Each boat was soon fastened by lance or harpoon to a big black fish. Then the chase began.

The moment blood was drawn the school started towards the wounded. This fixed the direction of the general flight and thousands of fins cut through the water towards the bay. Every effort was made to drive the fish into shoal water, where they could be more easily killed, but they avoided the shore and kept along the coast towards Wellfleet. A small school was driven close to the fish wires on Beache's point, but, owing to the rapid approach of darkness, the excited fish managed to elude their pursuers and escaped into deep water. The chase was for the time abandoned. Early on Sunday morning, however, the pursuing fleet, being reinforced by boats from Dennis, Brewster and Wellfleet, the battle was renewed. All day long the slaughter was kept up. More attention was given to shaping the course of the flight, so if possible to drive the fish into one of the small bays on the coast, than to the killing of single fish. Owing to the presence of a number of porpoises in the school this was unsuccessful. The fish were wild and the men determined, but the chase towards night was abandoned for a general slaughter.

The boats dashed into the midst about dark and killed as many of the largest as possible with case-knives. They succeeded in capturing about 60. The remainder of the school succeeded in finding deep water and were chased across the bay by part of the fleet, assisted by several mackerel fishermen, who had joined in the pursuit. Early yesterday morning the fish were driven between the Headlands into Wellfleet harbor. Twenty miles had thus been covered in the long chase. The sight in the harbor at daybreak was a wonderful one. Further than the eye could reach the bay was literally full of fish, the great creatures, caught in an immense trap, were in a frenzy of excitement, rushing zig-zag in all directions and lashing the water to a spray. Then the great slaughter began in earnest. Every one that could get afloat, even those on shore, took part. Vessels and boats of all sizes, kinds and descriptions; men and boys representing every trade and profession, and every available thing that could be used for killing, were there. Men of experience used harpoons and lances. Others used scythes, knives, picks, daggers and axes. The shore was lined with carriages, carts, men, women and children. Every now and then a frantic fish, wounded and desparate, flung itself upon the shore, only to be despatched by the women and children on the land. Nothing else was done on Cape Cod that day.

The work continued until this afternoon, when it is supposed every fish was captured. Every town, from Dennis to Provincetown, was represented in the slaughter. The number killed is variously estimated at from twelve hundred to fifteen hundred. The proceeds to be divided into five hundred shares. The value will probably amount to $25,000. The fish are to be sold at public auction to-morrow. There were no serious accidents, so far as latest accounts show.

LINES ON PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED TO ROBT. H. THOMPSON, CHICAGO, ILL., COMPOSITION OF WILLIAM TELFORD, SMITHTOWN, PETERBORO' P.O., ONTARIO, CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—Seeing that you have taken so much interest in my production on the death of the late President Garfield, although suffering under my trying affliction, I cannot refrain from taking notice of a simple incident in Garfield's youth, when I read the account of it in the papers after his death. It appears to me to be the turning point in his life, and the plan adopted by God to make him a studious and clever scholar, a good God-fearing man, a cautious but brave commander, a wise and impartial ruler. His widowed mother being the chief agent employed in that mission.

Sad sat the widow in her lonely cot,
A loving husband and kind father gone,
Earnestly pondering o'er her helpless lot,
And the dark future of her darling son.

No fortune hers—no! all was stern and cold,
Joys, hopes and comforts from her view were hurled,
Small was her share of silver or of gold,
To fight life's battle through this ruthless world.

The first and chiefest purpose of her heart
For which she hoped and prayed—resolved she would Train up her son in learning's highest art,
And mould his soul in all that's truly good.

But soon young Garfield comprehended all,
Their small resources flashed before his mind;
He could not learn and let the burden fall
On widowed mother and a sister kind.

Her toils, her means—all she would sacrifice
If he would study in some professional lore;
To make up pills and powders he despised,
Or hang law's shingle o'er his office door.

Earnest she pleaded, prayed and pressed in vain,
His independent spirit would not bow,
He firm resolved himself he would sustain.
On board a steamer as deck hand he goes.

She wept the tears that parting only raise,
Like Rachel weeping for an only son.
Meanwhile young Garfield, with his genial ways,
Esteem and favour with his comrades won.

Life seemed all sunshine to his youthful mind,
From mother and sister he had eased the load;
Greater than him—two unseen powers combined,
A praying mother and prayer-answering God.

O! how mysterious are the ways of God,
At least to us frail, weak and blinded man!
He knows the time to wield his mighty rod—
In Garfield's case, young reader, mark his plan:

'Twas Garfield's duty, as the wharf they reached,
To make secure by throwing ashore a cord;
While in that act, equilibrium o'erstretched,
He lost his balance, and fell overboard.

The night was dark—he sank, but rose again,
With deathlike struggles kept himself afloat;
Death seemed most certain if he did remain,
Being crushed to death between the wharf and boat.

'Twixt life and death all thinking powers he shared—
One thought arose, transcendent o'er all other—
He firm resolved that if his life was spared,
He would return unto his home and mother.

God spared his life, his plans were all complete,
The widow's prayers had reached His pitying ear;
A rescuing hand placed Garfield on his feet,
With heart full fixed his homeward course to steer.

Resolutions formed he quickly put in force,
Drowning or danger him retarded not;
Plans for the future urged him on his course,
With aching limbs he reached his mother's cot.

'Twas night, and all without was still as death,
Within faint glimmering of a lamp did burn,
He heard's his mother's supplicating breath
Beseeching God for her son's safe return.

Amen! she said, and from her knees arose,
A gentle tap, quick she unlocked the door,
Around his neck her loving arms she throws,
And kissed those lips she oft had kissed before.

Thank God! she cried, my earnest prayers were heard,
What I implored for stands before my eyes;
Take him good Father as Thine own reward,
Make him obedient, great and truly wise.

No poet's pen can paint a mother's love,
A mother's prayers no mortal man can know;
Their depth and height is known to One above,
And sometimes answered on this earth below.

From that same hour young Garfield took his stand
For God and right—the banner which he bore;
Learning or teaching, fighting or command,
Or when the robes of President he wore.

His life, his death, his name—his mother's, too,
Not in the States alone, but o'er the world,
History shall hold up Garfield to man's view,
While Stars and Stripes wave in the breeze unfurled.

WM. TELFORD.
Smithtown, Peterboro' P.O., Ont., Canada.

P. S.—If Mr. Garfield's mother still lives, I trust these few lines will add fresh lustre to her much honored and venerable name; if death, I trust they will not tarnish nor bedim one shining gem in her crown of glory.

MUSKOKA.

The following is the Trinity College prize poem for the year 1884. It was written by Mr. Walter Rogers, of Peterborough, son of Col. H. C. Rogers:—

The silver lights of early afternoon
Have melted now to gold; the clouds and all
The shores and isles with yellow mist are strewn;
The dark red sumach plumes against the wall
Of river granite hang their drowsy heads;
The lizards doze and dusky fir a heavy fragrance sheds.

The berried branches of the juniper,
Woven with bosky fern, in tangle fall
Over the islands' sides; the grasshopper
No longer pipes his midday madrigal
Nor sound the stillness of the sunset wakes,
Save where the shore ward ripple through the tangled weedbed breaks.

The sun's disc sinks behind the pine-fringed hills;
The skies catch fire, and rose and corocus flush
Up through the west; a chord of color fills
The interval of upper air; a thrush,
Caught by the sudden splendour, from a stem
Of elder in the bracken, sings the dying day, requiem.

The sapphire fades till misty amethyst
Pales into grey; the darkened islands throw
Long sable shadows, the shore's ragged crest
Is limned upon a saffron afterglow,
And here and there along the ridges high
Black balsams spire like cypresses against a southern sky.

And with the darkness comes the film winged bat
And flings his wheeling course against the grey;
A waking owl over the sedgy flat
Hoots from his islet crag; across the bay
There comes the shivered whistle of the loon,
As brimming up behind the rocks rises the summer moon.

WALTER ROGERS.

THE FIRST SNOW.

Gay bloom the flowers in springtime set,
And streaky apples linger yet;
'Twas autumn but a week ago,
Why, then, these flakes of winter snow?
Summer's last rose they disarrayed,
The while she dreamed in peace to fade,
One swallow was inclined to stay;
The white flecks frightened him away.

Winter's cold shock who first endure
Think him unkind and premature;
Complain the summer was too brief,
And moralize o'er each dead leaf.
But as he grips with firmer hold
We grow more careless of the cold,
Joy in the sparkle of his snow,
And nestle by his fireside glow.

Dismayed we note the first gray hair,
Soon others come—we cease to care;
Then gray, outnumbering the brown,
And soon white winter settles down,
And when from youth we've passed to age
We've learned our lesson page by page,
To take what comes for weal or woe
And never fret about the snow.

Heart Pains.

Palpitation, Dropsical Swellings, Dizziness Indigestion, Headache, Sleeplessness, cured by Wells, Health Renewer."

A STRONG-HEA TED BRAKEMAN.

He Walks a mile After Losing an Arm in an Accident.

A dispatch from Port Jervis, N.Y., says: An instance of most remarkable nerve and endurance is reported from the Susquehanna division of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railway. While a freight train on that division was approaching Elmira, a brakeman named Daniel Thomas was missed. Two men and a locomotive were sent back to look for him, as he had evidently fallen from the train. A mile this side of Seelsy's bridge they met him walking towards Elmira, on the east bound track. His clothing was nearly all torn from his body, and he was covered with blood. His right arm had been cut off at the shoulder by the car wheels and Thomas was carrying the severed member in his left hand, which was clasped about the fingers of the severed hand. His collar bone was broken in two places; four ribs were fractured, his head was badly cut and he was terribly bruised. He had been thrown from a car by a sudden lurch of the train. He said as soon as he could recover himself after the train had passed over him he regained his feet, hunted up his arm, and started up the track hoping to meet with help. He had walked nearly a mile when he was overtaken by the locomotive. Notwithstanding his terrible injuries, Thomas never lost consciousness. He was taken to Dr. Updegraff's office at Elmira, where he was given all the aid possible. Notwithstanding his wonderful nerve, is is feared that his wounds will result fatally.

HASTINGS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GLORIOUS SUMMER GONE.—"Now is the winter of our discontent."

AMATEUR GREELY EXPEDITION.—The Whistle Wing, one of Calcutt's liners, went gaily through the locks many days ago for the classic port of call, the Narrows; intending to return promptly with cordwood for Peterborough, but was long over due, owing to the formation of ice in the river. The underwriters and lock master thought either that she had discovered a nor; east passage to evade the dues or else foundered with all hands. A thaw and heavy rain set in on Sunday. This, together with opening the slide to deepen the water and break up the ice, enabled the Whistle-Wing to make her way to Peterborough Monday; where, let us hope, she is safely docked for the winter, and that the worthy Commodore sleeps o' nights in consequence.

ONE MORE LACROSSE CONCERT.—The invincible Trents are bound to succeed, if not on the field, at least before the foot-lights. A heavy programme is being prepared, so some time in the Christmas holidays will be placed upon the boards in the town hall of Hastings, the ever popular opera bouffe Pinafore—not the hackneyed one of Sullivan, but an entirely new and original conception—a grand spectacular display before which the pantomimes of city theatres will pale. The opening chorus will be worth double the price of admission. More anon.

DEPARTURE OF THE SAVED ARMY.—The Saved Army have withdrawn their forces from this village.

INSPECTION OF ARMS AND ACCOUTREMENTS.—Col. Villiers saluted the Star editor the other day, "Well, Capt., I have not caught you napping." "No, Colonel," was the prompt response, "not since I commenced using Hall's Hair Renewer, which I highly recommend. See my puff in next week's Star." The gallant D. A. G. said he'd consider it, as lately his moustache was thinning. The Colonel found everything O. K. in the temple of Mars, which, by the way, is advertised by tender for sale. On his return from Norwood he humorously spoke about the dilatoriness of some in returning their arms, &c., as on entering that place he was surprised on looking across the many vacant lots which there abound, to see the Capt. and his subs skirmishing across the nearest way to the drill shed, with samples of Dominion chattels under their perspiring arms. Of course he did not "see" them, and on walking leisurely to the rendezvous, everything was in ship shape.

A TIMELY PRESENT.—The Rev. John McCleary was the recipient of a very useful horse from his parishioners in Alnwick, for which he heartily thanks them through the coulumns of the Star. It will now be in order for the members of the English Church in Hastings to present the worthy gentlemen who has been so long among them with a suitable set of robes for an Xmas present.

What He Was.

"Sir, I demand your daughter's hand in marriage," boldly said the gifted young man to and great billionaire. "I do not ask it as a favor from you. We love one another. That is sufficient. I am her equal in every respect,"

"Ah," exclaimed the billionaire, "are you a plumber."

"No, sir!" proudly responded the valiant suitor.

"A bank cashier without an unexhausted shortage?"

"No, sir?"

"A coachman."

"I am not?" And his lip curled, proud in disdain.

"You are not a baseball pitcher with a rifle twist, that you thus imperiously ask for the hand of one who will inherit millions?"

"No, sir. I am the inventor and patentee of a patent car coupler."

"Take her, take her" cried the ballionaire. "All I demand in return is that in no idle moment you decide to pay the National debt."

Deacon Jones' Boy.

It was his birthday, and he was just thirteen years old, when Deacon Jones, the other day, said:—

"Tommy, you will soon be old enough to go to a trade."

"Yes, father," he replied, "I've been thinking about that myself lately. I would like to go to work."

"And where would you like to work!" asked the deacon, patting his boy on the shoulder.

"In a match factory", the youth respondad.

"In a match factory! making matches the old man cried.

"No, dad, not makin' matches—boxing 'em, up. There's lots of money in it. Why, it's only two years since John L. Sullivan went into the business, and he's made a hundred thousand dollars at boxing matches. That's the work that get's me."

The deacon cannot recover.—Exchange.

Why They Must Wait.

Alfonzo.—But, my love, I cannot wait. Why postpone our marriage until Christmas, when the ceremony can just as well be performed now?

Eulalia.—But I have no wedding dress.

"No matter. A travelling dress will do as well."

"But the only travelling dresses I have are worn threadbare. You see, love, the fall goods are just opened and if I should start on a wedding tour now I would miss the chance of getting my pick of the latest novelties."

"What sort of novelties, dear?"

"Why, I need stuff for six walking dresses, three travelling suits, seventeen evening costumes, and five bonnets, and then my sealskin sacque is moth-eaten, and I must have a new one before cold ——"

"You are right, pet. We will wait until Christmas."

A Humming Bird's Umbrella.

In front of a window where I worked last summer was a butternut tree. A humming bird built her nest on a limb that grew near the window, and we had an opportunity to watch her close, as we could look right into the nest from the window. One day there was a very heavy shower coming up, and we looked to see if she covered her nest during the storm. But when the first drops fell she came and took in her bill one of two or three large leaves growing close to the nest, and laid it over so that it completely covered the nest, then she flew away. On looking at the leaf we found a hole in it, and in the side of the nest was a small stick that the leaf was fastened to or hooked on. After the storm was over the old bird came back and unhooked the leaf, and the nest was perfectly dry.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Mission Work.

The Rev. N. F. Alexander, D.D., who has been for thirty years a missionary in Madras Presidency, India, is visiting Peterborough, and will be present at the Ladies' Foreign and Domestic Missionary Society of St. John's church, on Monday afternoon at 3.30, in the school house. We believe he will take part in the services on Sunday.

A Cold Bed.

The call of Chief Johnston with a policeman's whistle attracted quite a number to the corner of Hunter and Water streets on Wednesday night about 10.15 o'clock. The cause was found to be a poor unfortunate who had imbibed too freely in the cup that inebriates, and the Chief finding him thus, fast asleep on the sidewalk, called for assistance to take him to more comfortable (?) quarters—the police cells.

Lakefield Methodist Church.

The Rev. A. Carman, D.D., General Superintendent of the Methodist Church, will preach at Lakefield both in the morning and evening at the re-opening services of the Lakefield Methodist Church on Sunday, December 7th. He will also deliver a lecture entitled, "The Worth and Work of Women," on Monday evening, Dec. 8. The collections will be in aid of the building fund of the Lakefield Methodist Church.

Evening Social.

A social was held on Wednesday at the residence of Mr. Bernard Lloyd, on Water street. A large number of people were present, and the social was decided success in every respect. A programme consisting of vocal and instrumental music, readings and recitations, was presented, and was highly appreciated. The funds realized will be applied for the benefit of the No. 1 Ward Church of England Sunday School.

The Port Hope Opera House.

Mr. E. C. Hill, who has charge of the alterations in, and renovation of the Port Hope Opera House, for the Port Hope Opera House Company of this town, informs us that the work is being satisfactorily carried on. The stage is nearly completed and four private boxes have been constructed. Mr. Geo. Penson, of the Grand Opera House, Toronto, is at present occupied in painting the scenery, which, we are informed, is to be of a superior style. The erection of a horse shoe gallery with an iron front will be shortly commenced.

Storm Beaten.

The Shook & Collier Company, so well and favorably known to the people of Peterborough, will appear in Robert Buchanan's thrilling play "Storm Beaten," on December 1st, in Bradburn's Opera House. The Syracuse, N. Y., Standard in speaking of the Company, says:—

"Last night 'Storm Beaten' was presented at the Grand by the Shook & Collier Company, who have given the production the spectacular character it had on its original week. The polar views were wonderfully realistic pictures of the frozen North, with its towering crags of ice, wastes of snow, and auroral illuminations. On the whole the Company acted with earnestness, spirit and enthusiasm, the representations of rural life being particularly bright. A trained supernumerary force made these scenes overflow with genuine mirthfulness."

Marriage.

A pleasant gathering of friends assembled last evening at the residence of F. W. Heather Esq., on the occasion of the marriage of Mr. James Logan to Miss Lizzie Green, daughter of Mr. Edward Green and niece of Mr. Heather. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev I. Tovell, paster of the George St. Methodist Church, in which church the bride for several years has tendered faithful and efficient service as one of the cheif singers. Several handsome presents were given, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by the guests. We wish for our newly married friends a happy and prosperous future.

Personal.

Mr. Robert Moore, well known in Peterborough and vicinity, departed this morning with a number of men for Port Arihur, Ontario, near which place he will be engaged on the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Moore has been employed by the same company in different capacities, and has always given satisfaction. As a foreman he is particularly popular with both his men and his employers. Mr. Moore is engaged at a salary of $100 per month, and the men are paid $2.25 per day.

This morning Mr. Wm. Croft, together with his wife and three children, departed for St. Simons Island, Georgia. Mr. Croft came from England three years ago and settled in the Township of Smith, but thinking a warmer climate more beneficial to his health, he has removed to the above named place. He will engage in fruit and vegetable raising.

The Hon. Chancellor Boyd, Mr. A. Hudspeth, Q.C., Lindsay; Mr. Charles Moss, Q.C., Toronto; Mr. W. H. Biggar, Belleville; Mr. G. T. Blackstock, Toronto; Mr. H. B. Weller, Millbrook, and Mr. Jas. T. Parker, official stenographer, are at the Oriental hotel.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

The Chancery Division is Presided Over by Chancellor Boyde.

The fall sittin of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice was opened at the Court House at half past twelve o'clock to-day, by the Hon. Chancellor Boyd.

The docket presented is a rather heavy one, the list being composed of twelve cases.

The bar was represented at the opening of the court by Messrs. A. Hudspeth, Q.C., Lindsay; Mr. G. P. Cassels, Q.C., Toronto; Charles Moss, Q.C., Toronto; G. T. Blackstock, Toronto; H. B. Weller, Millbrook; W. H. Biggar, Belleville, and Messrs. McIntyre & Stewart, Lindsay. The local bar was represented by Messrs. A. P. Poussette, G. M. Roger, J. Burnham, E. B. Edwards, D. W. Dumble, Geo. Edminson, Geo. Hatton, R. E. Wood, J. Green, C. W Sawers and J. O'Meara.

The first case on the docket was that of McIntyre vs. McIntyre of the town of Lindsay. As we go to press an effort is being made to come to terms.

Corps de Ballet.

Do not miss Madame Le Cardo, the beautiful Italian danseuse, and her CORPS DE BALLET in their brilliant costumes and graceful evolutions. Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, 27th and 28th insts. Reserved seats at Hartley's Music Store.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh west and southwest winds, fair to cloudy weather with occasional showers of snow or rain, higher temperature.

The Grand Central Hotel.

The Grand Central Hotel is certainly becoming popular with the travelling public, as a glance at to-day's list of arrivals will amply show. Up to one o'clock this afternoon no fewer than forty guests had inscribed their names on the register.

Lessons in Hand Painting.

Persons desirous of taking lessons in hand painting on satin, placques, etc., and of learning a new method of coloring photographs, by which the burnish of the photograph is not injured, please enquire at Messrs. Craig & Mooney's, corner of Brock and George streets, or Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store.

Legal.

In the Toronto papers the following report is given of a local case heard in that city in the Common Pleas Division of the High Court of Justice on Wednesday:—

"COWETT v. O'CONNOR.—Watson, for the defendant, moved absolute an order nisi to set aside or reduce plaintiff's verdict of $600 in an action of assault tried at Peterborough before Galt, J, and a jury and for a new trial. G. T. Blackstock, for the plaintiff, showed cause. Judgment reserved."

Obituary.

We regret to hear of the death of Mrs. Holden, wife of Mr. J. F. Holden. The deceased was a bride of only a year. She took an active part in church affairs, and was a zealous member of the George Street Methodist Church. The news of her death was received this morning, and it fell with a shock upon her large circle of friends in town. She died at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Millar, at Napanee. The funeral takes place on Friday, and will be attended by a number of friends from Peterborough. The Rev. J. Tovell will depart to-night and attend the funeral to-morrow.

LADIES' single and double Wool Shawls, and Small Shoulder Shawls a good variety, in tartans, greys and mixtures at J. ERSKINE'S.

The Rev. J. R. Teefy, M. A.

It was announced on Sunday last in St. Peter's Cathedral that the Rev. J. R. Teefy, M. A., of Toronto, will deliver a sermon in that church next Sunday evening. A collection will be taken up in aid of the building fund. Father Teefy's learning and eloquence are well known to church-goers in Toronto. In reference to the reverend gentleman we clip the following from a recent copy of the Toronto Telegram:—

"The inaugural address of Father Teefy, President of the University College Literary Society, delivered before its members at the public meeting on Friday night, was a credit to the reverend gentleman and to the Society which has elected him at its head. The Society is to be congratulated on placing in so high a position one who differs from nearly all of its members on religious matters, and the Catholic College, which Father Teefy is intimately connected, must appreciate the honor as much as he does. The address was of the most liberal nature, and showed that the undergraduates made no mistake when by their liberality they made the choice of chairman they did."

Stony Lake Islands.

Mr. Roland C. Strickland has been appointed by the Department of Indian Affairs to oversee the islands in Stony Lake and the Trent Valley waters, and since he has received this appointment he has received numerous applications for islands in Stony Lake by those who are anxious to own an island on which they can build a small summer-h use, and clean it up so as to make it comfortable for their families. Mr. Strickland has received maps from the Department of Indian Affairs which give the acreage of all the islands, and these can be seen by any one who is anxious to purchase an island. Mr. Strickland would be thankful for any information that would lead to the detection of persons who burn or destroy any of these beautiful islands, as he is authorized by the Department to prosecute any parties so doing.

"Help! Help!"

How the cry of "help!" as it rings out in the dark, still night, sends a thrill of fear through the listener! It is, however, an unusual sound; but although such extreme cases, where assistance is thus imperatively demanded, are rare, it is none the less true that no person is entirely independent. The chief authority in a nation depends upon the people for assistance in carrying out its orders; the people depend on the government for protection. The yeoman depends on the mechanic and manufacturer for his machinery and other goods; the mechanic and manufacturer depend on the former for their food. The laborer depends on capital to find him employment; the capitalist depends on the laborer to make his funds of use and remunerative. Thus none are independent; all need assistance. One class looks to another for the help which it needs, and the dependence and the necessity for help is mutual. The merchant depends on his customers for his business; the customers look to the merchant to supply them with such things as they require. People engaged in work or in other business have not time to make their own clothes, even were they capable or so inclined, hence they look to the merchant tailor. And they always wish to know where they get the assistance they require—the clothes that they need—in the latest styles, best material, good workmanship and reasonable prices. This information is here given—Go to ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall, George Street.

DRUNK.

THURSDAY, Nov. 27th.—Alfred Baker was charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having been drunk in a public place. The prisoner pleaded guilty and was fined $2 or ten days in gaol.

Killed by a Train.

Another dreadful accident, says the Toronto Mail, occurred at Logan's crossing of the Grand Trunk railway, by which a man named David Williamson, a carter, residing on Gerrard street, east, was instantly killed. According to the statement of an eye witness, Williamson, who was driving a horse attached to an empty coal cart, was in the act of crossing the track of the Grand Trunk railway at Logan's side line about 9.15 a.m., when the Montreal express train came dashing along at full speed. The man had his coat collar turned up and did not appear to see the train at first, but at the last moment attempted to whip up the horses so as to escape the approaching danger, but he was too late and the engine struck the cart about the centre of the near wheel dashing it to pieces and throwing the unfortunate man a distance of thirty yards, killing him instantly. The horse was also killed and thrown across the line to the opposite side of the track. Deceased who was about 50 years of age was a sober and industrious man, and well respected in the neighbourhood. He was a widower and boarded with his son-in-law, W. Harrison, Gerrard street east. The remains were conveyed to that address, and a police constable having arrived on the spot shortly after the occurrence, Coroner Duncan was notified and decided to hold an inquest.

Vast Deposits of Iron.

PICTON, Ont., Nov. 26.—At the Orton iron mine in North Hastings the diamond drill has just crossed the vein some 200 feet below the surface and found it to be the enormous width of 55 feet between the walls. This is 15 feet wider than the famous Coe Hill mine, and proves the deposit to be of vast extent. Another body, apparently of as great extent, has been found between the Orton and the Central Ontario railroad, which will make two deposits in the township of Tudor convenient to that road. These mines are the property of Messrs. Coe, Ritchie and McMullen, who have developed that great mineral region within the last year or two.

The Smallpox in Eastern Ontario.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 26.—The Warden of Hastings advises that local councils in this county pass by-laws rendering vaccination compulsory. So far twenty deaths are reported to have occurred in the affected district.

Death of a Remarkable Woman.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 26.—Mme. Mathilda Franzica Anneke, who took an active part in the German troubles of 1848, and who, when the revolutionists were overpowered, fled to this country, died in this city last night, aged 67. She was one of the most remarkable women of the age. In the revolution, in which her huband was a prominent officer, she campaigned with the soldiery, and fought bravely as a private. Later on she edited a revolutionary paper. In this country she has written several books and founded a female seminary. She was editress for a long time of the Frauen Zeitung.

Guilty of Murder.

DETROIT, Nov. 26.—At Berrin Springs, Mich. yesterday, the jury in the Vanderhoff murder case returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. Mrs. Vanderhoff showed no feeling but entered into a long conversation with her attorneys, who asked and obtained leave to file a bill of exceptions within six months. A motion for a new trial was also entered. The judge will not sentence the defendant until December 15th, and the sentence will be for life. The only feeling the murderess exhibited was when she bade Brondy good-bye and was taken to jail

In Quiet New England.

WESTBOROUGH, Mass., Nov. 26.—This morning Mrs. Hubbard Burke, aged 30, went to her barn and was subsequenty found terribly bruised an unsconscious, wrapped and concealed in a blankets. Her death is expected. It is supposed a tramp assaulted her.

The Scoct Act.

Voting on the adoption of the Scott Act took place in Compton County, Quebec, on Wednesday. The Act was defeated, the majority, according to the latest returns, being 414.

No Food for Over Eight Months.

FORT PLAIN, Nov. 25.—It is alleged that Kate Smulsey is still fasting, and that she has not taken food for 258 days.

"What we learn with pleasure we never forget."—Alfred Mercier. The following is a case in point. "I paid out hundreds of dollars with out receiving any benefit," says Mrs. Emily Rhoads, McBrides, Mich. "I had female complaints, especially 'dragging down,' for over six years. Dr. R. V. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' did me more good than any medicine I ever took. I advise every sick lady to take it." And so do we. It never dissappoints its patrons. Druggists sell it.

OUR GREAT

CLOSING SALE

A Decided Success.

We are giving more Bargains and a better class of Goods than any other house that advertises a Clearing Out Sale

The reason why the people are satisfied to buy from us: They buy their goods at one price during this sale, not as some people who are selling out and charging three or four prices. This we know to be true, so beware of such places, and buy your goods from a responsible house, and that is at GIROUX & SULLIVAN'S.

By a strict application of the Motto "Small Profits, Fixed Prices, Cash and Plain Figures," Giroux & Sullivan enjoy a reputation for Cheapness in its true meaning, namely, real economy.

Kindly tell your friends that we are holding a Great Closing Out Sale and are selling Goods 20 per cent. Cheaper than any house in the trade.

Small Profits and Quick Returns, it is the quaniity sold that pays us.

See the bargains we are giving in Dress Goods and Silks, Velvets, Plushes, Satins, Prints, Wincey, Mantle Cloths and Sealettes, Hosiery and Gloves, Carpet and Floor Oil Cloths, Skirts and Shawls and Wool Goods.

This is a grand opportunity for parties to buy Good and Cheap Goods, during the Christmas Holidays.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Heel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

Mr. Thomas may be seen at the Grand Central Hotel.

LIBERAL CONSERVATIVE MEETING.

OUR readers will see that a meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association of the West Riding of Peterborough has been called for Saturday afternoon, December 6th. We would suggest that it is very advisable that there should be a full attendance from all parts of the Riding, as there is business of importance to be transacted. Among other business is that of the selection of delegates for the Convention to be held in Toronto on Wednesday, December 17th, who will also take part in the reception on the following day of the Rt. Hon. Sir John Macdonald to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of his entrance into public life. His services to Canada during that long period has been so great and valuable that the recognition of them should be on a befitting scale.

REVIEWS.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE FOR 1885.—The Living Age will soon enter upon its forty-first year of successful publication. As it is the only satisfactorily complete and fresh compilation of an indispensable current literature, a literature which grows richer and more abundant every year in the work of the ablest workers of the time, it is invaluable to the American reader. Supplying the place of many reviews, magazines and papers, it enables him at small expense, considering the quantity and quality of the reading furnished, to keep pace with the best thought and well abreast of the best literature of the day. The prospectus of this magazine for 1885, is worthy the attention of all who are selecting reading matter for the new year. To new subscribers remitting now for the year 1885 the intervening weekly numbers are sent gratis. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

THE lost son of Mr. Ross, of Philadelphia, has again appeared, this time at St. Catharines. If Mr. Ross had adopted all the "lost Charlies" who have applied to him for parental affection, he would now be in possession of a large and interesting family.

NOTORIOUS NEWBOLD.

THE MAN OF MANY MARRIAGES AND NUMEROUS NAMES ON TRIAL.

He is Surprised by the Appearance of two of his Wives—An Adjournment Asked for on Account of the Absence of His Father.

(Special Correspondence of the Review.)

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 26.—To-day was inaugurated the most sensational case of its kind ever tried in United States Court. The case was called the State of Ohio vs. Charles Neiveille, alias Charles Newbold, for bigamy. The history of the prisoner is well known, if not better known, in Canada than it is in this country. His last victim was Miss Lillian Whitney, daughter of C. J. Whitey, Detroit's richest millionaire. She appeared in court today richly dressed, but wearing a sad expression. She is a handsome girl, well educated, but not evenly balanced mentally. By her side walked another lady of a different type, dressed in a tailor made travelling suite of exquisite fit. This was Miss Celina Maud Rolle, of Newark, New Jersey, the next victim to Miss Whitney, she having married him just four months before. This ended the procession of his wives, but small as it was, it gave the prisoner a severe start. Following these ladies were two men who had performed marriage ceremonies for Newbold, and the witnesses to these solemnities. Large as was the court room it was packed by curious sight seekers, who wished to gaze upon the man who had the nerve to marry ten wives.

The defense at once moved a stay of proceedings, claiming that John Newbold, of Peterborough, Ontario, was a material witness for the defense; that he was sick and unable to leave his bed, but they thought would be able to give his evidence soon. Another material witness was Harriet Shaw, whose residence was to the prisoner unknown, but whom he was in hopes of finding. The judge held that the prisoner had been arraigned several months ago, and had ample time to prepare a defense. There were witnesses present from outside of the commonwealth, whom it would be hardship to detain longer. He would not grant a continuance. The next step of the defence was to object to a regular jury, and ask for "struck" jury. Again the judge refused their request. After exhausting all their challenges the defence was compelled to accept the jury, which is composed of men of intelligence. The most of the day was thus wasted. The State succeeded in placing but two witnesses on the stand, the Probate Judge, who granted a marriage license to the prisoner under the name of Sir Charles E. Neiveille, Bart, and Lillian Whitney, and the Justice of the Peace who married them. The court was then adjourned until morning.

Newbold stated to the REVIEW representative that he did not doubt but that he would be found innocent. In fact, he said he had papers in his possession which would clear him.

It is claimed by Miss Whitney's parents that she was insane at the time of the marriage, and that she has now no feeling but that of disgust towards Newbold, and that if she got a chance she would kill him.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

THE SMALLPOX OUTBREAK.

More Encouraging News from the Infected District in Hastings County.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 27.—News of an encouraging character was received from the small-pox district this morning. All were reported to be rapidly recovering, and the danger of fatal results to be past, provided proper care was used. In the hands of the nuns the patients have improved with great rapidity, and no case under their care has yet proved fatal. Wholesome food and good nursing have in this outbreak been provided by the nuns. The following is an extract from a letter dated at Tweed on Tuesday evening, from Father Hartigan to Mgr. Farreily, of this city:—

"Father Fleming improves steadily. He now feels quite cheerful in the hope of being up again and at work before a week. The patients in the hospitals are all out of danger and are fast recovering under the care of the Sisters. The panic is lessening since the recovery of several who were smitten, and in consequence we shall have no difficulty in keeping the disease under control. The Sisters work hard, but are in the best of spirits. For myself, I have never been better."

A BROOKLYN ROMANCE.

Return of a Supposed Dead Man After His Wife's Remarriage.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 27.—Six years ago Thomas Docherty, of Brooklyn, L.I., married a young lady in Brooklyn, and took her to the house of his father at Oyster Bay, where they lived happily until about a year ago, when Thomas disappeared. A diligent search was made for the missing man but no trace of him could be found. His wife mourned him as dead, and his father was of the same opinion. Garret Remsen, a well-to-do farmer, subsequently married Mrs. Docherty. They immediately took the children to the Remsen homestead.

About two weeks after the marriage, Mr. Remsen was sitting in his parlor, when he was startled by a vigorous knock on the window. He looked and was horrified to see the face of Thos. Docherty. Mrs. Remsen, who was in an adjoining room, was called, and recognized her former husband. She invited him into the house. He declined, but demanded his children. His wife refused to part with them and a scene ensued. Remsen then ejected Docherty, who, the next day, began proceedings for a divorce. Her father, who induced the woman to marry Remsen, and who witnessed the ceremony before Justice Chipp, advised him to have her arrested for bigamy. Docherty thereupon made application to Justice Chipp for a warrant for her arrest, but the Justice refused to grant it on the ground that the woman was compelled to marry Remsen by her father.

Canadian Industries.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Mail writes: The development of the home industries in Canada is indicated in a marked way by the fact that while in 1881 not less than 85 per cent. of the railway supplies of all kinds needed by the Canadian Pacific railway were brought in the United States this year, owing to the establishment of manufactories, the company do not buy more than 7 or 8 per cent. outside of Canada. Four fifths of the rolling stock, not including the sleeping cars, are now manufactured in Canada, and very soon the Crossen Manufacturing Company will go into the manufacture of sleeping cars.

He said that in its domestic policy the Government should follow Prince Bismarck's principles The state of Socialism in Ireland, the Reform at the castle, the great expenditure of money for public works, and the foreign policy of the British Empire were above party considerations.

A PARIS TRAGEDY.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—A tragedy which caused a great sensation occurred to-day. The wife of Deputy Clovis Hughes, with a revolver shot and killed M. Morin, Commission Agent, at the Palais de Justice, because he had slandered her. She fired six shots at her victim, four of which lodged in his chest. M. Hughes, who approves of his wife's action, and Madam Hughes were arrested. Last year Hughes and wife prosecuted Morin for defamation of character, and he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment. Morin carried the case from court to court and Madam Hughes to-day hearing that the Assize Court would grant another adjournment for a fortnight, proceeded there and upon the court rising for luncheon, she with her husband and counsel, in descending the stair case, met Morin, when the tragedy ensued.

Preparing for Death.

QUEBEC, Nov. 27.—Previous to receiving her commutation of sentence Mrs. Boutel had made all the arrangements she deemed necessary for her execution, having insisted, strange to say, in attiring herself for the occasion simply in the white garb in which she desired to be laid in her coffin, without any underskirts. She will be sent to the penitentiary in the course of a few days. There being no accommodation for female convicts at St. Vincent de Paul, it is probable she will be sent to Kingston. Yesterday some friends called to see her without the necessary permit, and were, of course, refused permission by the governor of the gaol. It is said that on learning of this Mrs. Boutel worked herself up into a violent passion. The official notification of the commutation will reach town town it is expected today. The scaffold prepared for Mrs. Boutel's execution still remains in all its hideousness, its removal not having yet been ordered. The coffin which was in readiness for the reception of her body is still in the gaol. The wretched woman's husband and children will not return among their old neighbours, but will seek a new home in some of the country parishes in the vicinity of the city.

The Weak and the Impure.

The merry little mountain brook, as it lightly dances over the rocks and sparkles in the sunshine on its way down the river, is pure and clean. It is active; therefore, it is healthy. It is vigorous; therefore it resists impurity.

But the sluggish pool, where the current is not strong enough to keep the water in motion, is stagnant and foul. Dirt and rubbish are thrown into it, and stay there. Impurities and vile odors make it a breeder of disease and an object to be avoided.

When the blood is strong and rich and red, and vigorously courses its accustomed rounds through arteries and veins, the system is hearty and healthy.

When the blood is thin and poor and weak, impurities and defilements creep into it, and it has no strength to cast them out. Then the system runs down.

Shaker Blood Syrup, purifies and enriches the Blood; curing Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Ulcers and Skin and Blood diseases of every discription.

IS IT TRUE?

REFERRING to the proceedings connected with the unveiling of the statue of the Hon. George Brown, the Toronto News says:—

"At the close of the proceedings, Mr. Edgar, the chairman, simply declared the meeting over without any of the usual cheers for the Queen or singing of the British national anthem, and nobody seemed in the least disconcerted by the omission. The Grit leaders are beginning to realize that there are a great many among their followers, to whom such demonstrations are distasteful."

Is this true? Are there many among the leaders or rank and file of the Reform party to whom the words "God Save our Queen" are distasteful? Are there a great many among them who are averse to singing "Make her victorious," or "Long to reign over us?" If there are, the News would give them credit for it, as it has done, but a large majority of the people of Canada will look upon it as a serious charge that should not go unnoticed.

We are aware that the News, so anxious is it to catch at very small things to prove that an independence sentiment is growing in Canada, would stretch a point in favor of its hobby, still the charge which it has made against "a great many" of the members of the Reform party is nothing less than that they do not desire to have the Queen of England reign over them, and such a serious charge should not pass un challenged. The members of the Reform party that we are acquainted with—at least the body of the Reformers in this county—are truly loyal to the throne, and are loyal subjects of Her Majesty, but this charge is not made so much against the Reformers in the counties, but more especially against the Reformers of Toronto who are supposed, more than any others, to mould the opinions for and direct the party The tone of a portion of the Reform press has lately been such as might give color to the charge made by the organ of "Democracy.' They have sneered at Royal favors and Imperial decorations, and their remarks might be construed, by those who wished so to understand them, into sneers at the source from which those favors came. There is also the well known speech of Sir Richard Cartwright at Toronto, wherein he referred to independence, and the statement of the Hon. G. W. Ross, that those who favored annexation should be allowed freely to express their opinions, all tending to add force to the News' charge. It is therefore due to the members of the Reform party, and the country at large, that the leaders of the party should explain this matter, and that it should not be allowed to pass without notice.

CAMP BELLFORD.

TO THE LOWER PROVINCES.—Mr. Charles Smith has been making large shipments of flour for some time past, and his consignments go to feed the bread eaters of the Lower Provinces. Last week he shipped a quantity to St. John, N. B., and Halifax, N.S. The people down at the seaboard prize the flour made from the wheat grown in Seymour and ground at the mills here, and Mr. Smith is busy filling orders for these places and elsewhere.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—This institution was placed on a solid basis by a meeting of its promoters and supporters in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening. The meeting was not large, but the interest manifested was active, and it was decided to transact the business of the appointment of officers only. The following gentlemen were elected for the first year:—President—R. W. Turner; 1st Vice-President—A. G. Knight; 2nd Vice-President—C. S. Gillespie; Treasurer—Capt. Tice; Board of Directors—D. Cennedy, Father Casey, A. L. Colville, W. R. Manning, D. J. Lynch, Rev. R. Hindes and T. S. Porte. A secretary is to be appointed by the board.

THE BRIDGE.—Work on the bridge in its completion of iron commenced on Thursday morning last, and has been in operation since. Every foot of the old material has been taken down, and on Monday the planking was removed, and traffic over the bridge was stopped. The job is in the hands of Mr. W. H. Law, contractor of Peterborough, who received the contract from the counties. The material comprising the arches, bolts, plates, etc., was manufactured at the Central Iron Works, Peterborough, and is made to resemble the arches forming the other part of the bridge, which was manufactured and put up by an American company a few years ago. The cost to the counties will not fall far short of $2,500. When the work is completed the bridge will be one of iron from end to end. If the weather remains favorable for the workmen, the job will be so far advanced as to allow teams to pass over the bridge again in a few days.—Herald.

Killed on the Railway.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 26.—Aaron Ross, carpenter and builder, and a prominent resident of Comber, met with a shocking death about five o'clock this morning. He attempted to pass over the crossing of the B.S.R., a few rods west of the station, in front of No. 10 express, going east, when he was struck by the cowcatcher, carried as far as the depot, and thrown on the platform with terrific force. He alighted immediately in front of the door leading to the waiting room, his head resting on the sill. Witnesses of the horrible occurrence hurried over to the scene, but were just in time to observe Ross give a few gasps and expire. Deceased was a married man and had resided in Comber for many years.

GREAT RESULTS FROM SMALL THINGS.

A Flask of Whiskey that Influenced the Destinies of a Nation.

At a private house on the West side the other night some men were chatting about the vicissitudes of the presidential election and the part played by luck in every person's life. An incident trivial as a shower of rain has turned many a victory into a Waterloo. A fool utters an alliterative sentence, and the destiny of a nation is perhaps changed, and history hangs upon a silly phrase. Cleveland's alleged luck was particularly touched upon, and while under discussion the host said, "By the way, I sometimes flatter myself that I made Grant President. The year the war broke out I was drummer for the old grocery house of Smith & Williams on Lake street. I frequently visited Mattoon, Ill., and the first time I did so was during the eventful year. I knew the firm of Monroe Bros., at Mattoon, consisting of Frank, James and Bird Monroe. This time I went to to the store as usual, and asked Frank where his brothers were. 'If you want to see them, was the reply, 'you must go over to the camp. They have joined the army.' As I was about to start some one in the grocery store said that they would appreciate a little good whisky, as they couldn't get anything of that sort in camp. I walked over to Griffin's bar and got two flat quart flasks of his best liquor, putting one in each pocket. I made my way to the camp all right, and soon ran across my two old friends. While we were chatting I told them what I had in my pockets, and asked where I should unload. 'Come to the colonel's tent,' said one of them; "he is an old officer, and appreciates a drop as well as any one.'

"We went into the colonel's tent, and I was introduced to a red faced, sturdy looking man who struck me as a typical soldier. He was a man of irascible temper, as I afterwards learned, but he had done good service in the field, having served with distinction in the American war. Well, we sat down and began drinking. The time quickly slipped away, and one quart flask was empty. We began on the other. I soon felt I had taken enough, and that the best thing I could do was get out of camp and attend to my business. So I said good-bye to the boys and left them.

"Early the next morning I was on my way to Chicago. On the train I bought copies of the Chicago papers, and was surprised to see, figuring in black head lines, the name of my colonel. I read beneath a despatch dated the night before from Mattoon, Ill., giving an account of serious trouble in the camp that I had visited. It seems that the colonel became violently drunk, engaged in an altercation with one of the officers, and, drawing his sword, severely wounded the latter. Such an occurrence, of course, made a terrible scandal, and the colonel was temporarily discharged from the army.

"At this time U. S. Grant had his hands in his pockets waiting for a job. He had high recommendations to the Governor, and was promised the first vacancy that would occur. The colonel's discharge made a vacancy for him in the regiment at Mattoon. He took the place and from that day he followed fortune from one victory to another until he entered the White House as President of the nation.

"I met the Munroe boys afterward in Kentucky during the war. I remember one of them said to me then, 'That whiskey of yours decided the conduct of this war.' So it did, and perhaps the destiny of the Republic."

"True," said a member of the party, getting at the pith of the story more quickly, "your bottle of whiskey sent one man to the White House and the other to a drunkard's grave."—Chicago Tribune.

PERILS OF THE PLAINS.

A Buffalo Hunter Charged by a Mad Bull of the Herd.

To run buffaloes, a horse trained as a buffalo runner is absolutely necessary. A good buffalo runner will be fleet of foot, courageous, long winded and trained to carry his rider within a yard of the herd hunted, and then to range alongside of any animals selected. My mustang did this to perfection until brought to grief by a prairie dog. This worthless creature is the buffalo's best friend, because of his villainous habit of burrowing in the plains over which the chase is apt to range, and hence making a thousand pitfalls for unwary horses. The Buffaloes themselves occasionally break a leg in a marmot's hole; but the fact remains that the little animal has saved more specimens of the shaggy bos Americanus from sportsmen's bullets, killed more horses, maimed more riders, and been cursed more lustily than any other denizen of the plains, from the redskin down to the coyote.

At the time of my mustang's fall I had a couple of narrow escapes from death. I had singled out as my meat an old bull with long, highly polished horns and the most magnificent mane that has ever come under my notice. I determined to have that head, and to carry it east with me as a trophy. To single the brute from the herd and to plant a bullet from my revolver in his shoulder was an easy task, when aided by such a horse as mine. The remainder of the herd thundered off to the west with my companions in full chase, and away towards the east went my wounded buffalo, with me a good second, sending a pill into his side whenever he swerved enough to give me a chance at his heart.

Suddenly the idea seemed to enter his cranium that he was flying in a direct line from his friends, and he wheeled about and charged me, his magnificent head cocked sidewise ready to toss my mustang, his nostrils and eyes blood-red and the foam flying from his mouth. When the buffalo swerved my nag made a noble leap out of his course and landed with his off foreleg in a marmot's hole, bringing him to his knees, snapping the bone of his leg off like a stalk of straw and sending me headlong to the ground right in the path of the wounded bull. I was somewhat shaken up and could not think clearly, but my eyes were wide open and the approaching danger seemed like a weight on all my faculties, benumbing me so that I could not move as much as an eyelid, and thus increase the horror of the situation.

The bull came on, his hoofs rattling over the hard prairie like the bones of the end man in a minstrel show. His hot breath came full in my mouth and nostrils, leaving a bad taste on my tongue for the remainder of the day. One of his horns caught in the collar of my hunting shirt, tearing it away, and then his hind hoof grazed my temple. He was as glad to escape as I was myself, and careered over the prairie after the herd at a three-minute gait, while I rose and planted a merciful bullet from my revolver in the brain of my doomed mustang.

One day of this sort of thing is worth a year's drawling about at the seashore in a seersucker coat.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Beating a Rival Reporter.

I remember a dinner at which Henry J. Raymond told how he once got ahead of a Herald reporter. It was in the old days when he was on the Courier and Enquirer under James Watson Webb, doing the sort of all around work that Bennett had done there a year or two before. Raymond was sent to Concord, N.H., to report a very important political conference—before the days of telegraphs. He found there a reporter from the Herald on a similar errand. At the conclusion of the meeting, the Herald reporter said, "Well, we can't leave to-night, for the last train has gone, so we may as well go to bed." He was so very anxious to get rid of Raymond that the latter was suspicious of some trick of the other's to get off without him. He made some excuse for absence and sauntered off to the new railroad station, where he found a locomotive all wooded up and ready to start. An idea struck him. "Is this my engine?" he boldly asked the engineer, "Yes, I spose so, if you're the reporter," was the reply. "Climb aboard." Raymond did as he was bid, and got to New York fourteen hours in advance of the Herald youth, who had hired the engine expressly for a "beat," and who was in sight when it started! The bill for the locomotive was presented to Bennett, but Raymond said he never knew who paid it. The news he brought was the most important of the year, and Webb raised his salary.—N. Y. Times.

Bound, Gagged and Robbed.

ROCHESTER, Pa., Nov. 26.—Six masked men with drawn revolvers entered the residence of Geo. Young and Levy Wisman, near Beaver to-day, and after terrifying the occupants bound and gagged both men and several ladies present. Search of the house was then made, and $600 and a large lot of jewellery and silverware was taken. The robbers escaped.

An Incendiary Murderer.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 27.—The Merchants' Hotel, at Mahoney, was fired yesterday morning by John Kelly. He was at once arrested and confessed. The officer started to convey him to Pottsville, and while en route Kelly slipped off the handcuffs, and springing on the officer struck him a heavy blow with the handcuffs killing him almost instantly. Kelly escaped. The hotel was only very slightly damaged.

Cruelly Murdered.

In the Province of Ontario every year thousands are being slowly murdered by taking unsuitable, untried nostrums for such complaint, as Costiveness, Indigestion, Liver Complaints Kidney Troubles, etc., who might easily gain lost strength and energy by using McGregor & Parke's Speedy Cure. THE REASON WHY

Our Shoe Store is always Crowded

With Customers is very apparent to those that have visited it and seen our immense Stock and compared our prices with those asked elsewhere for the same goods. Never have we had such Bargains in Boots and Shoes as now. Never have we sold as many as now, and the more we sell the

GREATER BARGAINS

we have, as we are able to buy in larger quantities and at corresponding low prices. We retail as many Boots and Shoes as most jobbers sell at wholesale, consequently manufacturers make no difference in price to us than wholesale trade, while smaller dealers are obliged to pay which is about the same as our regular retail price for the same quality of goods. It must be very evident to any thinking person that there must be a reason for our immense Shoe Business, and that our low prices, complete stock, and attention shown to our customers can be the only attraction powerful enough to draw such crowds to our store, and place us, with but two years' growth, as one of the largest retail Shoe Houses in Eastern Ontario.

JOBBERS' PRICES,

Remember our system of business is square with all. Goods marked in plain figures and no second or third prices made.

A FINAL SNAKE STORY.

Closing the Annual Crop With a Neat One From the South.

A strange story comes to us from one of the counties below here, and if it were not that fact is stranger than fiction we should feel a hesitancy about relating it. The story is this:—A gentleman having been at work in a field some distance from home had carried his dinner with him. When noon came he took his basket and went in a piece of woods near by, and close to a creek, to eat his dinner. After finishing the meal he sat down on a log to rest awhile before resuming his work. While thus engaged, happening to glance at an old decayed stump just before him, he saw a snake's head protruding from a hole. He immediately seized a long pole and went up by the stump, waiting to see if the snake, which had gone back, would reappear. In a short time the snake, not seeing him, crawled out, and as he did so the gentleman killed him with a well-directed blow, seeing then to his horror, that it was that most dreaded reptile, the rattlesnake. To his astonishment another came out and was also slain, and another, and another, until thirty-four had been counted. While still watching the hole he observed that the last snake had only been wounded and had crawled off, and was apparently writhing in the agonies of death some distance off on a sand bar caused by the overflow of the creek. He immediately left his post and advanced toward the hideous reptile to despatch him. When he reached the spot the snake was apparently dead. Looking down on the smooth sand near by he saw, to his utter amazement, the words "no more" traced thereupon, in plain, distinct characters. He looked at the snake and he looked at the words. He saw that a capital N should have been used in commencing a sentence, and he made the correction, then seized with a sudden superstitious fear, he hastened home and told his strange story. We give it to the public for what it is worth. After all the snake may have lied, perhaps there was more.—Columbus Times.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

A DINGY oilcloth may be brightened by washing it with clear water with a little borax dissolved in it; wipe it with a flannel cloth you have dipped into milk, and then wring it as dry as possible.

ALL cellars should be ventilated. There is a great deal of foul gas that accumulates from the decay and vegetable matter in them, that too ofter is allowed to pass into the rooms above, to the injury of the health of their occupants.

FISH CAKES.—Take one pound of cod fish, soak in cold water over night, then boil twenty minutes, remove bones, and mix well with two pounds of mashed potatoes; add yolk of egg and small piece of butter, then, using a little flour, separate the mixture into two small round cakes, and fry a light brown.

SODA SCONES.—Four pounds of flour, one ounce of carbonate of soda, two ounces of cream of tartar; mix these well together; then rub a half pound of fresh butter with the mixture; make a dough with butter milk, adding a half-pound of powdered sugar; roll out an inch thick, and bake. These cakes may be afterwards cut into four pieces.

EATING.—The taking of an excessive amount of food leads not only to disturbances of digestion, but also to the injury of the power of absorption; and this may become a serious matter. Moderation in eating and drinking should be the rule in life. To eat too little is injurious; it leads to poverty of blood, emaciation, and weakness. To eat too much is in some respects better than to eat too little, but if the excess is considerable, the injury will be considerable also.

POTTED HEAD.—Take a calf's head and feet, and if a large dish is wanted, add the pluck; brain the head and clean it, take the hair off the feet by soaking them in hot water (not boiling), put them all into a pot with enough water to cover them, and boil for half an hour; then lift them all out and scrape the flesh away from the bones, mince it small and put it back into the pot; add pepper and salt to taste; boil for another half hour and dish; let it sit till it is cold, and then it is ready for use.

STEAMED OYSTERS.—You can steam oysters at home without much trouble. Get a wire basket, such as has been used for flowers will do very well; fill it with oysters in the shell, and immerse in a vessel of boiling water, which is deep enough to completely cover the basket of oysters. The oysters are done almost immediately. They must be opened into a hot dish where there is melted butter pepper and salt. you may add broken crackers if you choose. The oysters should not stand but should be eaten at once.

ROSS-SHIRE SCONES.—Take flour, butter and milk, equal quantities; thoroughly mixed, rolled thin, cut into rounds, and baked on a gridle for 15 or 20 minutes. Another.—Two pounds whole-meal flour, one half pound fine flour, a pint of salt, 2 ounces butter; some Yeatman's yeast powder, milk or butter milk (or milk and and water); mix and work together, make into flat cakes, bake in a quick oven, till the surface looks done, and let them finish at a lower temperature in front of the fire, or on a girdle: to be one-half an inch thick when cooked.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

FARM AND GARDEN.

COARSE ground bone, oyster shells and coarse sand should always be kept where the hens can get all they want.

THE farmer who takes pains to "make up" the bed for his cow or horse gains many times the cost of the labour in so doing.

NEW YORK and Pennsylvania produce sixty-eight per cent. of the twelve million bushels of buckwheat now grown in the United States. Only twenty per cent. is grown outside of New England and the Middle States.

LEAVES, when decomposed, make one of the best materials for plant food, and when mixed with manure they do not, like corn stalks and other coarse materials, interfere with the loading and spreading of the manure.

IT is very difficult to get buckwheat dry enough to thresh by machinery without wasting a good deal, as the head dries and is shelled out while the stalk is still green. For this reason it is best to thresh it as it is drawn from the field, and it is easily beaten out with the flail.

A COLT'S feet are sound and well formed before he is shod, and the ills of a horse's feet are occasioned by shoeing and cured by running barefoot. More ailments, such as spavin, ringbone, &c., can be traced to bad shoeing. A barefoot horse will often travel freer, keep his footing better, and show less fatigue from a journey, or a hard day's work, than if shod. The kick of an unshod horse is not as dangerous as when shod, and stumbling rarely occurs; cutting, interfering, overreaching and forging, never.

ALL fields not sodded should have open furrows through them to allow surface water to run off during the winter. If wheat has been sown, the furrows should have been made before the grain germinated, in which case there will be no loss of crop. But it is better to plough furrows through wheat at the beginning of winter than to leave the work undone.

A Deserving Emigrant.

In the month of January, 1883, Bracebridge and Gravenhurst papers related about a poor immigrant family, Belgian pater-familias, his wife and seven children, who arrived at Gravenhurst without any means of subsistence and without the garments required by the severe winter season. This same party located about the 20th of May, the same year, in the Barrett settlement, all their resources being $1.50 in cash, and hand of the family's head and and its eighteen year old son. Actually, they now own a clearing of about seven acres, one yoke of oxen, three cows and two calves, and are able to give lodging and employment for some months to two other Belgian immigrants who arrived in the latter end of September. This instance shows how most probably the Globe's correspondent of three weeks ago was wrong in stating that Muskoka is no field for European immigration, but at most fit only for thrifty Canadians who are accustomed to dare rough the wilderness. Any man who has a little pluck, sense, and perseverance can try Muskoka and meet with success. —Muskoka Herald.

WIT AND WISDOM.

MANY a tramp would be thankful for cold ham, but none of them relish the cold shoulder.

IT is the easiest thing in the world to discover all the defects in a man when we do not like him.

A DARKEY says "All men are made of clay, and, like meerschaum pipes, are most valuable when highly colored."

"PAT, have you any prairies in Ireland like we have in Illinois?" "To be shoor we have. Didn't yez iver hear of Tipperary?"

IT WAS a son of Erin who asked a meeting to excuse him from serving on a committee because he expected to be unexpectedly called away.

WHAT an unfortunate error was that of the telegraph operator who, when Mr. St. John sent word to a friend that the battle was won, made him say, "The bottle is ours."

AN old Highland woman, one after the strictest sect, used to say, "Nane o' yer moodern improvements for me; I want auld Dawvid's Psalms, and Dawvid's tunes, toe, in oor kirk."

IF you are poor there is one consolation—your heirs will not go into Court to prove that you were an imbecile in your childhood, an idiot at the time of your marriage, and a gibbering lunatic for years before you died.

Canada's Butter.

During the season of navigation now closed, the export of butter from Montreal amounted to about 7,500,000 lbs. against 12,760,000 lbs. for the corresponding period in 1880, showing a decrease of 5,260,000 lbs. Now the chief, and we may safely add the only reason why Canada has not shipped nearly double the quantity of butter which left this port since May 1st, has been owing to the inferiority of quality arising (1) from a defective system of making, and (2) from the unpardonable practice of holding choice goods until they become stale. The first of these defects can easily be remedied by the adoption of the creamery system, which has given great satisfaction wherever it has been tried, while the second is bound to work its own reform, and that shortly, from the shear force of necessity, as the time is near at hand when farmers will not be able to dispose of their low grade products except for soap boiling purposes. The reason for this is plain, for just as soon as the price of fine goods advances to a certain point, the poorer class of butter is completely ousted from the market by the introduction of butterine, which is far more wholsome and infinitely more palatable than the objectionable and nasty flavor of over-kept butter. The market appears to be developing an easier feeling, which even the finest grades will find it difficult to escape. Stocks back in the country are larger than anticipated and supplies continue to accumulate here.—Montreal Produce Bulletin.

Nemesis.

"What is a Nemesis, father? Is it anything like a bicycle?"

"No, my son, a Nemesis is not a bicycle. A man sides a bicycle when he knows how, and a Nemesis reverses the operation and rides the man."

"What is it, then?"

"H'm! what is it? Let me see; it is a sort of moral ghost, as it were, and ethical independent, a kicking conscience, a—a—well, a sort of Nemesis, as near as anything."

"But what is it like, father? I want to see one."

"If you want to see one real bad, you just drink four cups of strong coffee, eat half a dozen links of store sausage, and top off with a cold mince pie. Do this at 9 o'clock p.m., and go to bed at 9.15, and you will see Nemesises enough before morning to last a lifetime."

AYER'S Sarsaparilla thoroughly cleanses the blood, stimulates the vital functions, and restores the health and strength. No one whose blood is impure can feel well. There is a weary, lanquid feeling, and often a sense of discouragement and despondency. Persons having this feeling should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify and vitalize the blood.

NEW YORK Customs Inspector, Robt. Davies, charged with accepting bribes, acknowledges having received money from merchants, but claims that he received it for lobbying bills through Congress.

HOW TO TELL GENUINE FLORIDA WATER.—The true Florida Water always comes with a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and in the paper of this pamphlet are the "Lanman & Kemp, New York," water-marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters. Hold a leaf up to the light, and if genuine, you will see the above words. Do not buy if the words are not there, because it is not the real article. The water-mark letters may be very pale, but by looking closely against the light, you cannot fail to see them.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light to moderate winds, generally fair weather; not much change n temperature.

A Curiosity.

Mr. Rosch Way has shown us a curiosity consisting of two old Continental Bills of the United States of America, dated 1777, one for $4 and the other for $5. They were found on the battle field of Marksville, Louisiana, on May 16, 1864, by Lieut. Chas. E. Shaw, Second Veteran Cavalry, N. Y., State volunteers, and sent by him to Mr. Way, of Peterborough.

Important to Taxpayers.

The ratepayers of the town should remember that after the first of December five per cent. will be added to all unpaid municipal taxes. As Sunday will be the last day of November there only remains to-day and to-morrow in which to pay taxes and avoid paying the additional five per cent. Last year the amount thus collected by the interest charged was sufficient to pay the salary of the collector.

A fine assortment of MEN'S UNDERCLOTHING, Socks, Scarfs and Ties, Kid Gloves and Mitts, Silk and Linen Handkerchiefs. J. ERSKINE.

Weekly Assembly.

The weekly assembly held by the Fire Brigade was well attended on Thursday evening. A couple of hours were agreeably spent in tripping the light fantastic to the music of the Fire Brigade Band Orchestra. The Fire Brigade are contemplating having a grand ball at an early date. The Orchestra of the Band supplies music for the Cricket Club Concert at Lakefield to-night.

Acting on the Suggestion.

Acting on the suggestion thrown out by Mr. E. B. Edwards in his letter to the REVIEW a short time ago, the firemen have decided—no one having volunteered to supply the necessary articles—to purchase a gas stove for the purpose of heating coffee, beef tea, etc., so that they may have a warm and nourishing drink after coming in cold and wet from a fire. On Thursday night after the fire the boys felt more than ever the need of this institution, and steps will at once be taken to purchase the desired articles.

Personal.

James Davis and his family of seven members, of Hall's Bridge, Wm. Davis and his family of six members, of Young's Point, and Amberson Davis, together with his family of five members, of Selwyn, departed this evening on the Grand Trunk 5.15 train for Orleans, Nebraska. They took the Grand Trunk and Chicago and Grand Trunk Railways for Chicago, where they will take the Chicago and Rock Island Railway for their destination. The tickets, twenty-one in all, were purchased from Mr. T. Menzies.

Mr. H. Allen, of the Chicago and Alton Railway, who has just returned from England, was in town yesterday. He informs us that he has made arrangements whereby through tickets may be sold from London and Liverpool, England, and Glasgow, Scotland, and Queenstown, Ireland, to any point on the Chicago and Alton Railway.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

Burning of an Old Landmark

On Thursday night, or rather this morning at about one o'clock, two young men were wending their way homeward along Charlotte street when they espied a flame proceeding from the house of Mr. J. Carveth. On nearing the place it was ascertained that the back premises were all on fire, and that as the house was a frame one, the flames would quickly spread. One of the young men gave the alarm and the other, together with the crowd who had congregated, proceeded to awaken the inmates who were peacefully sleeping with the fire fiend in such a dangerous proximity. They were all aroused from their slumbers and were safely got out through the thick smoke. The firemen were already on the scene and a stream of water from a George street hydrant was playing on the back buildings. In a short time another stream, supplied by the fire engine, was dousing the flames. The fire was quickly got under control and the building was saved with the exception of a scorching at the rear end. The back premises were destroyed. The loss on the contents is slight, as the furniture was nearly all carried safely out. A considerable quantity of clothing was burnt and Mr. Carveth's loss will probably be in the neighborhood of $100. The loss on the building will not be heavy. There was no insurance on either the building or contents. This house is probably the oldest structure in Peterborough, at any rate there are not more than two or three buildings now standing which were built prior to this one. It is owned by Mr. Robt. Harper, of North Monaghan.

CHRISTMAS CARDS in great variety; also a large assortment of SCRIPTURE CARDS, in packets, at list prices, besides a fine variety of SCRIPTURE TEXT BOOK. Miss Hasevel's Books, Scripture Mottoes, etc., at JOHN ERSKINE'S.

ASHBURNHEM NOTES.

Articles for the St. Peter's Cathedral Bazaar—Revival Meetings.

Mr. John C. Sullivan has on exhibition at his grocery store a number of handsome and useful articles which were presented by members of St. Peter's Congregation and to be disposed of at the Ashburnham department at St. Peter's Cathedral Bazaar. The chief article is an exceedingly useful and substantial one—a purse of gold to the amount of $50. Among the other numerous articles are a very pretty silver sugar bowl, a large silver ice pitcher, a beautiful floral cross of waxwork with glass case and ebonized stand, specimen of ocean scenery with heavy moulding frame, and a valuable bed room set. A number of useful articles are also exhibited consisting in blankets, quilts, children's caps, whisk holders, etc.

REVIVAL MEETING.

The Rev. Mr. McAmmond is holding revival meetings in the Mark Street Methodist Church. Members of the Saved Army have rendered excellent service in the good work, and their efforts are highly appreciated. The meetings are well attended, and considerable revival work has been done.

ENTERTAINMENT.

On Tuesday evening an entertainment and supper was held in the Town Hall under the auspices of the ladies of Otonabee connected with St. Peter's Cathedral. Martin's orchestra furnished enlivening music, and an excellent supper was indulged in. The entertainment was successful and the amount realized will be applied to the St. Peter's Cathedral Building Fund.

CHANCERY COURT.

The Fall Sittings in Peterborough, the Hon. Chancellor Boyd Presiding.

MCINTYRE vs. MCINTYRE.—An action brought by the plaintiff against her husband for non-support. The case was amicably settled, by the defendant agreeing to provide $100 a year for the support of the wife and child.—Mr. A. Hudspeth, Q. C., for the plaintiff, and Mr. C. Moss, Q. C., and Mr. Stewart, of McIntyre & Stewart, for the defendant.

CROWLEY vs. GALVIN.—An action of ejectment brought by Mary Crowley, the plaintiff, against Catharine Galvin, the defendant, her tenant, to recover possession of a farm on the east half of lot 20, in the 13th concession of Otonabee, on account of forfeiture for breach of covenant contained in the lease providing for the defendant using her best endeavours to rid the land of mustard and other noxious weeds. The action was dismissed with costs.—Messrs. Poussette & Roger for the plaintiff, and Mr. Geo. Edmonson for the defendant.

MCMARTIN vs. Irwin.—An action brought by Dennis McMartin, of Peterborough, against Jas. M. Irwin for $500 balance of account for sawing railroad ties in Haliburton. A set off was put in by the defendant, and the case was referred to the Judge of the County Court, he to take the accounts.—Messrs. G. T. Blackstock and C. W. Sawers for the plaintiff, and Mr. H. B. Weller for the defendant.

KERR [vs. KERR.—An action brought by the plaintiff to have an award set aside which was made by arbitrators fixing the value of a farm in the township of South Monaghan. The plaintiff contended that the executors who appointed the arbitrators should have consulted him as to their appointment and that the farm was undervalued. The defendant maintained that the executors had the right under the will of the late Jas. Kerr to proceed with the arbitration without consulting the plaintiff and that the award was a fair and honest one. The farm of 93 acres was valued at $4,850. Judgment reserved. Mr. Chas. Moss, Q. C., and Messrs. Dumble & Henry for the plaintiff, and Mr. W. Cassels, Q. C., and Mr. H. B. Weller for the defendant.

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK.

An Unfortunate Occurrence.

We are sorry to hear that the club that engaged Todd's minstrels and ballet corps for Thursday evening lost heavily, as they paid the guarantee for a first-class troupe, instead of a mournful sell.

Corps de Ballet.

Do not miss Madame Le Cardo, the beautiful Italian danseuse, and her CORPS DE BALLET in their brilliant costumes and graceful evolutions. Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, 27th and 28th insts. Reserved seats at Hartley's Music Store.

Hymeneal.

On Thursday afternoon a very pleasant social event took place at the residence of Mr. R. Howden, "Fairview," Township of Cavan, being the marriage of Mr. Robt. Fair, of the firm of Fair, VanEvery & Co., Peterborough, and Miss Addie M. Howden. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Rural Dean Allen, of Millbrook. The bride wore a dress of cream brocaded satin with a long white veil and the usual bridal blossoms. She was accompanied by Miss Hattie Walsh, the bridesmaid, who was attired in a pink satin dress with exceedingly handsome wreaths. Mr. Wood, cousin of the groom, was groomsman. The guests, friends of the contracting parties, numbered about fifty and were from Peterborough, Millbrook and the immediate neighborhood. The bride was the recipient of a large number of more than usually handsome and costly presents from those present and other friends. After partaking of a sumptuous dinner with the guests, the happy couple departed on a Canada Pacific train for an extended tour in the west. We join their many friends in wishing them a long life of uninterrupted felicity.

LOCAL BUSINESS ITEMS.

"Help! Help!"

How the cry of "help!" as it rings out in the dark, still night, sends a thrill of fear through the listener! It is, however, an unusual sound; but although such extreme cases, where assistance is thus imperatively demanded, are rare, it is none the less true that no person is entirely independent. The chief authority in a nation depends upon the people for assistance in carrying out its orders; the people depend on the government for protection. The yeoman depends on the mechanic and manufacturer for his machinery and other goods; the mechanic and manufacturer depend on the former for their food. The laborer depends on capital to find him employment; the capitalist depends on the laborer to make his funds of use and remunerative. Thus none are independent; all need assistance. One class looks to another for the help which it needs, and the dependence and the necessity for help is mutual. The merchant depends on his customers for his business; the customers look to the merchant to supply them with such things as they require. People engaged in work or in other business have not time to make their own clothes, even were they capable or so inclined, hence they look to the merchant tailor. And they always wish to know where they get the assistance they require—the clothes that they need—in the latest styles, best material, good workmanship and reasonable prices. This information is here given—Go to ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall, George Street.

OUR GREAT

CLOSING SALE

A Decided Success.

We are giving more Bargains and a better class of Goods than any other house that advertises a Clearing Out Sale

The reason why the people are satisfied to buy from us: They buy their goods at one price during this sale, not as some people who are selling out and charging three or four prices. This we know to be true, so beware of such places, and buy your goods from a responsible house, and that is at GIROUX & SULLIVAN'S.

By a strict application of the Motto "Small Profits, Fixed Prices, Cash and Plain Figures," Giroux & Sullivan enjoy a reputation for Cheapness in its true meaning, namely, real economy.

Kindly tell your friends that we are holding a Great Closing Out Sale and are selling Goods 20 per cent. Cheaper than any house in the trade.

Small Profits and Quick Returns, it is the quaniity sold that pays us.

See the bargains we are giving in Dress Goods and Silks, Velvets, Plushes, Satins, Prints, Wincey, Mantle Cloths and Sealettes, Hosiery and Gloves, Carpet and Floor Oil Cloths, Skirts and Shawls and Wool Goods.

This is a grand opportunity for parties to buy Good and Cheap Goods, during the Christmas Holidays.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Heel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

Mr. Thomas may be seen at the Grand Central Hotel.

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

The Canadian Foresters of Peterborough Celebrated it by Holding a Supper.

Friday, the 28th of November, being the fifth anniversary of Forestry in Canada, the two Courts of Peterborough, Peterborough and Little John, decided to celebrate it by holding a supper at the Darcy House. At shortly after nine o'clock a company of about sixty comprised of the brethren and their friends sat down to a very substantial repast. The cosy dining room was beautifully illuminattd by electric light, under which the glass and silverware shone and sparkled and many a good joke was cracked.

When full justice had been done to the viands and (metaporically speaking) after the cloth had been removed, the Chairman, Bro. H. Lithgow, of Court Little John, arose and proposed the "Health of the Queen and the Royal Family." When the toast had been heartily drank the company joined in singing "God Save the Queen."

Mr. T. Rutherford, P. C. R. of Court Little John, remarked that as none of the Royal Family were present to respond he would pass on to the next toast and propose "The Canadian Order of Foresters." The company responded by singing "They are Jolly Good Fellows."

The toast, "Court Peterborough," was responded to by Bro. A. McNeil, Chief Ranger of the Court, expressing the cordial relations which existed between the two Courts and extending a welcoming hand to the members of Court Little John whenever they felt like visiting Court Peterborough.

Bros. W. H. Watson, D. D. H. C. R., and James Kendry, R. W. H. J. W., replied to the toast, "The High Court Officers," in neat speeches, briefly reviewing the rapid strides which Canadian Forestry had made during the last two years.

Bro. W. H. Watson, D.D.H.C.R., proposed "The Secretaries of the two Courts," which was responded to by Bro. J. Fanning, R. S. of Court Peterborough, and Bro. H. Lithgow, R. S. of Court Little John. Each secretary gave a summary of the condition of each Court, which was indeed healthful and promising.

Bro. W. S. Cocks contributed a song and the toast, "The Non-Foresters" was proposed. Messrs. J. Hall, J. McNaughton and W. Green replied, expressing regret at not being ranked among the Foresters, but hoping that before long they would be able to clasp those present by the hand and call them brothers.

Bros. F. Clarke and W. Hooper intercalated songs.

"The Ladies" was proposed, and was honored by Bro. J. Fanning in a neat and expressive speech, lucidly setting forth the various provinces of the ministering angels.

Bros. Roberts and T. Guerin rengered songs, and Bro. Hooper gave a recitation.

A member of the REVIEW staff responded to the toast, "The Press," and the proceedings were brought to a close by the company clasping hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the Queen."

"Keep warm! Keep warm! Keep warm!" Twenty per cent. reductionon all Winter Underclothing at A. McNeil's.

POLICE COURT.

INJURY TO PROPERTY.

SATURDAY, Nov. 29.—Three youths named Hickey, Wallace and Daly were charged by Mr. Appleyard with having maliciously injured his property by breaking a window. The defendants pleaded not guilty, but the charge was proved, and they were fined $1, without costs, or ten days in gaol. The fine, which amounted to 33½ cents apiece, was paid.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 27.—Sensations were the order of the day at the Criminal Court. Neiville was faced in court by three of his wives and two children. The wives were Mrs. Newbold, Miss Celina Maud Rolle and Miss Lilian Whitney. One of them alone during all his villianous transactions, and that one was Mrs. Newbold, as she is called. She says she has followed him into every court in Canada, and no one doubts her assertion. She was accompanied in Court by her two beautiful children, who could hardly be restrained from climbing on the prisoner's knees.

REMAINED TRUE TO HIM

The court room was so crowded that many had to retire from the room sick.

The first witness was the Rev. Dr. Brice, who swore that he had married the defendant under the name of George E. Perry to Celina Rolle at his home in Newark. He swore to the identity of the two persons.

Mrs. Brice, who was a witness to the marriage ceremony, corroborated her husband's testimony and identified the prisoner as the man married under the name of Perry at her home.

The State then attempted to introduce the testimony of a detective, to whom Neivelle had confessed he had once been married under the name of Perry in Newark, New Jersey. The Court took the matter under consideration and allowed the State to prove that the confession was not made through hope of reward or through fear. Several witnesses were called to prove the fact.

In rebuttal, Sir Charles was placed on the stand. As he for the first time faced his three wives he seemed and very nervous. He said a portion of his name was Sir Charles E. Neivelle. In regard to the confession he said it was made in presence of his wife, or sister, Moore and a detective. When asked if he meant by his wife, Miss Whitney, he said, "There is no such person as Miss Whitney; she is my wife." He got very excited and abusive at times, and dropped his aspirates right along. He told the prosecutor that he was a fool and ought to study English grammar. When asked his full name he refused to give it, saying it was not time or place to reveal his identity. He claimed his life's history had been wrung from him by Moore, under pretence of being his attorney, when in fact he was trying to prosecute him, and was going to use this testimony against him. This caused which seemed to delight the prisoner.

GREATLY STARTLED,

A GREAT SENSATION,

After hearing the arguments the Court decided that the confession could be admitted, and adjourned the Court until Friday.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 28.—There was as usual a large audience present at the opening of the court this morning. The arguments of the lawyers were completed last evening.

This morning Judge Lemmon charged the Jury in an able manner.

The defence objected to the giving of the decree of divorce to the jury, but they were overruled. They "voted an exception."

VERDICT OF GUILTY.

At 9.40 o'clock the jury filed into Judge Pike's room. It was just ten minutes to ten when they returned. The Clerk called the names of the jury. "Have you agreed upon a verdict?" he asked. "We have, your Honor," the jury answered. "You say the defendant is guilty? Is this your verdict?" "It is." "Sheriff, take charge of the prisoner."

Neiville arose and said:—"Before leaving the court I ask leave, your Honor, to thank my Counsel for the able efforts they had put forth in my behalf." "It is granted," said His Honor. Neiville said no more and was led back to jail and the trial was ended.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

DIED IN EGYPT.

Two of the Canadian Contingent on the Nile Laid to Rest.

A despatch received a few days ago conveyed the intelligence that another Canadian had been drowned in the Nile, but the despatch was very unsatisfactory, as it caused many to fear and none to feel certain who the unfortunate man was. Later advices, however, received by Col. Lambert, of Ottawa, state that the unfortunate man was William Morrison, of North Toronto.

Another Canadian, Michael Brennan, of Ottawa, also died in the far-off land. The following letter, written to Mr. F. J. Tighe, Ottawa, his brother-in-law, conveyed the intelligence to his relatives:

F. J. Tighe,

DEAR SIR,—I regret to have to inform you that I have just received a letter from Lord Melgund stating that "His Excellency has received a telegram this morning from the Colonial Office, informing him of the death of Michael Brennan, one of the Canadian voyageurs, who died of dysentery. "The date is not mentioned, but it is presumed to be about 26th inst. You will inform Mr. F. J. Tighe of the sad event."

Vaccination Vindicated.

At the instance of Mr. Burt, a Parliamentary paper is just published which will not make pleasant reading for the anti-vaccination people. It shows at a glance the annual number of deaths from small pox in the army and navy since 1860, together with the ratio of such deaths per 1000, and the number of men joining in each year. Throughout the whole period, with very few exceptions, the tendency has been toward a constant diminution of mortality. In the case of the army, this is all the more gratifying on account of the much larger number of recruits now joining the service, a class particularly liable to catch any infectious disease which happens to be rife.

During the first five years to which the table refers, the average actual mortality from smallpox in the army was 26.5, and the average number of recruits 10,620. But in the last five years the mortality per annum fell to 5.5, while the number of men joining rose to 27,663. Turning to the companion service which had twenty-six fatal cases in 1860, we find a clean record for two years in succession—1877 and 18878—and the final ratio per 1000 is only 03, the same as in the army. It appears established, therefore, by these tests, that compulsory revaccination is slowly but surely operating to stamp out smallpox both in the army and navy, and if this happens in these cases, we have warrant for believing that the same results might be accomplished in the civil population.—London Globe.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1884.

LULE OR LULS.

UTTERLY unable to meet fairly our inconvenient enquiry as to why it did not submit to the popular verdict as to the National Policy, since it pretends to attach so much importance to an appeal to the people, the London Advertiser loses its temper and abuses us for the greater part of a column and half of its editorial space. Its vituperation is not worthy of notice, especially as much of it is founded upon the the false assertion that we said something quite different from what we did say.

There are, however, just two points amidst the scolding that may be worth a brief notice. The Advertiser asks what we mean by "a fair trial of the National Policy?" We mean such fair play as is given by the intelligent minority of every deliberative or executive body when a majority outvotes it, as to the line of action to be pursued by the organization it represents. We mean such a fair trial as the protectionists of Great Britain gave to free trade when it was adopted by Parliament. We do not mean such conduct as that of the freetraders of Canada, who after the people and their representatives in Parliament had adopted the National Policy, endeavoured, though valuly, to make it fail by means of factious opposition, misrepresentation, and appeals to sectional and class jealousies.

The Advertiser also asks us if the promised capital has been forthcoming, or the promised investments have been made. We answer that they have, to a very great extent, and that the hopes of the supporters of the National Policy would have been even more largely fulfilled, but for the unpatriotic dishonesty of the opponents of the will of the majority of the people of Canada. No doubt some capitalists and inventors were scared away, as was intended, by the ceaseless misrepresentations of the Reform press, by the exaggerations of every possible drawback, and by the attacks upon the commercial and national credit of Canada. Some capitalists also, who were too well informed to be deluded by these "Reform" falsifications, argued that there was a risk in making investments in a country where the Opposition were making such unscrupulous efforts to thwart the will of the people, and might possibly be successful in doing so. To this extent the Advertiser and its friends were successful, they placed obstacles, as they designed in the way of their country that the people might suffer and become impatient enough to wish for a change of Government. Their morality was akin to that of a discharged railway conductor who should place obstructions on the road that the train might not advance safely under the charge of a rival. "Rule or Ruin" appears to be their motto.

INSULTING THE FRENCH CANADIANS.

THE Globe has the following editorial note:—

"Cleveland owes his election to French Canadian votes as well as to the influence of Mr. Conkling, St. John's candidature, and several other causes. There are eight thousand French Canadian votes in New York State, and these, it is said, went solidly for Cleveland. The French Canadians ought to be satisfied with ruling the Dominion, without wanting to hold the balance in the United States also."

We find the French Canadians, who have settled in Peterborough, excellent citizens and well qualified to exercise their franchise. We have no reason to believe that the French Canadians who have settled in the United States are less fit to enjoy the rights of citizenship, or that they should be prevented from recording their votes like other men.

The Globe appears to have reverted to its old policy of vilifying the French Canadians, and endeavouring to set Province against Province. If it means by "ruling the Dominion," that the French Canadians give the majority that keeps the Macdonald Administration in power, it is uttering a wilful falsehood, for it well knows that Sir John Macdonald and the Cabinet of which he is premier is supported by a majority from every Province, except little Prince Edward Island. It is true that the people of Quebec are Conservative, and this is a sufficient reason for the insulting language of the Globe. We did not, however, hear the same abuse last session when the Globe, on behalf of Mr. Blake, promised the Province of Quebec more than they were said to have extorted from Sir John, if its representatives would only sell themselves to Mr. Blake. Then it would have been quite satisfactory for these French Canadians to hold the balance.

OUR OWN THE BEST.

No Desire for American Customs—Bad Effects of a Presidential Election.

Canadian preachers might in their thanksgiving sermons, after saying that we should be thankful for the bountiful harvest, for national peace, for freedom from epidemic diseases and many other blessings, have added: "We should be deeply thankful as a nation that we have had no Presidential elections." For months the neighbouring Republic has been in a state of intense excitement. Business of all kinds has been neglected, trade has been demoralized, and an element of uncertainty entered into transactions of every description. It is now assumed by everybody that the Presidential year must be a bad year for many kinds of business. Business depression and uncertainty, however, are not the worst. The opening of what one of their own writers calls "the quadrennial sewer" has a fearfully bad effect upon the people. Nor does it affect the people only. The man who goes to the White House at Washington is always painted to contrast most painfully with the House by the time he gets there. How can any American citizen expect the world to respect their President-elect after reading what half of their own nation have said about him? The difficulty would have been just as great had the other candidate been elected. We believe a large number of the best people in America are disgusted with the Presidential business. They don't exactly say so, but they say the election should not come so often. During the days of uncertainty that pass between polling day and the time that the returns come in, when the great Republic is in throes of excitement, we always feel like shouting "God Save the Queen!" Let us all be thankful we don't need to elect the head of this Empire or even the head of this Dominion. Electing members of Parliament, municipal councillors and school trustees give us plenty of exercise in that line.—Canada Presbyterian.

AT HIM AGAIN.

Cowardly Persecution of James Armstrong, of Grimsby.

The publication in the Spectator a year ago of the particulars of a succession of cowardly and diabolical outrages against James Armstrong, of Grimsby Township, created the utmost excitement, both in the city and surrounding country. Nothing like it had been heard in Canada since the notorious Biddulph tragedy. Great feeling was provoked, and in the immediate vicinity of the outrage the excitement was very great. The dastardly persecution to which Mr. Armstrong was subjected began in 1882 by the burning of a magnificent new barn, which had just been erected. Barn and everything in it were destroyed. This was followed by the killing of cattle and fruit trees, smashing of farm implements, and the sending of a series of anonymous letters threatening to kill Mr. Armstrong and his family unless they follow the advice of the villain who figures in Joe Murphy's drama, Shaun Rhue, and "leave the country." A year ago two young men, William and Holden Godden, sons of a neighboring farmer, were arrested for being the fiendish authors of this brutal business, but when the case came up for trial the crown was not in a position to prove the assertions made in the indictments, and to allow the crown to get more evidence, if possible, the matter was traversed until the following assizes this fall. For some reason it never came up and nothing more was heard of it. This is a brief summary of the events which have already been fully published. From the time of the original publication in this paper up to a few days ago, nothing happened in connection with the affair. Mr. Armstrong and his family were left alone in peace and quietness. Gradually they recovered feelings of composure and grew out of the frightened feeling that some terrible danger was hanging over them. Last Saturday evening, however, the old trouble was brought to mind again. A young mare that was securely tethered in a field near the house, was taken into an adjoining meadow and poisoned. She was a very valuable beast, Mr. Armstrong says, worth at least $200. The poison used was very virulent, and upon examination the doctor declared death must have been instantaneous. Mr. Armstrong naturally believes that parties, whoever there were, that were guilty of the first offences, were guilty of this. Surely something could and can be done to stop this infernal hounding of an inoffensive and quiet man. Klu-Kluxism in Canada is not a disideratum.—Hamilton Spectator.

LINDSAY.

ACCIDENT.—On Monday at noon while on her way home from school little Mabel Ward, daughter of Mr. W. A. Ward, slipped on the snowy sidewalk just below the school gates. The fall resulted in the child breaking her left arm in two places. The little sufferer was taken home and at last accounts was recovering.

ANOTHER EAST WARD FIRE.—On Tuesday morning at 1.15 o'clock the alarm of fire was given. The smoke and flame from the fire was visible all over town and the locality of the fire was easily guessed to be in the east ward. Middleton's greenhouses at the crossing of the river on Lindsay street took fire from, it is supposed, the furnace and in a few minutes after the alarm was given the flames had made serious progress toward destroying the buildings and threatening the destruction of the dwelling houses adjoining. In fact before a stream could be brought to play on the flames the store occupied by Mr. McDonald took fire at the rear. The brigade turned out promptly and a line of hose was laid from the hydrant at Britton's corner down the hill to the fire. Despite the gloomy predictions of the ineffectual state of the water works a splendid stream was thrown, and being well directed soon put the fire out. The damage done to the greenhouse was seriously large. The store was not damaged to any extent, but the stock of goods in the store, owned by Mr. McDonald, were removed so hurriedly that his loss will be considerable.

THE RAILWAY WATER-WORKS.—On Saturday afternoon the boiler, pump and pipes of the water supply system which the Grand Trunk railway have been putting in during the last two months were tried and found to work most successfully. After making a proposition to the town to supply water through the local water-works, which was not even entertained by our city fathers, the company determined to construct their own system. They built and placed at the station a huge tank raised on stone and wooden frame work, 18 x 23 feet, capable of holding 50,000 gallons of water. Trenches were dug along the track to the river, and a 4-inch pipe laid the entire distance, nearly three quarters of a mile. To send water to the tanks a pumping house was built at the foot of the bridge, and a 25 h. p. locomotive boiler put in. Water is taken from a cistern connected with the river, the pump being a combined engine and pump. On Saturday afternoon a trial was made and although the pumps were run very slowly, the pipes filled quickly and in a few minutes after starting the pump, water was pouring into the tank at the station. The tank being elevated enough to give a good head, hose and couplings have been provided, and the station and outbuildings can be well protected in case of fire. In fact the pressure would be ample to throw a fine stream over many of the houses in the neighbourhood. The tank will be capable of supplying, when full, fifty locomotives once, or one fifty times. The arrangement of the system and its successful completion is largely due to the ability and oversight of the mechanical superintendent of the Lindsay division, Mr. Rainsford.—Post.

BUTTER.—Mr. Jas. Young, of Verulam, made a sale of his butter, last week, in Peterborough. He sold at 22c. and realized $528 from the produce of twenty-four cows.

STAGE.—Mr. W. Bottum, is now running a daily stage to Fenelon Falls, in connection with the Victoria train. It leaves here at 7.30 in the morning, and returning, leaves Fenelon on arrival of the train from Lindsay. It is a great convenience.

NAVIGATION.—The lakes are closed for the season. The Esturion made its last regular trip on the 17th, though the Beaubocage fluttered about for some days after. The last lockage was made by Lockmaster Kelly, on Monday, in the midst of a blustering, wild, and unmannerly snow storm. The Esturion is laid up for the winter, and the Beaubocage is going into dry dock. The lake service has been exceptionally good this season, the regularity maintained by Capt. Lane being a great public convenience. The captain has concluded his twentieth consecutive season on these waters, and at no time in his long period of service was he more popular than he is to-day.—Independent.

A Fatal Errand.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Frank Klein, a saloonkeeper, who has been robbed several times recently arranged his window shutters in such a way that any handling of would warn him of an attempt to enter the premises. Early this morning, hearing a noise at the window, he seized a gun loaded with buckshot and fired at the figure of a man. There was a groan below and some one outside staggered away from the house. Klein sent his bar-keeper to notify the police, and upon his arrival at the station house he found four men there, known as members of "the short tail gang," one of whom was bleeding profusely from a gaping wound in his breast. The injured man, Michael, Donnelly, died shortly afterward. His companions claimes that they were visiting a house in the neighborhood and that Donnelly had been sent to the saloon for beer for the party.

Robbing the Mails.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 27.—It has just leaked out that several mail bags, which were forwarded from the Winnipeg post office to eastern points some time ago, have never reached their destination, and the supposition is that they have been robbed. This is substantiated by the fact that a few days ago an empty mail bag was found under the platform at Emerson station. It was identified as being the same bag that was forwarded from the post office here about Oct. 24th last. It contained over seventy registered letters and was billed to Windsor. In the latter part of the same month a registered bag was forwarded to Toronto, but it has not yet reached that city, and its whereabouts at present remains a mystery. This thriving business is said to have been going on for some time.

A Monster Sturgeon.

Last week the carcase of a monster sturgeon was washed upon Amherst Island shore. It was picked up and given to Mr. Cumberland, who in turn presented it to the authorities of of Queen's College, for the museum. The fish was brought here by the steamer Hero yesterday afternoon. It measured 7 feet 9 inches, and weighed 200 lbs. Mr. Stratford has been asked to prepare the fish for the college.—Kingston Whig.

AUTUMN MUSINGS.

BY REV. E. H. DEWART, D. D.

Gone are the warm and sunny summer hours,
Like Fancy's visions which flit softly past;
The waving forest with its leafy bowers
And autumn wild flowers tremble in the blast;
The blue jay's wail o'er beauty's fading forms
Heralds and braves the gathering wintry storms.

Calm autumn comes with slow and sober pace,
Her hands are filled with choicest gifts for all,
A peaceful smile illumes her pensive face,
Around her form rich golden draperies fall;
Her tranquil glories hush the rising sigh,
That summer joys have swept so swiftly by.

For times when frozen desolation reigns,
The generous fruit trees yield their grateful store;
And scattered beech-nuts on the leafy plains
Tempt youthful feet to seek the woods once more,
Ere winter comes with harsh, reproachful breath
And spreads the ensigns of the reign of death.

The summer bower where I have many a time
Found shelter from the scorching heat of day,
To read the numbers of some hard sublime
Or dream the sultry hour of noon away;
No more bedecked with summer beauty rare,
Stands now disrobed, untenanted, and bare.

Yet not unwelcome Autumn comes to me;
Her waning beauties melancholy, dear,
Sweet lessons eloquent of life to be,
With voice of sadness breathe upon my ear—
Suggestive whispers sordid thoughts control,
And wake the holier pulses of the soul.

A slumbrous calm broods o'er the landscape here,
A golden mist envelopes every sight;
The Indian Summer of the waning year,
To thoughtful spirits yields serene delight,
Pours soothing music on the restive breast,
Prophetic whispers of immortal rest.

I love those tranquil dreamy Autumn days,
The close of Summer's glad refulgent reign,
When through the smoky atmosphere the rays
Of struggling light can scarce their course maintain;
Now lingering glories summer echoes wake,
Like midnight music on a forest lake.

The feathered warblers hush their gladsome song,
Faintly their sonnets tremble through the trees;
Aloft the wild goose wings her flight along,
Seeking a shelter from the northern breeze,
Till Spring's warm breath has loosened every band,
Thrown o'er our lakes by Winter's icy hand.

A garland woven on the mountain's head
To Fancy's eye the maple foliage seems;
Like stately pyramids of gold and red,
Graceful and beautiful in Day's last beams;
There's singing Sol sheds down his golden glow
While evening shadows spread themselves below.

Bright clouds move on in massive fragments riven,
Mountains of fire they float along the sky,
Leaving behind the blue expanse of heaven,
The glorious curtain of the throne most high,
Spangled with worlds by great Jehovah's hand
Which ceaseless shine at His supreme command.

Here sylph-like, gentle-fingered Autumn Eve,
Life's dear, though long forgotten, joys restores,
And, vanished histories round the spirit weave;
While treasured secrets, memory's choicest stores,
Too dear, too cherished for the hours of light,
Fall in soft cadence on the ear of Night.

The Autumn winds are singing requiems through
The gloomy pines around my mossy seat;
The distant hills fade slowly from my view,
And through the valley opening at my feet
The voiceless streamlet on its winding way
Bears on the leafy emblems of decay.

The winds are sleeping. Every leaf is still.
The gloom recedes before the queen of night;
Her argent beams have crowned the western hill,
And bathed the woodland in her beauteous light,
Heaven's dome she scales majestically slow,
And mildly glances o'er the world below.

She glids with beauty many a ragged glade
That wore no charm beneath the noontide glare,
As fairy castles flourish in night's shade
Which golden sunlight scatters into air,
Earth's loveliest sons her mighty blessings crown,
On all she showers her priceless glory down.

As from the lofty watch towers of the sky
Look down bright spirits of celestial birth,
So Luna reads with calm, unclouded eye
The grand, unwritten poetry of earth;
And leads the sentries of the upper deep
Who watch o'er earth while toil-worn mortals sleep.

I linger still. A charm is on my soul.
Not the wild whistle of the passing train,
Whose demon shrieks of wailing terror roll
Across the hill from yonder distant plain,
Can break the spell that binds me to this spot,
Where God is present and the world forgot.

Mysterious solitude! I feel thy power
Flooding my soul with spiritual delight—
Angels surround me in this mystic hour,
Winging my soul for its upward flight—
Breaking the fetters which my soul confine,
They blend their holy sympathies with mine.

Though wandering through the universe of thought,
God is my rest, my sure unfailing stay;
May I, when life has fled like dreams forgot,
Calm as the evening of this Autumn day,
Sink down in peace to rest beneath the sod,
And my free spirit soar to meet its God.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

Each Worker a Part of the Great Whole.

Beneath all the seeming diversity of human needs and human occupations there is an underlying unity. One plows the ground and scatters the grain; another builds; a third weaves, a fourth descends into the earth to bring thence her mineral treasures. But each of these is working at a separate part of one great whole, and each serves and is served by the other. The needs of each are generically the same; he must eat and drink and be clothed, and have instruments to work with, and the satisfying of each of these needs comes to him in the doing of his own little portion of the general work, not in his attempting to do all kinds of work for himself. This is true in the economy of society, and it is true also in the economy of the church. It would be a sad thing for Christianity, if all Christians were doing the same specific work, and could only do that one specific work. In that case one sphere of Christian activity would suffer from a plethora of workers, and all others would practically be abandoned. Such a one sided Christianity the Master did not plan. So "he gave some to be apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints unto the work of ministering unto the building up of the body of Christ; not for the special gain of each in his own sphere, alone but till we all attain unto the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God." Who, then, is there who shall say that his own work is the only work worth doing in the church of God, or who will disparage any other Christian work than his own simply because that work has no specific claims upon him? There is room enough for all in the service of our Lord, and full opportunity for the using of all talents in that service. The best good of all is served by each doing his own work only; and he who once has a true insight into God's methods of economy in nature and in grace, will have nothing but applause for good work done in any sphere of Christian activity, however different that work may be from his own.

Chloroformed to death.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Nov. 27.—Dr. John Maxwell, yesterday afternoon, after sending his wife to town, administered to his four children, aged four to thirteen, a combination of aconite and chloroform. He then placed a cloth saturated with chloroform over their faces, placed them on a bed, administered a similar dose to himself, and lay down to die with them. When Mrs. Maxwell returned all four of the children were unconcious. During the night two of the children died. Maxwell revived and was gaoled. He refused to talk. He left a letter saying he was tired of life and wanted his children to go with him to avoid suffering. He had recent been indicated for libel of another physician, and this with business embarrassments it is supposed incited the fearful act. The oldest boy died tonight, making three deaths. The oldest girl will recover. It is feared Mrs. Maxwell will die from the shock. Maxwell feigns insanity.

DRIVEN OUT TO SEA.

Terrible Night's Experience—A Leaky Boat in a Fierce Storm.

QUEBEC, Nov. 27.—Pilot Joseph Brown, who left here on the 23rd in charge of the steamship Ontario, reports that they arrived at Father Point at 10.30 the same night, and that a boat being launched from the latter place to bring him ashore struck the rocks and was bulged, which was not noticed till the party left the ship. The wind then suddenly shifted southwards and drove the boat out to sea. She was then leaking badly, and it required one of the men constantly to bail her out, but he was unable to keep her free, she was leaking badly. They also lost their lamps. After being out from 11. p m. to 4.30 a. m. the men were almost exhausted and giving up in despair when the storm abated, and the boat drifted for the Cock Cove, where they manage to crawl on shore on their hands and knees and up to the residence of Mr. Gouletta, which place they reached more dead than alive. After having their feet bathed in highwines and getting some brandy to drink, they somewhat recovered and were afterwards driven bas to Father Point, a distance of seven miles.

COWS AND BUTTER.

Cows should have daily exercise and a never failing supply of pure water at the barn if possible. They should have a small quantity of salt daily. When they are kept in the barn they should have all the feed they will eat up clean twice a day, and should be fed from six to eight o'clock in the morning and from three to five in the afternoon. They should have all the water they will drink immediately after each foddering, but they never should be allowed to drink ice water. Good, early cut, upland hay should form the basis of their food, supplemented with ensilage, corn, fodder or any other good sweet fodder. They should have grain twice a day while giving milk. One quart of cornmeal, one quart of cotton seed meal and two quarts of shorts make an excellent ration. If one objects to ensilage, a good supply of roots should be furnished, and of these carrots and parsnips are best. Cows should be thoroughly cleaned every day with a card and a stiff brush; the brush should be used most. Milk just before feeding in the morning and just after watering in the evening, dividing the time as nearly as possible. "Regularity" should be written in a conspicuous place and strictly adhered to, as cows are very sensitive about being fed, watered and milked at regular intervals. No one who is not gentle and kind should ever be allowed to handle the cows. They should have a steady milker. Their udders should be thoroughly wiped with a cloth before being milked. Do not brush them immediately before milking, as the operation would fill the air with dust, which in settling would get into the milk. Never use a wooded pail for milk; tin is much better. As soon as possible after it has been drawn strain the milk through a fine wire and a cloth strainer, and cool it at once. Never allow the cows to be run or hurried. Each cow's milk should be thoroughly tested, to ascertain her value as a butter cow. One will be apt to find that one of his best looking cows, that give a good flow of milk are nearly worthless as butter producers. If a cow will not make at least 250 pounds per year with the above treatment she should be discarded at once. Cows should go dry from four to eight weeks, as they need a rest, and their milk should not be used when nearing the time of parturition. Most butter should be made in winter, as the demand is then greater and the price higher. By using a thoroughbred male, of whatever breed one prefers, and raising the heifer calves from the best cows, the herd can be improved to a great extent and the butter production largely increased.—New York Herald.

Humble Greatness.

Two years ago a colored girl from Detroit graduated from the State University at Ann Arbor Mich. Her mother was a washerwoman. They lived together in one room. The mother bent over her tubs and irons. The daughter helped her when she could, and together supported themselves. In spite of her poverty and toil, this girl was one of the best scholars in her class. She has now gone to Africa as a missionary, and her mother with her. God bless them both! They are, no doubt, a good many interesting things to be seen in Detroit and Ann Arbor. But as the Lord looked down on those two cities, it is likely that he saw anywhere a more precious sight or a higher ideal of life, than was shown in that quiet, secluded home, where these two women loved and prayed. It was in order to go and preach Christ's gospel to the heathen that this poor girl struggled through her education. It was in order that she might go that her mother did her humble, faithful work. Their ideal was as the star in the East which the wise men followed; it had to do with Jesus Christ, the Saviour of the world. But the suds, and the tears, and big bundles of clothes! These were common place enough. When for themselves only, they are simple drudgery. When they are steps towards the accomplishment of some great end, or when done for Christ's sake, even such things as these become glorified. You remember those beautiful words of George Herbert:

"A servant with this clause
Makes drudgery divine;
Who sweeps a room as for thy laws,
Makes that and the action fine.

—Golden Rule.

A Terrible Fall.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Private advices received here from Athens report that Mr. Eugene Schuyler, until recently the American Minister, while taking a walk in the environs of the Greek capital, lost his way and fell into a pit filled with slacked lime, from which he was extricated, not without being badly burned. The physicians hope to save his life. The State Department has received no information on the subject.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

Mr. J. O'Donnell, Inspector of the Standard Life Assurance, is now in town at the Grand Central Hotel, in connection with the business of his company.

Ackowledgement.

Mr. John Britton wishes us to acknowledge for him the promptitude of the Northern Assurance Company in paying in full through their agent, Mr. W. H. Hill, his claim of $316 for the recent fire at his coopery.

A Good Programme.

A good programme has been prepared for the entertainment which will be held in the School Room of St. John's Church on Tuesday evening next. It includes pianoforte duets, solos, songs, recitations, readings and tableaux. The tickets are placed at the low price of 10 cents, and no doubt the attendance will be large.

Hurt on the Head.

On Friday evening at about six o'clock, an elderly gentleman named Buck, who lives on Rubidge street, was carrying into the house an armful of wood. By some means he slipped and fell. In falling he received a very painful scalp wound. Dr. King was called, the wound wat successfully dressed, and the patient is now doing well.

A fine assortment of MEN'S UNDERCLOTHING, Socks, Scarfs and Ties, Kid Gloves and Mitts, Silk and Linen Handkerchiefs. J. ERSKINE.

A Talk to Sunday School Workers.

On Monday afternoon, at 3.45 o'clock, a meeting of Sunday School workers will be held in the George Street Methodist Church, which will be attended by the Rev. Dr. Vincent. The reverend gentleman will give a talk on Sunday School work, and all who feel an interest in the school should endeavor to be present, as they are cordially invited to attend.

School Entertainment.

The usual weekly entertainment was held in Miss Fair's room, Central school, on Friday afternoon. Readings were contributed by Misses E. Saunders, L. Ritchie and Master Fred Ratcliff. Recitations were given by Misses J. Mitchell, M. Snider, P. Walker, and Master Harry Robinson. Master Charles Temperton sang a solo and Master Joseph Eastland acted as chairman.

For Velveteens call at Turnbull's. He claims to have the best make in the Market, none excepted. Ladies who have worn these goods pronounce them perfectly fast pile.

Sermons and Lecture.

Our readers should bear in mind that the Rev. Dr. Vincent will preach in the George Street Methodist Church to-morrow, at both the morning and evening services. On Monday evening Dr. Vincent will deliver his lecture "On the Heights" in the same church. To those who have heard him on the occasion of his previous visits to Peterborough nothing need be said to induce them to attend, and those who have not heard Dr. Vincent need only to ask any person who has in order to obtain advice not to miss this opportunity of listening to him.

Burglar Alarm Door Bell.

Messrs. Wilson and Morrison have obtained the agency for Eastern Ontario for the Burglar Alarm Door Bell. It is so arranged that turning the handle of the hall door will ring the bell so as to give the alarm. The alarm can be disconnected, so as to use the same bell as an ordinary door bell only, or in case of illness it can be silenced altogether. This will be very useful as a precaution against sneak thieves, while the sound of the bell itself is both loud and musical, and the fittings are highly ornamental. The mechanism is very simple and strong, so that it cannot get out of order.

Just Fancy! 50c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

The Mock Parliament.

On Friday evening the Speaker (Mr. Cushen) took the Chair shortly after eight o'clock. Several members gave notices of motions and bills, and a number of questions were asked the Government. The debate on the Address was resumed by Mr. Scott (Ministerial side). Mr. G. M. Roger (Bobcaygeon) followed on the Opposition side, and Mr. Pakenham (St. John's) defended the Government, as did the Hon. W. H. Hill. Mr. A. Stevenson (Hamilton) delivered a telling speech from a protectionist standpoint, and the Premier (Hon. L. E. Hornisg) closed the debate with a vigorous speech. The Address was passed, and a bill extending the franchise and making the punishment for bribery imprisonment, introduced by the Hon. F. P. Henry (Minister of Justice), was adopted. The orders of the day for the next meeting are a motion favouring Imperial Federation (Mr. Pakenham), resolutions embodying the Government policy regarding the Trent Valley Canal (Hon. J. D. McIlmoyle) and a bill to amend the constitution of the Senate and make it an elective body.

CHRISTMAS CARDS in great variety; also a large assortment of SCRIPTURE CARDS, in packets, at best prices, besides a fine variety of SCRIPTURE TEXT BOOK. Miss Havergal's Books, Scripture Mottoes, etc., at JOHN ERSKINE'S.

A CONFLAGRATION AVERTED.

The Grand Central Hotel Narrowly Escapes Being Consumed by the Fire Fiend.

On Friday night at half past ten the alarming clang of the fire bell rang out sharp and clear on night air, and in a few minutes a large crowd had gathered in front of the Grand Central Hotel, which was at some quarter in flames. Smoke might be smelt through the various halls and an ominous crackling sound was occasionally heard.

The firemen were on hand within three minutes, but Chief Rutherford, with characteristic coolness, did not have the water turned on until the fire was located.

The hose attached to a George street hydrant was taken chrough the main hall, up the stair case and the branchmen held themselves in readiness to turn on water at the first word of the chief, who was trying to locate the fire. After a short time he discovered that the flames were burning in a suite of rooms on the third flat, composed of parlor No. 6 and rooms No. 19 and 20. The door was burst open and thick volumes of smoke immediately issued forth, almost choking the firemen. A stream of water was thrown in and the flames were soon quenched. The floor had, however, been burned through, and the fire had followed the joisting out of the room into an adjoining hall. The floor was cut through and water was sparingly applied.

Although no more water than was necessary for putting out the fire was thrown from the hose, yet parlour No. 2, which is situated on the second flat directly under the burned suite, and the office and reading room situated on the first flat directly under the parlor, were thoroughly drenched. The water came down through the ceiling like rain, and the plaster fell from there in large pieces.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is quite probable that the occupant of the room left a burning cigar on the window sill and that it rolled off on a sofa which stood immediately below. The sofa was stuffed with feathers, and it is likely that it was smouldering for an hour before it was discovered, as the door had been shut tightly and locked. After burning the sofa through the feathery brands fell on the carpet and ignited the floor.

The damage will be considerable as valuable carpets were destroyed by water and lime from the ceilings. Quite a number of pieces of furniture were broken and otherwise destroyed.

The firemen, and particularly Chief Rutherford deserve credit for the cool and collected way in which they went about their work. Had it not been that the flames were checked in their infancy it is difficult to say where the fire might have ended.

The business of the hotel will be in no way impeded as only three rooms suffered any damage. Repairs will be commenced at once.

The loss is amply covered by insurance.

Piles.

Samples of Lewis' Sure Pile Cure free by applying at drug stores of Taylor & Macdonald and Ormond & Walsh.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate northwest winds and clearing weather, followed by south-easterly winds, cloudy weather and light snow; falling temperature to-morrow. No storm warnings will be issued after the thirtieth.

Dresses and Mantles made in the latest and most approved fashion. All orders left at Turnbull's executed with the greatest of care.

St. Andrew's Society Dinner.

We are requested to state that owing to the prior engagement of the Opera House and hall adjoining for Monday evening, the committee are reluctantly obliged to postpone the annual dinner until the following evening (Tuesday). The committee, it seems, were unable to obtain possession of the hall, and therefore had no alternative, Mr. Faucher being the caterer for the occasion. It is desired that all Scotchmen and their friends will be on hand on Tuesday evening.

Suddenly called Away.

A short time ago Miss Analey, a young lady of Guelph, was engaged by Messrs. Fair, VanEvery & Co., as assistant milliner. She successfully filled her position since her appointment, but a few days ago she was attacked by that malignant disease, typhoid fever. Despite the best medical attendance she succumbed after a few day's sickness. An effort was made to have the body sent by railway in a metalic coffin, but the authorities refused passage. Mr. D. Belleghem, undertaker, started on Friday to drive through to Guelph. The young lady during her stay in Peterborough made a number of friends and was exceedingly popular in her department.

Standard Life Assurance Co.

We would call attention to the advertisement in our columns of that old established Scottish company, the Standard Life Assurance Co. From it will be seen that they have enormous invested funds, amounting to over thirty million dollars, that their income exceeds $10,000 a day, and that they have distributed bonuses to their policy holders to the extent of over seventeen million dollars. Persons insuring before Dec. 8 will be entitled to participate in the division of profits next year. This company issues policies free from all restrictions as to travel, place of residence, change of occupation, &c. Its policies are revivable on easy terms; those of five years standing at any time within thirteen months. The inspector is Mr. J. O'Donnell, and the Peterborough agent, Mr. Chas. Cameron.

Dictionary and Moral Code for Daily Use.

Lie—A falsehood. A very wicked think for other folks to tell. When I do it myself it is just a little fib. Can't help it, sometimes, you know.

Thief—One who steals things. People who steal are sent to prison. But if rich people take things belonging to other folk, we call them "kleptomaniacs," and feel very sorry for them, poor dears!

Improper Conduct—Sarah Jane, at the area gate, flirting with her young man; but if young Mr. Moneybags does stay a long while and gets his arm around Evelina Amelia's waist, and even kisses her, what's the use of seeing it through the parlor door? It's a good match, if he only proposes, as he may if let alone.

Charity—Giving away what we can't possibly make any use of to the deserving poor, who can't make any use of it either.

Frankness—Hateful things we say to others.

Insolence—The same things said to us.

Baby next door—A dreadful little creature that shrieks all night. Can't sleep for him. Wish they would drown babies as they do kittens.

Baby at Number One—Such an angel; only "c'y, c'ies a ittle in a middle of a dark, dark night, when touldn't see mamma."

Wi-dom—A man buying his clothes and furnishings at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall.

Since the fall in the price of Millinery at Turnbull's, many have availed themselves of the opportunity to secure a bargain. A fresh lot of these Job Goods trimmed up this week.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE

FALL SITTINGS OF THE CHANCERY DIVISION IN PETERBOROUGH.

Chancellor Boyd Presiding—The Cases all Disposed of on the Third Day—One Case Laid Over.

PATERSON vs. ROXBURGH.—An action brought by the plaintiff, Rachael Paterson, to set aside a contract made with Messrs. Roxburgh, Rorke and Ferguson, as to cutting timber on certain lands in the township of Dummer. The plaintiff, being illerate, alleges that the contract signed by her was not the same as the oral one, and that she agreed to allow them to take timber for two winters instead of three winters, as specified in the contract. The judge ruled that the contract was valid, but confined the operations of the defendants to the swamp lands.—Messrs. Chas. Moss, Q. C., and J. Burnham for the plaintiff, and Mr. Geo. Edmonson for the defendants.

MORROW vs. MIDLAND RRILWAY CO.—An action brought by Mr. R. A. Morrow, the plaintiff, against the Midland Railway Company for trespass on a park lot at the corner of McDonnell and Park streets. Judgment for plaintiff, with orders for the defendants to proceed with the arbitration of the damage done.—Messrs. Hatton & Wood for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Bell & Biggar for the defendants.

KING vs. ALFORD.—An action brought by the paintiff and others against J. Alford, Jas. McNamara and the Ontario and Quebec, Railway Company to establish a mechanic's lien for work done on a round house in Havelock. The Judge ruled that no mechanic's lein could be filled against lands belonging to a railway company, but by consent arranged that ten per cent. of the whole contract sum should be paid into the Court subject to the opinion of the Divisional Court as to the ruling.—Messrs. W. Cassels, Q.C., and J. O'Meara for the plaintiffs, Messrs. C. Moss, Q.C., and J. Burnham for the defendant, and Mr. G. T. Blackstock for the Ontario and Quebec Railway.

MCMULLEN vs. MCMULLEN.—An action brought by the plaintiff against her sons, the defendants, for breach of agreement made by them in her favor. The Judge decided that the defendants should pay the plaintiff the sum of $25 yearly for her life time in satisfaction of such covenants.—Messrs. Blackstock and O'Meara for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. B. Edwards for the defendant.

DAWSON vs. RATHBUN.—An action brought by the plaintiff against the Rathbun Company for breach of contract. The plaintiff contended that he had entered into a contract for the sawing of a drive of logs and that he had rented the Rogers mills for that purpose. The logs were not delivered for sawing, and he, having no other contract, suffered loss in paying rent for the mills. The defendants maintained that no contract had been entered into on account of the seal of the company not being attached to the document. The judge ruled that a contract had been entered into, and referred the matter to the Master in Chancery, he to take account of the damage sustained by the plaintiff.—Messrs. C. Moss, Q. C., and J. Burnham for the plaintiff, and Messrs. W. Cassels, Q.C., and W. H. Biggar for the defendants.

EMILY vs. MIDLAND RAILWAY CO.—An action brought by the Township of Emily to compel the Midland Railway Company to construct crossings at a point where the road is intersected by a deep cutting, and to widen and ease the grades at a number of crossings. Since the action was brought the company have been removing the grievances and asked for time to provide all that the plaintiffs ask for. The trial was adjourned, the defendants paying the costs of the day. Further judgment was reserved until after the Company shall have time to make good the requests of the plaintiffs.—Messrs. W. Cassels, Q. C., and D. W. Dumble, for the plaintiffs, and Mr. H. Biggar for the defendants.

GILMOUR vs. STRONG.—This case was postponed until the next sitting of the Court, as the plaintiff did not appear, the plaintiff to pay the costs of the day.

CROWLEY vs. CROWLEY.—An action brought by Timothy Crowley to ascertain the validity of a deed to certain lands in the township of Douro. The judge decided that Timothy Crowley was the owner of the land and that the release given was executed for the purpose of enabling Daniel Crowley to convey the land to the plaintiff, and that Mary Crowley had no dower or claim against the land.—Mr. J. Burnham for the plaintiffs, and Mr. E. H. D. Hall for the defendants and infants.

MINDEN.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Mr. Alexander McDougall met with a serious mishap last Friday forenoon. He was riding on horseback past Mr. Mooney's residence when the horse suddenly jumped to one side and pitched Mr. McDougall upon the hard and hobby roadside, causing a very severe contusion of the left shoulder, arm and side. He has been unable to leave his bed since the accident, but, under the skilful treatment of Dr. Curry, the will soon be around again.

THE BEST LOT OF SHEEP.—Mr. Barrett, the cattle buyer from Garden Hill, shipped on Wednesday from Kinmount the finest lot of sheep that has ever been taken out of this part of the country. He bought them from Messrs. Thos. Hobden, Alex. Anderson, Jas. Morrow, Mark Morrison and others. One ewe purchased from Mr. Morrison weighed 250 pounds, and the smallest ewe in the lot weighed over 125 pounds. These gentlemen deserve great credit for the progress they are making in sheep raising. He also took away a number of fine steers, for which it is said he paid good prices. The cattle were bought from Thos. Stinson, Wm. Otta, Wm. Hartle and Mrs. Sharp. Mr. Barrett being the only outside buyer that comes here, we are glad to learn that he intends returning in a couple of weeks. Mr. Rich. Scott is on the road buying for him, and Dick is noted for paying good prices.—Echo.

Involuntary Mesmerism.

Yesterday a rather remarkable case came under the notice of the police of this city, which, for want of a better definition, might be termed a case of involuntary mesmerism. August Brudel, a railroad labourer, met an old friend whom he had not seen for a long time, named A. Whitfield. They had been comrades, and were much attached to one another. Scarcely had they exchanged greetings before Brunel began to act in an extraordinary manner. He would mimic Whitfield's every motion, gesture and word, all the while staring at his friend with his face distorted like that of a madman.

The two sat down to dinner at the National hotel, and Brudel ordered the same food that Whitfield did, and kept perfect time to the motion of his arms and mouth. This action was so curious that Whitfield walked down to the police station and gave his friend over to the police authorities. It was thought the man was stricken with nervousness or mesmerism, and Dr. Wheeler was called in to decide the matter. The mesmerized man changed from Whitfield to the doctor, and upon his commands would do anything. When told to stretch out his arms it was impossible to force them down. When undergoing the examination he made a dash at Capt. Hair with the roar of a bull. Had he succeeded in grasping him there is no telling what he would have done, but upon the command of the doctor would again subside into a quiet mood.—Portland, Ore., News.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Heel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

SIR JOHN'S DEPARTURE.

A special despatch from London to the Mail says that Sir John Macdonald left on Saturday by the Cunard steamer Oregon for New York. He is in the best of health and spirits. He was bidden a cordial bon voyage by several of his English friends.

A WIFE'S SAD STORY.

Grave Desecration, Cruelty, Wife Desertion and Elopement.

A horrible story of grave desecration, cruelty, wife desertion and elopement has come to light in Toronto, and has been confirmed in every particular. Briefly the story is as follows, as related by the much wronged wife: Joseph Quinolle and she were married about twelve years ago. They kept the club in Hamilton some years, then came to Toronto and went into the U. E. Club, afterwards ran the Restaurant Francaise, and up to the commencement of this year ran the Headquarters Restaurant. During their married life three children were born to them. The first died and in the latter part of last year, the second named Madeline, took ill, and a girl out of the lying-in-hospital, Araminta Cooke, was engaged as nurse. They removed to the International Hotel, Gananoque, a change of air being ordered, but the child died before the removal and was buried in St. Michael's Cemetery in Toronto on the 1st of January last.

Shortly after removal to Gananoque, Quinoolle began to treat his wife great cruelty. In April he left Gananoque, went to Toronto, went to the cemetery, got the grave of the child Madeline opened, took the body out of the coffin and deliberately hacked off the right hand from the body with a tobacco knife borrowed from Lambryck, the hackman, who drove him there. Next day he returned to Gananoque, and without warning threw the mutilated hand on the table before his wife, telling her it was a memento of Madeline for her. This drove her nearly mad, and made her believe that Quinolle was becoming insane. His cruelty continued, and in July she discovered him in a compromising position with the girl Cooke, whom she discharged. On the 16th July Quinolle went to Clayton, where he met Cooke, and they eloped to Boston. Quinolle took all the money in the hotel and all the plate, jewellery and other costly articles with him, besides borrowing various sums of money. Mrs. Quinolle has not heard of her husband since and wants to learn his whereabouts if possible. Four days after he deserted her a bailiff took possession of the hotel. She fought the case in the Chancery Court, but lost, and everything, even the bed she was lying on, was sold, leaving her with a young child penniless. Quinolle is about 53 years of age, has dark hair, is slightly bald on the back of the head, has gray whiskers and moustache, his chin shaven and whiskers cut rather short. He is about five feet six or seven inches in height, and speaks with a slightly French accent. He is well educated and was a soldier in his younger days. Araminta Cooke is about 26, of medium height, has very red hair, and is badly freckled and homely in appearance, and is indifferently educated. The severed hand was placed again in the coffin along with the child's body.

HORRIBLE MASSACRE.

Two Hundred Prisoners Murdered in Burmah.

A correspondent of a London paper at Mandalay sends an account of a horrible massacre of prisoners which he witnessed on Sunday, Sept. 21st:—"The guards placed in charge of the principal prisons, which are constructed of bamboo, set fire to one of the sides of the edifice, and, having assured themselves that the flames were already beginning to invade the parts which served as a shelter to the wretched prisoners, opened the gates, in front of which there had been drawn up a good number of soldiers armed with guns and swords. Then they threw themselves like wild beasts upon those who, to escape being burned alive, rushed out of the gates. The massacre lasted all the night, in the presence of the highest functionaries of the town, who with cries and gesticulations excited the assassins against the passive victims. The number of killed exceeded 200, and among them were some relations of Prince Yung Tan, who is at present living at Calcutta. The day after the massacre, the bodies, mutilated in a manner too horrible to describe, were lying heaped about in carts and in the streets of the town. For some months past the prisons here and elsewhere have been crowded with brigands and political prisoners. A revolt was feared, and the government could find no better expedient to avoid it than to give proof of his determined ferocity by ordering the massacre of all prisoners without distinction of sex, age, or the cause of imprisonment."

NEWBOLD IN THE BOX.

HE GIVES EVIDENCE ON HIS OWN BEHALF IN COURT.

Particulars of the Proceedings—The Bigamist's "Confession"—He Romances Considerably—Attempts to Beat His Brains Out.

(Special Correspondence of the Review.)

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 28.—Having sent you by telegraph the verdict of the jury, I now proceed to give further particulars of the closing proceedings of this case.

The court room was filled this morning and there were many ladies present. The bailiffs were not able to keep out the large crowd that assembled, and the room was uncomfortably close.

Neveille grasped the hand of the REVIEW representative when he entered and said:—"I thank you personally for your report in the REVIEW. It is the only one that has given me my just dues. All I ask is a fair trial. I will not have anything said about my wife. I will go for seven years rather than have one word said against her. The story told by Brown was not correct; it was garbled."

TO THE PENITENTIARY

The first witness was Detective Brown. His testimony was as follows:—

I was present at the time of the making of the statement in question; we went from the Captain's office to the private office; I don't remember just what was first said, but it was in substance a request to make a statement as to his history; I think he then turned to Miss Whitney and asked her if it was her wish; she said it was; he then began to tell the

HISTORY OF HIS LIFE

from his boyhood, stating something about his army life in the old country, and the offices held; I don't remember the place; said he had difficulty with his mother and left England with some other man, whose name he gave; he came to this country and travelled all over; they were in Canada and out West, and this companion was paying expenses; his partner was heir to a big property and his sister was keeping him in money; spoke of being in Detroit, Newark and other places; he said he was married in Newark, N.J.; I don't remember the name of the lady; he said he was married under the name of George Perry, but was drunk at the time; he said he lived with this lady some time, and then left; he spoke of another marriage somewhere in New York State under the name of Newbold. He said his right name was Sir Roger Tichborne Neveille; it was a long name and I took it down.

Mr. Kinney—We object to that.

The Court—What part of the name do you object to?

WITNESS—He gave his mother's name and street upon which she lived in England; I think it was in London; said he was heir to a big property there; also said he had a big estate in County Armagh, Ireland, which he said was the Neveille estate that he was to receive from his mother; he wrote down the address of his mother; Mr. Moore read the whole paper and read off the address as written down; he said he was the owner of the large estate in England, and said that there was some fellow in England now serving a term in the penitentiary for him, and went on to tell how many detectives were on his track while in England, and how he had skipped some of them; said he belonged to the Hussars and was a commissioned officer; said he came to this country upon two occasions, going back the first time, and don't remember the dates.

The defence then called for their first witness Mr. G. W. Moore, of Detroit. He was asked if he had a certified copy of a decree in divorce granted Seliva Maud Perry from Geo. Perry at the Chancery Court in New Jersey. His answer was, "No; Miss Rolle showed me the decree in the hotel. She has it with her. I have no control over it." In cross-examination he said, "I have seen no decree of divorce, except the one granted Miss Rolle in June last."

The Whitney and Bryce party came into the court room and were assigned seats inside the rail.

The decree was then handed the lawyers of the defence.

Neiveille, cleanly shaven and looking well, was then placed on the stand in his own defense. He said, "I am the defendant in this case. I have seen this paper before (one handed him). I got it out of the mail in Detroit on December 1st or 2nd. The day I received it I received a remittance from my mother. My mother lives in Peterborough, Canada, at present. The paper came from a lawyer living in Newark N. J. The letter was burned, with intent to injure me, which accompanied it. I knew Charles' Fair. I received a letter from him. He is foreman in a hat factory. (The State objected to this.) I had some correspondence with him. The letters were also lost or destroyed in Detroit. These letters were received about Dec. 25th. I know the date by another remittance I received from my mother. The letter received on Feb. 12th was burned while I was living at Mr. Whitney's house."

At this point the state again objected, and the question was argued until the hour for adjournment.

The paper shown the prisoner was a notice that proceedings in divorce had been commenced against George Perry on Nov. 25th, 1883. Said Perry was to make answer or demur before Jan. 25th, or decree would be taken against him. The defense, by introducing this, endeavored to show that the prisoner's best information, on the 12th day of February, was that he was from Celina Rolle, and that he was not guilty of bigamy if he did not intend to commit the crime or did it ignorantly.

LEGALLY DIVORCED

The Judge did not concur in this opinion.

This closed the taking of evidence, though the State tried to introduce a certificate of conviction as follows: "George Robert Newbold was convicted, June 13, 1876, of bigamy with Mary Ann Nicholls, of Campbellford, Ontario, and sentenced to two years in the Kingston penitentiary."

The judge refused to admit this as evidence, and the taking of testimony closed. Arguments were commenced, and the case given the jury.

TOLEDO, Nov. 30.—Neiveille (alias Tichborne), the convicted bigamist, now in gaol awaiting sentence, attempted suicide by dashing his head against the iron grating. He is seriously injured and may not recover.

A FIGHT IN PROGRESS.

SUAKIM, Nov. 30.—A messenger from Dongola reports that a battle between the Mehdi's followers and the Hassaoily tribe is in progress. The result is doubtful.

GORDON AND THE MEHDI.

DONGOLA, Nov. 30.—Khartoum advices state that the Mehdi continues to summon Gen. Gordon to surrender, and the latter replies by firing into the enemy. On one occassion Gen. Gordon told the Mehdi to dry up the Nile and come across if he be a prophet, and that he (Gen Gordon) would surrender. The rebles are entrenched at Wady Gamar.

MESSAGE FROM GORDON.

CAIRO, Nov. 30.—A messenger from Khartoum brought despatches to Dongola from Gordon eight weeks old. The messenger was captured and detained.

A MISSION TO THE MEHDI.

CAIRO, Nov. 30.—The Jesuit priest Vincentive has left Dongola on a mission to the Mehdi, to obtain the release of several priests and Sisters of Charity, who have been detained at El Obeid.

CONFLICT WITH THE CHINESE.

HONG KONG, Nov. 30.—The French forces on the 14th inst. attempted to drive the Chinese sharp-shooters from the hill near Kelung, and were repulsed with the loss of twenty killed. On the 16th the French shelled the hill, and recovered the bodies of the killed. The bodies had not been decapitated. Steamers and junks are now running the blockade, the blockading fleet not being sufficient to prevent their passage. It is reported the plague has broken out among the men of the French fleet.

SHORT OF PROVISIONS.

DONGOLA, Nov. 30.—It is reported the Mehdi is short of provisions, and much sickness prevails among his forces, five hundred of whom have joined Gen. Gordon.

TO BE ABANDONED.

CAIRO, Nov. 30.—Private advices from English officers at Wady Halfa state that codsider able sickness is prevalent among the men forming the Nile expedition. A whale boat has been forced up the Nile at an incredibable cost of time and labor. It is reported Gen. Wolseley intends to abandon the river route, and try a land march from Debbah. The collection of munitions of war and provisions for the army at Dongola is so slow that an advance on Khartoum is considered improbable before February. It is reported at Wady Halfa that Gen. Gordon and his forces are in imminent danger from want of ammunition, and that he has been obliged to withdraw his advanced lines in order to act strictly on the defensive.

FRANKLIN.

From Our Own Correspondent.

OBITUARY.—The news of Mr. W. R. Maguire's death at Franklin on Saturday, Nov. 28th, after a long illness, will be received with sorrow by all who knew him and particularly among the officials and employees of the Midland Railway, on which road he held the position of Station Agent and operator for a number of years. Deceased was a young man of about 30 years of age, a true Christian, always working in the church and Sabbath School to promote the interests of the same. Genial, kind-hearted and sociable, he had many friends and no enemies. He died happy, trusting in Him for whom he laboured and served from youth. His remains were laid to rest in the Bethany Cemetery on Monday, December 1st.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing, Andrew McNeil.

PORT HOPE.

BARN BURNED.—Between eight and nine o'clock on Thursday night a barn on the premises of Mr. James Kerr, just east of the town park, was discovered to be on fire. The building with its contents were completely consumed. It was supposed to have been set on fire. The contents was insured for two hundred and fifty dollars in the Royal of England.

A BURGLARY.—At an early hour on Friday morning Mr. Galletly, of the Montreal Bank, sent his servant down town and notified the Chief of Police that his residence on Charles street had been burglarized, a quantity of silver plate gone and $25 in cash taken from a servant's bed-room. Mr. Douglas was promptly on hand and made a thorough survey of the whole premises and came to the conclusion that if a burglary had been committed, it had been done by an inmate of the dwelling. The servant's purse together with one of her skirts, was found under her bed-room window outside, where it had been dropped, but there has no money in it. A search was made for the cash but it did not turn up; the silver plate, however, was found hidden in the cellar. The servant who said she had been robbed was then arrested on suspicion and placed in the lock-up.—Guide.

Unlucky Aeronauts.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—The balloon Eclipse, the largest ever constructed in California, which is intended to make a trip across the Rockyln ountains, made a trial ascention to-day, and suddenly decended in Raccoon straits, ten miles from the city. The occupants were rescued by boats.

A Mayor's Death.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 29.—Mayor McCammon died at five o'clock this morning. For the past few days he has been in a comatose condition, but his sufferings were intense. His death was caused by watery degeneration of the liver.

The Weak and the Impure.

The merry little mountain brook, as it lightly dances over the rocks and sparkles in the sunshine on its way down the river, is pure and clean. It is active; therefore, it is healthy. It is vigorous; therefore it resists impurity.

But the sluggish pool, where the current is not strong enough to keep the water in motion, is stagnant and foul. Dirt and rubbish are thrown into it, and stay there. Impurities and vile odors make it a breeder of disease and an object to be avoided.

When the blood is strong and rich and red, and vigorously courses its accustomed rounds through arteries and veins, the system is hearty and healthy.

When the blood is thin and poor and weak, impurities and defilements creep into it, and it has no strength to cast them out. Then the system runs down.

Shaker Blood Syrup, purifies and enriches the Blood; curing Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Ulcers and Skin and Blood diseases of every discription.

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1884.

OUR SOVEREIGN.

We would place in juxtaposition two extracts from the Globe. The first, from an editorial on the late Hon. Geo. Brown, is as follows:—

"It is the fate of all who are foremost in the cause of sound principle and good government to be unjustly and persistently assailed."

The second is the following choice poetical effusion in another column of the Globe:—

"—The British Queen still honours him alone
Who serves her country, or betrays his own,
Why was Sir John in crimson breeks arrayed;
For England served; or Canada betrayed?"

As far as Sir John Macdonald is concerned the scurrility of the verses amply proves the truth of the editorial remark of the Globe, which unjustly and persistently assails Canada's leading statesman because he is "foremost in the cause of sound principle and good government," and, we may add, in the hearts of his fellow countrymen.

But what can we think of the foul attack upon our sovereign? The British Queen has for her country the British Empire, and does not dissever the interests of Canada from those of the three kingdoms. That the Queen should be supposed to reward a statesman for betraying a portion of her realm, is a vile imputation, disloyal as regards the sovereign and dastardly as regards the woman.

If their leading organ is to be taken as an authority on the platform of the Reform party, it is evident that disloyalty to our sovereign is one of its new planks. It will hardly be popular in Canada.

MINORITY REPRESENTATION.

Mr. J. F. Clark has been advocating before the Young Men's Liberal Club in Toronto a modification of the Hare system of minority representation. The voter marks the list of candidates with the figure 1 before the name of the candidate who is his first choice, 2 before the name of the candidate he would next prefer, and so on. When a candidate has obtained enough votes to elect him, the remaining ballots cast for him would be counted for the candidate marked 2.

It seems to us that there would be a difficulty as to these second preferences,—that a large element of chance would be introduced. Suppose, for instance, A has 2,000 votes, 1,000 being necessary to elect, how would the remaining 1,000 be allotted? B might have 700 of the second preferences, C 500, D 200, and the rest of the alphabet 600. It might so happen that in the first thousand ballots counted for A the whole of B's second preferences might be included, to the great advantage of C, or vice versa. How is it proposed to remove this element of chance?

A BLOT.

We had thought that as far as Sir John Macdonald was concerned the Queen and people had given a sufficient answer to the remark of the London Times about "the Pacific scandal remaining a foul blot on the political annals of Canada." The people of Great Britain are, unfortunately for some of them, too well acquainted with Lucius Seth Huntington, the figurehead of the Pacific slanderers, to attach much credit to any statement by him. We are quite willing to admit, if it will gratify the Lindsay Post, that it is a blot upon our political annals that the leaders of the Reform party should have employed and rewarded a gang of letter thieves, dishonest clerks, blackmailers, sharping speculators, &c., who ran away when asked to face a judicial Royal Commission, and to swear to their slanders.

The Grand Trunk and Canada Pacific railway Companies have at last come to an amicable arrangement in regard to the Union station, Toronto, the latter company in future getting the absolute use of the north side of the station.

FRANCE AND CANADA.

A Direct Steamship Line to be Established Between the two Countries.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Mail writes—At the last meeting of the Council an order was passed authorizing the Finance Minister to enter into a contract with the Halifax Steamship Company for a fortnightly trip during the summer months between Havre, France, and the St. Lawrence, either at Montreal or Quebec, and between Havre and Halifax, trips to be alternate, with permission to the steamers to call at Pictou and Charlottetown on trips to and from the St. Lawrence. During winter the trips are to be monthly between Havre and Halifax. The order-in-Council recites that the company's steamer must make twenty round trips a year for the first three years, and twenty-six round trips during each of the two succeeding years. The time will commence to run April next. The company are now having built two substantial steamers on the Clyde. Mr. Wood, secretary of the company, had an interview on Friday with Sir Leonard on the subject. The contract will it is understood be signed soon.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

A Hamilton Electrician's Success—Communicating With Vessels at Sea.

Attempts have been made in the past to telegraph without wires across bodies of water, as rivers, lakes, etc., with more or less success leading some to think of its possible achievement, and some have even predicted that this method would be ultimately employed to communicate across the Atlantic.

Recently Prof. Graham Bell, the telephone inventor, experimented on the Potomac River with two boats, to ascertain if this principle could be employed to communicate to or from vessels in a fog, where lights and flags could not be seen, and steamer whistles sometimes were not used promptly enough.

Prof. Bell, with a small battery and interrupter in one boat, transmitted signals through the water to the other boat, which were received by a telephone—the greatest distance he tried was a mile and a quarter. He felt convinced that with a more powerful current, say from a dynamo machine, the signals would be a greater success.

Mr. Black, Manager of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company in this city, following up this idea, arranged a dynamo and delicately balanced instruments (such as are used daily in large telegraph offices) so that the instruments would signal automatically in various parts of each vessel, and also liberate mechanicism to blow the steam whistles when vessels approach each other.

In Prof. Bell's experiment a man had to hold a telephone to his ear constantly. If the improved form now presented the instruments are automatic, requiring no attention till a signal is received; then by blowing whistles the position of each vessel is ascertained. In addition to this, telephones can be employed and conversations carried on between the vessels.

Three applications for this principle are provided for. 1. Signalling from vessel to vessel, or from shore to vessels when sufficiently near. 2. Signals by a fall in the temperature of the water, indicating the probable presence of an iceberg. 3. Signals of a rise in the temperature of the water, indicating a change of some kind, as running into shallow water.

The diagrams and descriptions were submitted to an experienced telegraph engineer, and pronounced quite feasible. The Electrical World, of New York, Nov. 15, publishes the same with favorable editorial comment.

The advantage of using some such device cannot be over estimated in the saving of life and property, and rendering navigation less hazardous in foggy weather and dark nights. The principle is applicable to river and lake navigation also.—Hamilton Spectator.

WATER ONCE A DAY.

How the Bedouins Traverse the Arid Wastes of Sahara.

In the "Waterless Land" water is the paramount question. If it be asked how a large body of Bedouins, like the 10,000 who nearly destroyed the British squares at Tamai, manage to subsist, the reason is plain. In the first place, they do not need the enormous trains required for a European army. They are the most abstemious of men. Each man carries a skin of water and a small bag of grain, procured by purchase or barter from caravans. Their camels and goats move with them, supplying them with milk and meat, and subsisting upon the scant herbage and the foliage of the thorny mimosa, growing in secluded wadies. These people could live upon the increase of their flocks alone, which they exchange readily for other commodities; but, being the exclusive carriers and guides for all the travel and commerce that cross their deserts, they realize yearly large amounts of money.

As to water, they know every nook and hollow in the mountains, away from the trails, where a few barrels of water collect in some shady ravine, and they can scatter, every man for himself, to fill their water skins. On my first expedition near the close of the three years' drought, I reached some wells on which I was depending, and found them entirely dry. It was several days to the next wells. But my Bedouin guides knew some natural reservoirs in the hills about six miles off. So they took the watercamels at nightfall and came back before daylight with the water skins filled. An invading army would find it too hard to obtain guides, and even if they did they must keep together, and could not leave the line of march to look for water. Besides, the Bedouins, accustomed from infancy to regard water as most precious and rare, use it with wonderful economy. Neither men nor animals drink more than once in 48 hours. As to washing, they never indulge in such wasteful nonsense. When Bedouins came to my camp water was always offered them. Their answer would frequently be:—"No, thanks; I drank yesterday." They know too well the importance of keeping up the habit of abstemiousness. No wonder they can subsist where invaders would quickly perish!—September Century.

The Prisoner's Mysterious Escape.

"Talking about prisoners jumping through car windows to get away from their keepers," remarked an old sheriff, as he kept his eye on two men who were handcuffed together and occupied the seat in front of him, "let me tell you a little story. About fifteen years ago I was taking a chap up to Joliet one night, and as I always thought myself good enough for any one man, and as he was a quiet one, anyhow, I took the clamps off him. I had had him in charge several months, and I thought him a big coward; so when he asked permission to go into the closet I let him go, feeling confident he would never jump with the train going forty miles an hour. He didn't come back directly, and then I got scared and looked for him. The window of the closet was wide open, and it was too plain he had made the jump. I stopped the train and we ran back, got out lanterns and looked for him. I expected to find him dead by the side of the track, but not a sign of him did we discover, except that I found his hat where he had jumped. The train went on and I stayed there, swore in a posse from among a lot of section hands, and offered a reward. But I never found him, not even a track nor a sign, save that hat. It was always one of the greatest mysteries to me how he got away. The fall must have hurt him, as there was a high bank there, and how a man could get away so quick after such a terrible jump was more than I could understand. Ten years afterwards I came across that man in the pen at Joliet, where he was a ten-year burglar. He told me how he got away, and laughed so over it that I'll bet the day he got a chance to tell me of his cleverness was the brightest one he had passed in many a year. He had simply climbed out of the window, reached up to the ventilators with his hands, and pulled himself up to the top of the coach. There he lay and heard us talk about catching him. When the train went on with him and without me, he was very happy. As soon as he got a chance at one of the stations he jumped upon a freight train, and from that out was nothing but a common tramp. Pretty sleek, wasn't it?"—Chicago Herald.

United States Revenue.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The annual report of the United States Treasurer shows the net revenue of the Government for the year to be $348,519,000, being a decrease of $49,767,000 compared with 1883. The decrease in receipts from customs was $19,639,000, from internal revenue $23,134,000, and from miscellaneous sources $8,849,000. Sales of public lands increased $1,854,000. The net expenditure aggregated $244,126,000, a decrease compared with 1883 of $21,281,000. The surplus applicable to the reduction of the public debt amounted to $104,393,000, a decrease of $28,485,000 from the previous year.

A Father Shoots the wrong Son.

New York, Nov. 28.—Joseph Edwards, a retired tradesman, shot and probably fatally wounded his son Henry last night whild defending himself from an attack made by his son Charles, a vagabond, who had endeavoured to force his father to give him money. Charles was advancing on his father with a drawn knife when Harry sprang between the two, and received the shot intended for Charles. The latter escaped.

Littell's Living Age.

The Living Age has been published for more than forty years, and has met with continuous commendation and success.

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE, it gives fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than double-column octavo pages of reading matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its amount of matter, and with combined freshness and completeness nowhere else attempted.

Three and a Quarter Thousand

The best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Perodical Literature, and from the pens of the

FOREMOST LIVING WRITERS.

The ablest and most cultivated intellects, in every department of Literature, Science, Politics and Art find expression in the Perodical Literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain.

The Living Age, forming four large volumes a year, furnishes, from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation, that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the COMPLETENESS with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value.

It is therefore indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events of the intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste.

Opinions.

"Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in The Living Age in their best moods. Art, science and literature find fresh and eloquent expression in its pages from the pens of the best writers of the day; and the reader is kept well abreast of the current thoughts of the age."—Boston Journal.

"It has now for many years held the first place of all our serial publications. The only possible objection that could be argued to it is the immense amount of reading it gives. There is nothing noteworthy in science, art, literature, biography, philosophy, or religion, that cannot be found in it. Its readers are supplied with the best literature of the age."—The Churchman, New York.

"It may be truthfully and cordially said that it never offers a dry or valuless page."—New York Tribune.

"Biography, fiction, science, criticism, history, poetry, travels, whatever men are interested in, all are found here. It furnishes more for the money it costs than any other perodical within our knowledge."—The Watchman, Boston.

"There is nothing like it."—Christian at Work, N.Y.

"It has for us an interest and value beyond those of and other publication. Coming once a week, it gives, while yet fresh, the productions of the foremost writers of the day."—Montreal Gazette.

"Through its pages alone, it is possible to be as well informed in current literature as by the pursual of a long list of monthlies."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"It enables the reader to keep pace with the best thought and literary werk of our time."—Christian Union, New York.

"Foremost of the eclectic perodicals."—N.Y. World.

"It furnishes a complete compilation of an indispensable literature."—Chicago Evening Journal.

"It saves not only time, but money."—Pacific Churchman, San Francisco.

"It has become indispensable."—New York Observer.

"It still keeps to the front, as the best of magazines. If limited to but one publication, we would infinitely prefer The Living Age to all others. It stands alone in its excellence."—Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C.

"It is one of the marvels of the age."—Spectator, Hamilton, Canada.

Their Annual Sermon is Preached in the Opera House by the Rev. A. H. Munro.

On Sunday evening Bradburn's Opera House was filled on the occasion of the preaching of the annual St. Andrew's Society sermon. The Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Aylmer street Baptist Church, conducted the service and preached the sermon. He took his text from Revelation XXII and part of the second verse:—

"And the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations"

"From time immemmorial," he said, "human life has presented two very different aspects; viewed in one light man appears to be worthy of admiration and justifying hope, as in various ways he has given proof of possessing stupendous power by what he has achieved in penetrating into the secrets of nature and in his creations in mechanics, literature and art. But there is another very different aspect in which man has presented himself to our view, and in which he does not excite our admiration by what is just and noble, but our shame and sorrow for which is mean and wicked. Never was this truth presented to us more strikingly than at the present day. There is no theme more common than the progress of the age in which we live. It is so true, so suggestive, so pleasant that we are all liable to fall into describing it and eulogising it. During the last hundred years more progress has been made in discoveries and inventions, in the cultivation of the earth, in developing its resources, and in the general improvement of the condition of human life, than in a thousand years preceding. Verily we are living in a different world from that of a hundred years ago. Our ancestors travelled in slow stages over the land, and in storm and wave tossed vessels they crossed the tempestuous seas; we, by means of steam, outstrip the winds on the one and plough our way through the waves in defiance of it on the other. They climbed the mountains; we go through them. They sent their messages to foreign parts by slow methods, waitings months for an answer; we send our thoughts around the earth in a twinkling of an eye. The labouring man of to-day can enjoy more intellectual advantages than money could formerly purchase for the wealthiest. All this is true, but it is not the whole truth. There is another picture, very unlike the one just drawn. The most civilized nations of the worl l of to-day have so little confidence in each other's honor and justice that they maintain the most costly and numerous standing armies that ever existed upon earth, and one of them at the present hour is waging in the meanest way one of the most mercenary and unjustifiable wars that history has to record. In the United States, where freedom is the birthright of all, no fewer than 1,500 murders were committed during last year. In every large city there is a numerous class whose only employment is crime and whose only enjoyment is vice. In every small town burglars and incendiaries lurk in dark places. He called to mind a story of a certain well, named the Devil's well, in an ancient eastern city. It was said that dire and terrible things inhabited the well, and that if anyone looked in or if the sun's rays ever pierced the darkness of it, untold disasters would follow. One day it was uncovered and shafts of light descended. The waters rose and covered gardens and fields, and inundated the whole country. It was a mighty river, and it finally flowed into the sea, carrying with it the last vestige of the city, so that there was not one building left. He asked if there were not a Devil's Well in every city in the civilized world; a something full of horrors into which we dare not look, but which may not always be concealed. Slums and dens in the large cities were filled with robbers, murderers, and the worst of human characters, and the only wonder it is that they remain there and do not come forth in armies to plunder and pillage society. To what does society owe its protection? No doubt in a large measure to the police. If it were not for these one half of society would have to be armed to its teeth against the other. But society has not been indifferent to its evils. During the last 4,000 years States and Governments have been continually experimenting, from the tyrannical one of the Cæsars to that of the modern Republic. Yet all have failed. The wicked still continue to do wickedly, and the heart of man is untouched, unchanged by all human law and government. But men still believe that political change and improvement will cure social evils. France has tried that plan by frequent revolutions, and she is just as unsatisfied as ever, and is now agitating another change. The educationalist believes that social evil will find its cure in popular instruction; the socialist believes that the cure will be found in a communism; the agnostic believes it will be found in the worship of humanity (whatever that may be); and the nihilist believes that the remedy will be found in universal anarchy. "The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nation." God has a remedy if man has none. What are the wounds of humanity that need healing? Those of the heart, the conscience and the life of manhood and womanhood. The Gospel of Christ teaches that goodness and rightousness are better than Godlessness. Thrown into human life it is like the tree which Moses cast into the waters of Marah and the bitter became sweet. It convinces man that the true is better than the false, that reality is better than illusion, that kindness and goodness are better than wickedness, and, to sum it all up, that God is better than the Devil. In the first place, it tells man, not that he was evolved from the brute, but that he is the son of God and of so much importance as to be kept under omniscient observation and record. It teaches him that his present attainments as compared with his future will be as childish things, and gives to his life the solemnity of a prepagation for a spiritual harvest beyond the grave, where men will reap as they have sown. It brings man into alliance with Christ, as his Saviour, teacher and example; it condemns all that is evil, sanctions all that is good, and inspires all that is noble. There is such a thing as Christian patriotism; none have more reason to cherish it than Scotchmen. Not only because of the unrivalled beauty of their native land, with its noble mountain scenery, its "banks and braes o' bonnie doon;" its glorious history, in which is enrolled the long list of Scotland's noble sons distinguished in science, literature and art, or because it was the land in which was first set forth the idea of popular education; but because more than any other nation, it shows what Christianity can do to benefit, exalt, and advance a country. It is well that such organizations should exist to perpetuate those memories, to welcome the stranger and to help the needy. St. Andrew's Society should be the beneficient exponent of such patriotism.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

OMEMEE.

BIG LOAD.—On Saturday Mr. Thos. Graham, drew with his fine team, for Mr. W. B. Lang to Laidley & Waugh's storehouse, Sturgeon street, one hundred and twenty-six bushels and eleven pounds of barley. This is big drawing and we'd like to hear some of our exchanges come forward.

ROBBERY.—On Monday the house of Mr. Thos. Nugent, Lot 27, Con. 11, Ops, was entered by some person, unknown, who broke open a chest and stole therefrom a note for $150. Mr. Nugent had just sold a lot of grain and the supposition is that the burglar expected getting a good haul of cash, but fortunately the money was in its owner's pocket.

FOR 99 YEARS.—At the last meeting of the Emily council, a by-law was passed leasing the old township hall to the Salvation Army for the above term. The hall will be fitted up in good shape for a barracks where meetings will be held.

OBITUARY.—On Tuesday morning Mr. George Kerr, Sr., one of the oldest residents of Emily passed away. Deceased was from the County Fermanagh, Ireland, and settled on the farm, where he died, in the year '40, and was loved and respected by all his neighbors.—Herald.

Spain and England.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Sir R. D. B. Morier, the English Minister at Madrid, advises the British Foreign Officer that negotiations have been resumed for a commercial treaty with England, and states that Spain offers the "most favoured nation., treatment for an exchange or extension of the alcoholic scale wines. An agreement between the two countries is considered probable,

CLIPPING HORSES.

There is a variety of opinions among horsemen concerning the results of clipping. Many claim that it is contrary to nature's law to deprive any animal of its coat during cold weather but, it is also contrary to nature to shelter them in stables and provide them with an abundance of food containing the elements of which produce animal heat. Probably the condition of a majority of farm horses would not be improved by clipping, while, on the other hand, gentlemen's roadsters and physicians' when clipped, are much more confortable and less liable to take cold, when properly blanketed and bandaged, then those which wear a thick coat of hair. When an unclipped horse which stands is the stable from four to six days of the week, and gets his regular ration of grain, is taken out for exercise, he feels full of life, and, if not restrained, will rush along at top of speed until his thick coat is saturated with perspiration; and oftentimes if an attempt is made to check him, he frets to such an extent that he is as thoroughly heated as when allowed to spin along at will. When a horse is in this condition it takes a long time to dry him properly, and unless he is thoroughly dried, serious results are liable to follow. It sometimes requires hours to complete this drying process, especially where the condition is low and the circulation feeble. In such cases the long continued evaporation maintains a cold surface, and not only conduces to obstinate skin disorders, but also to internal congestions and inflammations of the important organs. As a rule, clipped horses receive much better care than others. No humane driver would think of letting a clipped horse stand exposed ten minutes without covering him with a blanket, yet the unclipped horse, with every hair of his heavy coat wet with perspiration, might be kept standing much longer without exciting any apprehensions as to his comfort. Now, while the latter might not feel the effects of the cold quite as quickly as the other, he might in the end be much the greater sufferer. As a rule when horses are clipped, the appetite improves at once, and many which, before clipping, are subject to cough, are almost immediately cured by clipping, if properly blanketed and bandaged. It is always important, when the hair is removed from the legs, to apply flannel bandages, extending as high as the knees for some days or weeks, when not travelling upon the road, and when they are finally removed the legs should be thoroughly hand rubbed several times daily to promote circulation. An experienced veterinary surgeon of this city claims that a horse's legs should never be clipped, because "being remote from the heart the circulation of the blood is not so active as in other parts, and being unprotected by clothing while standing in the street or stable, they become ice cold when not in exercise, as any one can tell by laying his hand upon them. The hair being left on the legs protects them from the action of snow and ice water, thereby avoiding "scratches" and other similar diseases. Horse-railroad, hack and team horses, when it is found necessary to clip them, should have the hair left on the legs and belly. Coach and driving horses, which generally are not so much exposed, are kept in warmer stables, and are more warmly clothed, for the purpose of not looking odd, may be clipped as low down at the knees of the forward limbs and to the hocks of the hind ones; then simply trim the long hairs (not too closely) off the back of the fetlocks, and no one will observe any difference between that and their having been clipped closely. No matter what stablemen, grooms and coachmen may say, insist upon this humane and intelligent practice. It has many advantages. No argument can justify the cruel and unnecessary practice of clipping the legs."—American Cultivator.

Cheap Cellar for Storing Roots.

Those who raise large quantities of roots for feeding out during the winter are often troubled a good deal in finding storing room where they may be safely kept. The cellar under the house is usually too small, and not at all convenient to the barn. Every stock-raiser should have his root cellar either under or near the barn.

Owing to the low situation of the barn and other reasons, it is not always possible or convenient to have the cellar under the barn. In such cases a cellar or frost proof storing room, built mainly above ground, after the following description will be found both cheap and satisfactory.

If the ground is high enough dig down three feet the size desired; 12x20 feet makes a good, large cellar, and 10x16 feet will do for 500 or 800 bushels. Get on hand a lot of small logs or poles from six to ten inches in diameter with which to build the portion above ground. Cut the poles for each side three feet longer than the width or length of the excavation. Place the first two poles on flat stones or blocks back a foot from the edge of the hole dug and upon opposite sides. Flat the ends with an axe and lay two cross poles as you would in starting a log house. In these end pieces one foot from the end cut notches for the next side poles to lie in. With each round set the side poles in a foot, which will give a regular slant to the roof, and make a very strong frame for the weight to come upon it. The end that is to contain the door should be carried up straight, while the other may be slanted up the same as the sides.

Cover this frame with cull or common lumber, laying the boards on up and down. Next put on a heavy layer of marsh hay or straw to keep the dirt from coming in contact with and rotting the lumber. Over this put a foot of earth, and if they can be had without too much trouble a covering of sods. A shute should be provided for filling the house and a small ventilating flue for winter. The end where the door is located should be double boarded and filled in between with sawdust and cut straw. There should also be a double door, although I have used such a cellar with only a single door, without having the roots frozen.

A storing-house of this kind, if well made, will last eight or ten years, and give as good satisfaction as one costing $200.—Indiana Farmer.

A Stern Disciplinarian.

A regiment quartered at a certain town in Scotland had among them an expert gymnast, who taught his brother subalterns how to walk across the barrack-room on their hands. While thus engaged the other evening the door opened and the Colonel, a stern old disciplinarian, entered the room and looked attentively at the inverted company, shook his head gravely, and departed without uttering a word. An order to be on parade next morning was the least punishment expected for this breach of discipline. Some days passed, however, and no notice being taken it was thought an apology and an explanation should be offered by the prime instigator of these unsoldier like movements. A reference being made to the memorable night, the Colonel amazed the intending apologist by exclaiming: "Hush, lieutenant; I would not have anybody know it for the world. The fact is, I had been dining out with an old brother officer who had served with me in India, and upon my life I had no idea that wine could have such an effect upon me; but when I came to see if you were all right in your quarters, I could have sworn that I saw you all upside down." The old Colonel was as ready as a diplomatist, and kindness was the consideration which caused him to attribute to himself the "upside down."

Cannibalism at Sea.

DELEWARE BREAKWATER, Nov. 29.—Pilot Marshal Bertrand and Alfred Swansen, Norwegian sailors, who were lost last Monday from the pilot boat Turley, were picked up eighty-five miles southwest of the light ship by the schooner Emma F. Angel and brought here today. The other sailor died on Tuesday night, and the surivors saved their lives by eating portions of his body. The men were nearly frozen. It is reported that a barque passed the lost men on Tuesday morning, and notwithstanding their hallings and demonstrations paid no attention to them.

What he was Ashamed Of.

"You needn't tell me, sir," said an angry father to his son, "that you drank nothing but a glass or two of beer. You have been drinking whisky; I can smell it." "Father," acknowledged the young man, "it was whisky that I drank, not beer." "Well, you shouldn't have tried to deceive me, you young rascal. You ought to be ashamed of yourself." "I am ashamed of myself. It was very foolish in me to think that a man of your—your experience wouldn't know whisky from beer,"—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Sermon at St. Peter's Cathedral.

On Sunday evening the Rev. J. R. Teevy, M. A., of Toronto, delivered in St. Peter's Cathedral a sermon on "The Sacrifice of Mass." The reverend gentleman dealt with his subject in an able manner and the discourse throughout was instructive and interesting. The cathedral was filled to its utmost capacity on the occasion.

Storm Beaten.

One of Shook & Collier's celebrated campanies arrived in town to-day on the noon Grand Trunk train. The company is a strong one and among its members is Mr. Alex. Salvini, jr. The new play, "Storm Beaten," will be presented to-night for the first time in Peterborough. The play is a thrilling one and it will be presented with unusually fine scenic effects.

To-Morrow Evening.

An entertainment in connection with the Temperance Society and the Girls' Friendly Society will be held in the School Room of St. John's Church to-morrow evening. Among those who will furnish music (instrumental and vocal) are, Miss Spilsbury, Miss Tate, Miss A. Errett, Miss Bannerman, Miss M. Beck, Miss Stevens, and Messrs. A. D. Browne and J. G. French. There will also be tableaux, recitations and readings.

Go and hear Dr. Vincent in the George Street Methodist Church To-Night.

Missionary Work.

On Sunday evening the Rev. N. F. Alexander, a missionary for thirty years in Southern India, preached in St. John's Church, Peterborough. He gave an interesting account of the mission work of the Church of England in Africa, China, Japan, Madagascar, and more especially in India, the latter in greater detail. The reverend gentleman will address a missionery meeting to be held in the school house of St. John's Church this evening at eight o'clock.

The Outfit Completed.

For some time past Mr. A. Clegg has been carefully watching the numerous sales for a span of horses that would be suitable to attach to his hearse. At the stock sale of Mr. Edward Reid, of Otonabee, just such a team was offered for sale. They are young, well made horses of a jet black and not a white hair can be found on either. They each stand sixteen hands high and supply all that was lacking so complete Mr. Clegg's superb funeral outfit.

Cheap Return Tickets to the Concert.

All who had the pleasure of attending the concert in the Opera House last week for the benefit of St. Peter's Cathedral Building Fund will be glad to learn that a concert, under the same auspices, will be given in Lindsay on Wednesday evening, Dec. 3rd, by the same performers with the addition of some new talent. Through the kindness of Mr. A. White, of the G. T. R., return tickets will be issued to all who wish to attend for the low price of 50c., good to go on Wednesday and return on Thursday.

Standard Life Assurance Co.

We would call attention to the advertisement in our columns of that old established Scottish company, the Standard Life Assurance Co. From it will be seen that they have enormous invested funds, amounting to over thirty million dollars, that their income exceeds $10 000 a day, and that they have distributed bonuses to their policy holders to the extent of over seventeen million dollars. Persons insuring before Dec. 8 will be entitled to two years' bonus in the division of profits to be made in 1885. This company issues policies free from all restrictions as to travel, place of residence, change of occupation, &c. Its policies are revivable on easy terms; those of five years standing at any time within thirteen months. The inspector is Mr. J. O'Donnell, and the Peterborough agent, Mr. Chas. Cameron.

Go and hear Dr. Vincent in the George Street Methodist Church To-Night.

THE NEW ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

The plans and Specifications Considered and Passed by the Building Committee.

The plans and specifications of the new St. Andrew's Church, as submitted by Messrs. Gordon & Halliwell, achitects, of Toronto, have been received, and after mature consideration by the Building Committee, they have been, in the main, adopted.

We give in the following a brief description of the proposed edifice according to the plans.

The new church will be situated on the site of the old one, and will face Brock street. The extreme length will be 102 feet, and the extreme breadth 68 feet. The building proper will be 56x80, and the style of architecture Gothic.

The stone in the present church, so much as is solid and sound, will be utilized in building the foundations. The external face of the walls which will show three and a half feet above the ground, will be built of roughly squared, hammer dressed limestone, of a uniform color. The wall from the external foundation to the eaves of the roof (except the transceps, which are situated at a distance of 56 feet in the rear of the front elevation) will be twenty-four feet high and of selected white brick of pure sulhpur colour. The roof will be covered with shingles laid in mortar or with slate, and an ornamental cresting will run along on the top of the main building.

The front elevation will be 60 feet in height from the external foundation to the pinnacle of the gable. At the south-east corner will be be situated a tall tower 16 feet square and 82 feet high. In the front of this tower is the main entrance, to which leads up five low steps the bottom of which is eighteen feet long and the rest gradually diminishing in length until the top is ten feet long. The frame of the entrance doors will be coved and rebated. The frame over the doors will be finished in one large circular window of four foil, hnd on each side two small plain circulars. At the northeast end there will be another entrance in the same design but slightly smaller. Between the two entrances will be situated a group of windows consisting of two 20 feet in height, the cusping of which are finished in tre-foil, and a circular window directly above and between the two, finished in four foliations of tre-foil.

The right and left flank elevations will be penetrated by five windows on each side, 11 feet in height and 2½ feet wide. In the transceps two windows, one on each side, placed between two of the smaller ones, form a group of three. The larger windows will be 24 feet wide and the upper termination will be finished in a circular frame ornamented with six arcs. There will be entrances at each corner of the rear elevation, the one on the north-west side leading to the choir gallery, and that on the south-west side leading to the vestry. The walls will be ornamented with coping and string courses of Ohio free stone or Credit Valley white free stone. The sills and lintels will be of dressed limestone. The number of windows will be thirty, including those of the tower. They will be composed of three large groups, several small groups and single windows.

The cellar will probably be six feet, in which will be placed two furnaces, one at the east end and one at the west end. It is not finally decided whether the church will be heated by hot air or steam, but it will in all probability be heated by the former.

The seats in the nave will be constructed with a slight bend and in the transceps they will be arranged in amphitheatrical form. There will be four aisles, and other passages, will lead around the communion platform and to the pulpit on each side. The communion platform will be 14 inches from the floor, the pulpit platform 21 inches higher than the communion platform, and the choir gallery 14 inches higher than the pulpit platform, or at an elevation of 49 inches from the floor. The seats will be made of selected pine, and the backs will be veneered on both sides with black ash. The top rail of the backs will be of clear birch, as will also be the seat ends. The ends will have coved edges, and a trefoil foliation, with face veneered of birds-eye maple, will be sunk in each. Scrolled iron work with walnut arm pieces will divide the long pews. The book racks will be made of birch with trefoil perforations. The pulpit desk will be made of clear birch trimmed with walnut.

The ceiling will be a curved one, plastered, and ornamented with heavy mouldings and other suitable decorations. It will be supported by six iron pillars. The new church will comfortably seat six hundred and fifty people.

The old church will be given over to the contractor on the 15th day of March, 1885, and the new church must be completed by Dec. 15th, 1885.

A fine assortment of MEN'S UNDERCLOTHING, Socks, Scarfs and Ties, Kid Gloves and Mitts, Silk and Linen Handkerchiefs. J. ERSKINE.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light south-westerly and southerly winds, fair weather.

Our Collegiate Institute.

The Berlin Telegraph has the following complimentary item regarding Dr. Tassie and our school:—

"We are pleased to notice that the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, under the Principalship of Dr. Tassie, formerly of Galt, is making rapid progress. This was only to be expected, as Dr. Tassie is one of the most successful instructors and managers of youth in the Dominion. The Peterborough Collegiate Institute has assumed a wider sphere, and in addition to the range of studies designed to qualify young pupils for the different professions, classes have been established for the study of agricultural chemistry, that will prove of the utmost importance to farmers' sons. We congratulate Dr. Tassie on the success which has attended the Peterborough Collegiate Institute since it came under his able management."

Dr. Vincent's Lecture.

Dr. J. H. Vincent, of New York, will deliver a lecture this evening in the George Street Methodist Church, under the auspices of the Sunday School connected with that church. Dr. Vincent is a lecturer of high standing, and doubtless those who heard him when he lectured in Peterborough last year have still pleasant memories of the occasion. The officials of the Sunday School deserve the thanks of the community for bringing such an able lecturer to Peterborough, and no doubt their efforts will be substantially appreciated. His subject for this evening will be "On The Heights."

Uncle John.

Mr. Charles Harris, better known as "Uncle John," offers to each and every one who buys goods to the value of $2.50 a chance for securing for himself a handsome heavy cased silver watch of the celebrated Waltham make and a gold plated chain. A jar filled with ordinary buttons tied and sealed, is placed before the customer, and he is allowed to make a guess as to how many is contained therein, and whoever guesses the right number or the nearest to that number will receive the watch and chain, which is valued at $40. The jar of buttons and the watch may now be seen at his store on Water street.

POLICE COURT.

WOODEN BUILDINGS.

MONDAY, Dec. 1.—Three of the cases adjourned from last week, for the infringement of the Building By-laws came up this morning. That of Mr. Wm. Yelland was dismissed without costs on account of his having committed no breach of the by-law. He had simply taken away an old roof and laid a new one.

Dr. KINCAID stated that the shed he was charged with building was in reality no building at all. It was simply a few loose boards laid on posts for the covering of his buggy. It was his intention to build a substantial building in the spring. The case was enlarged until June 1st, 1885.

JOHN HALPIN, who was charged with building a new frame house within the fire limits, stated that he inteded to brick the building as soon as the weather would permit.

The MAGISTRATE said that there was no such provision in the by-law.

Mr. HALPIN said that he had received no warning, and that several of the Councillors had seen the building when it was being constructed.

The MAGISTRATE stated that his infringement on the By-law was quite clear, and that he must form his judgement in accordance with the law. Had he been warned the fine would have been $50, but as he had not the penalty would be $10 and costs.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MONTHLY.—The December Harper is a thoroughly holiday number, not in form, indeed, but the whole of it is redolent of Christmas. The frontispiece is an admirable engraving from Hoffman's painting of "The Boy Jesus in the Temple," being an illustration to C. W. Jenkis's paper on "Recent German Art." The opening article on "Christmas Past," by C. D. Warner, is raplete with old lore of the great Christmas festival, illustrated by a profusion of wood cuts. E. P. Roe's charming tale, "Nature's Serial Story," is brought to a most satisfactory termination, amid the mingled sounds of Christmas chimes and wedding bells. William Black's "Adventures of a Phaeton" are pleasantly recalled to mind by "A Few Day's More Driving," descriptive of a short tour behind four horses in the south-west of England. P. Robinson discourses learnedly but pleasantly on "The Mythical Boat," in poetry and legend. "Witchcraft in 1692 and 1884" are quaintly contrasted, both in the verses of E. C. Stedman and the drawings by Howard Pyle. Abbey's illustrations of Goldsmith's play, "She Stoops to Conquer," are a new and very attractive feature of Harper. W. D. Howells contributes a very amusing farce, "The Elevator," an episode of modern life in great cities. There are several pleasing short tales and some exceptionally good poetry, much of it in special keeping with the Christmas season. The contributions to the Editor's Drawer do not neglect the same theme. The Editor's Easy Chair deals with John Bull and Brother Jonathan at the Christmas fire side. After some appropriately fraternal remarks, it traces the descent of Harper's Monthly from the Gentlemen's Magazine and the friendly invasion of England in return by Harper. After illustrating the good effect of literature in promoting a brotherly feeling between the two great kindred nations, it concludes with Christmas salutations. For the new year promises are made of even further improvements in Harper, one of the attractive features consisting in a new novel by Constance Fenimore Woolson.

Town Council.

A meeting of the Town Council will be held this evening at 7.30 o'clock.

George Street Methodist Church.

On Sunday, both morning and evening, the Rev. Dr. Vincent, of New York, preached sermons in the George Street Methodist Church. On both occasions the church was well filled. In the morning he took his text from John xxi., 21-22:—

"Peter, seeing him, saith to Jesus, Lord, what shall this man do? Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? follow thou me."

In the evening his text was II. Peter I. 5-7:

And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, add to virtue knowledge, to your knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity.

In the afternoon he addressed the Sunday School scholars.

Testing the Waterworks.

Quite a commotion was caused this afternoon at shortly after three o'clock by the ringing of the fire alarm. The firemen were promptly on hand and the hose reel was wheeled out of the station. The hose was quickly attached to two George street hydrants. The reason why the firemen were brought out to test waterworks without notice is, we are informed, as follows:—A report had gone abroad to the effect that the waterworks in Peterborough were not in an effective condition. The various Insurance Companies, on the strength of this report, were contemplating raising their rate of insurance. Mr. R. McLain, of Toronto, secretary of the Underwriters Association, was sent to ascertain if there was any truth in the report, and took these means of ascertaining the availability of both the fire department and the water works; the promptness of the former, and the capacity of the latter. Mr. McLain expresses himself as bein highly satisfied with both.

Smith's Market.

For everything.

Dictionary and Moral Code for Daily Use.

Lie—A falsehood. A very wicked think for other folks to tell. When I do it myself it is just a little fib. Can't help it, sometimes, you knew.

Thief—One who steals things. People who steal are sent to prison. But if rich people take things belonging to other folk, we call them "kleptomaniacs," and feel very sorry for them, poor dears!

Improper Conduct—Sarah Jane, at the area gate, flirting with her young man; but if young Mr. Moneybags does stay a long while and gets his arm around Evelina Amelia's waist, and even kisses her, what's the use of seeing it through the parlor door? It's a good match, if he only proposes, as he may if let alone.

Charity—Giving away what we can't possibly make any use of to the deserving poor, who can't make any use of it either.

Frankness—Hateful things we say to others.

Insolence—The same things said to us.

Baby next door—A dreadful little creature that shrieks all night. Can't sleep for him. Wish they would drown babies as they do kittens.

Baby at Number One—Such an angel; only "cry cries a little in a middle of a dark, dark night, when couldn't see mamma."

Wisdom—A man buying his clothes and furnishings at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall.

Gold Medal Ale.

If you want a glass of Labatt's prize medal fine ale (special brewing) call at W. H. Chamberlain's Parlour Restaurant. This ale has received four gold medals at the World's Exposition, Paris, Australia, Philadelphia and Canada. It is kept in one of the best cellars in Canada, and is pleasant to the taste, and at the same time a wholesome beverage.

Sweet Apple Cider.

We take pleasure in announcing to our numerous patrons and the public generally that we still hold the exclusive agency for the Belleville Cider Works. This Cider needs no comment from us, as the quantity we sold last year is sufficient proof of pureness and delicacy of flavour. CARTON, BROS., opposite Market Square.

Lessons in Hand Painting.

Persons desirous of taking lessons in hand painting on satin, placques, etc., and of learning a new method of coloring photographs, by which the burnish of the photograph is not injured, please enquire at Messrs. Craig & Mooney's, corner of Brock and George streets, or Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Heel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

Mr. Thomas may be seen at the Grand Central Hotel.

An Old Soldier's EXPERIENCE.

"Calvert, Texas,
May 3, 1882.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

COUNTY COURT.

The December Sittings Opened. His Honor Judge Dennistoun Presiding.

The December sittings of the county court were opened at the Court House at 12 o'clock to-day, His Honor the County Judge presiding. The following are the names of those who compose the Grand Jury:—

Joseph W. Flavelle, Foreman.

John Anderson,	Angus McMartin,
Charles Alexander,	Thos. Moloney,
John Buck,	Wm. Preston,
Wm. Cumming,	Hiram Reynolds,
Wm. Hales,	Charles Robinson,
Christopher Darling,	Alex. Roseborough,
Wm. Howson,	Daniel Sullivan,

John Wright.

The Judge briefly addressed the Grand Jury on some minor matters, and in regard to the case of John Ferguson, charged with larceny.

The Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Ferguson.

POLICE COURT.

BREACH OF THE BUILDING BY-LAW.

TUESDAY, Dec. 2.—J. C. Craig was charged by P. C. Adams with having committed a breach of the building by-law by roofing a building without mortar. The defendant pleaded guilty. The case was enlarged until Monday, so as to allow compliance with the by-law.

P. C. Pidgeon laid a similar charge against Wm. Aldridge, a trustee of the Baptist Church, for building a shed of combustible materials and roofing it without mortar.

Mr. ALDRIDGE said that he knew nothing about the building, as he had not seen it.

The case was enlarged until Monday.

THE FIREMEN.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I wrote you a couple of weeks ago, making a suggestion as to furnishing the firemen some needed refreshments after their hard work in fighting fires. The short time that has since elapsed has seen them called out five times, showing how strong the necessity is for carrying out my suggestion. I see that the firemen are now thinking of taking the matter up themselves. But this will not do. It is something that should come from the public, and from the many assurances that I have had, I know the public will not hesitate to do it. At the request, therefore, of a number of ladies, I beg to say that a meeting of all ladies interested in the matter will be held on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Mechanics' Institute to appoint a committee to carry out the proposed plan.

Yours truly,
E. B. EDWARDS.

A TALE OF MISFORTUNE.

Ruin Caused by the Late Violent Storm in the St. Lawrence.

QUEBEC, Nov. 30.—A family named Breton have just removed to Quebec in a very distressed condition, and under very painful circumstances. In the St. Lawrence, midway between L'Islet and Bay St. Paul, or at about seven miles from either shore, there is a small island known as L'Isle au Loup Marie, and owned by Toussaint Ritchie & Co., its entire superficies being not more than a few acres. For three years this little spot of dry earth amid the waste of waters had been the home of the Breton family, who had not only cultivated it successfully, but had erected buildings on it and stocked it with a few domestic animals. In fact all went well with them until the night of the 5th of November, when the island was submerged by the stormy waves, and they not only spent a night of horror with two workmen in their employ, one of whom was nearly drowned and the other nearly died of fright, but they had the misfortune to see nearly all their possessions, buildings, crop and cattle, either destroyed or swept away. To cap the climax of their distress, the father of the family hurt himself while trying to save some of his stock. Finally, by means of signals of distress, they managed to attract the attention of some people on the shore of L'Islet, who gallantly put out and rescued them from their perilous situation.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

WOULD RATHER DIE.

Particulars of Newbold-Stewart-Proctor-Perry-Neveille-Tichborne's Attempt at Suicide—A Failure.

TOLEDO, Dec. 1.—Neiville, the bigamist, being in a despondent state of mind, yesterday morning asked for a Bible. He then retired to his cell, and spent an hour in prayer. When the sheriff entered at half-past 10 o'clock, Neiville greeted him kindly, but when his back was turned he ran with great speed the entire length of the corridor, and dashed his head against an iron door. He dropped the floor as if dead, and was carried to his cell. He remained unconscious for over an hour, when he recovered and stated that he had taken some grains of foxglove, and was suffering intense pain. Neiville then went into convulsions. When he regained consciousness at times he would weep bitterly, saying he would rather die than go to penitentiary. The doctor states that Neiville is a confirmed epileptic and is not responsible for what he does or says. His condition is critical.

DARING ESCAPE.

A Convict Eludes his Guards and Escapes from Kingston Penitentiary.

KINGSTON, Dec. 1.—William Johnston alias Jacobs, a seven years' convict in the penitentiary, placed a dummy in the bed in his cell yesterday afternoon, and by a series of fortunate circumstances escaped. He hid between two dead walls, climbed fifty feet to the roof, and with a bar broke through a wall of stone and cement and crawled up the rafters. Here he secured old overalls, and finding a lengthy piece of cord, knotted it, tied one end to the ladder and threw the other through a ventilator and crawled out and finally descenced to the earth. He successfully avoided the guards in the yard, and by a ladder and a belt, secured his liberty over the walls. It is thought he left for the United States by the boat. Jacobs was an accomplished burglar, captured in Belleville a year ago. When arrested at that time it was at the top of a church spire, to which he had climbed.

Life in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec, 1.—This afternoon Recorder Thomas J. Ford shot and killed A. J. Murphy, captain in charge of the workhouse. Murphy was superintending a gang of men working on the street. He was sitting on a door-step when two officers of Judge Ford's court approached on one side. While he was looking at them two men in citizen's dress and one police officer came round the corner in the other direction and shot at him, each of the men having revolvers. Murphy jumped into the street and returned the fire. After emptying his revolver he ran around the corner, where he was shot down and killed. He received five balls, either of which would have been fatal. The following persons have been arrested, charged on information received with having been implicated in the murder:—Recorder Ford, his brother Patrick, court officer, and three policemen. Bad blood had existed between the parties for some time.

Willing to Shovel.

To be willing to begin at the bottom is the open secret of being able to come out at the top. A few years ago a young man came to this country to take a position in a new enterprise in the Southwest. He was well bred, well educated, and he had the tastes of his birth and education He reached the scene of his proposed labours, and found, to his dismay, that the enterprise was already bankrupt, and that he was penniless, homeless, and friendless in a strange land. He worked his way back to New York, and in midwinter found himself without money or friends in the great busy metropolis. He did not stop to measure the obstacles in his path; he simply set out to find work. He would have preferred the pen, but he was willing to take the shovel; and the shovel it was to be.

"Keep warm! Keep warm! Keep warm!" Twenty per cent. reduction on all Winter Underclothing at A. McNeil's.

Two Indians Drowned.

The Victoria, B. C., Colonist of November 20th states that on Tuesday night three Indians, all intoxicated, started from the foot of Johnson street in a canoe to go over to the reservation, and by some means or other upset. Only one reached the shore, and he informed the police of the fact of the accident yesterday. He could not tell how the affair happened, nor where his companions were, as he was drunk at the time. One of the missing Indians is well known here, his name being Lewis Frazer. The probability is that both were lost and their bodies carried away by the tide.

United States Congress.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The Times' Washington special says the opinion is universal that the last session of the 48th Congress will result in very little else than the passage of routine appropriation bills. A good deal of private legislation will probably be worked off. Partisan debates will be indulged in on the slightest provocation, and it is expected much valuable time will be wasted this way.

The Nicaraguan Canal.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The Herald's Washington special says it is understood the administration has negotiated a treaty with Nicaragua, which abjures the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and secures to the United Stated the privileges of building an inter-ocean canal via Lake Nicaragua.

Mrs. Lynam Declared Sane.

Dr. Vallee's report was received on Monday, and was filed in the Superior court. The doctor declares that Mrs. Lynam is in his opinion sane, but that as a matter of precaution she should not return to live with her husband. The next move will be to take a civil suit of separation against her husband.—Montreal Star,

A Recreant Lover.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Bertha Sayelowsky, a Polish Jewess of unusual beauty, threw herself into the river last night. She was engaged to a young man named Harris Mazer, but she learned on arriving here from Europe two weeks ago that he was engaged to another woman. She was rescued and will recover.

Ship Lost.

ST. JOHN'S, N.F., Dec. 1.—The ship Mary Joseph, bound from Sydney to the channel, was lost with all hands and passengers on the east point near the channel on Saturday night. A violent north-west gale blew at the time.

Artillery Man Killed.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 1.—This morning Wilson, a B Battery man, on pass, was found near Bellville station. He had been killed by a passing train. He was horribly mangled.

REDISTRIBUTION.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—In the House of Commons this evening Mr. Gladstone presented the Redistribution bill. It provides that all towns of less than 15,000 inhabitants, and small boroughs, be merged into counties; all towns of 50,000 inhabitants to be entitled to one member. England will possess six additional members. The membership of Wales and Ireland remain unchanged. Scotland will have 12 additional members, London will have 37 members, Liverpool 6, Glasgow 4, Birmingaam 4, Manchester 3, Yorkshire 16, and Lancashire 15 additional members. Mr. Gladstone stated that the Government had received assurance of the passage of the Franchise Bill by the House of Lords.

SANITARY WORKS.

NAPLES, Dec. 1.—The Italian Government has prepared a bill devoting £4,000,000 to sanitary works in Naples.

THE BRITISH NAVY.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The unsatisfactory state of the British navy continues to engross public attention. It is believed the House of Commons will readily pass a vote of £10,000,000, spread over a term of years, in order to bring the British navy up to a position equal to that of any two other national navies. Some portions of the dockyards are now only utilized for the purpose of storage. Other portions are in a condition of absolute neglect, and grass is growing over the streets which formerly were trodden at least once a day in the dress parades.

The Governor is strongly indorsed by public opinion.

BISMARCK'S OPINION.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—During the past week the new Reichsteg sought to nullify one of Prince Bismarck's pet laws by a vote of nearly two to one, but the only effect of the vote was to draw from him a laconic statement that in England, which was badly governed, that sort of thing might work mischief, but he thanked God that he knew his business better than to let Republican practices get mixed up with monarchal institutions in Germany.

A RESIGNATION.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Mr. Leonard Henry Courtney, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, has resigned in consequence of the omission from the Redistribution bill of the principle of minority representation. Mr. Courtney with other Radicals has formed in opposition strong in debating power, weak numerically.

THE COE JOB.

We are told by the leading Reform journal that:—

"The sale of lands to Mr. Coe's company by the Government was eminently proper, and we are confident that the Commissioner of Crown Lands will be delighted to have a discussion raised upon it in the House."

If the transaction was so eminently proper, and if Mr. Pardee will be so delighted to have a discussion upon it in the House, we may be allowed to ask why Mr. Pardee and the Government were so very unwilling to throw any light upon the subject in the House last session. Why did they neglect for long weeks to obey the order of the House to bring down a return? Why did they delay the return till the very end of the session, when it could not be dealt with for another year? Why did they then make a dishonest return by leaving out the principal information ordered, so that the incomplete document was not only worthless, but was intentionally deceptive? Why this unwillingness to face discussion or to give the information demanded, while the House could discuss it, if there is the pretended willingness to discuss the matter, when the House is not sitting?

The Trenton Courier, flying to the rescue of the Mowat Administration, says that we forget the duty on coal. Without discussing here the effect of that duty on the price, we may ask what has the price of coal to do with the impropriety of alienating large tracts of valuable timbered land, adapted for agriculture, on the false pretence that the timber is necessary for charcoal for smelting, when in fact the ore is not being smelted, but is being exported. The Courier also says "Mr. Mowat has granted lands to Coe & Co. at the market price." If so, why did Mr. Mowat and Mr. Pardee conceal the price that was paid, though ordered by the House to report it, only making a return of the price in a few exceptional and insignificant cases, when the market price was really given. The Courier does not aid its friends any more than the Globe does.

The truth is that this job is only a repetition of the old story. Mr. Coe rendered a service to Mr. Blake and his friends by opposing the Conservative Minister of Customs. Mr. Blake and his friends had it not in their power to reward Mr. Coe, so, according to the modern Reform patent, Mr. Mowat and his colleagues paid Mr. Blake's debt out of the property of the people of Ontario. It may be very true that Mr. Coe has afforded employment in the county of Hastings, but that is no reason why Mr. Mowat should give him the public property of this Province at less than its market value. Nor is it any reason why Mr. Mowat should give him valuable land and timber under the false pretence that it was required for smelting works. These special favours, at the expense of the people of Ontario, were given to Mr. Coe, not because of any services to the people of Hastings, but because of his services to Mr. Blake and the Reform opposition in the Dominion.

The Buzzard Gang.

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 29.—The posse in pursuit of the thieves who robbed Shiffer's jewelery store at Bowmanville last night, supposed to be the Buzzard gang, came upon them at the edge of a swamp this afternoon, after a chase of twenty miles. The thieves, four in number—Abe Buzzard, Joe Buzzard, and two others—were fired upon, and Joe Buzzard was cut off from the rest, surrounded, and captured. The others concealed themselves in the swamp and escaped.

Treasurer Trove.

DANVILLE, Pa., Nov. 29.—Two men digging for medical roots a few days ago on an island in the Susquehanna, dug up a metal box containing coins amounting to $47,000, including 16,000 Mexican silver dollars. $30,000 in gold dubloons and $1,000 in small silver coins.

"ON THE HEIGHTS."

AN ELOQUENT LECTURE DELIVERED BY THE REV. DR. VINCENT.

The Anniversary of the Sabbath School of the George Street Methodist Church—A Satisfactory Report.

The George Street Methodist Church was well filled on Monday evening on the occasion of the anniversary of the Sabbath School, and to hear the Rev. Dr. Vincent deliver his lecture, "On the Heights." The children and teachers occupied the galleries and the congregation and visitors filled the body of the church.

After a hymn had been sung by the children, the Rev. Thos. Mannnig opened the meeting with prayer.

Mr. A. Clegg, the Secretary, read a very satisfactory report of the work of the Sabbath School, after which the children sang another hymn.

The Rev. I. Tovell expressed the gratification of these connected with the Sunday School at the good attendance at their anniversary meeting. The satisfactory report of the Secretary might have had another pleasing feature, if he could have anticipated the present. After some well deserved praise of the children for their very attentive and orderly demeanour during the reading of the report, he introduced the Rev. Dr. Vincent, alluding to the favourable recollections of his previous lectures in Peterborough, and to his excellent sermons on the preceding Sunday.

Dr. Vincent called upon his audience to rise from their present elevation of 600 feet, to 1,000 feet, 2,000, 3,000, 4,000 feet above the sea. At this height they must imagine a valley shut in by mountains, some of them 4,000 feet above it. This beautiful and picturesque valley in the Sierra Nevada, the Yo-emite, with all its varied features, he described with poetic imagery, and with a graphic power that seemed to bear the hearers to this romantic and beautiful spot. Three of the loftiest peaks yet unnamed he would name after Washington, Lincoln and Garfield, as representing respectively Liberty, Equality and Fraternity. From these triple peaks fell the wonderful waterfalls of the Yosemite, greater far than Niagara. These he described with their surroundings as a picture of beauty. His visit there was on the occasion of the opening of a chapel where, among such scenes, the Maker might be worshipped in a Christian church. The impreseiveness of the ceremony amid such surroundings he depicted most earnestly, quoting some of the choicest sentences from Dr. Cook's dedicating prayer. The camp fire was one of the great features of the meeting. Round a gigantic bonfire, in keeping with the striking features of the scenery, the tourists assembled. Here tales af adventure far and near, scientific explanations and songs alternated. He described the disputes of the scientific men present as to the formation of that valley, and thought that till they agreed in their theories the Christian might rely upon the old account of creation in the old Book. From this valley of the Yosemite he asked his hearers to accompany him to the Alps, in the neighbourhood of Chamounie, describing with the same poetic power the aspiring needles, the snow clad neights, the glaciers, those wonderful rivers of ice, with the monarch of mountains, Mont Blanc, towering above all, and crowned with a diadem of clouds. With much feeling he described his first impressions, the deep reverence with which he beheld this monarch. Two men, loftier than the Alps, were in his thoughts, one of them, Napoleon, that great and turbulent man of a past age, now silent and impotent. That pitiless culmination of mere human force and energy, that incarnation of ambition and indomitable will, even surmounted the Alps, grand and cold as his soul. Another, he saw, reverend and lowly, though no less grand, John Calvin, who also had a great will, though subject to the law of truth and God. As lesser Alps seemed no less lofty than Mont Blanc till the setting sun, throwing its rosy rays upon the monarch of mountains, showed its superiority, so the last searching light would show the superiority of the godly John Calvin over the worldly Napoleon. Next he took his audience to that mountainous human work, the dome of St. Peter's at Rome, the great edifice of the greater Michael Angelo. This he described in all its majesty and glorious beauty; but still more majestic was the great man of Italy, whose greatest work among so many varied and noble productions it was. But the last words of the great architect showed that he looked to still greater heights. The Pope had raised money to pay for St. Peter's by granting indulgences. He raised St. Peter's, but he also raised Martin Luther, and he raised the Reformation.

Passing to Egypt, the lecturer described the gigantic Pyramid, with all its real marvels and with the imaginery marvels ascribed to it by enthusiastic theorists in England and the United States, who saw in it the key to all knowledge. Most humorously he related the difficulties of the ascent of this gigantic pyramid of Cheops. With telling change he depicted the view from the summit, and recalled the historic scenes connected with it. Hence it was a short step to Palestine. With a most amusing digression he described these scenes as depicted in various styles by Dr. Edward Robinson, Dean Stanley, E. P. Hammond, in his Hiawathan metre, and Mark Twain. For himself he described his landing, full of sentiment somewhat checked by a meal most comically described, and a bed with too much company. Quickly, with his versatile ability, he checked the laugh by describing Palestine as the very centre of the world—the scene of the Book—the theatre of the greatest events for the Christian world. He depicted the details which seemed living illustrations of the Book. Striking a still deeper note he recalled the memories inspired by those scenes of the life of the Saviour—He who stood on the greatest of all heights, even in the estimation of the sceptic. Quotation after quotation he gave from the great sceptics, rendering testimony to the grandeur of Jesus of Nazareth, who even as a man stood on the most towering heights. Returning to his starting point on the Yosemite, he briefly reviewed the great men whom he had described, and showed how towered among them divine truth, on the height of heights. In a magnificent production he described how that truth would reign and dispel ignorance and evil and crime, till we were raised to the height of heights.

Dr. VINCENT, with very good reason, gave his especial thanks for the attentive hearing given to him by the children.

The Rev. I. TOVELL expressed the gratification with which he and the other hearers had listened to the eloquent lecture of Dr. Vincent.

The singing of the doxology and the pronouncing of the benediction by the Rev. Dr. Vincent terminated the proceedings.

Accident Near Trenton.

On Thursday afternoon an accident happened on the Central Ontario R. R. The spreading of the rails causing the train running between Picton and the Coe Hill mines to be ditched. The accident occurred within four miles of Gilmore station, and fine freight cars and a coach were were hurled on their sides at the brow of an four foot embankment.

Dr. Day went to the scene of the accident on a special car. He very kindly looked after the interests of the wounded passengers. Dr Burtch of Kingston, boarded the train at Bannockburn, but on second thought stepped off it. It was, perhaps, a lucky thing for him that he did so.

A can of coal oil in the passenger car was spilled, and the oil, ignited by a coal stove which capsized, it looked as if the car and its occupants would perish in the flames. Conductor Robinson, however, rushed into the car, and with a blanket smothered the blaze before it had made much headway. There were ninety passengers on the train. Some seventy-five of these were Italians, who seemed to be very much excited by the accident. Dr. Day, of Trenton, was telegraphed for, and skillfully attended to the injuries of five passengers.

THE KENTUCKY SCOURGE.

Starvation Causing as Many Deaths as the Disease.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 29.—Arthur H. Loomis, a travelling representative of a New York firm, has just returned from the plague stricken district of eastern Kentucky. He says: "The people of Martin county are absolutely crazy. A great deal has been said in the papers about the situation in Martin and adjoining counties, but it has been but an imperfect reflex of the existing deplorable condition. I know of instances where whole families died within a week, where a neighborhood has been swallowed up in the grave, where one man has survived to bury his family and friends, and then been found dead with no living creature near him, except in some cases a faithful dog. Flocks of sheep and droves of cattle lie dead and rotting. The wells and cisterns have been drained to the bottom, and the springs are no longer to be relied upon for a supply of water. The ground is literally parched, and where vegetation formerly bloomed there is nothing but decay. Thousands are said to have died within the past two weeks. It is evident that the chief agent of death is starvation. The people are almost without communication with the outside world. An occasional drummer like myself strays among them once a year. Wool and other native products are rudely manufactured into clothing by the inhabitants, but when the crops fail intense suffering exists. In the backwoods where the plague raced with the greatest fatality, the crops have failed for two successive seasons. The natives are without money and food. The shutting off of the water supply brought to the surface poisonous liquid. Famished for water the people drank, and the consequence was death. The first symptoms are violent gripings, and after this a raging headache. Burning fever ensues and the victim usually lingers two days, suffering great mental agony before death. Relief has recently been despatched to Martin from the neighboring counties. Before I left there was a light rainfall with a prospect of its continuance. The opinion prevails that the plague has passed through its most dangerous stages and is now on the wane. During the last two days of my stay there were very few deaths."

Viewing the Gallows.

QUEBEC, Dec. 1.—It appears that Mrs. Boutet, the Baie St. Paul murderess, prior to the date fixed for her execution, expressed a strong desire to see the gallows. The Governor of the gaol refused her request, fearing the effect of such a sight upon her nervous system. After the commutation of her sentence and before the gallows was removed, the woman reiterated her desire with such persistency that it was resolved to gratify it. She inspected the scaffold without betraying the slightest emotion, and before retiring begged to be allowed to see how it worked. The bolt was withdrawn and the drop fell out with so sudden a thud that an involuntary tremor of a moment's duration thrilled through the frame of the murderess, the only sign of agitation which at all escaped her.

Answer this Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75c. we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by J. D Tully.

Drunkenness, or the Liquor Habit, can be cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it, effecting a speedy and permanent cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken the Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. No harmful effects result from its administration. Cures guaranteed. Circulars and testimonials sent free. Address, Golden Specific Co., 185 Race St., Cincinnati, O.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain and cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind, colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

REFORM BRIBERS IN LENNOX.

In extenuation of the acts of those who undertook to secure the return of Mr. Allison in Lennox, by corrupt means, there is nothing to be said,—they deserve the punishment they have received.—Montreal Times(Reform).

THE HOME AND SOCIETY.

Destroy the family and you destroy society. Perfect the family and you perfect society. These principles are as clear as the sun at noonday. The man who would not wish in his own way, and according to the measure of his ability, to perfect his own home is not deserving of a home; he is an outlaw at heart, an enemy of society, and should be treated as such. —Montreal Star.

REFORM INGRATITUDE.

Are the Liberals much more advanced for having in evil days renounced men whose favours they accepted so eagerly in the good day? Has Mr. Blake brought them back to power sooner than Mr. Mackenzie would have done? No, and nothing will remain of their action but the words their old chief spoke not very long ago: "I have been better treated by my adversaries than by my political friends."—La Minerve.

WHY THIS DIFFERENCE?

On the 23rd of October, 1883, Robert Scott, a prisoner, attempted to escape, and was shot and killed by a guard named Harte. The killing was done under regulations prescribed by the Government of Ontario. The papers which now loudly proclaim that it was "an act of brutal cruelty to whip Cormack for attempting to escape, then said it was quite right to shoot Scott for attempting to escape. Those who now say Attorney-General Miller should be driven from office for authorizing whipping, then said in effect that Attorney-General Mowat was a Christian statesman though he authorized shooting.—Hamilton Spectator.

THE DESPOTIC LIBERALS.

It is the nature of Radicals, all the world over, to trample on the rights of others, to violate the most Democratical constitutions when they find it in their interest. . . . In Canada we have seen, not long ago, how the Liberals accomplished their stroke in government at Quebec, and openly violated the constitution, the regime of the responsible government. We have seen a Liberal Governor chase out of power a Ministry which had the support of a large majority, and the Liberal minority take up the task of governing the Province under these conditions.—La Minerve.

TRADE IN THE TROPICS,

Let it be well understood by all and sundry that to encourage trade with the tropics to the utmost extent is part and parcel of Canada's National Policy. Did revenue exigencies permit under a thorough-going protectionist policy the last vestige of duties on unrefined cane sugar, spices, tea, coffee and other tropical or subtropical products, would be swept away. Therefore, if trade with the tropics be wanted, let it not be said that the N. P. bars the way.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

CONFEDERATION.

There is one thing which is wrong—wrong first, last, and all the time—the raking up of the old question of breaking up the Confederation. It may not be the best or richest form of government in the world—it may have its faults, but still the Dominion is a work of our own building, it had its being in our own day and generation, and after looking at the measure of greatness it has attained in so short a period of time it is nothing less than absolute madness to speak of laying rude hands upon it. More than this it savours a trifle of treason, this interminable talk about breaking the Dominion to pieces, but we suppose that Grit papers are about the same everywhere, and that such a little thing as talking treason would not trouble them a great deal. —Kingston News.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

WARNINGS.

By keeping our eyes open, and judging things upon Scriptural principles, we may often be forewarned in our dealings with certain characters. One man cannot see farther into a millstone than another, and yet shrewdness sees where the ordinary observer is in the dark. A prudent man with the fear of God before his eyes, is almost a prophet. Two or three instances are before our mind at this moment.

A gentleman went carefully into the stable where his horse was placed to bait, and he saw for himself that the proper feed of oats was in the manger. In a few minutes time he was in the stable again, and the oats were gone. He taxed the hostler with taking them out, and remained while he saw his nag eat up his fair portion. How did he know that the hostler would steal the oats? He had heard him cursing, and therefore he knew that he would steal.

A friend met the deacon of a church in the street, a man whom he much esteemed. The aforesaid deacon begged the loan of £100, and the friend would have lent it to him with pleasure; but in the course of conversation the deacon observed, "Other people might rob you; but you know me as an old pilgrim. I am, I trust, quite past temptation." The money was refused, for the friend said to himself, "Past temptation! Past temptation! Why he must be quite ignorant of his own head. He must surely be a hypocrite." And so he was. He knew that he was hopelessly involved even when he was seeking a loan from one who could not afford to lose the money; before that day was over he had failed. "Pride goweth before destruction," "A prating fool shall fall." His Bible had made our friend wise, and he was saved from loss.

A man who stood high in the city observed with great satisfaction that he had in a single morning cleared £30,000 by a speculation. A brother merchant remarked that he ought to feel very grateful to Providence for such good fortune, whereupon the successful merchant snapped his fingers and said, "Providence! pooh! that for Providence! I can do a deal better for myself than ever Providence can do for me." He who heard the observation walked away and resolved never to deal with such a man again except upon cash principles, for he felt sure that a crash would come sooner or later. Great was the indignation of the man who stood high in the city when he was told, "If you and I are to have dealings, it must be on strictly ready-money terms." He was insulted; he would not endure it; he would go to another house. The other house welcomed his custom, and in due time it was repaid by losing many thousands.

A tradesman chose a shopman from seeing him pick up a pin; Rowland Hill would button up his coat when he heard a man swear, for he did not want to have his pocket picked; thus for good or for evil little things may be tests of character. To deal with persons who have no respect for the Sabbath is always risky; to marry a man who can repeat a lewd story is eminently perilous; to buy goods of tradesmen who are "really giving them away" is to invite deception; and to trust those who flatter you is to court delusion. Do you meet with one who tells you many of the secret faults of others? Mind that you show him none of your own which you would not wish to publish. Does he tell you what others have said of you? Then say nothing of others which you would not wish him to report; for as sure as you live he will repeat all that you say with additions. All dogs that fetch will carry.

By observing such things as these men may be saved from deceptions. The difference between one man and another in point of prudence arises from the fact that one man learns from his blunders and another does not. When we are once taken in by a person, we ought to take his measure so exactly that he will not be able to do it again. No mouse can be excused if it is caught twice by the same cat. Yet as long as the world stands there will remain some in it who can never see farther than the end of their own noses.—C. H. Spurgeon.

"As Good as New,"

are the words used by a lady, who was at one time given up by the most eminent physicians, and left to die. Reduced to a mere skeleton, pale and haggard, not able to leave her bed, from all these distressing diseases peculiar to suffering females, such as displacement, leucorrhœa, inflammation, etc., etc. She began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and also using the local treatments recommended by him, and is now, she says, "as good as new." Price reduced to $1. By druggists.

THE SOUTH POLE.

A Brief Account of Voyages in that Direction.

The statement that Nordenskjold, the Arctic explorer, is about to undertake an expedition to the frozen south, has a special interest. With our present appliances all voyages aiming to reach the pole seem follies; but at least after the many baffled journeys to the north, an effort to pierce the Antarctic ice barriers has the charm of variety. The good judgment and perseverance exhibited by Prof. Nordenskjold in his famous north-east passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific along the Arctic shores of Asia, will inspire the hope that his present undertaking may be as successful as the voyage of the Vega.

Antarctic exploration has never been prosecuted with the eager zeal which year after year has sent expeditions to the north. Half a century age, however, it was in great favour. At that time Biscoe discovered, between 64 and 68 degrees of south latitude, Enderby land and Graham land. It is noteworthy that Cook, in his famous second voyage, between 1772 and 1775, had penetrated to more southerly latitudes than Biscoe's of threescore years later, but without discovering any part of what is now loosely termed the Antarctic continent Three times at points far distant from each other he drove southward beyond the Antarctic circle. But Biscoe, more fortunate, found land directly south of Patagonia, and also directly south of Madagascar, a few miles northeast of one of Capt. Cook's swoops in 1774. It should be added that Graham land, discovered by Biscoe in 1832, is only an extension of a coast discovered in part of 1821 by Howell, and called Trinity land; by Palmer, and called Palmer land; and by Bellinghausen, and called Alexander land. Weddell, in 1823, penetrated to 74½ south latitude, but saw no land.

A few years later, in 1836, Dumont d'Urville visited Graham land. His main work, however, was done two years after, south of Australia, where he discovered Clarie and Adelie lands. Two years latter still, only a few miles west of the former, Balleny added Sabrina land to the slowly pieced out contour. Capt. Wilkes had contributed meanwhile to the knowledge of the tremendous ice barriers that seemed to close the way of to the south pole. He described, early in 1840, about latitude 62½ south, and longitude 161 east, a coast line, which he followed westward, with occasional glimpses of it, for weeks, by cruising along the ice fields.

Shortly after, the greatest gain in all the explorations was achieved by Capt. James Ross, who, from a point just east of that which had been reached by D'Urville, forced his way almost directly south along the coast of Victoria land, and, after working with the greatest intrepidity, through a heavy ice belt, found himself able to discern rocky and nearly as far as the 79th parallel. One of of the most extraordinary fruits of his voyage was the discovery of two lofty mountains, Teroor and Erebus, the latter a burning volcano.

In spite of this success, and of the curiosity excited by finding a volcano much nearer the south pole than Hecla is to the north, little has been done for more than 40 years to continue the explorations. Occasionally some vessel like the Challenger has cruised among these solitary wastes of ice, and only a few years ago the Pilot's Bride went further south, probably, than any whaler has ever gone—at any rate, far enough to skirt along Graham land for some miles. In general, however, this dreary part of the world has been left almost unvisited for 40 years.

Undoubtedly one reason why so much less effort has been expended on Antartic than on Arctic discovery is that practicable routes to the Indies both eastward and westward around Cape Horn and Cape of Good Hope took away that necessity for penetrating further poleward which furnished the stimulus to all the early Arctic exploration. Another drawback is the remoteness of the Southern ocean from the starting points of these adventurous maritime nations that make the great voyages of discovery. Finally, the peculiar desolation of the southern frigid zone, its perpetual fogs, its bewildering currents, and its enormous masses of continuous ice, beginning at a great distance from the pole, have discouraged enterprise in that direction. Four years ago Italy and the Argentine Republic contemplated an expedition to the south pole, which was to have been in charge of Lieut. Bowe, who was with Nordenskjold in the Vega's voyage. This would have been followed, it was said, by an English expedition under Sir A. Young; but the promoters of the undertaking shrank from its obstacles.

Should Prof. Nordenskjold, however, carry out the purpose attributed to him, he would have certain advantages over his predecessors. First, the influence of the great equatorial current, which crosses the Indian Ocean, and, after skirting the coast of Africa, strikes directly into Antarctic waters, is now better understood than it was half a centuary ago, and the most inviting paths of the southern exploration becomes almost a matter of scientific calculation. Above all, Ross' successes were achieved with two sailing vessels, and the substitution of steam promises a great gain.—New York Sun.

THREE GOOD LESSONS.

"One of my first lessons," said Mr. Sturgis, the eminent merchant, "was in 1813, when I was eleven years old. My grandfather had a fine flock of sheep, which were carefully tended during the war of those times. I was the shepherd boy, and my business was to watch the sheep in the fields. A boy who was more fond of his book than the sheep was sent with me, but he left the work to me, while he lay under the trees and read. I did not like that and finally went to my grandfather and complained about it. I shall never forget the smile of the old gentleman, as he said, 'Never mind, Jonathan, you shall have the sheep.'

"What does my grandfather mean by that," I said to myself. "I don't expect to have a sheep." I could not exactly make out in my mind what it was, but I had great confidence in him, for he was a judge, had been in Congress in Washington's time; so I concluded it was all right, and went back contentedly to my sheep. After I got to the field I could not keep his words out of my head. Then I thought of Sabbath's lesson, 'Thou hast been faithful over a few things I will make thee ruler over many things,' I began to see through it. Never you mind who neglects his duty; be you faithful, and you will have your reward.

"I received a second lesson soon after I came to New York as a clerk to the late Lyman Reed. A merchant from Ohio who knew me, came to buy goods and said, 'Make yourself so useful that they cannot do without you.' I took his meaning quicker than I did that of my grandfather.

"Well, I worked upon these two ideas until Mr. Reed offered me a partnership in the business. The first morning after the partnership was made known, Mr. James Geery, the old tea merchant, called in to congratulate me, and he said, 'You are all right now. I have only one piece of advice to give you: Be careful whom you walk the streets with.' This was lesson number three."

And what valuable lessons they were: Fidelity in all things; do your best for your employer; carefulness about your associates. Let every boy take these lessons home and study them well. They are the foundation stones of character and honorable success.

Sentenced for Fifty Years.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov., 29.—Samuel Wannamaker, who uttered forged notes amounting to $25,000, has been sentenced to fifty years in the state penitentiary. He is a mere skeleton, and cannot live but a few months. He is 50 years old.

TWENTY-FIVE cents invested in "Hub" Cough Cure saves sweating under a cough. It stops a cough quick and sure. Think the price for a cough. Ask J. D. Tully.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made for the Canadian Shoeburyness team.

A SUCCESSFUL RESULT.—Mr. Bloomer, of Hamilton, Ont., suffered for many years with a painful running sore upon one of his legs, which baffled all attempts to heal until he used Burdock Blood Bitters, which speedily worked a perfect cure.

MR. HUSSEY, whose house was blown up, is an agent of Lord Lansdown.

PROMPT MEASURES.—Prompt measures should be used to break up sudden colds and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually.

HON. MR. MILLER has entered a criminal libel against the Winnipeg Sun.

AN AGREEABLE SURPRISE.—Those who try Burdock Blood Bitters as a regulator of the bowels, or to purify the blood, aid digestion, regulate the liver and kidneys, or strengthen tired nature, are agreeably surprised at the prompt benefit derived.

THE Quebec Stamp Act has been declared ultra vires by the Privy Council.

A DECIDED HIT.—Hagyard's Yellow Oil touches the right spot every time when applied for rheumatism, neuralgia, pain, soreness or lameness, and internally for colds, sore throat, etc., it is equally infallible.

IT is said that Mr. Barnard Coleridge is seeking a compromise with Mr. Adams.

FREEMAN'S WORM POWDERS require no other purgative. They are safe and sure to remove all varieties of Worms.

NATIONAL PILLS acts promptly upon the Liver, regulates the Bowels and as a purgative are mild and thorough.

Mr. THOS. COLLINS, member of the British House of Commons for Knaresborough, is dead.

NO MATTER.—No matter where pain, lameness or soarness exists, Hagyard's Yellow Oil taken or applied will give immediate relief, and a positive cure quickly follows its use.

THE natives of India will present addresses to the Marquis of Ripon on his retirement.

A SAFE INVESTMENT.—Investing twenty-five cents for a bottle of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best throat and lung healer known. Cures coughs, bronchitis, asthma and all pulmonary complaints.

PROF. LOW'S SULPHUR SOAP is highly recommended for the cure of Eruption, Chafes, Chapped Hands, Pimples, Tan, &c.

DR. LOW'S WORM SYRUP has removed tape worms from 15 to 30 feet in length. It also destroys all kind of worm.

MISS FRANCIS WILLARD advocates abstinence from too rich foods as well as from strong drinks.

OH! how tired and weak I feel, I don't believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning! O yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Doctor Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50c.

NOTHING succeeds like success, is as true in medicine as in anything else. By the wonderful effect of Dr. Van Buren's Kidney cure in promptly alleviating the sufferings experienced in kidney troubles and producing a permanent cure in these distressing ailments, his fame has been carried over the four quarters of the globe.

THE late Duke of Buccleuch owned 458,108 acres of land, which was distributed in six counties of England and seven counties of Scotland. His annual income from this land was near $2,000,000. His income from other sources was $50,000 a year.

BEAUTIFUL hair is on of the most pleasing of characteristics and can be obtained by the use of Cingalese Hair Renewer. Well known are its virtues in restoring grey hair to it natural color and then preventing it from turning grey. Sold by J. D. Tully.

IF you are a professional man, an editor, lawyer, clergaman or doctor, so thoroughly overworked that now every mental effort is attended with a sense of weariness, followed by headache and more or less severe nervous prostration, take a dose of Dr. Austin's Phosphatine along with your meals every day for a week or more, and we are certain it will relieve you. For sale by all druggists.

HOW often do we hear of the sudden fatal termination of a case of croup, when a young life might have been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral! Be wise in time, and keep a bottle of it on hand, ready for instant use.

HOW TO TELL GENUINE FLORIDA WATER.—The true Florida Water always comes with a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and in the paper of this pamphlet are the "Lanman & Kemp, New York," water-marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters. Hold a leaf up to the light, and if genuine, you will see the above words. Do not buy if the words are not there, because it is not the real article. The water-mark letters may be very pale, but by looking closely against the light, you cannot fail to see them.

FOR a matron a black velvet bodice, richly embroidered or beaded, with skirt and tunic of black satin trimmed to correspond, is very handsome.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

Mr. J. R. Joseph, well known in Peterborough as the coffee pot soloist, who has been ill at the Oriental Hotel for some time, is now convalescent.

War in Rates.

Owing to a railway war in rates existing at present between rival routes running from Suspension Bridge and New York, the rates have been cut down to a fine point. The present rate from Peterborough to New York is only $9.60, whereas it was formerly $14.20.

A Little Warmer.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light southerly winds; continued fair weather; slightly higher temperature.

The Right Man at Hand.

In Toronto at about ten o'clock on Saturday evening a little girl named Mary Ann Hooper, eight years of age, who had gone out to buy a paper, was assaulted by a ruffian. Mr. F. H. Scobell, formerly of Peterborough, whose office was near by, heard the child's screams, and he rushed out and held the man until a policeman arrived and took him in charge.

An Energetic Contractor.

The carpenter work of St. Paul's Church has, during the past summer, been pushed along with all convenient haste. But still the progress of the work, it seems, did not suit the contractor, Mr. A. Rutherford. On Saturday last he had placed in the building two electric lamps for the purpose of putting on a force of men to work by night. Operations were commenced on Monday night, for the first time, 'neath the rays of the luminous fluid.

Cheap Return Tickets to the Concert.

All who had the pleasure of attending the concert in the Opera House last week for the benefit of St. Peter's Cathedral Building Fund will be glad to learn that a concert, under the same auspices, will be given in Lindsay on Wednesday evening, Dec. 3rd, by the same performers, with the addition of some new talent. Through the kindness of Mr. A. White, of the G.T.R. return tickets will be issued to all who wish to attend for the low price of 50c., good to go on Wednesday and return on Thursday.

Missionary Meeting.

A missionary meeting was held in the St. John's chapel on Monday night. The place was filled and enthusiasm was displayed both on the part of the speaker and the audience The Rev. J. W. R. Beck, Rector and Rural Dean, dwelt to a considerable extent on the Advent season, and the probability of a universal church. The Rev. N. F. Alexander, a missionary who had spent thirty years in southern India, described the successful operations of missionaries in India and the good which mission work was doing. The discourses were exceedingly interesting.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

Deer River Bridge.

We find the following in the Intelligencer's report of the proceedings of the Hastings County Council:—

"A communication from the Clerk of the County Council of Peterborough was read asking that a grant of $50 be made by the Hastings Council, as on this condition the Council of the County of Peterborough would make a similar grant for the purpose of building a bridge across Deer River.

"Mr. McGregor, seconded by Mr. Gunter, moved that $50 be granted for repairs on boundary road between Chandos and Wolloston, on condition that the County of Peterborough make a similar grant. This sum was appropriated at the last session, but was not forwarded to the Commissioner of Crown Lands as it should have been.—Carried."

"Storm Beaten."

Shook & Collier's combination presented "Storm Beaten" to a large audience in Bradburn's Opera House on Monday evening. The play is one that holds the closest attention of the audience from the time the curtain first rises in the prologue until it falls at the close of the sixth act. It is, besides, a drama of excellent moral tone. The scenery was good, the representation of the Island of Desolation being particularly good. The acting, also, was of a high order. Mr. Alex. Salvini, jr., in the part of "Christian Christianson," received well merited applause, and his portrayal of the character of the injured hero was very good, but his articulation was scarcely as distinct as it should be. Mr. Geo. A. Backus, as "Richard Orchardson," made a good impression. He certainly acted the part with ability. Mr. J. C. Padgett, as "Mr. Sefton," and afterwards as the Captain of the steamer, displayed considerable ability. Miss Netta Guion is an actress of considerable merit. As "Kate" in the May Day scene and in her confession, as also in the scene with Richard on her return, she acted cleverly, although at times she was, perhaps, too violent or energetic in her demonstrations. Miss Belle Jackson was a charming "Priscilla Sefton." She was natural, unaffected and consistent throughout. The other parts were all well taken, and the company is one of the best that has visited Peterborough for a long time.

NEAR TO DEATH.

The Fire Fiend Clings Closely to a Young Girl at the Stewart House.

On Monday evening at about 7 o'clock Miss Tressie Judd, a nurse girl engaged with Mrs. T. Cavanagh, took a lamp and went to a store room, which is situated directly above the rear of Mr. W. J. Devlin's harness store, to get some articles of clothing. The burner of the lamp had not been screwed on with proper care, but so long as it was kept in an upright position it retained its place.

When Miss Tressie entered the room she placed the lamp on an oval covered trunk and it immediately toppled over. The burner fell off, dragging with it the wick. The coal oil flowed from the lamp and partly spilled on the girl's dress. The oil was instantly ignited and in her efforts to stamp out the flame the oil which fell on her dress caught on fire and she was at once enveloped in flames.

She ran out of the store room frantically screaming for help with the flames fiercely burning about her. Her cries were heard by several guests, who came from their rooms to see what was the matter. But so great was the girl's terror and excitement that she sped by them through several halls and down the front stair case wildly calling for assistance.

Her shrieks and cries were heard by Mr. T. Cavanagh. He ran out and met her at the foot of the stairs. In a twinkling he tore from her the mass of burning clothing and Mr. M. Giroux seized a heavy over coat and wrapped it around her.

Meanwhile the smoke was issuing through the house and it was soon ascertained that the place was on fire. The alarm was rung and the firemen were promptly on hand.

No water was, however, turned on, as some of the guests had quenched the flames by throwing on them a few pitcher fulls of water taken from the adjoining bedroom.

The young girl, who was suffering from both mental and bodily pain, was conveyed to a room and Dr. Kincaid was summoned. She is severely, though not seriously, burned about the body and it is probable that she will recover in a few weeks.

Mr. T. Canavagh was burned badly on both hands and arms. Mr. M. Giroux was slightly burned on the hand.

XMAS LONDON NEWS, Xmas Graphic, Xmas Sporting and Dramatic News, at SAILSBURY & BROS.'

Orchestra Assembly.

The Peterborough Orchestra will not hold their usual assembly to-morrow night, as they have an engagement to go to Lindsay.

No Quorum.

A meeting of the Town Council was called for Monday night, but as there was not a quorum present, no meeting was held.

The English Mail.

In consequence of the Allan steamers leaving Halifax instead of the St. Lawrence, the English mails will close here on Wednesdays instead of on Fridays.

This Evening.

The entertainment to be given in the school room of St. John's Church this evening should not be forgotten. An excellent programme has been prepared and the entertainment will be well worth attending.

The Last Sad Rites.

The funeral of the late George Minorgan, who was an employee of Mr. P. Hamilton's foundry, took place at 3.30 this afternoon. The foundry was closed and the employees turned out en masse to attend the funeral.

Damaged by Water.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, whose store is situated directly under the store room of Cavanagh's Hotel, which was on fire on Monday evening, suffered considerable loss by means of water which was thrown on the fire, coming through the ceiling and falling on his goods. He estimates his loss at $50.

A fine assortment of MEN'S UNDERCLOTHING, Socks, Scarfs and Ties, Kid Gloves and Mitts, Silk and Linen Handkerchiefs. J. ERSKINE.

"Balaam."

The subject to be considered in the Young Men's Bible Class to-night in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, is Balaam, the wicked prophet. The Rev. Mr. Munro is continuing his series of lessons on the wanderings of the Israelities, and takes up the above subject in connection with it. There should be a large attendance to-night as it will probably be one of the most interesting lessons studied by the class. The class will meet at eight o'clock, in the rooms over the post-office.

Chit Chat.

—Frosty mornings.

—Bright sunny days.

—Beautiful moonlight nights.

—The snow is disappearing.

—The police are on the lookout for those who commit breaches of the Building By-law.

—Two more cases were considered at the Police Court this morning.

—There will be a meeting of the School Board to night.

—The annual dinner of the St. Andrew's Society will take place this evening.

—The agricultural works of Mr. P. Hamilton are again in operation.

—A foot bridge has been constructed across the creek on Hunter street.

—The new skating rink is rapidly approaching completion.

To Young Men.

At this season of the year the young men generally begin to look around to see where the best Christmas presents may be obtained. His sister, brother, father, or his "particular" lady friend will be expecting one, but he must not by any means forget his mother. Her present should be the first to be selected. Think of her toil and trouble in nurturing you as a child; her care in watching your moral development during tender years; and even now, when you are grown up to manhood, her anxieties for your welfare is in no way diminished. Now, one of most substantial and comfortable articles you could obtain for her, one that would induce her to continually think fondly of her "darling boy," is a comfortable easy chair. Just take a look at D. Belleghem's extensive stock, and you will be sure to be satisfied. He has almost every style in stock, but if you have a fancy for any particular kind not in stock he will be only too happy to make it to order.

A Pointer to Business Men.

Dinner will be served to business men from 12.30 to 2.30 every day at FAUCHER'S Restaurant and Bodega.

A Great Specialty.

Fair, VanEvery & Co. have received a large lot of handsome Wool Squares, Shawls, Jerseys, Nubias, Polka Jackets, Hoods, etc., being manufacturers samples, at about half price.

Dictionary and Moral Code for Daily Use.

Lie—A falsehood. A very wicked think for other folks to tell. When I do it myself it is just a little fib. Can't help it, sometimes, you know.

Thief—One who steals things. People who steal are sent to prison. But if rich people take things belonging to other folk, we call them "kleptomaniacs," and feel very sorry for them, poor dears!

Improper Conduct—Sarah Jane, at the area gate, flirting with her young man; but if young Mr. Moneybags does stay a long while and gets his arm around Evelina Amelia's waist, and even kisses her, what's the use of seeing it through the parlor door? It's a good match, if he only proposes, as he may if let alone.

Charity—Giving away what we can't possibly make any use of to the deserving poor, who can't make any use of it either.

Frankness—Hateful things we say to others.

Insolence—The same things said to us.

Baby next door—A dreadful little creature that shrieks all night. Can't sleep for him. Wish they would drown babies as they do kittens.

Baby at Number One—Such an angel; only "c'y, c'ies a ittle in a middle of a dark, dark night, when couldn't see mamma."

Wi-dom—A man buying his clothes and furnishings at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall.

Smith's Market,

Gold Medal Ale.

If you want a glass of Labatt's prize medal fine ale (special brewing) call at W. H. Chamberlain's Parlour Restaurant. This ale has received four gold medals at the World's Exposition, Paris, Australia, Philadelphia and Canada. It is kept in one of the best cellars in Canada, and is pleasant to the taste, and at the same time a wholesome beverage.

Sweet Apple Cider.

We take pleasure in announcing to our numerous patrons and the public generally that we still hold the exclusive agency for the Belleville Cider Works. This Cider needs no comment from us, as the quantity we sold last year is sufficient proof of pureness and delicacy of flavour. CARTON, BROS., opposite Market Square.

Lessons in Hand Painting.

Persons desirous of taking lessons in hand painting on satin, placques, etc., and of learning a new method of coloring photographs, by which the burnish of the photograph is not injured, please enquire at Messrs. Craig & Mooney's, corner of Brock and George streets, or Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

ILLUSTRATED.

With the new volume, beginning in December HARPER'S MAGAZINE will conclude its thirty-fifth year. The oldest periodicals of its type, it is yet, in each new volume, a new magazine, not simply because it presents fresh subjects and new pictures, but also, and chiefly, because it steadily advances in the methods itself of magazine-making. In a word, the MAGAZINE becomes more and more the faithful mirror of current life and movement. Leading features in the attractive programme for 1885 are: new serial novels by CONSTANCE FENIMORE WOOLSON and W. D. HOWELLS; a new novel entitled "At the Red Glove;" descriptive illustrated papers by F. D. MILLET, R. SWAIN CLIFFORD, E. A. ABBEY, H. GIBSON, and others; Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," illustrated by ABBEY; important papers on Art, Science, etc.

Littell's Living Age.

THE LIVING AGE has been published for more than forty years, and has met with continuous commendation and success.

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE, it gives fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than double-column octavo pages of reading matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its amount of matter, and with combined freshness and completeness nowhere else attempted.

Three and a Quarter Thousand

The best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature, and from the pens of the

FOREMOST LIVING WRITERS.

The ablest and most cultivated intellects, in every department of Literature, Science, Politics and Art find expression in the Perodical Literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain.

The Living Age, forming four large volumes a year, furnishes, from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation, that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the COMPLETENESS with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value.

It is therefore indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events of the intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste.

Opinions.

"Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in THE LIVING AGE in their best moods. Art, science and literature find fresh and eloquent expression in its pages from the pens of the best writers of the day; and the reader is kept well abreast of the current thoughts of the age."—Boston Journal.

"It has now for many years held the first place of all our serial publications. The only possible objection that could be argued to it is the immense amount of reading it gives. There is nothing noteworthy in science, art, literature, biography, philosophy, or religion, that cannot be found in it. Its readers are supplied with the best literature of the age."—The Churchman, New York.

"It may be truthfully and cordially said that it never offers a dry or valueless page."—New York Tribune.

"Biography, fiction, science, criticism, history, poetry, travels, whatever men are interested in, all are found here. It furnishes more for the money it costs than any other periodical within our knowledge."—The Watchman, Boston.

"There is nothing like it."—Christian at Work, N.Y.

"It has for us an interest and value beyond those of and other publication. Coming once a week, it gives, while yet fresh, the productions of the foremost writers of the day."—Montreal Gazette.

"Through its pages alone, it is possible to be as well informed in current literature as by the pursual of a long list of monthlies."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"It enables the reader to keep pace with the best thought and literary work of our time."—Christian Union, New York.

"Foremost of the eclectic periodicals."—N.Y. World.

"It furnishes a complete compilation of an indispensable literature."—Chicago Evening Journal.

"It saves not only time, but money."—Pacific Churchman, San Francisco.

"It has become indispensable."—New York Observer.

"It still keeps to the front, as the best of magazines. If limited to but one publication, we would infinitely prefer THE LIVING AGE to all others. It stands alone in its excellence."—Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C.

"It is one of the marvels of the age."—Spectator, Hamilton, Canada.

Published WEEKLY at $8.00 a year, free of postage.

TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS for the year 1885, remitting before Jan. 1st, the numbers of 1884, issued after the receipt of their subscriptions, will be sent gratis.

Club-Prices for the best Home and Foreign Literature.

["Possessed of THE LIVING AGE and one or other of our vivacious American monthlies, a subscriber will find himself in command of the whole situation."—Phila. Ev. Bulletin.]

For $10.50, THE LIVING AGE and any one of the American $4 Monthlies (Harper's Weekly or Bazar) will be sent for a year, postpaid, or, for $9.50, THE LIVING AGE and the St. Nicholas or Lippincott's Monthly. Address,

LITTELL & CO., Boston.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

THE NILE EXPEDITION

STEADILY ADVANCING UP THE NILE TOWARDS DONGOLA.

The Diary of a Member of the Canadian Contingent—Sights and Scenes in the Land of the Pharaohs.

RIVER NILE,
Two days above Assouan,
OCT. 22, 1884.

THE PETERBOROUGH REVIEW,—Dear old sheet, your friends on this expedition miss you sadly. As yet we have not had either letters or papers, though some of the other gangs got both at Assouan. We were sadly disappointed but are living in hope that at Wady Halfa, our next halting place, we may have better luck.

At about 10 o'clock we landed at the camp of the Essex regiment, where a short railroad commences. All the eastern side of the river is lined for about two miles with the tents of different regiments, 3,000 men or thereabouts, being under canvas here since July.

As soon as we landed the commissary and transport corps emptied our barge of all its stores, camel saddles, ammunition, &c., &c. Then came our turn. We had to unload the other barge, which contained our own supplies. But there were so many willing helping hands that the job was soon over.

Then the foreman of each gang got three pounds to divide among their twenty-six men, and each gang appointed a man to go to the city and get what trafics they were in need of. I was selected for that office by our men. Our landing was two miles below the city, and it was understood that the train should stop and let us off at our destination, but through some misunderstanding it did not do so. Six of us jumped off. One hurt his knee, one cut his hand, another performed more acrobatic (involuntary) feats than his wildest ambition in his juvenile circus days ever aspired to. But another and myself worked it like old railroad men and got away safe and sound.

We had then between two and three miles to walk back to the city, passing through a very large graveyard en route. Over some of the graves are built stone, brick and concrete mounds, over others an arched dome on pillars of stone, and so dusty-looking, bare and hard is the whole place, you would fancy that few were the tears shed over their dead, and when in our mind's eye rose up our own beautiful Little Lake Cemetery, its shaded avenues, well trimmed lawns, memorials of the skill and attention of Mr. John Kelly, the superintendent, and the many sad mementoes placed on the green sod by loving hands in the shape of beautiful wreaths and immortelles, the contrast was certainly not in favour of our present neighbours. Assouan, the ancient Syene, is about 600 miles from Cairo. Here are the ruins of ancient Roman baths, and the shattered columns of many temples. It is quite a large city, and as we walk through the bazaar we jostle a motley crowd, the stately Arab, the lithe and active Nubian, the Jew, the Gentile, and the Greek, and many nationalities besides, I have no doubt.

Those who appear to be peculiarly native in this place do not seem so dark as the pure Egyptian. They wear their hair about a foot long, square at the bottom and matted like the tassels on a bit of fringe. They are not bad looking, but both men and women would hardly be presentable at a levee of our Governor-General at home, as their court dress would only consist of a strip of cloth wound round the loins.

Everything is dear to excess. The Greeks, who are the principal storekeepers outside of the bazaar, are the greatest of cheats. A Corporal O'Brien, of the Royal Engineers, kindly escorted myself and my assistant, and I drove as hard bargains as he could for us. We had to pay a shilling for a piece of cheese not half the size of my hand, three pence a sheet for writing paper, and a shilling for twenty flimsy envelopes.

Nearly opposite to Assouan is the Island of Elephantine. On its shores are great heaps of broken pottery, still showing the remains of a beautiful glaze. It appears as if the inhabitants of the Island are all Nubians, but if they are not, I'll swear they are all nude ones. There seems to be a good trade done at Assouan, I suppose with the Upper Nile and whatever interior (if any) there is in its vicinity.

After finishing our shopping (?) we start for the station and climb upon a small car (not much bigger than a dump cart) loaded with cut camel food in bags [and move off to Shellal, where the railroad stops. The main line begins where we landed and runs seven miles to Shellal and is built to avoid the first cataract, which is a little above Assouan. Two miles from the north end, our starting point, is a branch about a mile and a half to the city, and while coming out on this branch we had to stop the train for some men who were not posted as to the city station—one of them in his hurry rolled down a bank about 60 feet—such a tumble, I thought he was surely killed, but he was only shaken up a little. You could hear the hard tack he had for his breakfast rattle in his abdominal pantry as he rolled down.

We got to Shellal just in time to jump into our boats and be towed away by the Khedive's yacht which he had placed at the disposal of our authorities.

A run of a couple of hours and we moor alongside the shore, make tea on the bank, roll ourselves in our blankets and sleep the sleep of the just until about three o'clock on the morning of the 22nd, when the cooks were roused up to get breakfast and we were off before daylight.

The boats we are to navigate are strong clapboard, or lapstreaked ones, from 30 to 50 feet in length, fitted with oars, masts, sails and awnings. They were built by Pierce Bros., of Dundee. We have 40 of them four abreast, all fastened together. It must be a pretty sight from the shore to see them stretched out over 100 yards. They are all painted white with a red stripe round the gunwale. They are numbered at the bow and are towed by the prettiest steam yacht I ever saw. The steamer has to take a zig-zag course on account of the current and we wind after her like a huge white serpent.

The River above Assouan is not so wide as below, the shores are steep rocky rugged cliffs with small nooks at river bends where, clay lodging, the palm and other trees are found in fair numbers, and in some places narrow strips 80 to 100 feet are under cultivation.

The current here is very strong, but we are moving faster than we did below. It is 200 miles to Wady Halfa which we expect to make in four days.

Oct. 22nd.—We pass many old brick ruins on the summit of the rocks and the remains of ancient temples, with a few pillars yet upright defying old Father Time.

Towards evening the shores get lower and we can see far away into the desert in some places which reminds us of

"Oh, give me but my Arab steed
My sword and falchion bright," and all that sort of stuff.

The confinement in the small boats is very irksome. We thought we were cramped on the barges when in tow of the Beherah, but this is a long way worse. Our food is not noted for its variety and is not pre-eminent for quality—sometimes. We have hard-tack—mind, hard-tack—beef, onions and potatoes, but fuel is scarce, very—we have to carry our wood with us, and there is not an axe in the party.

We seldom land but at night, and then we are so hungry that it is purgatory, no, worse than that, to wait three or four hours for our little fire of cornstalks and wood to cook our pot of tea, coffee or growley—this latter being made by mixing all our edibles together and cooking them en masse; something like an Irish stew, but somehow it lacks something, no salt, no pepper, and one cup of tea to soften the hard tack desert. The chief seasoning, I must confess, is grumbling, but I can't perceive that any of us are failing.

October 23.—We did not start quite so early this morning—it was after daylight. We were served out with cholera belts this morning. They are made of fine flannel, two ply thick, thirteen inches wide and fastened in front by tape strings. The men amused themselves by running in additional plaits in them to make them fit, and as I am handy with the needle, I have lots of orders for sewing on hand, and have serious notions of hiring two or three girls at the next place we stop at and open out in the dress making line—on second thought, as my trade would be entirely confined to the contingent, it wouldn't pay. The natives don't go in for any thing heavier or more extensive than something in the bandage line, so I'll give it up—the trade would be too limited.

I must stop writing for to-day, as I am making the lid of the camp-kettle sore—by sitting on it.

This afternoon Walter Ingram, the sketching artist of the London Illustrated News, overtook us with his little steam yacht. He intends to follow the expedition. His boat is about 20 feet long—fitted with sail, steam and oars—it is a complete affair. He has also a folding canvas boat with him. He had just run out of coal and we have to take him in tow.

October 24.—Saw our first crocodile—one man saw seven. I got a glimpse of one about 6 feet long. We reach Korosko, the last station in Egypt proper, and here the Soudan begins. We stop here for half an hour. There is a small outpost of Egyptian soldiers stationed here. Our course since two o'clock has been due north and the sun has been on the same side of the boat all day and those who did not notice the turn we took seemed sorely puzzled to see the sun set in the east, and the arguments advanced by many to account for this extraordinary appearance were laughable beyond description. We here camped in the largest palm grove I have seen since we left Assouan. The natives are quite friendly and not so greedy as those lower down.

October, 25.—Got an early start, breakfast at 3.35 a.m., and we are now running south again. We have passed a bank this morning that makes me cling to the theory I advanced in a previous letter more strongly, it was fully 30 feet high, its sides perpendicular, it has all the marks of rock strata, and is just between rock and clay, not hard enough for the one nor soft enough for the other. As I write we are passing the ruins of a town situated on the top of a cliff about 300 feet high. The cliff itself is perforated with innumerable holes and caves with well defined entrances.

Korosko is 110 miles from Wady Halfa which place we hope to reach to-morrow about noon. The country this last few days is studded with hills from one to three hundred feet high, mostly cone shaped, scorched black with the heat of the sun and devoid of the faintest sign of vegetation. As the sun goes down we land about a mile above the great rocky temples or tombs of Ipsamboul on the opposite bank of the river, the camel corps is encamped. When we passed the tombs we thought we were close to the shore, but the distance was deceptive and led us to think the salient features smaller by far than they really were. After tea we unloosed one of our boats and pulled over to see the wonders. We landed at the largest tomb and you may guess our astonishment when we gazed on the stupendous figures cut out of the solid face of the sandstone cliff. They were fully from 40 to 60 feet in height, and remarkably well cut and standing beside the knee of one figure was a smaller one about ten feet high, and another one was placed between its knees. These were figures of kings and were all in a sitting posture with their hands resting on their knees. You may form an idea of their size when I tell you I got twenty men to stand on the palm of one of their hands. The entrance to this tomb was covered with figures cut in relief, and after going through the cave we came upon the main room or hall; it had a row of pillars with figures 18 or 20 feet cut out of the side of each. The ceilings were all frescoed and the colors clear and very well preserved. The walls were covered with representations of warriors engaged in combat, some in chariots, some on horseback, and others on foot. Some gigant figures grasping as many as ten smaller ones by the hair with one hand, and the other uplifted as if to decapitate all at one sweep.

There is not much use in my trying to give a description of these wonders of the ages long past. I am not capable of doing so. Even had I the gift of doing so with efficacy, the wonders we beheld actually stupefied me with astonishment. I felt as if spell bound. When we left the cave of the Kings we again took to our boats and dropped down to the cave of the Queens, which has six giant figures standing at the entrance, as if guarding it.

The main room was only different from that previously visited in the nature of the cut. These all represented women and women's work. There were very many roomsin this latter cave, but, as our candles were nearly burned out, we had to make a hurried examination. The names of the number of visitors, as far back as 1806, are cut on the walls and no doubt the story of all these things has been told again and again by those who have had more time and more ability than your humble correspondent can pretend to.

The current here is very strong and our boat being crowded and manned in a hurry we had quite a time of it getting back to our camp. We lost ground until we got the crowd packed into the bow and stern, then ten of us bent our backs to the oars and soon walked up.

Thank heaven this will be our last night for a while in the small boats. We will reach Wady Halfa to-day.

Our men are enjoying good health. There is not any case of a serious nature among us. Our men are looking extra good.

Our foreman, Anderson, is looking and feeling fine, and the old friends of Sid. Blade, Merce Mowry, Peter Phelan, John White and Alexander Ross would not know them, they are so fresh and healthy looking. If the friends of the boys do not hear from them as often as they would wish they must not blame them for they depend on my letters to the REVIEW to give all the news—and a hard time I have to get a spot to write on. I am now lying on my side in the stern, with one knee doubled under my breast, my head not six inches from the paper, with a blanket for my desk, so you must make all the allowance you can for the many defects in my correspondence.

I must close now, so good-bye for the present. I could give you more news if I could put any faith in the many reports I hear of our future movements, etc., but I have been deceived so often that I conclude not to give you the benefit(?) of any of them, but send you only that the accuracy of which I am quite sure of.

Your voyageur friend,
J. A. S.

Oct. 27.—Seven miles above Wady Halfa, at the foot of the worst cataract of the Nile, at least that is what is said. Received papers dated 25th October, but no letter as yet. All hands are delighted at the prospect of a good day's read. Our dreams will be of home to-night. I have not another minute to spare, so good-bye to all.]

WRECK AND LOSS OF LIFE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—New Zealand advices say that the bark "Clyde," from Mauritius, was wrecked on November 5th, Akaroon, New Zealand. The Captain, his wife and three children, the officers and all the crew except one were drowned.

A TRIPLE CRIME.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The inquest in the case of Miss Key, the wealthy lady who was found murdered in her burning mansion at Babbicombe, Cornwall, on the 14th ult., has been concluded. The verdict of the jury is that the ex-convict, John Lee, who was Miss Key's servant, was the perpetrator of the triple crime of assaulting Miss Key, of murdering her, and of setting fire to her house in the hope of destroying the evidence of his guilt.

SICKNESS AT WADY HALFA.

CAIRO, Dec. 2.—Two hundred English are ill with enteric fever at Wady Halfa.

CHOLERA.

PARIS, Dec. 2—It is stated the French fleet is cholera stricken at Formosa.

AN ARREST.

DUBLIN, Dec. 2.—Bernard Campbell, who formerly resided in America, was arrested at Dungannon to-day, on a charge of treason felony. Schoolmaster Mallon swore that Campbell had tendered him an oath and solicited him to join the Fenian brotherhood.

THE REDISTRIBUTION BILL.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A meeting of Conservative members of both Houses was held to-day to decide upon the policy to be pursued in reference to the Redistribution bill. Lord Salisbury stated that perfect harmony prevailed throughout the negotiations with Mr. Gladstone regarding the bill. The contemplated measures would confer the franchise on two million citizens, with the least possible disturbance of the existing system. Sir Stafford Northcote concurred in Lord Salisbury's views. Mr. Chaplin, M.P. for Mid-Lincolnshire, dissented. He thought the measures offered very little hope to the Conservative party. The meeting decided that Conservatives should agree to the second reading of the bill in the House of Commons, deferring all discussion of its principles till the bill comes up in committee.

FRENCH CABINET CRISIS.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The election of M. Garnier (Bonapartist) to the French Chamber of Deputies, the recent outvoting of the Government in the Chamber, together with public discontent in relation to Chinese affairs, has revived the belief that a Cabinet crisis is imminent. M. Waldeck Rosseau, Minister of the Interior, has already signified his intention of resigning.

MIDLAND.

FIRE.—At an early hour on Tuesday morning a fire broke out in the fish warehouse of Mr. John Yates, near the Grand Trunk railway station. The building was almost totally destroyed, together with some four tons of white fish and trout awaiting shipment to the eastern Canadian and American markets. Loss about $300; no insurance.

NORWOOD.

LEGAL.—Messrs. Smith & Peck, barristers, &c., of Peterborough, have opened an office in Norwood. Mr. E. A. Peck, of the firm, visits the village every Tuesday afternoon and is to be found in his office over Messrs. Clark & McMillan's, Peterborough Street.

Ballot-Box Stuffing.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The Federal grand jury this afternoon returned a formal report declaring that the examination of the poll book and tally sheet of the sixth senatorial district shows undoubted evidence of forgery and fraud. The report says a crime whose boldness and wickedness is only equalled by its grossness has been committed. There has been abstracted over 200 ballots cast at the said election after and on the night of the election, and there have been substituted an equal number of spurious and false ballots which were never voted. The jury returned a number of indictments, but the names have not been made public.

A DUBIOUS COMPLIMENT.

THE Reform journals are still endeavoring to "elevate the standard of political morality."

The Brockville Recorder says:—

"The attack recently made by the Mail and other Tory papers on Hon. Mr. Mowat, respecting the alleged purchase of Mr. Hart's support, even if well founded, would be a high compliment to the Premier of Ontario."

What, then, is the charge made against the Attorney-General of Ontario, that should be considered as a compliment? It is that he bribed a member of the Legislature to support his party. It has been surmised by some and known by others that many of the Reform organs did not look upon bribery as a wrong when it was committed in the interest of their party, but the Recorder is the only one that has had the hardihood openly to acknowledge the truth. No doubt the "indiscreet youths" who carried out a system of corruption in Lennox and who piloted the drover through the constituency after he had been sent to them by others, are heroes in the eyes of the party, but their deeds pale before the glory of the action of the Attorney-General, for while they bribed electors, he waited until after the election was over and, for a consideration, secured the support of the member.

But the Recorder appears to feel that all of its readers would not view the Hart affair in the same light and that some of them might even think that Mr. Mowat did wrong. Hence, after assuring them that, even if the charge were well founded, it would be a high compliment to him, it hastens to say that it was only "a trifling lapsus" on the part of the Ontario Premier. How the Recorder can consider the imputation of even a trifling lapsus from strict integrity a high compliment it is difficult to understand, but when it assumes that this is the only charge that has been made and proven against Mr. Mowat it assumes too much. Not to go over the whole list, it was Mr. Mowat who appointed Mr. S. S. Peck to the bench in Haliburton and defended the appointment, and it was he who drafted the clause of the bill passed in the closing hours of the last session of the Legislature with the intention of saving some of his supporters from just punishment for acts of bribery. But if bribery itself is considered an act worthy of commendation, it would, of course, be considered a compliment to the Premier to say that he endeavored to shield political friends who were guilty of bribery from the punishment that the law inflicted.

The people at large, however, will look upon the matter differently. When the Reform organs can no longer defend Mr. Mowat from the charge of having purchased Mr. Hart's support, they need not cherish the hope that they can make the people believe that the purchase of the support of a member is a trifling matter, or that the fact that Mr. Mowat was able to bribe a representative of the people is an act for which he is to be complimented. The electors of Ontario have a higher ideal of political integrity than this, and the attempt to screen the Attorney-General by such an argument is an insult to their intelligence and to their sense of honor.

THE candidates for municipal honors will have to vary their addresses from the stereotyped form used in former years. They will begin something like this:—"To the free and independent electors of Ward No. —. Ladies and gentlemen," &c.

A Yarn from the West.

A man started to ride home from San Jose. His road lay for miles through fields of pumpkins and squashes. The constant pumpkins panorama finally dethroned his reason, and he reached home a maniac, crying, "See the squashes! See the squashes!" GEORGE STREET METHODIST CHURCH S.S.

The Secretary's Report at the Forty-Eighth Anniversary of the School.

Mr. A. Clegg, the Secretary of the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School, read the following satisfactory report at the anniversary meeting in the church on Monday evening:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

After another year of blessing and more than usual encouragement, we are met this evening to celebrate the 48th anniversary of our school. We are encouraged because the Almighty has blessed the efforts which we, as teachers and officers, have put forth. We have had the gratification during the past year of seeing quite a number of our scholars savingly converted and become members of our church. We are encouraged because of the very marked improvement on the part of the parents in the interest manifested in the school. This has been noticeable in the largely increased number of visitors on Sunday afternoons; but there is still room for improvement. There are a great many parents whom we have not seen in the school room during the session. Your visits always afford us pleasure, and we think if your visits were more frequent, your interest in the school and the work it is doing for your children would be increased.

We earnestly ask you to help us, and you can greatly help us by knowing where the lesson is and seeing that your children commit to memory the selected verses and the catechism.

It is very important that the children become familiar with the Scriptures by committing large portions of them to memory when young, because later in life it is more difficult, and they are soon forgotten, but those passages committed in early life remain fresh in the memory, even in extreme old age. And here I may just state that it is the intention of the officers of the school to arrange shortly a scheme of selected verses arranged topically, which the scholars will be asked to commit to memory, as they now do catechism. What we mean by topically is, for instance, verses bearing on faith, on the doctrine of the church, and especially such as will lead to a closer walk with God.

Further, we are encouraged by the punctual attendance and general good behaviour of the scholars. We are cheered by the frequent visits of our pastor and his amiable wife.

You see we are in no way disposed to grumble or complain. We have had sufficient money to meet all the requirements of the school, and some left with which to begin the new year. In July we were pleased to receive part of the Murray street school. We were for a little time afraid we would not have room, but they have been so distributed among the various classes and become so thoroughly identified with the school that it seems already as if they always belonged to us.

We have been studying the international series of lessons, each scholar being supplied with graded helps published by David C. Cook, and all the teachers have been supplied with the Sunday School Times, without doubt the best Sunday School paper in the world. Mr. F. Miller, leader of the choir, has very generously given his services to the school, and helped us very much by taking charge of the singing. The average attendance of scholars is 289, of teachers 31. The average number of teachers absent, 3. The number of verses recited by the boys 5,718, and by the girls 11,474 or 107 verses per Sunday for the boys and 216 for the girls. Our receipts are as follows: Balance from last year, $59.14, Sunday collections, $229.48, net proceeds of anniversary, $41.15, making in all $329.77. Out of this we have paid twenty dollars towards the Methodist Church at Calgary, North-West Territory, twenty-five ($25) to the Mission Society, five ($5) to Sunday School Association, $12.70, the expenses of our annual pic-nic, $15.00 to support a sick child in the hospital, $180.55 for Bibles, hymn books, lesson helps, &c., &c., for incidentals $25.05, leaving a balance on hand of $45.93. Through your liberality the officers have been able to provide the school with the best publications and with all the Sunday school requisites and appliances that to them seem necessary to promote the best interests of the school. Out of the money entrusted to us, we have also to keep up a library of over 1,000 volumes, which continually needs additions and repairs. But we will not take up your time by entering into our work in detail or by speaking of the various sections of the school. We have tried to keep before us the fact that the children are the Lord's and that we were training and teaching them for Him. We are careful that the children, redeemed by the precious blood of Jesus Christ and consecrated to God in baptism and thus being made members of the visible church, should remain in and grow up with the church, never having known a time of sowing of wild oats; unlike the prodigal, never having left their Father's house of plenty to feed on the husks and enjoy the pleasures of sin for a time, they will have no need to come back repentant, seeking admission and asking to be reinstated.

To more fully identify the children with the church we have two week day classes for special instruction and help in Christian living. The one in charge of Misses Allan and Ellsworth has a membership of about 40, between the age of 8 and 12 years. The other, in charge of Mrs. Tovell, has a membership of more than twenty young ladies, between the age of 12 and 16.

Members of these are from time to time, as circumstances advise, admitted into full membership with the church.

The element of change is becoming each year more noticeable in our school. Like birds of passage, teachers and scholars come in and stay a little time, then silently they pass away, until now from one end of our Dominion to the other, we find those who have gone out from this school filling positions of trust, from the ministerial benches in our legislative halls at Ottawa to the sturdy tiller of the soil in British Columbia and our fertile North-west.

Two of our members have passed from the school here to join our school in heaven. We have an ever increasing number up there of our superintendents, and teachers and scholars. There they know no change, none there are ever missed from the happy group. No deaths there, nor any tears, for God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. These added links in the chain which binds us to heaven seem to draw us thitherward and to bring Heaven nearer.

Friend after friend departs,
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of heart
That hath not here an end.

Were this frail world our only rest,
Living or dying, none were blest,
There is a world above, where parting is unknown,
A whole eternity of love formed for the good alone,
And faith beholds the dying here
Translated to that happy sphere.

Thus star by star declines, till all are passed away,
As morning high and higher shines to pure and perfect day;
Nor sink those stars in empty night,
They hide themselves in heaven's own light.

Fatal Gunning Accident.

LONDON, Dec. 1—News have just been received here of a sad accident which happened this afternoon in the neighbourhood of Petrolea. Three gentlemen from Sarnia were hunting in the woods in the township of Euniskillen and became separated, when one of the party named Miller, thinking he saw a deer, raised his rifle and fired. To his surprise and horror the object he shot at proved to be one of his companions, Mr. Joseph Woodhouse, who was found to be mortally wounded. Medical aid was speedily summoned from Petrola, but all efforts to save the unfortunate man's life proved unavailing.

MYSTERY OF MISTASSINI.

The Lake Known to the Jesuites two Hundred Years Ago.

In the Relations de Jesuites, it is recorded that Pere Charles Albanel, a member of the society, set out from the sout for Hudson Bay in 1672, and among the incidents of his trip detailed in a letter to his superior is as follows:—

"On the 18th (of June, 1672,) we entered on this great lake of the Mistassinis, which is said to be so large that it requires 20 days travelling with a fair wind to make its circuit. It takes its name from the rock with which it is filled, rocks of an immense size. In it there are many beautiful islands, on and near which there are game and fish of every sort. There are on them bears, elks, cariboo, porcupines and beavers in abundance. We had already travelled six leagues across the islands which cut up the lake when I perceived rising up at the limit of my vision a great hill. I asked our people whether we would travel towards that point. 'Hush,' said my guide, 'do not look that way unless you want to perish!' The savages of all these lands believe that whoever wishes to cross this lake must carefully guard against his curiosity, and must be careful not to look at this spot, and particularly not to cast a glance at the spot where he wishes to land. Simply to look at it, they say, produces storms and tempests which fill the bravest with terror."

Father Albanel is not the only authority for one of the writers of the Relations for 1643 tells graphically the characteristics of the "Missasasiniwek or Mistassinis, the savages who inhabit the borders of the great lake Mistassini," the great lake which lies to the north of Canada.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

NUMEROUS APPLICATIONS FOR THE POSITION VACATED BY MISS FAIR.

The Fee Question—Inspector Seath's Report on the Condition of the Institute—Communications and Accounts—The Proposed Grammar School.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Tuesday evening.

PRESENT,—Mr. James Stevenson, Chairman, and Messrs. Stratton, Rutherford, Kendry, Sawers, Sproule, Denne, Errett, Miller, Dumble, Wrighton, Weir and Cox.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

INQUIRIES.

Mr. Rutherford asked whose business it was to notify the different trustees when it was their turn to inspect the schools each month.

Mr SPROULE asked that a longer notice for committee meetings might be given.

Mr. KENDRY said that he had not received his notice until within a few hours of the time of meeting.

Mr. DENNE thought that forty-eight hours notice should be given in every case of a committee meeting.

Mr. MORROW, the secretary of the Board, stated that he went on Saturday to Mr. Dumble, the Chairman of the Committee on Appointments, and he had issued the notices according to his order. As soon a chairman of any of the committes informed him of the meetings he issued the notices at once.

COMMUNICATIONS AND ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid :—

R. S. Davidson	$1 10
Times Printing Co.	6 00

The following communications were read :—

From Dr. Tassie, stating that he had suspended a young student from school for repeated truancy—Received

From Miss J. Ellsworth, stating that she had a second class certificate, and asking for an appointment should any vacancy occur.—Received.

From A. Hutchinson, Head Master of the Norwood High School, recommending Miss Ellsworth as a teacher.—Received

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The Secretary read a statement of the attendance at the public schools during the month of November as follows :—

	On Roll.	Ave. Att.
Central school	601	526
West ward school	150	128
South ward school	204	167

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The Secretary read the following report made by the Public School Inspector :—

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education, Peterborough:—

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to report that I have visited all the rooms in the public schools during the month of November. I have no very marked change to report as since my last visit only a short time has elapsed. The teachers are zealous in promoting educational interests, but from the junior departments too much should not be expected, as it requires time for both physical and mental development. One of the evils of our school system is the teaching of too many subjects to small children. The subjects should be limited in number. I have found no irregularities to report.

I am, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JAS. STRATTON.

SCHOOL FEES.

Mr. ERRETT asked if a statement had been sent in in reference to the school fees.

The SECRETARY stated that he had received in all $60, $48 from Dr. Tassie and $12 from the Public Schools.

THE CONDITION OF THE INSTITUTE.

An extract was read from the report of J. Seath, Inspector of High Schools, as follows :

A salary of $750 is paid to the master of the Preparatory Form for teaching seven pupils, while the salary of each of the assistants, who are graduates, and who teach the highest work in their respective departments, is only $900. As the income from the Preparatory Form can not, as matters stand, exceed $150 a year, it is evident that the liberality of the Board is misdirected, I do not wish to be understood as reflecting on the ability of the teacher of the form, but the amount paid for his services is proportionately large. My objection is strengthened by the fact that to pay this amount the Board must use the fees paid by the pupils of the Institute proper, which fees should in justice be expended for the benefit of those who pay them.

Both Dr. Tassie and Mr. Long teach preparatory classes, which is not in accordance with the school law, which provides that no High School teacher shall teach such classes.

Very good results have been already attained in several of the departments. I was much pleased with Mr. Earl's teaching, and with the proficiency, order and tone of his classes. Mr. Long, though a recently appointed master, is making good progress and is adopting good methods; and Mr. Horning, though an inexperienced teacher, will, I am confident, prove a successful one. In the classical department, which is a large one, considering the size of the school, the pupils are being well drilled in elementary work.

The report was, on motion, received.

TEACHERS' QUALIFICATIONS.

The SECRETARY read a paper containing Miss Errett's qualifications as a teacher, and her marks in the various subjects on passing her intermediate examination.

TEACHERS' APPLICATIONS.

Several applications asking for an appointment should any vacancy occur in the Public Schools were read by the Secretary, and were referred to the Committee on Appointments.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATION ACCOUNTS.

Mr. WRIGHTON asked what had been done in regard to the matter of Mr. J. C. Brown for services at the entrance examinations.

The SECRETARY read a reply from the Department stating that the County Inspector should take charge of the entrance examinations, and that the Board were chargable for the expenses incurred so far as the pupils of the High School were concerned.

Mr. ERRETT also read a letter from the Department stating that the county was obliged to pay its proportion of the expenses. He also stated that Mr. Brown was employed by the Government and not by this Board, and that, in his opinion, the Government should pay their own officers and that the Board was in no way responsible.

The CHAIRMAN said that Mr. Brown had been tacitly allowed to take charge of the examinations during the last few years. It would be better to pay the account and dispense with his services hereafter.

Mr. DUMBLE said that it was a small matter and it was better that it should be settled.

Mr. MILLAR moved, seconded by Mr. STRATTON,—That Messrs. Dumble, Errett and the Chairman be a committee to wait on the County Council at their next sitting in regard to the matter.—Carried.

THE TRUSTEE ELECTION.

Mr. ERRETT moved, seconded by Mr. MILLAR, —That the same persons who were returning-officers at the last election of trustees are hereby appointed returning-officers for the several wards for the trustee election which takes place this month, and that the polling places be at the same places as are used for municipal election purposes.—Carried.

PLAYING TRUANT.

Dr. Tassie was heard in reference to the boy suspended who was in the habit of playing truant. He had refused to apologize, after repeated truancy, and, therefore, he had been suspended.

THE INCREASED FEES.

In answer to Mr. Millar, Dr. Tassie stated that the increased fees had a tendency to shut out outside pupils. The $2 fee was not in the interest of the school.

A HIGH RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. STRATTON moved, seconded by Mr. RUTHERFORD,—That Miss Fair having tendered her resignation as teacher in the Public School with a view to pursuing a still higher course in the University, this Board regretfully accepts her resignation. They, however, take advantage of the opportunity to give expression to their appreciation of her services while engaged by this Board. They have always found her a very zealous, careful and painstaking teacher, manifesting the greatest interest in her work and in her pupils, apt to communicate, governing with kindness and inspiring her pupils with her own enthusiastic love of study, and giving the fullest satisfaction to the Board and to the parents of pupils. They wish her success in aiming at a still higher literary standing and express a hope that they may again be able to secure her services.—Carried.

THE FEES AGAIN.

Mr. MILLAR moved, seconded by Mr. DUMBLE,—That the resolution passed at the Board meeting on the 8th October, in reference to the question of fees of pupils entering the Collegiate Institute, be recinded, and that in lieu thereof a fee of $1 be charged each pupil entering for the entrance examinations, to be refunded to those pupils who pass, and no charge be made to pupils of our own school.

Mr. RUTHERFORD did not think it was fair to allow outsiders to come in and compete against home talent. The fee as it stood was certainly a small enough one.

Mr. COX said that there was such a thing as putting a ten cent piece so close to the eye that it would be impossible to see a fifty cent piece, and that proceeding would be similar to the proceedings of this Board. Their object should be to bring to Peterborough as many people as possible and not to drive them to other places. They could not be in town without benefiting it in some way.

The motion was put and lost.

Mr. SPROULE moved, seconded by Mr. SAWERS, —That the resolution be so amended that it read that pupils attending the school shoul be exempt from a fee of $2 dollars.

Mr. STRATTON asked if it would not be as easy for the staff to teach 250 pupils as 80 or 90.

In answer to Mr. Cox, Dr. TASSIE stated that if the fees were taken off there would be more pupils. There were about 33 outside pupils but scarcely any of these were from the County of Peterborough. It was only fair, however, to make a charge for entrance examination expenses.

Mr. KENDRY asked where all these pupils were to be put even if they did come to Peterborough. The present building was barely large enough to accommodate the present number of pupils.

Mr. DUMBLE said that a key note might as well be struck to night as at any time. The time was coming when a grammar school would have to be built. The rental of the present building was enough to pay the interest on a sum sufficient to build a substantial separate building away from the noise and clatter of hundreds of youngsters.

The motion was put and carried and the Board went into a Committee on Appointments in order to select a teacher to fill the position vacated by Miss Fair.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

A BRAVE CAPTAIN.

Lashed All Night to the Wheel While a Storm Rages.

The Akbar, a brig which arrived in Providence on Monday from Turk's island loaded with salt, had a most thrilling expierence when off Hatteras on the 15th, 16th and 17th days of November, the first mate, Augustus H. Ingalls, of Machias, Me., a worthy seaman and good officer, being swept overboard by the fury of the gale. The Akbar is a stout brig, and the captain is Ira O. Holmes, also of Machias, a fine specimen of the down-east sailor. The captain willingly related all he knew about the death of his mate, but was modestly silent about his own brave conduct throughout the storm, until a gentlemen present called attention to it and perhaps the most interesting thing to a landsman was the evident unconsciousness on the part of the captain of having done anything worthy of mention, or of deserving any credit for performing his duty. The Akbar sailed from Oporto for Turk's island, and from Turk's island, as stated, for this city. On the morning of the 15th a moderate easterly gale began. The vessel was then running northward. The gale gradually shifted to the north northwest and increased in severity. At noon on the 16th the captain wore ship, heading to the eastward, the gale at this time having grown to be a furious storm. About 8 o'clock in the evening the cargo shifted, the vessel going on her beam ends. The captain was lashed to the wheel, the cabin was full of water, and the end of the fore yard was dragging in the sea. The mate, Mr. Ingalls, was checking in braces when a great wave swept the vessel, and carried him over board. No attempt could be made to save him. He disappeared immediately, and a boat could not have lived a minute in the raging sea. The vessel was then in latitude 30 deg., longitude 75 deg., north of Hatteras, and about opposite Albermarle sound. For twelve hours Captain Holmes remained lashed to the wheel, all hrough the night, the storm showing no signs of abatement till morning. Then all hands went into the hold, and by readjusting the cargo lightened the vessel and brought her to the wind again. The rest of the voyage was stormy, but there was no more gales of similar fury. Fortunately the weather during the storm was not very cold, and the water, on the edge of the gulf stream, was warm. Otherwise the exposure might have been a serious, if not fatal matter for the hardy sailors. Mr. Ingalls, the lost mate was about 30 years of age, and had a wife and four children at Machias. He has been on the Akbar about a year, and was well liked, his loss causing deep sorrow to captain and crew.

Railway Accident.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Dec. 2.—An open switch on the Utica road, about half a mile below the American village of Morristown, opposite Brockville, caused an accident to the express going South at 8.55 this morning. The engine, tender and baggage car left the rails and went into the ditch, making quite a wreck. Strange to say, the trainmen and passengers suffered no serious injury beyond a severe shaking up. As soon as possible a yard engine was sent down from Morristown, and in an hour or so traffic was again resumed. The amount of damage cannot yet be approximated.

Shaker Blood Syrup

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like Shaker Blood Syrup. It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take my word. Ask your neighbour, who has taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

Shaker Syrup Company: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I have heard of your Blood Syrup, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indegestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,
O. F. TWICHELL,

The spacious school house was literally crowded, and all seemed well pleased. After Mr. J. E. Belcher had taken the chair, the Rector, the Rev. J. W. R. Beck, briefly described the beneficial objects of the two societies and their work. Miss Tate played the overture on the new piano that had just been procured by the two societies from Williams & Co., of Toronto, and which has given much satisfaction. Miss Addie Errett sang "Ehren on the Rhine," Miss Minnie Errett playing the accompaniyment, as she did throughout the evening. Mr. Earl read Burns' "A man's a man for a' that" and "The cane bottom chair." Miss Bannerman sang "My dearest heart" and Mr. A. D. Browne, the "Beautiful girl of Kildare." Mr. P. E. Cooper recited the "Death of Montrose." The first part was concluded by a tableau, "Sing a Song of Sixpence," Walter Revel representing the king and Harold Ward and Alex. Miller his two pages, the blackbirds in the pie being Misses Minnie Beck, Edith Pearse, Gussie Mathias, Louisa Carr and Lillie Pearse. The applause caused the curtain to be withdrawn for a second view. Miss Minnie Beck opened the second part by a well played solo on the piano; "The Light of Other days." Miss Bannerman sang "The Maid of Arcadie," and Mr. J. French sang "Jessie's Dream." Mr. W. Hooper recited "Curfew Shall not Ring To-night." Miss C. Stevens sang "I'll Remember You, Love," and in response to a warm encore gave, "When the Flowing Tide Comes in." Miss Shilsbury and Miss Tate played a duet on the piano. The tableau of "Little Miss Muffatt" was then presented. Miss Louise Carr made a very pretty Miss Muffatt and Walter Revel a very terrific spider. The singing of God Save the Queen concluded a very successful entertainment.

THE SONS OF SCOTLAND

CELEBRATE THE ANNIVERSARY OF ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

A Large Attendance at the Annual Dinner—A Good Spread—Sentiments, Songs and Speeches.

The anniversary of St. Andrew's day fell on Sunday this year, and on that day the annual sermon to the members of the St. Andrew's Society was preached. On Tuesday evening the annual dinner was held in a hall in the Opera House. There was a large attendance of Scotchmen and descendants of Scotchmen, and a number of gentlemen of other nationalities. Mr. A. D. Faucher was the caterer for the occasion, and he provided a spread that was creditable to his house and did credit to the occasion. The hall was nicely decorated and well lighted.

Mr. D. McDonald, the piper of the Society, was present and played several inspiring airs on his bagpipes. The Peterborough Orchestra was also present, and played selections at intervals during the evening.

After the "removal of the cloth" Mr. D. McLeod, President of the Society, took the chair, and Mr. John Erskine, 1st Vice-President, the vice-chair.

Mr. W. Cummings, secretary, read letters from Mr. Geo. A. Cox and Dr. Tassie, expressing regret at their inability to be present.

The PRESIDENT said that he was glad to see such a large assembly present. The society was in a prosperous condition. In the name of their Society and nationality he urged them to be diligent in securing members and in assisting the officers to raise the Society to a high plane. He proposed the first sentiment "The Queen, Prince of Wales and Royal Family."

The Peterborough Orchestra played the National Anthem.

The Vice-Chairman proposed "The Governor-General."

Mr. D. D. Galletly sang "Hail to the Chief," accompanied by the orchestra.

Mr. Telford, ex-President, proposed "The Army, Navy and Canadian Volunteers."

Mr. James Stewart sang "The Red, White and Blue."

Mr. E. B. EDWARDS returned thanks for the reception of the toast, and said that it was appropriate that the three departments should be so closely associated at the present time when Canadian volunteers were assisting the army in the war in Egypt.

Mr. T. Menzies proposed "The Dominion Government and Provincial Legislature."

Mr. JOHN BURNHAM, M. P., responded. He thought it unfortunate that they had not a member of the Senate to respond, as he thought there was no reason why this district should not be represented in the Senate. We were now no longer in the rear; Peterborough was now in the front, and it was advisable for a district to have all the legislative influence they could obtain. In regard to the House of Commons, they were satisfied with its formation and no change was desired. In England there was an agitation for a change in the House of Lords, but they were satisfied with the constitution of the Canadian Commons. The Commons comprised all nationalities, from the native Canadians to the aborigines, and it might have been owing to the vigilance of the Globe that they had not the Jamaica negro, and probably they would ere long have the Chinee. The Commons was so constituted that it represented the opinions of the people. The Government was careful of the interests of the people. Their patriotism—which was sometimes called "clannishness"—was creditable to Scotchmen, so long as it was not carried too far. The adherence to nationality, evinced by Scotchmen, was creditable, but at the same time he believed they gloried in being Canadians.

Mr. THOS. BLEZARD, M.P.P., said the duties of the Provincial Legislature were different from those of the Dominion Parliament, as they dealt more directly with the people. Some thought the number of members of the Legislature should be reduced, but he did not think that would be wise. He did not say that the members were more honest than they should be, and perhaps they were weaker than they thought. When a bill was introduced the member introducing it was always sure to have a number of personal friends, and it was advisable to have a large number of members. He often thought our Government paid too much attention to the higher grades of education and not enough to the public schools. He was afraid they were highly educating too many. He had been brought up among Scotchmen, and would not wish better neighbors. He paid a compliment to the Society for the good charitable work it was doing.

The President proposed "The Day and All Who Honor It."

Mr. D. D. Galletly sang, "Scotland Yet."

Dr. MASSIE, Keene, responded to the toast. He referred to St. Andrew, whom tradition said introduced Christianity into Scotland, and to the strictness with which which Scotchmen observed the Sabbath. It was love for country that had caused the patriotism of the world, and he liked to see any man love his country, whatever country it was. There was something noble in clannishness, when it caused patriotism and was not so narrow as to altogether exclude the rest of the world. He paid a tribute to the genuine patriotism of Scotchmen.

The Vice-Chairman proposed "The Poet and Poetry of Scotland." Mr. Henry Bowie sang "Hame Cam' oor Guid Man."

Mr. D. D. GALTETLY paid an eloquent tribute to the poets of Scotland and closed by proposing the sentiment, "The Bard of the Peterborough Society, Mr. Wm. Telford."

Mr. TELFORD responded by reading a poem written for the occasion.

Mr. Alex. Morrison sang, "The Man Behind the Plough," and Mr. Galletly sang "McGregor's Gathering."

The President proposed "Canada, our Home."

Mr. GEO. EDMISON returned thanks for the manner the toast was honored in a neat speech.

"Our Educational Institutions and the Learned Professions" was honored.

Mr. J. FRITH JEFFERS responded on behalf of the educational institutions, and ascribed the development of the sons of Scotland to the educational institutions of that country. He advised them to keep their common schools, grammar schools and universities, and to foster the agricultural examinations recently established.

Mr. W. H. MOORE responded on behalf of the legal profession, and referred to many eminent legal lights who were Scotchmen.

"The Commercial, Manufacturing and Agricultural Interests" were proposed.

Mr. THOS. MENZIES responded on behalf of the commercial interests.

Mr. BENJ. SHORTLY, on behalf of the manufacturing industries, also responded.

Mr. THOS. BLEZARD, M. P. P., responded on behalf of the agricultural interests. He urged the importance of mixed farming.

Mr. Bowie sang "Allister McAllister."

"The Mayor and Corporation of the Town of Peterborough" was proposed and honored.

Councillor MENZIES responded in a brief speech.

"Our Mothers, Wives and Sweethearts," was the next toast.

The orchestra played a selection.

Mr. CHAS. CAMERON responded on behalf of the ladies.

"The Press" was responded to by representatives of the Examiner and REVIEW.

The company sang "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem, a vote of thanks was tendered to the Chairman, and one of the pleasantest celebrations of St. Andrew's Day ever held by the Peterborough Society was brought to a close.

A BOLD BIGAMIST.

Attempts the Guiteau Act of Crankism—Still Threatens Suicide.

DETROIT, Dec. 2.—A Toledo despatch says during yesterday Newbold, alias Neivelie, maintained a constant moaning for his wife, Miss Whitney, talking of her incessantly. About five o'clock he had several severe cramps, which bent him in a horrible manner. Since six o'clock he has been unconscious. Previously he was quite rational, his thoughts constantly roaming, sometimes in France, Detroit, Canada, the court, and in the gaol, reciting incidents of his life's history at each place. Wherever he is Miss Whitney is his constant companion. He took his attendant for Mr. Whitney, and called him the vilest names imaginable, intermingled with a free use of a flourishing fist. He became quiet and began talking in a low tone of voice. It is said by two persons who heard him at this point that he revealed one of his most precious secrets. One attendant gave information confidentially that the secret was one which Mr. Whitney for a long time tried to find out. Prior to attempting suicide Newbold detailed certain important facts relative to his former life to an intimate prison companion named House, who asserts that he will not tell the same for love or money. Newbold, while rational, openly and forcibly declared that he would never enter penitentiary alive, and that he is prolonging life in expectation of a new trial. He says he has more foxglove in his possession, and defies the authorities to discover the place of concealment. Since yesterday his cell door has been locked to guard against emergiences. No stock is taken in his statement. At time he appears quite rational, and talks sensibly and low. He was at one time in convulsions, requiring four attendants to subdue his efforts to gain his feet. He was fighting imaginary duels with Frenchmen for attempting to kiss his wife, and in his wild random conversation he uses immense words, the sentences being well constructed. Waking once and casting his eyes about he said, "This is the queerest wall paper I ever saw." Covering his face with his hands, he burst out sobbing in a voice of anguish that sent a chill to the heart of every hearer. The doctor retains great hopes of the prisoner's speedy recovery.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing, Andrew McNeil.

Santa Claus.

The fancy store of Mr. C. B. Routley at the present time presents a very gay and luxuriant aspect. Now that the Christmas holiday season is drawing near Mr. Routley has stocked his store from top to bottom with everything in his line requisite for Christmas presents. Toys of every conceivable variety, handsome sleighs for children, miniature China ware, and a host of articles of the more substantial kind suitable for presents for the more advanced in years are here shown to good advantage. Mr. Routley has added another show room directly above the store, where almost as many articles are to be seen as in the store below. The windows are tastefully dressed, and the whole establishment betokens the gladness and gaiety of the holidays.

A fine assortment of MEN'S UNDERCLOTHING, Socks, Scarfs and Ties, Kid Gloves and Mitts, Silk and Linen Handkerchiefs. J. ERSKINE.

Dictionary and Moral Code for Daily Use.

Lie—A falsehood. A very wicked think for other folks to tell. When I do it myself it is just a little fib. Can't help it, sometimes, you know.

Thief—One who steals things. People who steal are sent to prison. But if rich people take things belonging to other folk, we call them "kleptomaniacs," and feel very sorry for them, poor dears!

Improper Conduct—Sarah Jane, at the area gate, flirting with her young man; but if young Mr. Moneybags does stay a long while and gets his arm around Evelina Amelia's waist, and even kisses her, what's the use of seeing it through the parlor door? It's a good match, if he only proposes, as he may if let alone.

Charity—Giving away what we can't possibly make any use of to the deserving poor, who can't make any use of it either.

Frankness—Hateful things we say to others.

Insolence—The same things said to us.

Baby next door—A dreadful little creature that shrieks all night. Can't sleep for him. Wish they would drown babies as they do kittens.

Baby at Number One—Such an angel; only "cries a little in a middle of a dark, dark night, when couldn't see mamma."

Wisdom—A man buying his clothes and furnishings at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall.

Gold Medal Ale.

If you want a glass of Labatt's prize medal fine ale (special brewing) call at W. H. Chamberlain's Parlour Restaurant. This ale has received four gold medals at the World's Exposition, Paris, Australia, Philadelphia and Canada. It is kept in one of the best cellars in Canada, and is pleasant to the taste, and at the same time a wholesome beverage.

Sweet Apple Cider.

We take pleasure in announcing to our numerous patrons and the public generally that we still hold the exclusive agency for the Belleville Cider Works. This Cider needs no comment from us, as the quantity we sold last year is sufficient proof of pureness and delicacy of flavour. CARTON, BROS., opposite Market Square.

If you want Underclothing, don't procrastinate, but avail yourself of the twenty per cent. discount now being offered on all sales of Winter Underclothing at Andrew McNeil's.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Reel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Again Enlarged.

The case of W. D. Abercrombie, charged with tampering with the mails, was enlarged for one week at Belleville, on Wednesday.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate south and south-west winds, fair to cloudy winds, higher temperatures.

GAMES AND DOLLS are new lines for A. L. DAVIS & Co., but we have astonished some at our prices.

The Firemen.

Our lady readers will please bear in mind the meeting at the Mechanics' Institute at 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon. It is not proposed to ask the ladies to themselves contribute what is necessary, but rather to form a committee of management to collect the funds and purchase what is wanted. The merchants and others whose property is protected will, we are sure, gladly contribute all the money that will be required.

At Our Sister Town.

The same programme for the concert, with slight variation, which was held in Bradburn's Opera House, Peterborough, a short time ago, under the leadership of Miss A. Delaney, and which called forth so much favourable comment was rendered at Bradburns Opera House, Lindsay, on Wednesday evening. The hall was crowded, and the audience gave vent to their satisfaction in frequent encores to the performers. A company in all numbering about twenty-five composed the excursion, and they speak in the highest terms as to the hospitable treatment they received at the hands of their Lindsay friends. They returned on the noon train to-day.

The best Sausage in town, 3 pounds for twenty-five cents, at Geo. Matthew's, George St.

The Pathfinder.

The Pathfinder Railway Guide for December is a number that no business man can afford to miss, as it includes all of the recent changes, which, for this reason of the year, are unusually large and important, and practically complete the winter schedules. Several new time-tables appear in the current issue, and every page bears evidence of careful revision and a desire on the part of the publishers to maintain the reputation for accuracy which has made the Pathfinder the leading guide of the country. In the editorial pages we find many interesting items and the usual official reports of the various meetings held during the past month in the Pathfinder rooms, in which all the leading railroad organizations hold their meetings. Single copies of the Guide are sold by all newsdealers or mailed by the publishers for 25 cents. Subscription price, $2.50 per year. Address, Pathfinder, Boston.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

John Erskine.

Among the leading dry goods houses of Peterborough that of John Erskine occupies a front place. Preference is given to this store because of the acknowledged reliability of the goods and for the fair and honest representation of the quality of the goods. Since the completion of the various enlargements and improvements in the premises, which had been going on for some months, the arrangements for the display of the stock are very perfect. Full lines of all staple dry goods are shown with excellent effect, and convenient for both buyer and seller. Perhaps the principal attraction at this season of the year is the Fancy Goods and Haberdashery, the stock embracing thousands of articles. French, German, English and Canadian goods and notions and novelties too numerous to mention are to be found here, making a selection of goods for the holiday gift season which one would find little difficulty in purchasing from. There is a comprehensive collection of Japanese, Swiss and Chinese goods, including brackets, handkerchief boxes, glove boxes, card holders, trays, work boxes, jewel cases, tea sets, vases, &c. A large variety of fancy work on canvass and plush for slippers, cushions, &c., embroidery, wools and knitting silks. Specially worthy of notice is an assortment of Bible Text Books and Scripture cards, illustrated leaflets and Scripture mottoes, &c., very appropriate for Christmas gifts.

COUNTY COURT.

John Ferguson Acquitted From His Present Charge and Arrested on Another.

The County Court continued in session today, The first case heard was that of RUTHERFORD vs. KERR, an action brought by John Rutherford, the plaintiff, against J. C. Kerr, the defendant, for a breach of contract in the building of a barn. As no defence was put in a judgment was given for the plaintiff.—Mr. E. B. Edwards for the plaintiff.

BAPTIE vs. LASHER.—The action between Mr. John D. Baptie and Mr. Wm. Lasher in respect of a disputed account. Owing to the absence of the defendant in Winnipeg, the trial was postponed.—Mr. R. E. Wood for plaintiff, and Mr. C. W. Sawers for defendant.

STEWART vs. JACKSON.—This was rather a peculiar case, and one of interest to the farming community. It was brought by Joseph Stewart, farm labourer, against Mr. Robert Jackson, of Otonabee, for the recovery of wages. It appeared from the evidence that on the 24th November, 1883, Stewart hired with Jackson for one year for $200, but did not commence work until the 28th, and worked until 17th August following. The plaintiff claimed $118. The defendant set up the defence, that as the hiring was for a year, and as the plaintiff left his employ before the year was up, he was not entitled to any wages whatever. To this defence the plaintiff replied that according to the terms of the agreement he was not to commence work until some days after the hiring, and that as the agreement was not in writing, under the Statute of Frauds, neither party was liable on it, but that he (Stewart) was entitled to wages for services rendered. The Judge charged the jury that if they found the bargain was for a year—work to commence at once, they should find in favor of the defendant, but that if they considered the plaintiff was not to commence work until a future day, they should find in his favor. The verdict of the jury was that the plaintiff was not to commence work until the 28th Nov'r, and that he was entitled to $114.—Mr. C. W. Sawers for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. B. Edwards for the defendant.

QUEEN vs. SULLIVAN.—A liquor appeal case, John Sullivan, hotel keeper, was convicted at the Police Court for infringing on the License Act on May the 20th, 1883. The jury quashed the conviction.—Mr. C. A. Weller for the prosecution, and Mr. J. O'Meara for the defence.

QUEEN vs. YOUNG.—A liquor appeal case. Jas. Young, hotel keeper, was convicted at the Police Court on August 6th, 1884, for having infringed on the License Act on the previous Sunday. Mr. Young has a license under the Dominion Act and the conviction was made under the Ontario Act. The defence urged that the conviction was not valid and that the information should have been laid in accordance with the Dominion Act. Judgment was reserved until a decision is given on an action now pending, which will decide as to which act is in force.—Mr. C. A. Weller for the prosecution, and Mr. W. H. Moore for the defence.

FRICE vs. BROOD.—An action brought by Richard Frice, the plaintiff, a farm laborer, against James Brood, a farmer of the Township of Douro, to recover wages at $20 per month for nine and a half months. A judgment was given for the plaintiff for the whole amount less $30 paid to him by the defendant.—Mr. A. P. Poussette for the plaintiff and Mr. C. A. Weller for the defendant.

QUEEN vs. FERGUSON.—A larceny case. John Ferguson was committed for trial by the Police Magistrate on a charge of having stolen a silver watch, the property of Wm. Noyes, on the 17th June. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty and the prisoner was released.—Mr. C. A. Weller for the prosecution and C. W. Sawers for the defence.

Immediately after being discharged he was again taken in custody by P. C. Pigeon on a charge of being implicated in the burglary, on the 24th October, of the fur store of Joseph Mills.

JACKMAN vs. SAUNDERS.—An action brought for the recovery of wages. A counter account was put in and the matter was referred to Mr. C. A. Weller, to take the accounts.—Mr. J. O'Meara for the plaintiff and Mr. C. W. Sawers for the defendant.

MORRISON vs. SCRIBNER.—An action regarding a promissory note. The note was made by Robt. Johnston, who lives near Omemee, which, together with four others, amounted in all to $1,000. They were all endorsed by the defendant, who sold to Johnston a patent right for a churn and who took in payment these notes. One of these notes the defendant gave to the plaintiff in payment for a team of horses representing that the money might be had on presenting the note at a certain bank. Johnston failed to pay the note and the plaintiff brings the action against the defendant as the endorser. The defense maintained that the horse purchased was a kicker and not according to representation and claimed a refund of $50. Judgment for plaintiff with the deduction of $50.—D. W. Dumble for the plaintiff and Mr. R. E. Wood for the defendant.

CULLEN vs. SCRIBNER.—An action similar to the last. The defendant as the endorser of a note was held responsible for its payment.—Mr. D. W. Dumble for the plaintiff and Mr. R. E. Wood for the defendant.

A BEAUTIFUL LINE of Plush Satchels to arrive to-morrow at A. L. DAVIS' & Co.

Thrown from a Buggy.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. John Menzies, and the two Misses Bradfield, her sisters, of Douro, were driving up George street in a buggy. When passing a store the horse became frightened by the ringing of an auction bell. It increased its pace into a rapid trot, and notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the ladies to stop it, the horse broke into a gallop. The ladies became alarmed and screamed for assistance, but their cries had the effect of spurring the horse into a more rapid gait. He ran furiously northward, and when at the corner of George and Hunter streets suddenly turned towards the Ashburnham bridge. The buggy was overturned, and all three of the ladies were thrown violently to the ground. They were all very badly bruised, especially the Misses Bradfield. They were taken into the drug store of Messrs. Taylor & Macdonald, where restoratives were given and lotions applied to relieve the pain. Fortunately no bones were broken, and the ladies are not seriously, though painfully, hurt. After recovering from their fright they were conveyed home in a carriage. The horse was caught in Ashburnham.

The Smallpox Outbreak.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 3.—There are 18 patients in the smallpox hospital at Stoco, and no more can be admitted at present. Two Sisters of Charity besides Mis Bennet and three men employed by the Board of Health attend on the patients. The contagion is not spreading to new places, but some members of families in which it had appeared are taking it. Father Fleming is recovering from his illness, which was caused by vaccination and over exertion. Tweed continues to be free from the contagion.

A Most Extraordinary Case.

George Sabins, son of Eli M. Sabin, living in the township of Cramahe, was sawing in his father's mill on Nov. 14th, when an edging falling across the circular saw, was thrown with immense velocity, striking the young man in the inner part of the left eye, blinding the eye instantly, and displacing it forwards and outwards. Although bleeding profusely, he walked home, a distance of half a mile. A doctor was sent for and tended him up till Monday. The case not progressing satisfactorily, the father brought him to Port Hope to consult Dr. Hamilton. The doctor, after probing the wound an inch deep, discovered a foreign body—in the orbit of the eye—and advised an operation for its removal. This operation was performed at 12 o'clock Tuesday, by Dr. Hamilton, assisted by Dr. Corbett. After placing the patient under chloroform, and enlarging the external wound, what was the doctor's astonishment to find that on laying hold of the foreign body with a strong forcep, it was almost immovable, but on using vigorous fraction, inch after inch was drawn out, till a piece of pine wood two and three-quarter inches long, three fourths of an inch broad and half an inch thick was removed from the poor fellow's eye. And fancy this big piece of wood nearly four weeks in his eye, what intense suffering he must have experienced during these long weeks, We are glad to be able to state that the poor fellow is likely to make a speedy recovery, but with loss of sight of the left eye. This is certainly one of the most extraordinary cases on record.—Port Hope Guide.

A Remarkable Escape.

Mrs. Mary A. Daily, of Tunkannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give do relief. Her life was despared of, until last October she tried a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50lbs. in a few months. Free trial bottles of this certain cure for all throat and lung diseases at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning? The signal perhaps of the approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cts., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough it never fails. This explains why more than a million bottle were sold the past year. It relieves croup or whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest use Shiloh's porous plaster. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Drunkenness, or the Liquor Habit, can be cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it, effecting a speedy and permanent cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken the Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. No harmful effects result from its administration. Cures guaranteed. Circulars and testimonials sent free. Address, Golden Specific Co., 185 Race St., Cincinnati, O.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1884.

THE PEOPLE WITH THE PEERS.

After all the rabid abuse of the House of Lords in which the old country Liberals have been indulging, abuse so gross that it led to acts of violence, Mr. Gladstone and his colleagues have had to give way. They endeavored to force through Parliament a Franchise bill adding millions to the electorate, while reserving to themselves the power to redistribute these votes as might be most to their advantage politically. The Upper House, acting within its constitutional rights, expressed its willingness to assent to the Franchise bill, but insisted upon the propriety of the whole scheme being before it, including the arrangements for the redistribution of the constituencies. Mr. Gladstone, after endeavoring to raise the country against the Peers, gave way, submitted his redistribution scheme for consideration, and so modified it from the first draft as to disarm serious opposition. In fact the only extreme antipathy to the proposed measure is manifested by the Radical wing of the Liberal party, Mr. Courtney going so far as to resign his place in the Administration.

This result shows one of the benefits of a second chamber. The Peers did not oppose the will of the people or a popular measure, but they insisted upon due consideration of an important step, and that the very proper extension of the electorate should not be used by a political party temporarily in power, but unwilling to face the people in a general election, as a means of giving themselves an unfair advantage politically. The consequence is that the measure to be adopted will meet with the general approval, not merely of a section of the people, but of the nation as a body. Not for the first time in its history the House of Lords has been proved to be more truly representative of the body of the people, than a party majority in the Lower House, when that majority has been growing out of favor with the people.

We notice that some of the Reform journals in Canada, commenting on the Redistribution measure in the old country, are saying that the assertion that the Irish representation was to be reduced has been proved erroneous. In making the modification required to meet the views of the Conservative party, Mr. Gladstone has taken the opportunity to reverse this portion of his scheme, but he has attained the same end by a side wind. He has allowed the Irish representation at Westminster to remain numerically the same, but he has increased the numbers of both the English and Scotch members.

THE SCOTT ACT IN PETERBOROUGH.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—As so many counties have adopted the Scott Act in Ontario, is it not time the people of this county were stirring themselves to have it submitted here? Public opinion is favourably formed for its reception, and the present moment is a rine one for its introduction. Then why the delay? It is seldom that the energies of our county lie dormant when such incalculable good can be affected as that which would ensue by the passing of the Scott Act.

There ought to be a meeting called together of those favourable to the Act and have the necessary proceedings taken for its submission to the county, and once the critical step is taken the rest will follow.

Yours, etc.
TEMPLAR.

Peterborough, Dec. 3, 1884.

Mexico's Cabinet Ministers.

City of Mexico, Nov. 2.—President Diaz has appointed the following cabinet: Minister of foreign relations, Ignacio Mariscal, (Now minister to England); Minister of war, General Pedro Hinojosa; minister of justice, Joaquin Baranda; minister of the treasury, Manuel Dublan; minister of the interior, Manuel Romroe Rubio.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

ANNEXATION NOT WANTED.

The idea of annexing Canada, or any part of it, to the United States is still more repugnant to prevailing sentiment than that of secession. —Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

THE COST OF THE RULERS.

A United States paper the other day pointed out that, despite the repeated outcries of the radical members of the House of Commons to every additional sum added to the royal treasuries, the cost to the nation of the quadrennial presidential election was even great than the sum necessary for the possessor and scions of the English throne.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

NOT AT ALL LIKELY.

The Lindsay Post notes the remarkable fact that the Globe recently "got off" a joke. It is to be hoped the leading Grit daily may create another sensation some day by telling the truth for once.—Orillia Packet.

A WORD FOR CREMATION.

The cremation of bodies, instead of their burial, is slowly becoming more acceptable to the minds of people in both England and the United States. One of the strong arguments in favour of cremation is that it would remove from millions of the poor a great load of expense. Another is that graveyards have long been a detriment to the health of the living. Water circulates through the earth as blood circulates through the body, and the impurities of the graveyards find their way into this general circulation.—Toronto Telegram.

A TAME AFFAIR.

Sir Richard Cartwright's reception in Montreal was a very tame affair. The audience was small compared with what is generally found at a political gathering at which the big guns of a party are to speak, and while the attendance was not large the enthusiasm was almost nil. The people of Montreal, the great commercial heart of the Dominion, are evidently not in sympathy with Sir Richard and his free trade nostrums. The coolness of Sir Richard's reception is in striking contrast to the enthusiasm already existing in connection with the approaching demonstration in honor of Sir John Macdonald in Montreal and Toronto.—Brockville Times.

CANADA AND THE STATES.

Of all the United States Maine more nearly resembles the Maritime Provinces than any other States in the Union. It has similar soil, similar lumbering privileges, similar water powers, similar advantages in the way of good ports. And how has Maine prospered? The fact is that during the last decade there was more real advancement, a greater increase in population, and larger development in every department of commerce in the Maritime Provinces than in Maine, and, we may add, in New Hampshire and Vermont. We may reasonably conclude, then, that our progress would not have been as great as a part of the Republic as it has been in the relation we hold to Canada.—St. Croix, N. B., Courier.

A Warm Welcome.

Quebec, Dec. 2.—Archbishop Taschereau returned from Rome yesterday afternoon, and was the recipient of an imposing welcome, as well in his route as on his arrival at Levis, where he stayed all night. At St. Thomas de Montmagny he was met by over 20,000 people, who received him with great enthusiasm, and in whose behalf an address was presented to His Grace by the Mayor. On the arrival of the Intercolonial train at Levis, he was again met by an immense crowd composed of some thousands and presented with a handsome address by the Mayor of the town, to which he replied in feeling terms. He was then conducted to the Parish Church, where a solemn Te Deum was sung, His Grace giving the Papal benediction to the overflowing congregation. Subsequently the whole town was brilliantly illuminated, and presented a striking appearance after nightfall from this side of the river. At ten this morning His Grace crossed over to Quebec, the ferry-boat being gaily decked with bunting, to make his solemn re-entry into his archiepiscopal headquarters, and was met on landing by another immense crowd of his well-wishers, who received him with the greatest enthusiasm, the Mayor presenting, on behalf of the citizens, an address of welcome, to which a very neat reply was made. A procession, composed of orphans and pensioners of the Sisters of Charity, the pupils of the Christian Brothers' seminary and Norman School, pontifical Zouaves, St. Jean Baptiste Society, and a large body of citizens present, with banners and three bands of music, escorted His Grace and suite to the Basilica, where another Te Deum was chanted and the pontifical benediction again given. Many of the houses on the line of march from the wharf were gaily decorated with flags. Subsequently the clergy of the Archdiocese presented an address to His Grace in the parlors of his palace. To-night all the religious buildings of the city and many private and public buildings will be brilliantly illuminated in honor of his return.

The Northern Pacific's Friends.

It is matter of history that the Reformers who made their onslaught upon the Canadian Pacific Railway charter in 1872 and 1873 did so after consultation with the officials of the Northern Pacific. They did the work of that corporation, and it is no violent presumption that they did not work for nothing. Every move but one the Reformers have since made has been in the interest of the Northern Pacific. The amphibious line from Lake Superior to the Red river would neither help nor hurt the Northern. The Pembina branch would act as a feeder to it. The Reformers fought tooth and nail against carrying the Canadian road to the Pacific, so that the Northern road would have no rival for the Asiatic trade. They fought tooth and nail against the eastern extension, so that the traffic could be carried to the Atlantic over Canadian soil. They have done their best to injure Canadian credit, so that the Pacific company would find difficulty in raising means to construct the line. They have not ceased to praise Dakota at the expense of Manitoba, so as to help the Northern road financially. In every conceivable way they have labored diligently in the interest of the foreign company and against the Canadian company. To sum up:

1. We find them at the beginning in consultation with officials of the Northern Pacific Railway company.
2. We have seen them ever since doing work in the interest of the Northern Pacific Railway company.
3. They are not people to do something for nothing; and we assume that they have got or expect to get their reward from the Northern Pacific Railway company. That belief is strengthened by the fact that some of them own land in the territory so much bepraised by them, and in which a large portion of the railway land of the Northern Pacific Railway company lies. —Hamilton Spectator.

Health and Laughter.

Nothing is so productive of health as a contented mind. We the other day heard of a physician of this city who was jocularly represented as a preacher, when with a friend at a Sunday-school picnic, which the regular minister had failed to attend, the doctor turned the tables on his jocose friend by promptly accepting the invitation to preach, and in doing so preached probably the shortest sermon on record. Taking the stand he read the the text, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine." Then turning to the congregation of sad young faces re-read the text and said, "Therefore, my young friends, laugh and grow fat. Let us play." The way the children tumbled out of the seats and took to the enjoyment of the occasion, proved it to be one of the most successful sermons ever preached. Exchange.

A Fortunate Customs Officer.

Mr. Roland Kane, a Customs officer in Montreal, is claiming $60,000 reward from the Treasury Department in Washington for giving the Customs Department of the United States private information that led to the seizure of $130,000 worth of diamonds and jewellery, brought here from England, and then taken across the line surreptitiously and without being entered for duty. The period occupied in giving the information is less than two years. The Secretary of the Treasury has written acknowledging the claim, so that the officer will be a rich man when he gets the money.

A BURGLAR IN HER BEDROOM.

How a Brave Hamilton Lady Captured a Midnight Visitor.

Hamilton, Dec. 2.—When Mrs. Allen of 84 John street north woke up at half past 1 o'clock this morning the moonlight was streaming into her room and a burglar was on his knees before an open bureau drawer. Beside him on the floor was Mrs. Allen's jewelry, and he was searching the drawer for more. Mrs. Allen called out to her daughter who occupied the same bed. "My God, Minnie, there's a man in the room!" The thief did not desist in his search, and without turning his head, said "Hush, it's nothing." Mrs. Allen would not hush, though, and Miss Minnie Allen ran out of the room in search of help. The burglar attempted to prevent her, but Mrs. Allen pushed him to one side and the young lady slipped by. The thief then made for the back door, but Mrs. Allen headed him off with a poker in her hand and chair placed against the door. Her screams had by this time awakened some of her boarders, who hurried down stairs and captured the intruder. At the police court the burglar gave his name as William Mitchell, recently of Toronto, where he lived for two years. He was remanded until inquiry be made as to his character.

Double Legislative Chambers.

Carl Schurz has written a letter to Professor Bryce upon the double working chambers of the Legislature in America. Schurz says popular judument is right in regarding the double chamber as necessary and a part of American political institutions. Any proposal to abolish these Legislative ladies would find no consideration in the United states. Americans are justly proud of their Senate, which does not represent any privileged class or any separate interests, but is extremely useful as a part of the American Legislative machinery. The letter from Schurz on this topic arose from reference by Prof. Bryce, asking him if he considered it advisable for England to continue the House of Lords as a Legislative body.

Safe Burglary at London.

London, Ont., Dec. 3.—Burglars last night broke into the jewellery store of John Brodie, blew open the safe and carried off $500 worth of money, watches and jewels. The police knew the burglars were in town, and were specially located to catch them, with the above results.

THE REASON WHY

Our Shoe Store is always Crowded

With Customers is very apparent to those that have visited it and seen our immense Stock and compared our prices with those asked elsewhere for the same goods. Never have we had such Bargains in Boots and Shoes as now. Never have we sold as many as now, and the more we sell the

GREATER BARGAINS

we have, as we are able to buy in larger quantities and at corresponding low prices. We retail as many Boots and Shoes as most jobbers sell at wholesale, consequently manufacturers make no difference in price to us than wholesale trade, while smaller dealers are obliged to pay which is about the same as our regular retail price for the same quality of goods. It must be very evident to any thinking person that there must be a reason for our immense Shoe Business, and that our low prices, complete stock, and attention shown to our customers can be the only attraction powerful enough to draw such crowds to our store, and place us, with but two years' growth, as one of the largest retail Shoe Houses in Eastern Ontario.

JOBBERS' PRICES,

Remember our system of business is square with all. Goods marked in plain figures and no second or third prices made.

AGAINST THE STREAM!

DIFFICULTIES OF THE FIRST CATARACT ON THE NILE OVERCOME.

Competition in the Ascent—Peterborough Boys Give a Start and Win—Colonel Kennedy a Favorite.

October 29,
Seven miles above Wady Halfa.

Dear Review,—My last letter described the trip from Assouan to within a few miles of this place. I had to close it rather abruptly, for we were approaching Wady Halfa and did not know the moment we would have to land. We made the port in four days, 12 hours. As we passed the town we endeavored to take stock of it and its surroundings. The hospital appeared to be the principal building and some long, low, flat looking buildings used as ordnance stores and officers' quarters. The edge of the river is lined with countless Nile boats and the shores are black with natives busy loading the pack camels from the vessels, and here and there back of the water front are to be seen the white tents of the troops. Our steamer does not stop here but tows us about four miles further up. There we land and unhitch our boats, load them from a steamer and are towed three miles further by a small tug to the foot of the cataract—the spot chosen for our first encampment. As soon as we land all hands proceed to pitch tents, which are conical and double, that is, one tent within another, with a space of about 18 inches between them to keep them cool; they are well ventilated and hold 16 men. After tea the provisions and wood are piled together and Phalen, Mowry and myself were placed on guard for the night. We made a bed on some boxes and kept watch and ward in turn until morning.

Through the night a Maltese interpreter roached camp with the mail. There was only one letter in the bag, but plenty of papers, of which I got the lion's share.

When the morn of the 27th broke the boys had to brace up for the work. Eight men were appointed to each boat; six to row, with one at the bow and one at the stern. The boats are 32 feet and 50 feet long. We tackled the cataract, and, by rowing, sailing and towing, made our first trip of four miles twice before nightfall. The rapids are pretty hard, but we made the trips flying. The Peterborough boys showed well to the fore—made their runs quick and good, without damaging their boats in any way.

Some of the boats had a hard time of it—were swept back repeatedly and occasionally dashed with considerable violence against the rocks. But this was an exception—not the rule, for nearly every gang managed right well. We are told that this four mile stretch is the worst of this cataract, and that it (the cataract) is the worst on the Nile. If so, all I can say is, hurrah for Canada! for we can walk through them in good style. But I won't "hallo till I'm out of the wood"—or water, whichever you please.

It was wild work the first trip. I was over my head half a dozen times, but the hard tack is so buoyannt that it is impossible for us to sink. Every boat was trying to get up first. The work was done without much noise; the strain on our bellows being pretty heavy.

It was great fun to see the lads climbing and scrambling over the rocks like so many cats or squirrels, cheering each other to the work—some dashing into wild looking spots with a lead of rope, with a view of making a short cut to get by some other boat—others straining every nerve and muscle in some wild whirl of waters. Some whirled for a moment within a hands breadth of destruction, and then with one fierce pull for dear life the danger is past without as much as a puff in us to give an hurrah. To an onlooker it must have been a sight to be reminded for a lifetime; to us, the actors in the wild drama, it is life or death.

The English sailors are in camp at the end of our four mile rip, and they say we bring the boats up so fast that they can hardly snub them quick enough.

In the afternoon we profited by the knowledge and experience gained in our fist trip. The boat I belong to started last, fully twenty minutes from below, and by a good use of our sails and good management of our skipper, Anderson, we got to the top first, passing all others on the way, and only took to the water twice. We have some very hard pulling but we will soon get used to it. We are all so soft after our long holiday that the work tells on the hands and some of us are badly blistered. After landing our boats at the end of our trip we have to walk back to our starting point. The rock here is black and quite polished; it is as hard as flint.

Our camp is on a sand flat and when the wind blows it isn't "the cradle that rocks," but our frames in every shape and position to shelter ourselves from the terrible sand. Our food is rather better than what we have been getting lately. We get an allowance of soft bread daily, which relieves our incisors from the usual awful strain on them while trying to masticate the "tack." A man has been selected as cook, and he gets up as good a meal as his supplies will allow.

The desert here is covered in some places with curious pebbles of every size and color, and among them we find some very handsome ones.

28th.—This morning the Caughnawagha Indians were sent ahead to the end of the railroad which runs south about forty miles, starting from Wady Halfa. There (at their destination) they will be told off, one man to three boats manned by sailors or soldiers. This Indian is to have control and command of the three.

Colonel Dennison ordered our foreman to select four of his steadiest men to man a boat to go to Wady Halfa for some supplies. Being one of the four detailed for that duty, I thought we were going to have a picnic—and so we had, but it was slightly different from the last I had at Idyl Wild, when the Free Masons went down the river, and I am not going to take the anxious seat for another such picnic for a year and a day.

We had a head wind going down and seven miles in a 50 foot boat was hard work for four, especially as we had six passengers. While going down I had quite a pleasant chat with Col. Kennedy about Peterborough and the good folks thereof. He is a pleasant unassuming gentleman and is universally liked and respected by all the contingent. He is always ready and willing to give us all information comfortable with his office and all necessary wants are cheerfully supplied by him.

This morning he furnished the men with all the money they asked for. After we landed at Halfa we loaded our boats with 1,800 lbs. of necessaries and then were given half an hour to attend to our own little wants.

We bought a few little things, but the prices were exorbitant, two and six pence for 1 lb. of candles, one and eight pence for a small bottle of ink and a pen, three shillings for two small packages of envelopes and other things pro rata. The only cheap thing was ginger beer, which could be bought for one piastre or two pence half-penny.

After loading our boat we again made a start. Luckily we had an additional hand to help. Peter Phelan had made his trip in the morning and then walked down nine miles to get a tooth pulled, and he worked his passage back. We had a real hard pull all the way. Dr. Nelson, Col. Kennedy, and other officers, took a turn along with us. But when we sighted camp you may rest assured the sight was a welcome one. My hands had six large blisters as big as five cent pieces, and it was a painful job pulling fourteen miles with such hands.

You may imagine our surprise on reaching our camp to find all tents struck and gone except six, and some trifles we had left in ours had vanished with the tents. All the men except one hundred, that is, four gangs, had left for the head of the first trip to take the boats still farther on. We were left to take the remaining six hundred up the cataracts to them, so we may have to remain here two or three weeks. But of course that will depend on how fast the steamers will bring the boats up to us. To-day, 29th, we are idle, no boats and nothing to do, so pour passer le temps I write this.

I will now close, as I hear the foreman say the smoke of a steamer is to be seen, most likely she has a tow of boats for us, and we may not get a rest for two or three days.

So farewell,
J. A. S.

HASTINGS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Shipment of Turkeys, &c.—Geese and turkeys are being bought up around here in large quantities for the New York markets, where they will fill the maws of our cross-the-line neighbors, making their "tummick tiff" at Yule tide, as Ucatella said.

A Dip.—A cold dip, not in the weather, but in the locks. John got more water in him than he has had for years; and thinks that the "after math" of the Turkish bath is not meant for the 1st Dec. No dove came out of the water.

Attempted Incendiarism.—A dastardly attempt was made on last Sunday night to burn down the harness shop of Mr. T. Howard, but the flames underneath the building, which was being raised on posts for the purpose of putting a better foundation under it, were happily discovered in time. An old stump was found to be saturated with coal oil. It is a pity the miscreant was not followed with a shot gun, as he was seen to sneak off in the partial light like a famished wolf.

The Banquet.—The question agitating the minds of some here is who will go to the John A. banquet. It is a case of "I'll go if you go." The Reformers wish to dub the coming event as "Positively the last appearance of him whom the king delighteth to honor." The king's business requireth haste. Harrah for Imperial Federation!!

A Fine Car.—The "Storm Beaten" car which passed east last Tuesday over the Midland, looked too spick-span new to have encountered any blizzards.

Sanitary.—The question of vaccination is beginning to assume a definite shape here—hundreds in this neighborhood have never paid their respects to the memory of Jenner. It is good news for the doctors to say, "the state of the public healthy;" and we have a wide-awake cyclopian who watches closely over the millrace—in fact, is the Neptune of the Trent, and will not allow its waters to be polluted. Long may he flourish to wield the cue and rosin the bow.

HARVEY.

Junior Part Second.—Lizzie Heard, Dollie Pethick, Mary Roseboro.

First Class.—Ward Boyce, Clarence Fitzgerald.

APSLEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Christmas Dinner.—The members and adherents of the Methodist Church will provide a Christmas dinner in the Temperance Hall at Apsley on Christmas Day, to be served from two till four, p.m., after which an entertainment will be given. Several prominent clergymen will be present on the occasion, and will address the audience. A most cordial invitation is extended to all. Admission fee, for dinner and entertainment, 25 cents.

Skating Flirtation.

Lying on the right side, "My heart is at your feet."

Lying on the left side, "I have money in the bank."

Standing on your nose, "I have no objection to a mother-in-law."

Jumping on your skates, "I'm afraid I can't trust you."

Lying on your back, "assist me."

One leg in the air, "catch me."

Two legs in the air, "mashed."

One skate in your mouth means "crushed again."

Suddenly placing your legs horizontally on the floor like the letter V indicates "I am paralyzed."

Punching your neighbour in the stomach with your left foot, "I'm onto your little game."

A backward flip of the heels and sudden cohesion of the knees to the ice indicates, "may I skate the next music with you?"—Norristown Herald.

A Slow Road.

A railroad in Maine, running out of Portland, used to be noted for the slowness of its trains, and became the subject of many humorous stories. One is told of a woman who bought a ticket one day for herself and a half-ticket for her boy. On arriving at the terminus of the road, twenty miles from Portland, the conductor came to the woman and told her he would have to charge full fare for her boy. "Why, how is this?" she asked.

"Madam, your son has become of age since we started."

Beg Pardon.

A London waiter was both witty and sarcastic, and didn't know the fact. "Do you call that a veal cutlet, waiter?" said an exquisite, one of the most delicate type even in that favorite region of exquisites, the west end. "Why, sir, such a veal cutlet as that is an insult to every self respecting calf in the British empire!" The waiter hung his head in very shame for a moment, and then replied, in the language of humblest apology: "I really didn't intend to insult you, sir."

Two Men Killed for a Quarter.

Upton, Ky., Dec. 2.—At a colored dance here Taylor Phillips asked Rife Howard to loan him twenty five cents. Howard refused. A quarrel ensued, and Howard stabbed and killed Phillips. A cousin of the later shot and killed Howard.

A Man Murdered.

Kingston, Dec. 3.—A telegram just received announces the murdering of a man at Massinow Lake, near the head quarters of MacLaren's lumbering depot. No particulars have been received. The coroner and pressmen have left for the scene.

Heavy Verdict Against a Railway.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 2.—The jury in the case of engineer John Fitzsimmons against the Pennsylvania for injuries received on the railroad making him a cripple for life, returned a verdict for Fitzimmons for $27,000.

Garner, the "fence," was arraigned at Toronto on Monday on several new charges.

FROM ALL OVER.

An earthquake shock has been felt in southern Europe.

"Teaberry" whitens the teeth like chastened pearls. A sample settles it.

Mr. W. D. Allison has been nominated for Lennox.

Freeman's Worm Powders require no other purgative. They are safe and sure to remove all varieties of Worms.

James Edward Freeman, American artist, has died at Rome.

National Pills acts promptly upon the Liver, regulates the Bowels and as a purgative are mild and thorough.

No Matter.—No matter where pain, lameness or soarness exists, Hagyard's Yellow Oil taken or applied will give immediate relief, and a positive cure quickly follows its use.

Arrangements have been made for the Canadian Shoeburyness team.

A Safe Investment.—Investing twenty-five cents for a bottle of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best throat and lung healer known. Cures coughs, bronchitis, asthma and all pulmonary complaints.

Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for the cure of Eruption, Chafes, Chapped Hands, Pimples, Tan, &c.

Mr. Hussey, whose house was blown up, is an agent of Lord Lansdown.

Dr. Low's Worm Syrup has removed tape worms from 15 to 30 feet in length. It also destroys all kind of worm.

Hon. Mr. Miller has entered a criminal libel against the Winnipeg Sun.

Everybody should keep such a thing as Zopesa in the house, and by regulating the bowels and system, keep away headache, heartache, dejection, indigestion. Zopesa invigorates the liver, makes the family happy by making health.

Twenty-five cents invested in "Hub" Cough Cure saves sweating under a cough. It stops a cough quick and sure. Think the price for a cough. Ask J. D. Tully.

The Quebec Stamp Act has been declared ultra vires by the Privy Council.

A Successful Result.—Mr. Bloomer, of Hamilton, Ont., suffered for many years with a painful running sore upon one of his legs, which baffled all attempts to heal until he used Burdock Blood Bitters, which speedily worked a perfect cure.

It is said that Mr. Barnard Coleridge is seeking a compromise with Mr. Adams.

Prompt Measures.—Prompt measures should be used to break up sudden colds and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually.

An Agreeable Surprise.—Those who try Burdock Blood Bitters as a regulator of the bowels, or to purify the blood, aid digestion, regulate the liver and kidneys, or strengthen tired nature, are agreeably surprised at the prompt benefit derived.

Mr. Thos. Collins, member of the British House of Commons for Knaresborough, is dead.

A Decided Hit.—Hagyard's Yellow Oil touches the right spot every time when applied for rheumatism, neuralgia, pain, soreness or lameness, and internally for colds, sore throat, etc., it is equally infallible.

The natives of India will present addresses to the Marquis of Ripon on his retirement.

Oh! how tired and weak I feel, I don't believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning! O yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Doctor Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50c.

It is proposed to abolish tolls on Wetworth roads.

During the last four years as compared with the previous four there has been a decline of 34,000,000 gallons in the consumption of spirits in the United Kingdom, equal to a saving by the people of $55,000,000.

Nothing succeeds like success, is as true in medicine as in anything else. By the wonderful effect of Dr. Van Buren's Kidney cure in promptly alleviating the sufferings experienced in kidney troubles and producing a permanent cure in these distressing ailments, his fame has been carried over the four quarters of the globe.

How often do we hear of the sudden fatal termination of a case of croup, when a young life might have been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral! Be wise in time, and keep a bottle of it on hand, ready for instant use.

How to Tell Genuine Florida Water.—The true Florida Water always comes with a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and in the paper of this pamphlet are the "Lanman & Kemp, New York," water-marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters. Hold a leaf up to the light, and if genuine, you will see the above words. Do not buy if the words are not there, because it is not the real article. The water-mark letters may be very pale, but by looking closely against the light, you cannot fail to see them.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Councillor DAVIDSON, Chairman of the Finance Committee, read the following report:—

To the Mayor and Councillors of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—The Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the following accounts be paid:—

The Great North-Western Telegraph Co.	$ 3 81
The Treasurer of the County of Peterborough, for conveying lunatics to asylum (town's share)	10 53
Root, White	8 00
Tierney Bros	2 00

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. S. DAVIDSON, Chairman.

The report was adopted.

CHARITY FOR THE YEAR.

Councillor GREEN, Chairman of the Charity Committee, submitted a report which contained a detailed statement of the amount expended in chirity during the year. The number of cords of wood given was 45½, and the total amount expended, so far as the charity committee are concerned, was $420.20.

The report was referred to the Finance Committee.

FIRE, WATER AND GAS COMMITTEE.

Councillor RUTHERFORD, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee, read the following report:—

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—The Fire, Water and Gas Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the petition of the Canada Pacific Railway Company, asking for a gas lamp at the railway crossing on George street, be granted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. RUTHERFORD, Chairman.

The report was, on motion, adopted.

GEORGE STREET HYDRANTS.

A by-law for the providing of hydrants to the number of nineteen, on George street, for fire protection and other purposes was read for the first time.

The Council went into a Committee of the Whole on the second reading, Councillor Menzies in the chair.

The first clause was amended so that it read "providing of eighteen hydrants" the nineteenth to be utilized as a fountain in the Market Square.

The remaining clauses were then read, the by-law passed its second reading and the Committee rose.

It then passed its third reading without amendment.

THE UNNECESSARY NOISES.

A by-law to amend by-law No. 395 in reference to the abating of unnecessary noises on Sundays and other days, including railway whistles, the the ringing of bells, etc., was read for the first time.

The Council went into a Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law, Councillor Cahill in the chair.

The by-law clause by clause passed its second reading. The Committee rose, and it passed its third reading without amendment.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

A by-law grahting $100 to the Mechanics' Institute passed its first, second and third readings without amendment.

THE ELECTIONS.

A by-law for the appointing of Deputy Returning Officers and places to hold municipal elections was read the first, second and third times, and passed without amendment.

THE BUILDING BY-LAW.

Councillor MCNEIL moved, seconded by Councillor BUTHERFORD.—That the petition of R. Z. Rogers and others be referred to the Building Committee with power to suggest certain amendments. Also that the clerk write to the Police Magistrate requesting him to stay proceedings in the cases now pending under that by-law until the next meeting of this Council.—Carried.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.

Councillor MILLAR moved, seconded by Councillor GREEN,—That the petition of Walter Paterson and others asking for electric light on Hunter street be referred to the Fire, Water and Gas Committee with power to grant the same, when the required number of signatures is placed on the petition providing for the levying of a local tax.—Carried.

MR. BEAVIS' DUTIES.

Councillor YELLAND moved, seconded by Councillor RUTHERFORD,—That the Chairman of the Committee on Appointments, at the next meeting of this Council, report what the duties of Mr. Beavis are.—Carried.

CHARITY.

Councillor GREEN moved, seconded by Councillor MCNEIL,—That Thomas Beavis is hereby instructed to purchase thirty cords of soft or mixed wood for charity purposes, and that the Clerk be authorized to issue his cheque for the same.

Councillor YELLAND asked where the wood supplied last year was gone. There was a discrepency of somewhere about 30 cords.

Councillor RUTHERFORD cited several instances where wood was given to undeserving people. Something should be done about it.

Councillor GREEN, Chairman of the Charity Committee, stated that no committee could have done better than the present Charity Committee had done. Only $420 had been spent by the committee including expenditure on wood.

Councillor CAAILL said that the Chairman of the Charity Committee certainly deserved great credit for the economical way in which he managed the charity affairs. It was praise he deserved instead of blame.

Councillor Kelly said that the proper way would be to advertise for tenders and to get 50 cords of wood while they were about it.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said the whole wood business was a wrong one. The surrounding towns did not pursue this policy of supplying wood for charity purposes, and he thought it should be stopped.

Councillor Kendry advocated issuing orders on wood dealers for whatever was required.

THE PEST HOLE.

Councillor MCNEIL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON.—That the mover, seconder, and Councillors Green, Rutherford, Kendry, and Cahill be a special committee to take into consideration the best means of abating the nuisance at Spaulding's Bay, also to take into consideration the letters submitted by the leading physicians of the town as to its sanitary condition, and to take into consideration other sanitary improvements and report to the Council at its next meeting.

Councillor MCNEIL, in supporting the motion, said that there was an impression throughout the town that this land was deeded to the Commissioners on the understanding that when the lots around the Bay were sold the money realized was to be expended in filling the Bay. In order to solve the question he had written to the Department of Crown Lands, in reference to which he received the following reply:—

TORONTO, 28th Nov., 1884.

SIR,—If your letter of 24th inst. refers to a tract of land granted in October, 1863, to the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust, in the Township of North Monaghan, containing 61½ acres, more or less, I have to say the patent was issued absolutely, it having been shown that the provisions of the Order-in-Council, 5th June, 1861, as to drainage had been complied with.

Your obt. servant,
THOS. H. JOHNSON,
Asst. Commissioner.

Andrew McNeil, Esq.,
Peterborough.

Dr. Bryce, the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, was in town during the summer and had written at his (Mr. McNeil's) request, what he had verbally stated in regard to Spaulding's Bay. Mr. McNeil held in his hand a number of letters from the leading town physicians bearing upon the matter. The following are extracts from them and an extract from the letter of Dr. Bryce:—

DR. BRYCE.—It will undoubtedly tend to cause fevers of an intermittent and, malarial type.

DR. BOUCHER.—A fever breeding pest hole.

DR. HALLIDAY.—It should rank first among great nuisances.

DR. FIFE.—It is an injury to the neighbourhood, and should be filled up at once.

D. PIGEON.—Urgent steps should be at once taken to fill it up before another summer comes.

DR. KING.—It is a hot bed of disease.

DR. BELL.—First is that plague spot Spaulding Bay.

DR. KINCAID.—It is the worst fever bed in Canada.

Councillor MCNEIL went on to say that there were sixteen doctors in town and all were kept busy—some of them almost worn out with work. Why was it? The sanitary condition must be bad. There were helpless widows in town today, with children clinging to them for support, who would not be in such a poverty stricken state had it not been for this hot bed of disease. He might even go so far as to say that the worthy Councillor whose place he now occupied would be here to-night were it not for this pestiferous hole. He hoped the Committee would give their earnest consideration and report as to the best means as to having it filled.

Councillor CAHILL said that he was glad that the Spaulding's Bay question was taken up now in earnest. Now that there was a danger of a general epidemic it was high time that they should take up the matter. It was injurious not only to those living in the neighborhood, but to the town at large. He hoped that as it was engrossing public attention something definite would be done.

THE PAY LIST.

Councillor DAVIDSON said there was a list of the names of those labourers who had not been paid the sums due them. He would advocate instructing the Clerk to issue his cheque for the amounts.

Councillor GREEN thought the town laborers should be paid.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the Clerk be authorized to issue his cheque for the amount of $125.25 for street and bridge work, and that the Council indemnify him for that amount.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned to the call of the Mayor.

PEOPLE ARE VEXED at paying $1.25 for Dolls that A. L. DAVIS & Co. are selling for $1.00.

A Narrow Escape.

Two men sauntered up George Street on Wednesday afternoon.

"Say," said one, "did you hear of the narrow escape John had yesterday?"

"No, I did not," replied the other, "How was it."

"Well, you see, he was hitching up his horse to go for a drive, and the horse never having been known to kick he was a little careless. But he was too confident, for the animal kicked him viciously on the cheek."

"Poor horse!" murmured the other man. "Did it hurt its foot much?"

You see, many people have a great deal of assurance. There are many ways of designating it, but some of the most popular ways just now are "cheek," "brass," "hard cheek," &c. A certain amount of self-confidance may be a good thing, and even necessary, but if a person has a whole Alps of cheek he usually makes himself unpopular. But no matter how much assurance a man may possess there is one thing he would scarcely be capable of doing. He could not have the hardihood to say he could not find goods to suit him at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall, George Street, or that the prices are not very reasonable.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Reel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1884.

TO MARK THE SPOT.

A New Kind of Monument is Introduced into the Little Lake Cemetery.

On Wednesday a white bronze monument, made by the St. Thomas White Bronze Monument Company, of St. Thomas, Ont., was received by the agents of the Company in Peterborough, Messrs. G. M. Morgan and Charles Stapleton. When opened it was in perfect order, and was soon after conveyed to the Little Lake Cemetery, to mark the spot where some of the Bennett family lie.

The work of erection was satisfactorily done, and when standing at its full height it presented a beautiful appearance. If symmetry is one of the qualities of beauty, certainly this monument has beauty in that particular to a marked degree. The parts are well proportioned and wisely balanced; nothing about it appears clumsy, and everything about it is pleasing to the eye. The colors is neither glaring nor ghostly, but of a quiet mild gray, which seems peculiarly fitting to the solemnity of it province.

The sub base is finished in imitation of roughly dressed ashlar. It is 42 inches square and 10 inches deep. The first base, 35 inches square and 17 inches deep, is finished with only the plain surface, and on the east side the figures 1884 stand out in bold relief. The second base, 26½ inches square and 12 inches deep, is finished with large stationery tablets of a diamond shape. On the north side a sheaf of wheat, and a sickle fastened in the band, stands out from the tablet. On the west side is an escutcheon standing out in relief from the diamond. On this escutcheon is embossed the three links, representative of Oddfellowship, and surmounted by the square and compass, indicating Free Massonry. On the south side a figure of a kneeling angel also stands out from the diamond, and on the east side the letters clearly defined, stretch from corner to corner of the diamond tablet.

The third vase, 20 inches square and 11 inches deep, is fitted with removable tablets, on two of which are inscribed the memorial words of the departed members of the family. The other two tablets are ornamented by appropriate figures. These tablets may be taken out at any time when necessary, and an inscription may be put on at a small cost. The "die," or body of the monument, is very beautiful. It is 16 inches square, 24 inches to an ornamental ledge, which juts out to about the distance of 4 inches, and 8 inches above the ledge. Directly beneath the ledge is a representation of curtain drapery, so graceful in its folds, and so well defined, that one would think that it was cut with the chisel instead of having been cast in metal. On the four sides under the drapery are figures in relief of different kinds. On the west is the insignia of the Ancient Order of United Workman, inscribed on a shield. On the north is a statue representing Hope, with the index finger pointing heavenward. On the south a lily of the valley, and on the east a crown hung on a cross completes the number of figures. On the top of the "die" are five small columns supporting a roof under which stands an urn. From the top of this roof a shaft about seven inches in diameter rises in the air to the distance of about five feet, and is capped by a piece of ornamental moulding. There are three members of the family of Mr. Joseph Bennett, of Monaghan, interred in the lot, namely, Harry, Susan and Margaret. The lot is situated in the north east end of the cemetery overlooking the river.

The monument as it stands has a sombreness, and a quiet dignity about it that is strangely impressive and it may be pleasingly contrasted with the surrounding tombstones and monuments. The monument is manufactured from pure white bronze, with the surface finished by a fine sand blast, which oxidizes the bronze on being brought in contact with the air. It is indestructible and non-corroeive, as are all the monuments manufactured by this company. Monuments of this kind have stood in Italy for 300 years, without showing signs of decay, and being in a perfect state of preservation,

Sad Death.

About two months ago Walter Payton, son of Mr. James Payton, pump manufacturer, was playing at a game called "shinney" in the grounds attached to the Central School. By some means he received a heavy blow on the breast from a stick carried by one of the gamesters. Since that accident has been very ill and notwithstanding that the best medical aid was procured the little sufferer expired on Thursday. He was interred this afternoon

COUNTY COURT.

The Case, Kearny vs. Town, a Verdict is Given in Favor of the Plaintiff.

The two remaining cases were disposed of on Thursday afternoon.

MORROW vs. BICKFORD.—An action brought by R. A. Morrow, as executor of the late firm of Hatton, Hatton & Beck, against E. O. Bickford and the Grand Junction Railway, claiming $200 for services rendered in 1881. Judgment for plaintiff.—Messrs. C. A. Weller and R. E. Wood for the plaintiff; Mr. T. Delamere for Mr. Bickford, and Mr. C. Biggar for the Grand Junction Railway.

KEARNY vs. TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.—An action for $100, brought by the plaintiff, who lives at Young's Point, against the town of Peterborough, on account of injuries received through the neglect of the town in keeping the streets in a proper state of repair. On September 15th, in the evening, Mr. Kearny was walking along Hunter street, and as there was nothing to guard against falling in the creek and as it was dark, and fell over the embankment and received injuries. The jury brought in a verdict of $100 for the plaintiff.—Mr. D. W. Dumble for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. B. Edwards for the town.

The Court was then closed.

NEWBOLD SENTENCED.

The Polygamist Sent to the Penitentiary for Seven Years.

By Telegraph to the Review.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 5.—The Court yesterday overruled the motion made by the defence for a new trial in the case of Neiville, the man of many wives and names. The prisoner was sentenced to seven years in the Penitentiary at hard labor. He was taken to Columbus last night.

SPEARING FISH.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—The following is an extract from the Bradford Witness:—

"The season for spearing fish is now open. "Permits may be obtained from the Fishery "Inspector, which will be good up to the 14th "of April next."

By this it appears that the County of Simcoe people enjoy privileges that the people of this district do not, as I have frequently applied for a permit to be allowed to spear through the ice during the winter, but have always been refused.

Yours truly,
PISCATOR.

Lakefield, Ont., Dec. 3, 1884.

Personal.

At a Saved Army concert and banquet held in Cobourg on Wednesday, Dec. 3rd, Delegate Geo. B. Sproule, of Peterborough, gave an address.

Highly Delightful.

Among our local organizations for amusement the Olivette Club ranks not the least. It is a kind of itinerant dancing assembly and although organized only a short time ago it has a good membership. The third weekly gathering was held at the residence of Mr. Wm. Lech on Thursday evening. An unusually excellent terpsichorean menu was presented and the numerous company whirled on the "mazy" until a reasonable hour. The verdict of all regard to the way in which the evening was spent, was, "highly delightful."

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

WHEN you hang a piece of meat do not sprinkle salt over it, because salt draws the juice out.

OATMEAL porridge makes a good and wholesome dish for the inhabitants of a temperate or coldish climate.

A CANADIAN takes small pices of old newspapers after being wet, and sprinkles them over the carpet before sweeping. She believes the plan to be better than that of using tea leaves.

To remove fur from the inside of a kettle fill it with water and a dram of sal ammoniac. Let it boil one hour, when the fur will be diesolved, and easily removed by a brush or dish-cloth.

When a visiting card is turned down at the corner it implies that the person leaving it means to include the visitors to the family, as well as the family themselves in the compliment of his call.

LAUREL leaves ought never to be used in cookery as they contain prussic acid, and are, therefore, poisonous. The ill-effects would not be experienced unless used largely, but it is better always to use bay leaves in their stead.

WINE that has become slightly sour is termed "pickled," the tartness being usually caused by want of "body." It may be restored by the use of tartarized spirits of wine. Each bottle of wine will require an ounce of the spirit.

THE best thing for a young lady to do when she "becomes interested in a young gentleman" is to keep quiet, and let things take their course. She should behave with ladylike cordiality towards him, but nothing more, until he asks her to become his wife.

THE elaborate icing that initiates frost and ice on Christmas cards is done by scattering particles of ground glass over gemmed cards. These tiny atoms penetrate the lungs of the poor girls employed in the manufacture, and either kill them or render them soon helpless invalids.

ANY person who paints can make an attractive Christmas card by fringing a piece of silk, five inches wide and seven long, to the depth of a quarter of an inch. On the silk is painted any design and motto that may be selected; after which it is fastened to a card a trifle larger by narrow ribbons passed through holes in the card and tied in tiny bows on the right side. Only two bows in opposite corners will be needed to secure the painted silk to the card.

Suspected Foul Play.

KINGSTON, Dec. 14.—On Monday last John Macdonald and an Indian named White Duck, left Mississippi station to drive thirty miles into the woods. While on the way Macdonald, who is a teamster for Peter McLaren, dropped his whip, when the Indian, who had a gun in his hand, started to get out of the sleigh to pick up the whip. Before he reached the ground the gun was accidentally discharged, and the ball entered Macdonald's side and came out of his neck, killing him instantly. The body was not found till yesterday. The Indian proceeded on home, and told his story as related. It is thought by some that the shooting was intentional, both having been drinking. If it had been otherwise White Duck would not have left Macdonald's body behind. The Indian was a young man and so was deceased. The coroner, at Mr. M'Laren's request, has gone to the shanties to hold an inquest. Deceased was a Scotchman, and had no relatives in this country.

VIGOROUS MEASURES.

HONG KONG, Dec. 4.—The Chinese appear to have abandoned all hopes of a mediation between their Government and France, and have determined to adopt a vigorous policy. Twelve men-of-war have been ordered to sea to engage the French fleet and relieve Formosa of the blockade. Five of the men-of-war belong to the Nankin squadron and the remainder to the Tien Tsin division. Twenty-four Germans hold various posts on board the fleet, one of them commanding a ship under a Chinese admiral. The announcement causes general satisfaction, as a short and sharp campaign will render one or other of the combatants more ready to entertain propositions for peace. The present situation is ruining trade.

MR. COURTNEY'S SUCCESSOR.

BARBAROUS SUGGESTION.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Gen. de Lisle telegraphs that an Imperial decree, urging the natives to poison the French, has been placarded in Loch Nau. It was issued, he says, by orders of the Viceroy of Kwang Tung.

FARM AND GARDEN.

GREEN food is fully as essential for poultry in winter as in summer.

BOILED small potatoes, mixed with meal, will cause pigs to grow and fatten.

STRAWBERRY beds, if not yet protected, should be covered with straw, bog hay, or leaves.

APPLES are good for horses. They will thrive on them as fast as on grain, but of course they will not have the bottom to do as hard work.

A peck of apples twice a day will do much more good than harm to cows, and the sooner farmers get over this idea that apples injure them the better for the cows.

TIME was when farmers grew and made near ly all the substantials of life they required. If necessary, they can come to this again. But the great comfort of a thanksgiving dinner is in the fact that all, on nearly all, is of one's own producing.

THERE should be water plants in the glass globe in which gold and silver fishes are kept, and the water should not be very frequently changed. Very fine bread-crumbs, flies, worms, and dried and powdered yolk of eggs may be given to fishes in very small quantities.

CHURN SLOWLY!

A little maid in the morning sun
Stood merrily singing and churning.
"Oh, how I wish this butter was done,
Then off to the fields I'd be turning."
So she hurried the dasher up and down
Till the farmer called with half-made frown
"Churn slowly!

Don't ply the churn so fast, my dear,
It is not good for the butter,
And will make your arms ache, too, I fear,
And put you all in a flutter—
For this is a rule whenever we turn,
Don't be in haste, whenever you churn—
Churn slowly!

If you want your butter to come nice and sweet
Don't churn with a nervous jerking,
But ply the dasher slowly and neat—
You'll hardly know that your working.
And when the butter has come you'll say:
'Yes, this is surely the better way'
Churn slowly!"

Now, all you folks, do you think that you
A lesson can find in butter?
Don't be in haste, whatever you do,
Or get yourself in a flutter;
And while you stand at life's great churn,
Let the farmer's word to you return—
Churn slowly!

Shaker Blood Syrup

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like Shaker Blood Syrup. It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take my word. Ask your neighbour, who has taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

Shaker Syrup Company: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I have heard of your Blood Syrup, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indegestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,
O. F. TWICHELL,
Gorham, N.H.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1884.

TO MARK THE SPOT.

A New Kind of Monument is Introduced into the Little Lake Cemetery.

On Wednesday a white bronze monument, made by the St. Thomas White Bronze Monument Company, of St. Thomas, Ont., was received by the agents of the Company in Peterborough, Messrs. G. M. Morgan and Charles Stapleton. When opened it was in perfect order, and was soon after conveyed to the Little Lake Cemetery, to mark the spot where some of the Bennett family lie.

The work of erection was satisfactorily done, and when standing at its full height it presented a beautiful appearance. If symmetry is one of the qualities of beauty, certainly this monument has beauty in that particular to a marked degree. The parts are well proportioned and wisely balanced; nothing about it appears clumsy, and everything about it is pleasing to the eye. The colors is neither glaring nor ghostly, but of a quiet mild gray, which seems peculiarly fitting to the solemnity of it province.

The sub base is finished in imitation of roughly dressed ashlar. It is 42 inches square and 10 inches deep. The first base, 35 inches square and 17 inches deep, is finished with only the plain surface, and on the east side the figures 1884 stand out in bold relief. The second base, 26½ inches square and 12 inches deep, is finished with large stationery tablets of a diamond shape. On the north side a sheaf of wheat, and a sickle fastened in the band, stands out from the tablet. On the west side is an escutcheon standing out in relief from the diamond. On this escutcheon is embossed the three links, representative of Oddfellowship, and surmounted by the square and compass, indicating Free Massonry. On the south side a figure of a kneeling angel also stands out from the diamond, and on the east side the letters clearly defined, stretch from corner to corner of the diamond tablet.

The third vase, 20 inches square and 11 inches deep, is fitted with removable tablets, on two of which are inscribed the memorial words of the departed members of the family. The other two tablets are ornamented by appropriate figures. These tablets may be taken out at any time when necessary, and an inscription may be put on at a small cost. The "die," or body of the monument, is very beautiful. It is 16 inches square, 24 inches to an ornamental ledge, which juts out to about the distance of 4 inches, and 8 inches above the ledge. Directly beneath the ledge is a representation of curtain drapery, so graceful in its folds, and so well defined, that one would think that it was cut with the chisel instead of having been cast in metal. On the four sides under the drapery are figures in relief of different kinds. On the west is the insignia of the Ancient Order of United Workman, inscribed on a shield. On the north is a statue representing Hope, with the index finger pointing heavenward. On the south a lily of the valley, and on the east a crown hung on a cross completes the number of figures. On the top of the "die" are five small columns supporting a roof under which stands an urn. From the top of this roof a shaft about seven inches in diameter rises in the air to the distance of about five feet, and is capped by a piece of ornamental moulding. There are three members of the family of Mr. Joseph Bennett, of Monaghan, interred in the lot, namely, Harry, Susan and Margaret. The lot is situated in the north east end of the cemetery overlooking the river.

The monument as it stands has a sombreness, and a quiet dignity about it that is strangely impressive and it may be pleasingly contrasted with the surrounding tombstones and monuments. The monument is manufactured from pure white bronze, with the surface finished by a fine sand blast, which oxidizes the bronze on being brought in contact with the air. It is indestructible and non-corrosive, as are all the monuments manufactured by this company. Monuments of this kind have stood in Italy for 300 years, without showing signs of decay, and being in a perfect state of preservation.

Sad Death.

About two monthes go, Walter Payton, son of Mr. James Payton, pump manufacturer, was playing at a game called "shinney" in the grounds attached to the Central School. By some means he received a heavy blow on the breast from a stick carried by one of the gamesters. Since that accident has been very ill and notwithstanding that the best medical aid was procured the little sufferer expired on Thursday. He was interred this afternoon

COUNTY COURT.

The Case, Kearny vs. Town, a Verdict is Given in Favor of the Plaintiff.

The two remaining cases were disposed of on Thursday afternoon.

MORROW vs. BICKFORD.—An action brought by R. A. Morrow, as executor of the late firm of Hatton, Hatton & Beck, against E. O. Bickford and the Grand Junction Railway, claiming $200 for services rendered in 1881. Judgment for plaintiff.—Messrs. C. A. Weller and R. E. Wood for the plaintiff; Mr. T. Delamere for Mr. Bickford, and Mr. C. Biggar for the Grand Junction Railway.

KEARNY vs. TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.—An action for $100, brought by the plaintiff, who lives at Young's Point, against the town of Peterborough, on account of injuries received through the neglect of the town in keeping the streets in a proper state of repair. On September 15th, in the evening, Mr. Kearny was walking along Hunter street, and as there was nothing to guard against falling in the creek and as it was dark, and fell over the embankment and received injuries. The jury brought in a verdict of $100 for the plaintiff.—Mr. D. W. Dumble for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. B. Edwards for the town.

The Court was then closed.

NEWBOLD SENTENCED.

The Polygamist Sent to the Penitentiary for Seven Years.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 5.—The Court yesterday overruled the motion made by the defence for a new trial in the case of Neiville, the man of many wives and names. The prisoner was sentenced to seven years in the Penitentiary at hard labor. He was taken to Columbus last night.

SPEARING FISH.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—The following is an extract from the Bradford Witness:—

"The season for spearing fish is now open. "Permits may be obtained from the Fishery "Inspector, which will be good up to the 14th "of April next."

By this it appears that the County of Simcoe people enjoy privileges that the people of this district do not, as I have frequently applied for a permit to be allowed to spear through the ice during the winter, but have always been refused.

Highly Delightful.

Among our local organizations for amusement the Olivette Club ranks not the least. It is a kind of itinerant dancing assembly and although organized only a short time ago it has a good membership. The third weekly gathering was held at the residence of Mr. Wm. Lech on Thursday evening. An unusually excellent terpsichorean menu was presented and the numerous company whirled on the "mazy" until a reasonable hour. The verdict of all regard to the way in which the evening was spent, was, "highly delightful."

Suspected Foul Play.

KINGSTON, Dec. 14.—On Monday last John Macdonald and an Indian named White Duck, left Mississippi station to drive thirty miles into the woods. While on the way Macdonald, who is a teamster for Peter McLaren, dropped his whip, when the Indian, who had a gun in his hand, started to get out of the sleigh to pick up the whip. Before he reached the ground the gun was accidentally discharged, and the ball entered Macdonald's side and came out of his neck, killing him instantly. The body was not found till yesterday. The Indian proceeded on home, and told his story as related. It is thought by some that the shooting was intentional, both having been drinking. If it had been otherwise White Duck would not have left Macdonald's body behind. The Indian was a young man and so was deceased. The coroner, at Mr. M'Laren's request, has gone to the shanties to hold an inquest. Deceased was a Scotchman, and had no relatives in this country.

FARM AND GARDEN.

GREEN food is fully as essential for poultry in winter as in summer.

BOILED small potatoes, mixed with meal, will cause pigs to grow and fatten.

STRAWBERRY beds, if not yet protected, should be covered with straw, bog hay, or leaves.

APPLES are good for horses. They will thrive on them as fast as on grain, but of course they will not have the bottom to do as hard work.

A peck of apples twice a day will do much more good than harm to cows, and the sooner farmers get over this idea that apples injure them the better for the cows.

TIME was when farmers grew and made nearly all the substantials of life they required. If necessary, they can come to this again. But the great comfort of a thanksgiving dinner is in the fact that all, on nearly all, is of one's own producing.

THERE should be water plants in the glass globe in which gold and silver fishes are kept, and the water should not be very frequently changed. Very fine bread-crumbs, flies, worms, and dried and powdered yolk of eggs may be given to fishes in very small quantities.

CHURN SLOWLY!

A little maid in the morning sun
Stood merrily singing and churning.
"Oh, how I wish this butter was done,
Then off to the fields I'd be turning."
So she hurried the dasher up and down
Till the farmer called with half-made frown
"Churn slowly!

Don't ply the churn so fast, my dear,
It is not good for the butter,
And will make your arms ache, too, I fear,
And put you all in a flutter—
For this is a rule whenever we turn,
Don't be in haste, whenever you churn—
Churn slowly!

If you want your butter to come nice and sweet
Don't churn with a nervous jerking,
But ply the dasher slowly and neat—
You'll hardly know that your working.
And when the butter has come you'll say:
'Yes, this is surely the better way'
Churn slowly!"

Now, all you folks, do you think that you
A lesson can find in butter?
Don't be in haste, whatever you do,
Or get yourself in a flutter;
And while you stand at life's great churn,
Let the farmer's word to you return—
Churn slowly!

Shaker Blood Syrup

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like Shaker Blood Syrup. It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take my word. Ask your neighbour, who has taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

Shaker Syrup Company: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I have heard of your Blood Syrup, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indegestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,

AN INDECENT OBJECTION.

THE leading organ of the Mowat Administration has the effrontery to criticize the appointment, which it asserts has been resolved upon, of Sir David Macpherson as Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, under the heading of "An Indecent Appointment." The ground of the Globe's objection is that Sir David Macpherson very fittingly condemned the slanderous attack upon him by Mr. Mowat in the Legislative Assembly. It will be remembered that Mr. Mowat in the House gave currency to the false charge that the Minister of the Interior had used his public patronage for corrupt purposes. If Mr. Mowat did not then know that he was uttering a slander, he knows it now, and yet he has not had the manliness to retract this calumny which he dared not repeat when he was on oath and subject to the penalties for perjury.

We would venture to remark that it is neither Mr. Mowat nor the Globe that is entrusted by our constitution with the duty of choosing the Lieutenant-Governors of Ontario and the other Provinces of this Dominion. It is Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues who have been selected by the majority of the electors of Canada—by the majority of the electors of Ontario—to perform this and other acts for them. Neither Mr. Mowat nor the Globe are vested with any veto power in this matter. That Mr. Mowat should disgrace himself by backbiting and bearing false witness against a candidate for this high office is no disqualification. If it were so, no member of the present Cabinet could be appointed, for Mr. Mowat has calumniated them wholesale. In a public speech in the Province of Quebec, just after his advocate, Mr. S. H. Blake, had admitted the innocence of the Conservative leaders, and just after Mr. Mowat had shrunk from repeating his slanders when on oath, the Attorney-General of this Province was dastard enough falsely to charge the Macdonald Administration with an attempt to corrupt members of the Ontario Legislature. It is obvious, therefore, that Mr. Mowat's dislike and slander is not a sufficient reason against the appointment of a gentleman whom he thus honors, as Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

A meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association of Lakefield was held punctually at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening to select delegates to attend the Convention to be held in Toronto in honor of Sir John A. Macdonald, G.C.B.

The following resolutions were carried unanimously:—

That the Conservatives of Lakefield assembled for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the Convention to be held on the 17th and 18th of this present month to commemorate the fortieth year in public life of the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, P.C., G. C. B., take this opportunity of expressing their sincere congratulations to him on the high honor bestowed upon him by Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria in conferring the distinguished mark of the Grand Cross of the Bath in recognition of his eminent public services in the North American portion of her empire, and they hereby wish to assure him of their continued confidence in his leadership, distinguished as it has been by wise and patriotic statesmanship, the result now being a prosperous and united country.

That this assembly desire to express their thankfulness that the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, K. C. M. G., G. C. B., has been spared to see that this, the fortieth year of his public life, will be marked by the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway connecting this great Dominion of ours from ocean to ocean, and it is the earnest wish of this assembly that he will still be at the head of the Government when the next greatest national work, the Trent Valley Canal, will be completed.

The following are the names of the delegates:—R. C. Strickland, President; Fred Barlee, Secretary; Isaac Garbutt, Sr., John Dinwoodie, B. Eden, J. Moore, J. Horner, W. J. Sanders, John Blewett, James Nelson, G. W. R. Strickland, F. Dinwoodie, A. J. Wright, J. Rogers, Wm. Cox, sen., J. Griffin, J. P. Strickland, Dr. Armour, J. Cooper, Giles Stone, H. J. LeFevre, W. J. Wallace, T. Recroft, R. Chapin, Isaac Watson, sr., A. Wilson, R. Hill, Jas. Morrison, L. Stone, John Sutton, Sparham Sheldrake, T. Grieve, L. Steele.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—The spire is nearly completed, and adds greatly to its present beauty.

RINK.—Mr. R. B. McIntyre is getting the Victoria Skating Rink into order. During the last few nights a very large number of the younger folks have enjoyed themselves skating on the Indian River.

PARTIES.—A large number of parties are being held, there being no less than three on Wednesday evening last.

CONCERT.—The Victoria Brass Band intend to have a grand concert on or about the 19th of this month. Wait for further particulars in next week's paper.

OTONABEE COUNCIL.—The Times has drawn attention to the item in the REVIEW a few weeks ago about getting some new life into the present Council. We still think it should be accomplished, and therefore urge a full attendance at the nomination to be held on the 29th of this month in the Town Hall, Keene. There are plenty to pick from, who are good speakers and understand the law.

ORANGE.—The Keene L.O.L. will meet on Wednesday evening, Dec. 11th. Business of importance will be brought up, apart from election of officers for next year.

A LIVE STOCK HOLOCAUST.

Thirty-Seven Valuable Cattle and Seven Horses Burned at Guelph.

GUELPH, Dec. 3.—The barn and outbuildings on the farm of Alfred Pipe, situated just outside the city limits, were completely destroyed by fire, together with all their contents, at an early hour this morning. When discovered the flames had made such headway that it was impossible to save anything. The total loss will be between eleven and twelve thousand dollars. There is an insurance of only two or three thousand dollars in the Royal of England, so that Mr. Pipe's loss will be heavy. A most unfortunate and sickening scene at the fire was the burning of thirty-seven head of cattle and seven horses. The cattle were all bred from imported stock, and formerly belonged to the Speedside herd of Durhams. Their value was placed between seven and eight thousand dollars. Whitelaw & McIntosh had been threshing for Mr. Pipe the day previous, and four of the seven horses burned were owned by them. They also lost their separator, which had been recently purchased at a cost of four hundred dollars.

KENTUCKY JUSTICE.

Three Armed Parties Waiting the Decision of the Court—Riotous Proceedings.

WHITESBURG, Ky., Dec. 3.—Judge Finley, of Williamsburg, a famous mountain jurist, for two years has not dared to come here to hold court because of a threat made by one of the most desperate men in the country to kill him if ever he entered it. Recently this man fell a victim to the plague, and the judge came to town to try a man for murder. He was out on bail, and his friends, all men of desperate stripe, determined he should not be punished. The case was set for Wednesday last, and on that day the accused came marching into town carrying a double-barrelled shot gun and a belt full of revolvers, followed by a score of friends armed to the teeth. Their arrival was followed by that of another band of the same size, all carrying shot guns and revolvers. This gang was composed of friends of the victim. They went into camp on a bluff commanding the town. A third band, composed of citizens who thought the law should be allowed to take its course, was organized and went out to-day to stay until after the court adjourned. The party composed of the murderer and his friends has been very riotous and drunken. Several gory engagements have been had between members and outsiders. On Monday a pitched battle was imminent. It is believed serious trouble will occur before the close of the session.

SENSATIONAL ELOPEMENT.

The Flight and Marriage of a Washington Society Belle.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Fashionable society was thrown into a whirlwind of excitement over the announcement to-day of the elopement of Miss Mary Willard, daughter of C. D. Willard, one of Washington's wealthiest citizens, with Wm. Paxton, patent office attorney. Miss Willard was engaged to Frank Simpson, of New York, a wealthy banker's son, and elaborate preparations had been made for their nuptials, which was announced for December 11th. Two thousand invitations had been sent out, and hundreds of costly presents already received. The bride's father is now on his way from Europe to attend the ceremony. The father sent his daughter dresses by Worth, of Paris, which were marvels of the famous man milliner's art. The bride's father and mother were both heartily in favor of the alliance, but Miss Willard was averse to the marriage. She frankly went to Simpson and told him "I can never love you, and desire to be released from my engagement." Owing to the pressure of family influence she did not insist that her decision was final, and allowed it to be announced that the wedding would take place on the 11th instant. This morning, however, she met Paxton, and the couple procured a licence and were quietly married in the presence of the groom's brother and a few of his friends. After the ceremony the couple left on a train bound for the South. The bride is a very handsome brunette with large, dark, lusturous eyes and a plump figure, twenty-two years of age. The union of Miss Willard and Paxton is said to be the culmination of a genuine love match.

AN EXCITING CHASE.

A Prisoner Tries to Escape—Fired at by the Pursuing Constable.

About two months ago Messrs. Hanson & Co. sent Mr. Clear, of Toronto, with two of his teams to work for Malcolm & Ross, sub-contractors on the Northern and Pacific Junction Railway. A fortnight ago Mr. Cleary took ill and came back home leaving a man named Wilson in charge of the teams. A few days ago a telegram was received by Mr. Cleary from a friend telling him that Wilson had sold one of the teams and was trying to dispose of the other. He was spending the money thus obtained recklessly. Cleary went to Bracebridge on Monday and ascertained that Wilson was staying at the Dewdrop hotel, between Gravenhurst and Bracebridge. He and a constable named Howard obtained a cutter and drove to the place. They were told that Wilson had left an hour before for Gravenhurst. They drove rapidly in that direction, and met Wilson about a mile from the village coming back with a woman. The constable arrested him, and he agreed to drive on slowly in front of them to Bracebridge. This he did, until he got to the top of the hill overlooking the village. He then whipped up his horses, and dashed ahead of Cleary and the constable. A most exciting chase ensued. Both the teams dashed through the village, to the astonishment of the residents. The constable fired at Wilson several times, calling upon him to stop, but without effect. Over miles of country the chase continued till at last the pursuers began to gain on the fugitive. When they reached the junction, seven miles east of Bracebridge, they had him at close quarters, and finally succeeded in running him down. Wilson was secured and taken to Barrie gaol on Wednesday morning to await his trial.—Mail.

BULLETS AND DYNAMITE.

Mr. Hendrie, Contractor, Fired at by an Italian Laborer.

Mr. Hanson, of Hanson & Co., contractors agents, of Toronto, arrived last night from Gravenhurst and reports two very exciting incidents which occurred in that vicinity. The first was a shooting affray. On Tuesday night an Italian in the employ of Hendrie, Symms & Co., contractors for the construction of the Northern and Pacific Junction Railway, entered the office of Mr. James Hendrie at Gravenhurst to receive his pay. A dispute arose as to thirty cents and the Italian threw the money he had received down on the floor. While Mr. Hendrie was stooping down to pick it up the Italian drew a revolver and fired a shot at him which fortunately missed its mark. The bookkeeper of the firm, Mr. McKay, promptly grappled with the Italian, and the pair rolled out of the office and down the steps unto the sidewalk. After a desperate struggle the Italian got free and fired a shot at Mr. McKay, the bullet passing under his arm. Mr. Hendrie ran to Mr. McKay's assistance, when the revolver was discharged a third time, but without any more effect than the previous occasion. The blood-thirsty Italian, by the combined efforts of the two, was overpowered, and taken to the lock-up. During the night some of the Italian's friends attempted to effect a rescue. They obtained some dynamite and attempted to blow up one of the cells in order to effect an entrance. They were, however, unsuccessful. The Italian was taken to Barrie on Wednesday morning and was lodged in gaol to await his trial. He refused to give his name.—Mail.

"As Good as New,"

are the words used by a lady, who was at one time given up by the most eminent physicians, and left to die. Reduced to a mere skeleton, pale and haggard, not able to leave her bed, from all these distressing diseases peculiar to suffering females, such as displacement, leucorrhœa, inflammation, etc., etc. She began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and also using the local treatments recommended by him, and is now, she says, "as good as new." Price reduced to $1. By druggists.

CAMPBELLFORD.

MORE GAME FOR DEER HUNTERS.—Messrs. A. Dinwoodie, Alex. Bonnycastle and Jasper Locke and his son returned from a deer hunt with five beautiful deer on Monday evening. They were out four days in the woods back of Blairton. Mr. Dinwoodie was successful in killing four of the number, and Mr. Locke captured one.

A FINE BRIDGE.—The work of completing the bridge of iron is nearly at an end and in a few days traffic over it will be resumed. New planking is being laid as far as the new work extends, and the side walk along side will need the same improvement. Operations commenced two weeks ago and traffic has been stopped about eleven days, causing much inconvenience and loss to the public. The west end will be finished with several feet of trestle work. The bridge is now composed of five pairs of arches, and when finished will make a fine appearance.—Herald.

He was Answered.

"Is that brake hard to handle?" asked a young man on the front platform of a Broadway car of the driver.

"No," responded that person.

"Is that whistle hard to blow?" again interrogated the youth.

"No," gruffly responded the driver.

"What is the hardest thing to do on a street car?"

"Answering fool's questions," replied the driver.—Traveller's Magazine.

Why he Couldn't Hear.

"Well, hubby, how did you enjoy the service this morning?" "To tell the truth, darling, I didn't take much interest in it. I could hardly hear a word of the sermon." "Why, I heard it perfectly. What was the matter?" "Well, I don't know. It may have been because your new bonnet was so loud." And then a silence fell on the dinner table, so intense that you could hear the ice cream.—Albany Journal.

North-West Representation.

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—Mr. N. F. Davin has an interview with the Minister of the Interior the other day in regard to representation in the North-West Territories. Sir David Macpherson would give no pledge, but from the interview an impression was formed that the Government favourably viewed the matter, and that a bill will be brought in to the Commons next session.

Drowned at the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Thomas Collins, about fourteen year old, employed in R. F. Hill's pulp mill, while wheeling sawdust to the tail race in the rapids, about six o'clock last night, is supposed to have slipped, fell into the water, and gone over the falls. He resided between this village and Suspension Bridge.

CANUCKS ON CAMELS.

THE EXPERIENCES OF CANADIAN BOYS IN PHARAOH'S LAND.

The Low Water in the Nile—A Novel Native Mode of Swimming—Captured a Crocodile—What Might be Done with it.

(Special Correspondence of the Review.)

WADY HALFA, Egypt, Nov. 2nd, 1884.

THE PETERBOROUGH REVIEW,—I again take advantage of an idle hour to forward a few more items of "News from the Nile."

I closed my last 29th October, when more boats came in, towed by a small tug. We got to work with a will, and forced them up our four mile stretch in good style. The work is somewhat harder than at first, as the Nile is falling fast. Sometimes we have fair wind and sail up most of the way, having only a few hard pulls, and only getting out of our boats to tow two or three times during a trip. Occasionally we catch the train coming back, but very seldom, and generally have to walk through the deep sand, which drifts over the track as snow would in Canada.

A few of the men are partially used up with sprains and bruises, caused by slipping on the hard, rough rocks, which are black, and polished like a tidy housekeeper's stove at home. In some places we have to pull for our dear lives, but the struggle never lasts over a few minutes, they seem long minutes, though, to the oarsmen. We catch our wind in the eddies, and go at it again like tigers, for get up we will, or Canada will know the reason why. Our Peterborough boys all show up in good form, and do credit to the town and county in which they were raised.

Oct. 30.—Awoke this morning a little stiff, but got early to work, and although we were told we would only have two trips per day to make, the rule was not adhered to, and we have to make three. The old adage, "You should never spur a willing horse," does not obtain here.

We had rum served out to us to-day, but I think it was a mere "sop in the pan," and I don't think we shall be bothered with any more of it for some time to come, if ever.

Lime juice also has been served out twice, and then became a thing of the past. There is something lacking in the commissary executive. Our supplies are irregular, and it looks as if "green mules" were in harness; they either won't pull or can't pull. The railroad from Wady Halfa to a point forty miles south is taxed to the utmost of its carrying powers in forwarding supplies to the front. Thousands of camels are in use for the same purpose. They carry most extraordinary loads, as I have often remarked, yet their powers and patience are a standing wonder, to me, at any rate. All day long the faithful brutes pass and repass our camp, a commissary in charge, and three or four drivers to about fifty camels.

They trail in single file fastened together head and tail, the halter of the hindermost to the tail of the one ahead.

To-day as we were walking back after our first trip a train of camels coming back to Wady Halfa for a fresh load overtook us. The officer in charge gave us leave to mount and ride to camp. The animal is made to kneel to allow us to mount and in like manner they load them. One poor beast revolted and would not rise after getting down to allow one of our men to mount; no amount of coaxing or persuasion would induce him to get up, and he is there yet—for by command of the officer in charge he was shot and the skin on the side of his neck on which his number was branded was cut off and taken to headquarters to show (I suppose) that he was not otherwise disposed of.

Oct. 31.—Made two trips this morning and were back to camp at one o'clock; we had no sails, yet we made the trip in good time and form.

The river is falling very fast; it is fully two feet lower than it was on the 28th.

We are again ahead of supply of boats and of course we have to lie idle until another lot comes up.

The men on the stretches ahead are getting on well. Their work is not quite so hard as ours. They have more water in the channels and not so much of a fall.

The cataract here is made up of numerous narrow channels separated by rocky islands. On an odd one here and there may be found a few palm trees and perhaps a small crop of corn, but the majority are hard black Syenite rock.

We received news from the big gate, which is at the head of this cataract, this evening to the effect that one of the Caughnawagha Indians named Louis, I think, was drowned. He was on the wrong side of the tow rope and got knocked over. Two of his comrades jumped in after him but could not save him. We have not heard of the recovery of his body.

The natives along the river are strange creatures; they seem half fish half the other thing. If they want to cross the river or descend the rapids they inflate a bag made of raw goat skin or tie a lot of corn stalks together, lay their breast on this primitive, float and propell themselves across or down as they will. They wrap their clothes, dates, melons or whatever they may want to carry in a bundle, fasten it on the head and off they go. When they came over to our camp they slip into their cotton gowns, tie up their turbans, squat themselves on the ground, spread out a cloth and lay their fruit or whatever they have for sale in the edible way on it and hallo, "Come, Johnny, come," holding up one finger and shouting out "Piastre." They dont seem to understand any other coin, its the eternal piastre for everything, but yet they are adepts in the cheating line and are far more than a match for the very sharpest file among us.

There are always a few children around our camp tending their flocks of poor miserable skinny goats which live on wind pudding and sand I think, for I cannot see anything else they can feed on.

They are not a bad featured race and if decently clad would pass muster very well. There are some pretty good looking women among them, but we seldom get a chance to see them, they invariably hide their faces when we approach, especially if any of their masters are in sight.

Some of them have large rings in both ears and nose, and bracelets on their arms and ancles. They are sometimes robed in a long dress of blue cotton. They are erect in carriage and sprightly, and not ungraceful in their movements.

I am sure if a cargo was exported to Peterborough, and catered for by some of its celebrated modistes, there would be countless numbers of the adolescents struck vitally. The interpreter at our camp tells me that most of the men and women here are slaves, and that plenty of slave dealing is going on quietly, although the Government prohibits the traffic. He assures me that he knew two brothers being sold to a contractor on the railroad last week for $20.00. Most of the men are scarred on the cheek or temple with three or four parallel cuts of a knife and the women are tatooed on the forehead and chin.

The Egyptian soldiers wear white cotton tunics, bloomer pants, and Wellington half-boots. There is some slight difference in some of their uniforms, which, I suppose, is intended to distinguish one regiment from another, but the general appearance of the costumes is picturesque and well suited to the country. Some of McNaren's men bought a young crocodile yesterday; he is about 18 inches long. They tied a cord back of his fore legs and left him snubbed on the bank of the river. His head is about a quarter of his length, his jaws are filled with rows of sharp teeth, and he will snap a good sized twig in two right quick. If he is at all intelligent we will train him to supply the camp with fish, and if he works satisfactorily will make a contract with Mr. Smith, of Peterborough, to supply the home market with the fish of these waters.

The natives fish with a kind of gill net, and catch quite a variety. One species much resembles our Otonabee cat-fish, the only difference appears to be in color, these being lighter in shade, and in the length of the feelers, which are 4 to 6 inches long. As I am not a Seth Green or a Wilmot, I shall not attempt to describe or classify the other species.

Nov. 1st.—We enter on a new month in idleness. There are no boats yet. The newspapers I receive from home are a great boon to the boys, they are eagerly devouring them now as I write. All's well at our end on the Nile. No sickness that I know of.

We have to eat after every trip, and an engineer on the railway being informed that six more Canadians were going to the front, remarked that there would be another ton of freight for the poor engine.

We can easily punish four meals a day if the meals are only on hand to be punished.

A greasy looking specimen of degraded humanity, half Greek, half native, has established a canteen in our camp, and such delicacies as pickles, canned salmon, lobsters, condensed milk, cocoa and milk, sardines and ginger beer can be bought. So we can live high and pay high if so inclined.

Nov. 2.—No boats yet. Received another welcome letter and batch of papers from home. Spent part of a day in hunting for agates and other fancy stones which, if they stand cutting, will make handsome settings for jewellery for our chere amis in Canada.

A burial in this country is worthy of notice. The grave being dug the corpse is laid in its last resting place. A hundred or more women form a circle about a hundred feet from the grave, and the men also form a distinct circle, and then the ancient eastern custom of howling over the dead breaks out with a violence for which there is no name, and if there were any possibility of awakening the dead, Egyptians would never die. Dante's Inferno is cast in the shade by these barbaric rites.

Some of our men saw and were deceived by a mirage while exploring the near desert this morning. I will go out to-morrow and try if I can recall it.

General Wolseley is out to the front now, the 42nd regiment is ordered there also, everything is moving fast but the boats, and we (although it would make it hard for us) wish they would come as fast as we can send them up the rapids. But patience, we will probably get to the front soon enough.

J.A.S.

A NEW AND NOVEL IDEA.

There has been numerous devices in connection with lumbering, but the following method of logging as described by W. A. Campbell, of East Saginaw, is quite unique:

"There is one problem, however, that has but recently presented itself for solution. Heretofore lumbermen have found their pick of timber on high ground and on the banks of streams, but as this has been cut away, they have been driven back to more expensive cuttings. Then there comes the swamp lands; lands growing fine timber but utterly inaccessible with trucks or sleds, and this growth must be left to itself unless some one contrives means other than those previously employed to get it out. It is stated that a demand produces a supply, and it is at this juncture that a most admirable contrivance is brought before the lumbering public. At the camp of Butters & Peters, near Ludington, there is an adaptation of the well known life line of the United States life-saving service, and one that is especially suitable for swamp work, particularly in the cypress swamps of the south.

A ordinary logging road is built to the edge of the swamp, and here a strong tree is chosen to which a heavy wire cable is attached. This is strerched about 25 or 30 feet from the ground out over the swamp for a distance of 400 or 500 feet, and fastened to another tree, both trees being well guyed to prevent them from breaking. Just at the side of the track there is placed a small but powerful hoisting engine, provided with three drums and suitable clutches for operating them. On this wire tramway, as it really is, there is a two-wheeled trolley, with an endless manilla rope attached, so that it may be drawn back and forth over the tight wire rope. The bottom of the trolley is further provided with a sheave and box carrying another rope, one end of which is connected with a drum, the other being spliced into an ordinary pair of skidding tongs. This rope with the skidding tongs is dragged into the swamp and fastened to the log to be taken out, the engine started and the log hauled until it is suspended in mid air directly under the trolley, which is then drawn onto the track and the log deposited upon the pile or loaded on the cars, as may be desired. The trolley is then run back and another log follows in the path of the first. As to the details of the construction of this novel adaption little need be said here. The engine and boiler are placed upon a little car or truck that may be easily removed from the main track and run in any position that is desired, and its construction may be varied to suit the taste or necessities of the men who are to use it. The ropes are ordinary Manilla ropes, and the trolleys are of the simple and ordinary two wheeled type. It is only necessary to see this neat and simple contrivance at work to be convinced of its great usefulness for the purpose for which it was invented. Logs are snaked out of mud holes, ravines and gulches where no horse could ever be driven, raised into the air, run along through the woods at a good round rate and piled 20 feet high, with a rapidity and ease that would surprise any man accustomed only to the slower methods heretofore in use, for which ordinary working 30,000 feet have been taken from the woods where the trees were felled and loaded on the cars in the space of two hours, and with a service of only 13 men; and these same cars were unloaded at the rollway by a somewhat similar device in three minutes. And so strong and serviceable is the whole mechanism that with a single line of 500 feet in length at least 30 acres may be cleared by running the hoisting rope out on each side and beyond its limits, and when all the timber within its reach has been removed, the whole is taken down packed on a car and set up in another locality where the same process is repeated.

It is such improvements as this that will give our lumbermen their precedence, and unless some unlikely and disastrous legislation is effected so that our industries are crippled at a blow, we need have no fear but that means will be found to overcome all the difficulties that may be in the path that is to be followed and we will still continue to lead the world in the cheapness with which we do our work and the excellence of the article produced."—Lumberman's Gazette.

WIT AND WISDOM.

Words in season — "How's your cold?" "Bredy bad, thag yer."

If there was no wisdom in the world no one would suspect himself of folly.

"Trust" is a good motto for a Christian; "Trust not" is a good one for a tailor.

Doctors should dearly love our good mother earth, for she kindly hides their evil work.

When we see a young lady with a sweet beauty spot on her cheek we feel like kissing her on the spot.

A woman should consider her heart as licensed, like an omnibus, to carry not more than a dozen inside.

Many young men would pay very little regard to the church bells but for the thought of the church belles.

A little boy thinks it is funny that an elephant should always carry a trunk when he doesn't wear any clothes.

Girls who mourn because the men won't propose should bear in mind that Naomi was five hundred and eight years old before she married.

"Trust men and they will trust you," said Ralph Waldo Emerson. "Trust men and they will bust you," says an ordinary everyday business man.

"Ah! Mr. Hebbleton, I hear you have been called to the ministry." "Well, I can hardly term it a call. They only offer me five hundred a year. Sort of a whisper, you understand."

A YOUNG gentleman asked a young lady what she thought of the "marriage state in general." "Not knowing can't tell," was the reply; "but if you and I could put our heads together, I could soon give you a definite answer."

GRANNY (who has a very promising moustache, to little boy of four years old)—"Tut, tut, Wullie, ye maun eat the crusts, or ye'll never has a beard." Little boy—"Did you eat the crusts, granny, when you were like me?" (Granny buys a razor.)

"DON'T you think you have a good mamma, to spread out such nice large slices of bread and jam for you?" said and old lady to a little boy who was enjoying his tea. "Yes," was the reply; "but she would still be better if she let me spread on the jam myself."

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

THE REASON WHY

Our Shoe Store is always Crowded

With Customers is very apparent to those that have visited it and seen our immense Stock and compared our prices with those asked elsewhere for the same goods. Never have we had such Bargains in Boots and Shoes as now. Never have we sold as many as now, and the more we sell the

GREATER BARGAINS

we have, as we are able to buy in larger quantities and at corresponding low prices. We retail as many Boots and Shoes as most jobbers sell at wholesale, consequently manufacturers make no difference in price to us than wholesale trade, while smaller dealers are obliged to pay which is about the same as our regular retail price for the same quality of goods. It must be very evident to any thinking person that there must be a reason for our immense Shoe Business, and that our low prices, complete stock, and attention shown to our customers can be the only attraction powerful enough to draw such crowds to our store, and place us, with but two years' growth, as one of the largest retail Shoe Houses in Eastern Ontario.

JOBBERS' PRICES,

Remember our system of business is square with all. Goods marked in plain figures and no second or third prices made.

School Attendance.

The reports of the attendance of pupils at the Separate Schools for the month of November are as follows:—Pupils on register, 513; average attendance, 452.

Missionary Sermons.

The Rev. F. W. Campbell, Mission Secretary for the Diocese of Toronto, will preach on Missions in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, on Sunday next, at both the morning and evening services. Eloquent discourses may be expected, Mr. Campbell being an effective speaker.

Sheep Worried by Dogs.

Dogs appear to be still doing damage to sheep in North Monaghan. On Thursday night eight sheep belonging to Mr. Joseph Forster, the Reeve of the township, was worried by canines. One of the sheep was a valuable one which Mr. Forster recently purchased from Mr. Wm. Collins.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate winds between south-east and south west, fair to cloudy, continued comparatively mild weather.

C. E. T. S. Entertainment.

A concert under the auspices of St. Luke's Temperance Society will be held in the School Room, Ashburnham, on Monday next, the 8th of December, at 8 o'clock. An excellent programme has been provided of vocal and instrumental music, readings, etc. The concert will close with a charade. Admission, 10 cents.

Acknowledgement.

The committee of the Peterborough Protestant Home desire to acknowledge, with thanks, the following donations for the month of November:—Peter Connal, bag apples: Mrs. T. A. S. Hay, parcel clothing; Charles Chrowe, 2 bags potatoes; Mrs. Jas. Alexander, parcel clothing; Mrs. Innes, parcel clothing; Mrs. Dunlop, carpet and bed tick; Mrs. Halliday, a quilt; Joseph Taylor, bag apples; Mr. Hook, basket onions and bag parsnips; Mrs. Vincent Clementi, parcel clothing; General Haultain, 8 bags potatoes; Mr. Wallis, bag onions and turnips; Mrs. W. Morrow, parcel clothing and quilt; Mrs. Turnbull, bedstead and bedding; 12 Bibles from the Bible Society.

Obituary.

The Belleville Intelligencer records the death of Mr. Wm. Wensley, who has friends and relatives in Peterborough, which occurred on Thursday morning. The deceased gentleman was in his 65th year, he having been born in Somerset, England, on April 10th, 1820. In the obituary notice the Intelligencer says:—

"He will long live in the memory of workers in the causes of Christianity and education as an indefatigable and zealous co-laborer. In politics he was an active supporter of the Conservative party, and for the past fourteen years and upwards has been an active member of the Board of Education of the city. He was a man of deep convictions and combined with this a tireless energy, which made him a power in whatever department of life he figured. For twenty years he has been identified with the Methodist body. The same enthusiasm that characterized him in other pursuits was a becoming garment in his labors for Christianity, and he wore it becomingly. It was largely through his instrumentality that the Kingston Road Methodist Church was erected. For many years he has been a trustee and superintendent of its Sabbath School, a well as a trustee of the Bridge Street Church."

Christmas and New Years.

An exchange says that judicious advertising creates many a new business; enlarges many an old business; revives many a dull business; rescues many a lost business; saves many a failing business; preserves many a large business. All this is true in every particular, and every word of it has been exemplified by hundreds of real live business men in Canada. We need not go further than Peterborough to prove the truthfulness of it. At this season of the year the merchants should pay particular attention to the daily local paper. Let the public know what you have to put before them during the holiday season; let them become familiar with your advertisement in the paper, and in consequence, they will in return become more and more acquainted with you personally and your trade or calling in particular. This fact is invariably the case. The many advantages to be derived from advertising in the REVIEW is now apparent to most of the merchants in Peterborough, and to the general public as well, who look for the various announcements of different business men in these columns with the same regularity as they perform their other daily duties.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

OUR LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

QUIRK & COMPANY, THE CIGAR MAKERS, ARE DRIVING A LIVELY BUSINESS.

New Departments Added—Increase in the Size of the Factory—A Good Article at a Reasonable Price—Their Goods are Appreciated.

Since our last visit to the cigar factory of the above mentioned firm, one of the partners has retired, namely, Mr. Miller, and the firm will be henceforth known as Quirk & Co.

But other changes have taken place. A new office and packing room have been added to the factory, facing Simcoe street. A new bonded warehouse has also been added, in which to place the surplus stock at the end of each month, but so great has been the demand for the popular brands of cigars made by this firm that they have not yet had occasion to use this department—not even a box having been placed in it since the establishing of the factory last July.

In addition to the six original brands of cigars manufactured by this firm, viz., the "Peterborough," the "Good Enough," the "Old Acquaintance," the "La Sirena," the "Idyl Wild," and the "Chic Chic," they now manufacture "Early Birds," "Silver King," "Madelon," "Titania" and "Faucher's Bodega." This shows what a variety the customer may chose from—almost all sizes and shapes and at different prices.

Mr. Todd, a member of the firm, informs us that trade in the cigar line has been unusually lively since the factory was established in this town. In fact the orders have come in so rapidly that the employees have been compelled to do night work during the last two months, and still the orders are in excess of the supply to the extent of twenty-five thousand cigars.

Notwithstanding the keen competition which exists, in which drummers for outside factories are cutting prices, the demand for the cigars manufactured by this firm still continues unabated, and the run on the favorite brands, the "Peterborough" and the "Idyl Wild" is as great as it ever was.

Messrs. Quirk & Co. have not reduced their prices, but furnish the best of goods at a small margin. The reason that the demand still continues firm is to a great extent due to the care taken in the various processes before the goods are placed upon the market. Finally the cigars all undergo a gradual drying process, thereby rendering them more fragrant, and at the same time they do not receive that dry and dusty form which the quick drying process imparts.

The coloring is natural. No drugs are used to make the cigars either oscuro or claro. The cigars are, by the quick and careful eye of the packer, divided into three kinds, and then again subdivided into three more different shades.

The hands now employed in the factory is about double in number as compared with those employed at the opening of the factory, and every available spot is now occupied by busy hands twisting and turning the fragrant leaf and moulding it into shape.

Mr. Todd is of the opinion that the company will be obliged to seek larger premises before long if the trade still continues as it has done during the last three months. The company have secured almost all the local cigar trade, and when they have thoroughly exhausted the home market they intend to commence shipping to other places. We may just say that most of the orders coming in are unsolicited, which fact is highly complimentary to the firm of Quirk & Co.

If you want Underclothing, don't procrastinate, but avail yourself of the twenty per cent. discount now being offered on all sales of Winter Underclothing at Andrew McNeil's.

FERGUSON ON TRIAL.

Important Evidence Given on the Burglary Case.

This morning at the Police Court John Ferguson was arraigned on a charge preferred against him by Chief of Police Johnston of having, on the 23rd day of October, taken, stolen and carried away a quantity of furs, the property of Jos. Mills.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily.

CHIEF OF POLICE JOHNSTON and Mr. J. Mills were sworn as to the finding and identifying the stolen goods.

ALEX. RITCHIE, sworn,—I am confined in the gaol on the charge of a breach of the peace committed against a police officer in the County of Victoria. I never saw the prisoner before I saw him in the County Gaol. I had several conversations with him in the gaol. The first conversation we had was during the last week in October. He said, "Ritchie, I wish you were going out the same time as I am, I would make you a present of a fur cap." I asked him what kind he would give me. He answered, "A Persian lamb skin." Says I "Where have you got these caps, in your boarding house?" "No,' he said, "they are in a barn at the lower end of Englishtown in a hay mow about four feet down in the hay. There is a bag—." At this point the turnkey came in and the conversation was broken off. On Nov. 9th we had another discourse. "Say," said he, "suppose you were to get seven years, would you squeal?" "What do you mean?" I asked. "Well," he said, "If you don't know I guess I won't tell." "Oh, tell," says I. "Seven years is a long time to look forward, but a short time to look back," I said "I think I would divulge if it were my grandfather who was on trial." He said, "I would not. You know I need not have been here if I had a mind to. I would not if I were to get 27 years, Bob Duncan is as good as I am and better." On Nov. 12th I said, "Don't you know that you would get a reward of $200 if you turn Queen's evidence?" "What," said he, "on myself? They can't give me more than seven years." On Nov. 10th the prisoner said to me, "Are you going to stick to that offer you made me?" "What was that?" I asked. "To give me $20 for my kit." "Oh, I don't know," I said. "I wouldn't take $75 for it." Ferguson said, "if I could get out on Thursday. There is a splendid English guard on the super. I can get $15 for it. He is going to get me out for that and then they can go to hell." On Nov. 13th I heard Ferguson say to Bob Duncan, "Are you going to P. G.?" whatever that may mean. "No," replied Duncan. "That's right; you stick to me and I'll stick to you."

P. C. PIDGEON was sworn regarding similar conversations overheard by him between Duncan and Ferguson in the gaol.

The case was adjourned for one week.

A Narrow Escape.

Two men sauntered up George Street on Wednesday afternoon.

"Say," said one, "did you hear of the narrow escape John had yesterday?"

"No, I did not," replied the other, "How was it."

"Well, you see, he was hitching up his horse to go for a drive, and the horse never having been known to kick he was a little careless. But he was too confident, for the animal kicked him viciously on the cheek."

"Poor horse!" murmured the other man. "Did it hurt its foot much?"

You see, many people have a great deal of assurance. There are many ways of designating it, but some of the most popular ways just now are "cheek," "brass," "hard cheek," &c. A certain amount of self-confidence may be a good thing, and even necessary, but if a person has a whole Alps of cheek he usually makes himself unpopular. But no matter how much assurance a man may possess there is one thing he would scarcely be capable of doing. He could not have the hardihood to say he could not find goods to suit him at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Habiliment Hall, George Street, or that the prices are not very reasonable.

They act surely and quickly, every bottle guranteed to give entire satisfaction or money returned. Sold at 50cts a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

LOW PRICES!

More than ever before people are now using the closest scrutiny in making their purchases. But few have money to waste on worthless goods, and many feel the necessity of being careful in their expenditures, every one wants to get the best value he or she can for the money they spend. This is true in the purchasing of Dry Goods or Clothing more than in other lines of trade. We have purchased our Stock of Goods to meet this condition of things. We have built up our trade by selling good goods with the lowest possible profits. Our Stock is large in the several departments of our business, and we can give better wearing goods for less money than can be done for you by any house in the country.

Special Lines at Reduced Rates for the next three weeks.

14 pieces Costume Melton, 10 different shades, at 20 cents per yard.

16 pieces Costume Melton, in 12 different shades, at 25 cents per yard.

12 pieces Foule Dress Goods, in 8 different shades, at 25 cents per yard.

18 pieces All-Wool Cashmere, in 12 shades, at 50 cents. Sold in town at 65 cents.

Black Cashmeres from 25 cents to $2.00 per yard.

Our Finest Cashmeres cannot be surpassed in the large cities.

Dress Goods in all the new designs from 8 cents per yard and upwards.

Dress Goods in all the colours, from 8 cents per yard and upwards. A reduction of ten per cent. is made for the next three weeks in all Fancy Wool Goods.

Ladies should not fail to see our assortment of Velvet Shawls, ranging in price from $2.50 to $9.00.

A Big Purchase of Grey Cottons.

We have just completed a contract for the purchase of fifteen thousand yards of Grey Cottons, which we can sell by the piece at a lower price than the merchants can usually buy it by the bale.

FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON!

A case of Silk Squares, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Scarfs ex. S. S. Peruvian, will arrive this week and will be sold at astonishingly low prices.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier that can be used. It invariably expels all blood poisons from the system, enriches and renews the blood, and restores its vitalizing power. It is the best known remedy for Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin, as also for all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood, such as Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, and Scrofulous Catarrh.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years.

Dancing and Calisthenics

Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Toronto

Professor of Dancing and Calisthenics,

IS NOW TEACHING the Terpsichorean Art in the the leading families throughout the town. Although in town only a short time, his new and popular method of teaching has gone abroad and applications are daily coming in by letter requiring his taking charge of classes and pupils.

Some of the new dances taught are the Navy Shcottische, The Military Shcottische, The Knickerbocker and the new Heel and Toe Waltz. He also teaches the Ripple and the Jersey as they should be danced, and shows his pupils how to enter a ball-room; how to conduct themselves with proper deportment while there, and how to leave the room.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1884.

The London Advertiser referred to the editor of the Mail by name, the Mail paid the editor of the London journal the same compliment, and, as the Advertiser had the name of the editor-in-chief displayed at the head of its editorial columns, the Hamilton Spectator also mentioned the gentleman's name frequently. Now the Advertiser, after objecting to the proceedings, comes out with a personal reference to the editor of the Hamilton paper. This is all owing to the bad example of one man. The "man who writes the leading articles" for the Bobcaygeon Independent first set the bad example, and this sin is added to the mountain of wrong already deposited on Mr. Smiff's back. But there is one advantage to the people of those cities in their personal warfare. When they go in with a club to hunt up the man "who wrote that piece" they know who to ask for.

Arrived this week, a new lot of Men's Underclothing, worth $1, sale price 75 cents, at Turnbull's.

Chit Chat.

—Damp, dark day.

—The atmosphere is humid.

—There was a blank at the Police Court this morning.

—A large number of people were in town today.

—Although the day is rather dull, business is lively.

—Building operations are gradually drawing to a close.

—The roof is being put on, metaphorically speaking.

—A local literary genius is, we understand, composing a play. The production will be placed on the boards during the Christmas holidays under the auspices of the Cricket Club.

—During the past few days carpenters and plasterers have been busily engaged in repairing the Grand Central Hotel, where it was damaged by the late fire. The work will be completed in a day or two.

—Several car loads of iron for the Hunter street bridge has been received by the consignee, Mr. W. H. Law, of the Central Iron Works. The iron is of a fine quality and peculiarly adapted to bridges of the class as is designed for the spanning of the creek on Hunter street.

THE PHOSPHATE INDUSTRY.

The Season's Business at the Ottawa Mines—Shipments for the Year.

OTTAWA, Dec. 5.—The phosphate trade this season has been more extensive than was anticipated. The increase would have been much greater had the weather been favourable, but the prolonged wet weather rendered the roads to and from the mines difficult of traffic. The Buckingham road especially was completely broken up, thus reducing the shipment from that district alone over 2,500 tons. At the High Rock mine 1,000 tons remain on hand, while at several of the other mines large quantities have been held over. The prices have not been so good as in former years, but the decrease in the price of labour has more than balanced the falling off. On the whole the season has been favourable to those engaged in the phosphate trade. The total amount shipped from the mines this year was 22,143 tons, of which Ottawa county mines furnished 20,353 tons. Last year the total shipments from Montreal port amounted to 17,840 tons. This year for the same port the shipments amounted to 21,243, showing an increase for this year of 3,404 tons.

COOK TEETS HANGED.

The Wife Murderer Pays the Penalty of His Crime.

OWEN SOUND, Dec. 5.—This morning at eight o'clock, Cook Teets, convicted of murdering his wife by administering poison to her a year ago last October, in the township of Artemesia, paid the penalty of his crime on the gallows. His solicitor during the trial at the Assize Court made every effort to have the death sentence commuted, but without avail. Last night he received a telegram from Ottawa stating that there would be no executive interference. The doomed man received the news with great calmness; in fact ever since his imprisonment in Oct., 1883, and since the sentence of the court a month ago, he has conducted himself with great composure and manifested the greatest indifference as to the horrible crime with which he was convicted, and the terrible end that awaited him. Last night the hours were fast fleeting away, and the dreaded moment approached, he occupied the time leisurely talking and chatting with those who happened to visit him. Whenever the subject of the murder was reverted to he protested his innocence, and declared in the most emphatic manner that he was innocent of the charge. Yesterday in the presence of the clergy and others he made a long statement in writing, reviewing the whole case and denying the evidence given at the trial by the Leppard family. The statement will be published. This morning the prisoner was attended by the Rev. J. Howell, Methodist minister, and Rev. A. H. Scott, pastor of Knox Church. They visited the cell early this morning and held conversation and prayer with the domed man, who appeared quite penitent and prepared for the end, but still declared his innocence. He had no desire to make any statement on the scaffold, and requested the gaol officials to have the ceremony short as possible. At just three minutes to eight o'clock the cell door was opened and the sad procession started, consisting of the prisoner, supported on the right and left by Rev. Messrs. Howell and Scott, and followed by the Sheriff, gaoler, and other officials. The prisoner walked to the scaffold and ascended the steps with much fortitude and firmness, and took his stand on the trap door of the scaffold. Whilst the hangman was adjusting the noose the prisoner shuddered and gave himself a slight turn to the left, which was followed by a nervous trembling for a few moments, during the delivery of the Lord's prayer by Rev. Mr. Howell. The hangman then drew the bolt and Cook Teets was almost instantaneously ushered into eternity. After the body had been hanging for about 15 minutes it was cut down and an inquest held by Coroner Cameron. The jury returned a verdict of death by hanging in compliance with the sentence of the Court.

NEWBOLD'S RETHORIC

He Surprises the Court with a Burst of Eloquence.

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—The motion for a new trial in the Neiville alias Newbold case was argued before Judge Lemmon at Toledo yesterday morning, and was overruled. When the judge asked the prisoner, "Have you anything to say before being sentenced?" Newbold arose, and made the best and most eloquent speech ever made in Lucas County Court House. During his address he referred to all his wives. He said Misses Whitney and Rolle had expressed a desire to take the witness-stand in his behalf, but he would not permit it. He asserted Mr. Whitney had spent $8,000 to $10,000 to convict him. Turning and pointing, to the clock he said:—"As the clock strikes the hour of the expiration of my sentence, that hour I'll be joined by my wife. Together we will go to Canada after a precious package, and immediately we will start for the sunny lands of happiness and joy." The address throughout was impressive and exceedingly well composed, holding the large audience spell bound. The judge reviewed the case, finally pronouncing sentence, seven years, the full extent of the law. Newbold asked, "Do you call that Ohio justice?" "Yes," replied the judge. Newbold said, "Ha rd citizens, the jury find them not guilty and turn them out, while I, an innocent man, must suffer for an offence I did not commit." He replied to the judge's advice, "Be good, prisoner, and therefore get two year's off your sentence." "No, I will serve the entire sentence if Whitney's money will keep me there." The secret revealed the other night was begun by his talking about a previous marriage six years ago, occurring at Sherbrooke, Canada, also of a child which was born about that time at the same place. This story was afterward's corroborated by him tellingit to a friend, and he referred to it in his address to the judge. The case will be carried to the Supreme Court.

THE LAKE SUPERIOR SECTION.

Fast Work Accomplished by Construction Gangs—Names of Stations.

In conversation with a Globe reporter a few days ago, a leading Canadian Pacific official stated that all the material for the construction of the Lake Superior section of the road was already on the ground, every nail and every pane of glass for the station buildings, was ready to be put in place, and the line would be ready for business by the 1st of April. From other officers it was learned that Mr. Abbot had laid down in the 13 working days between the 8th and 23rd of last month fifteen and three quarter miles of track west of Sudbury, and on Thursday laid 5,000 feet, or a little over a mile of track. Mr. John Ross, who has charge of the work east of Pic, was laying an average of about a mile a day, so that the distance between the two parties was being lessened by two miles every working day. The names of some of the points along the line are, to say the least of it, curious, and will prove troublesome to not a few conductors, brakesmen and passengers. The following are a few of them, with the distance of each from Sudbury Junction:—Vermillion River, 21; Onaping, 24; Pagamasing, 51; Spanish River, 61; Eureka, 79; Biscotasing, 91; Woman's River, 121; Wakamagamsing, 131; Nemogosenda River, 156; Lake Annotowagama, 171; Lake Kebsquer-hesing, 176; Lake Kawnemesenka, 181; Lake Magneshquanda, 198; Nippissi River, 211; and Lake Ogawnsiwi, 221 miles west of Sudbury. If these names do not destroy some poor fellow's reason it will be a matter for surprise, if not congratulation.—Toronto Globe.

Dynamite at a Party.

STAFFORD, N. H., Dec. 5.—Stephen Young had a party last night. There was dynamite for blasting purposes on the shelf. One of the party to scare the rest fired a revolver. The jar caused an explosion of dynamite. The house was blown to atoms and burned. A Frenchman employed by Young was killed, and seven persons were wounded. Bonds amounting to $50,000, and some railroad stocks, were destroyed. Sadie Greenfield, of Rochester, was blown through a window and her head cut open. Several of the injured will probably die, including Dr. Stephen Young, of Rochester, and his uncle, Stephen Young, at whose house the explosion occurred.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1884.

WITH their usual regard for fairness and decency, Conservatives are ignoring past differences in order to honor the memory of the late Hon. George Brown. With wretched taste some Reformers are refusing to accept this tribute to their departed leader, and are insisting that Mr. Brown's actions were such as to render him unfit for Conservative eulogies. There is one thing certain, that the late Senator Brown would have no eulogy for some of the recent vagaries of his old journal and his old followers.

THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE.

SOME Reform journals are calling attention to the fact that honors have been heaped by Sovereign and people on Sir John Macdonald, "because he represents Canada." They are quite right; Sir John is honored because he has long been a representative Canadian, and because his services to Canada have been so great that the people of Canada have now selected him to represent them. The Reform critics, who are insulting alike Sir John Macdonald and the Sovereign on account of the honor bestowed upon him, are doing so by reason of their rage at their rejection, and Sir John's selection by the people of Canada as their representative and the administrator of their affairs. This is what modern Reformers call "submission to the voice of the people."

SANITARY MEASURES.

Spaulding's Bay and Sewers—Opinions of Medical Authorities.

The following letters, as to our sanitary condition, have been received by Mr. A. McNeil, as Chairman of the Board of Health:—

Andrew McNeil, Esq., Chairman Local Board of Health, Peterborough:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your letter, I take the opportunity of repeating what I remarked when in Peterborough regarding both the character of Spaulding's Bay as a nuisance and the easy method of removing the same. Did the water remain at the height of the spring freshets throughout the season, no great harm would result; but as it does not, its fall leaves the shores of the bay covered with a deposit of organic matter, which, as it decays and dies out, undoubtedly tends to cause fevers of an intermittent and malarial type. Of course the complete filling up of the bay with sand or gravel is the best and most permanent way of dealing with the difficulty (not scavenger's refuse); but if for any reason this be not resorted to, then pure gravel is to be thickly deposited along the whole shores, as far out as the lowest point of the water in summer. Of course this would not prevent the continued deposit of organic matter from season to season. This must be expected as long as contamination of the river by sawdust and city refuse is continued. Trusting that your council may see to it that such a nuisance is effectually dealt with at once,

I have the honor to be
Your obedient servant,
PETER H. BRYCE.

November 24, 1884.

PETERBOROUGH, Dec. 2, 1884.

A. McNeil, Esq.:

SIR,—I received your communication in re "Better Drainage for Peterborough," and I must congratulate you upon taking a step in the right direction.

The time has certainly arrived when this important matter should be attended to.

At the proper time I will do my share towards showing the great advantage a good system of drainage would be to our flourishing town.

I remain, sir,
faithfully yours,
R. KINCAID.

PETERBOROUGH, Dec. 1st, 1884.

A. McNeil, Chairman of the Board of Health, Peterborough:—

DEAR SIR,—It has occurred to me that an expression of opinion addressed to you by the various medical men of the town, might strengthen the hands of the Board and their medical health officers in any proposed undertaking to improve its sanitay condition. While admitting the healthy site on which our town is built, it must not be forgotten that where so large a population is congregated together within a limited area, the accumulation of animal and vegatable matter must be enormous, and is being increased daily. Such accumulation is well known to produce and increase in virulence many diseases. It therefore behooves us to take such necessary precautions as will prevent, or at least mitigate, the severity of these diseases. Present appearances indicate a probable visit from that scourge disease cholera, next year, to this continent, and with the rapid means of transit now available, and our situation on one of the great lines of travel, our inland town cannot claim any likelihood of immunity from attack. We are also just now having a large number of cases of typhoid fever, and also I believe several of diphtheria. All these might be absolutely prevented, or most certainly largely decreased in number, if proper sanitary regulations were enforced, and our municipal authorities were to provide such means of cleansing the town as come within their jurisdiction.

First and foremost requiring attention I may say comes the necessity for filling up that plague spot known as Spaulding's Bay, which I hesitate not to assert has cost many lives, for which some persons are responsible, and who, let those who have had it in their power to fill it up answer. The residents of the town should thank a kind Providence for the fair exemption they have had from continued disease, in providing that as a rule westerly winds prevail during the summer, and carry the malaria and offensive effluvia generated from the decaying matter about the bay across the lake, instead of into their homes. I say, then, urge the matter on until the plague spot is blotted out of existence, and lives saved thereby, every one of which is worth far more to the community than the whole cost of filling.

Next is the question of sewerage, which is too extensive a one to enter into in detail in this letter, but it is sufficient to say, that a town of this size, demands a thorough system, if the citizens place any value on their lives. Deaths have been caused by the want of it, and more I predict will occur, and who shall say who's turn it will be next. Such sewers as we have are a disgrace, as bad as cesspools. Who has not had to hold his nose frequently and hasten on, from the sickening stench arising from the gratings at the corners of our main streets?

Most persons are, while in health, too much absorbed in business to give sanitary matters more than a passing thought, until some member or members of their own families are stricken down, frequently unto death with some preventable disease. An interest is then awakened and no expense is considered too great, if the loved one can only be restored. A physician is consulted and possibly the cause of the disease sought out, but I fear even then is not always removed. Why the terrible anxiety, and disregard of expense, in the desire to have friends recover from disease, while there is such utter indifference about its prevention? A greater interest must be awakened in the community, and the lesson taught that prevention of disease is better and cheaper than cure. I think it would be a good idea if the Board of Health would hold a series of ward meetings during the long winter evenings, and have the Medical Health Officer, or other capable person, address them, and discuss with those present various matters connected with the health of the town.

The item of expense, the addition of a few cents annually to our taxation, I believe tends to deter many from advocating what they know to be necessary and wise legislation for the public health, trusting that "westerly winds will prevail" always, and other favorable circumstances protect us, but the day will surely come when such a "penny wise and pound foolish" policy will no longer wink at us as it now does, but glare on us with some horrible epidemic, such as our town has never yet seen.

Why cannot money be borrowed for expenditure in protecting us against disease, sufficient to make all necessary and legitimate sanitary improvements, and spread the repayment over a long term of years, so that our children, as well as ourselves, for whose benefit the improvements are made, will bear their share of the cost, and they will bless us for our foresight in providing a healthy town wherein they may live with a fair prospect of attaining old age.

Trusting the efforts of yourself and the Board may meet with the greatest success,

I am,
Yours sincerely,
R. W. BELL, M.D.

PETERBOROUGH, Nov. 26, 1884.

Andrew McNeil, Esq.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to yours of 26th, I have no hesitation in saying that the sanitary condition of the town is bad, and that as long as the present state of things exists the class of diseases known as "zymotic" will prevail. To this class belong typhoid, and other fevers, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, croup, whooping-cough, etc., etc. A reference to the mortality tables shows us that the deaths from this class constitute a large proportion of the total death rate. Now, when it is considered that these diseases are preventable, the necessity for greater sanitary precautions is at once apparent. It is a matter of vital importance to every resident, and as such should at once engage public attention. The town should have a thorough system of sewerage, a plentiful, pure water supply, and existing nuisances should be done away with. Among the latter Spaulding's Bay may fairly be ranked first, and should be dealt with accordingly.

These measures would doubtless necessitate a large expenditure, but they would have the effect of improving the health of the population and of lessening the death rate, results which could not be measured by any money considerations.

I remain,
Yours, etc.,
J. T. S. HALLIDAY.

Dresses and Mantles made in the latest and most approved fashion. All orders left at Turnbull's executed with the greatest of care.

LINDSAY.

NEARLY A FIRE.—On Monday evening there came near being a fire in Messrs. Dundas & Flavelle's store through a lighted match being carelessly thrown to the floor. Before the fire could be located some $20 worth of tweeds, etc., were destroyed. Had it been a little later in the night there would have been a first class fire. The premises are well insured.—Warder.

CATTLE SHIPMENT.—Mr. P. B. McIlharney shipped on Saturday week 25 head of heavy stockers from Lindsay for the Buffalo market, and on Saturday last he shipped a carload of fat heifers and stockers. They were all good cattle. The shipments from this section to Buffalo have of late grown to very important dimensions, and a great many cattle have been taken off at fair figures that would not have done nearly so well at the Toronto and Montreal markets.

HUMMING.—Among the improvements going forward is that at the Lindsay woollen mills, owned by Mr. J. W. Wallace. During the last week or two the foundation has been got ready for the erection of a new mill building, brick, of two and one half storeys high, 90x32 feet. The new factory will be very substantial, heated by steam, and equipped with new and improved machinery. In this connection it is gratifying to find that the past season has been a very successful one to Mr. Wallace, and that his already large trade has practically been doubled.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.—A vestry meeting of St. Paul's Church wardens and members was held on Wednesday evening in the church rooms. A finance committee of six members was appointed in connection with the building of the new church. A resolution was passed thanking Rev. V. Clementi for the kindly interest he has taken in the welfare of the church and recognizing that the office of Recter of the parish of Lindsay, which he had recently resigned in favour of the present incumbent, was held by Rev. Mr. Clementi at considerable sacrifice of time and comfort. A resolution was also passed to the effect that the vestry of St. Paul's Church had learned with pleasure of the recent action of his Lordship the Bishop of the diocese in conferring the incumbency of this parish on the Rev. S. Weston-Jones, and to thank the bishop for thus meeting the wishes of the congregation.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL CONCERT.—The concert given in Bradburn's Opera House on Wednesday evening by members of the choir of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, and their friends, in aid of the building fund of the Cathedral, was a marked success in every respect. The attendance was very large, but it ought to have been larger. Those who were not present missed a rare musical treat. A well selected programme was rendered in admiral style throughout, and where all did so well it would be almost invidious to single out any as of marked excellence. We may be pardoned, however, if we state that the vocal contributions of Messrs. M. and T. Dunn, and M. Tierney as base, boritone and tenor is seldom equalled by amateures and are entitled to rank with the best professional performaces of the kind in local concert stages. They sang "The Buccaneer's Bride" and "Genevieve's" in a finished and perfect style that was awared hearty appaulse. They also appeared as chorus for Miss M. Dunn who sang "Norine Maureen" with charming effect. Mrs. McIntyre gave several solos in a way that won cordial applause although she was laboring under the disadvantage of a severe cold. The choruses of the company were very effective. The opening piece, "The Gipsy Chorus," was introduced with a striking tableau that was warmly applauded. Prof. Doucet gave two violin solos, displaying remarkable technical skill and a fine command of the instrument. Miss Delaney presided as the piano with much grace and skill and also favoured the audience with a very brilliant solo and was deservedly encored. The concert concluded with a song and chorus, "Our Jack's come home to-day," and the national anthem..... The arrangements for the concert—advertising, sale of tickets, preparation of hall, etc.,—were made by Messrs. James Dolan and W. J. Morrow, the amateur advance agents of the party, both good, active, genial men, and who did their work in a thorough way. Mr. Dolan, in particular, wishes to assure Lindsay musical people that should they at any time contemplate giving a concert or musical entertainment at Peterborough, that he will be responsible for the sale of $100 worth of tickets, a service which he is quite capable of performing with ease and accuracy. At the close of the concert the party was entertained at the Benson house by a party of friends, and a pleasant time passed in musical recreation. Our Peterborough friends were much pleased at the hearty reception accorded them, and they will gladly reciprocate the compliment at any time. Had notice of the proposal to give the concert been made in time to have reached, through the Post of last week, many friends in the country, the attendance at the concert would no doubt have been in excess of the capacity of the hall to accommodate.—Post. [We may add to the above that we have been informed that Misses McFadden and Lynch, as the leading soprano and contralto in the choruses, did remarkably well, and that Miss Annie Dunn also sang very sweetly and effectively.—ED. REVIEW.]

BOBCAYGEON.

FIRST OVER.—The first to cross Pigeon Lake from Harvey, was Mr. T. Crowely, who walked over the ice on Saturday last. It was a ticklish undertaking, for a great portion of the lake was open on Friday.

CLOSED.—The Little Bob Mill closed for the season, on Saturday, having made nearly two months more time than the generality of seasons. The cut last winter owing to exceptional circumstances, was fifty percent greater than usual. The mill having been thoroughly repaired last winter made a favorable run, without serious accident or stoppage.

CATTLE.—The fall purchase of cattle has not been so good, as it might have been, still the surplus cattle have been disposed of at fair prices. Mr. Joseph Redmond, of Otonabee, took away a herd of thirty-three head, last week, which he bought for the purpose of feeling on his farm for the spring trade. Mr. Thos. Bick, on Monday, brought fourteen head of cattle from Harvey farm, and had them weighed, previous to putting them up for stall feeding. They weighed 16,400 lbs, one three year old going 1740 lbs. Mr. Bick has several animals being specially fed for the Christmas holidays.

TIMBER.—Mr. Buck, the well known lumberman of Norwood, is at at present in the village, and has bought a quantity of timber from the farmers of the neighborhood. About a hundred and fifty pieces are to be delivered on the bank of the river near the old Tannery. It is chiefly pine, with a few sticks of elm. Some very fine sticks are already on the bank, and drawn on Thursday, contains 260 feet. It recalls to memory, remembrances of the olden days, when some of the finest rafts produced by Canada, were made up on Sturgeon and Pigeon Lakes. If by some magic hand, the timber of Verulam and Harvey could be replaced, every owner of a lot would roll in wealth. Each tree would be worth something like ten dollars, standing on its roots.—Independent.

Since the fall in the price of Millinery at Turnbull's, many have availed themselves of the opportunity to secure a bargain. A fresh lot of those Job Goods trimmed up this week.

NORWOOD.

BUILDING AND REBUILDING.—Mr. Prenevau is building a fine hotel at Havelock and Mr. Coon is rebuilding his saw-mill in Belmont.

SUCCESSFUL DEER HUNTERS.—Messrs, Powell, Hopkins and Hufftail returned home from a very successful deer hunt on Saturday. During a stay of a little over two weeks in the vicinity of Jones' Lake, east of Round Lake, they succeeded in killing no less than nine fine deer, some of them being unusally large. This is decidely the most successful hunt of the season, and we extend our congratulations.

CANADIAN ORDER OF FORESTERS.—A preliminary meeting of those interested in the establishment of a Court of Foresters in this village was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening and was attended by about thirty persons. It was decided to proceed with the organization of a Court at once, and the names of twenty persons were secured for charter members. A hall has been secured in the south wing of Roxburgh's brick block on Colborne St.

Fifty Horses Burned to Death.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4.—The stables of the Baltimore and Hill Springs Passenger Railway Company were burned early this morning, with fifty horses and ten cars. Seventeen horses were rescued, some badly scorched. The fire started in a hayloft over the front entrance, and after their halters were cut the horses refused to be led from the building. Damage, $20,000. The fire was incendiary.

THE REASON WHY

Our Shoe Store is always Crowded

With Customers is very apparent to those that have visited it and seen our immense Stock and compared our prices with those asked elsewhere for the same goods. Never have we had such Bargains in Boots and Shoes as now. Never have we sold as many as now, and the more we sell the

GREATER BARGAINS

we have, as we are able to buy in larger quantities and at corresponding low prices. We retail as many Boots and Shoes as most jobbers sell at wholesale, consequently manufacturers make no difference in price to us than wholesale trade, while smaller dealers are obliged to pay which is about the same as our regular retail price for the same quality of goods. It must be very evident to any thinking person that there must be a reason for our immense Shoe Business, and that our low prices, complete stock, and attention shown to our customers can be the only attraction powerful enough to draw such crowds to our store, and place us, with but two years' growth, as one of the largest retail Shoe Houses in Eastern Ontario.

JOBBERS' PRICES,

Remember our system of business is square with all. Goods marked in plain figures and no second or third prices made.

The Review Job Departmet.

THE INTERMEDIATE STATE.

A Sermon Preached in St. George's Church, Apsley, by the Rev. P. Harding.

Job 14, 12: "So man lieth down and riseth not; till the heavens be no more, they shall not wake, nor be raised out of their sleep."

The first idea that these words suggest is that there is no resurrection; i. e., reading them without regard to the context, or to other parts of scripture, especially if we read "till" and its related words "unto" and "until" in the sense in which they are used in Dan. 1, 21, and in Psalms 110, 1 and 112, 8. But the book of Job is a dramatic poem. Its merit is said to be "of the highest order, and ranks with Homer's Iliad, Dante's Divine Comedia, Shakespeare's Dramas, and Goethe's Faust." We naturally therefore, expect something of poetic license, which yet, while adding to the beauty of the imagery, does not detract from the truth. With this thought the words of the text would convey a like idea to that of Sir Walter Scott:—

"Soldier rest, thy warfare o'er,
Sleep the sleep that knows no waking."

And Scott had no doubt of a hereafter; neither had Job, for we find him saying, chap. 19. 25, "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand in the latter day upon the earth, whom I shall see for myself, and not another," or not as a stranger, but as one long known and loved. But I need not to urge this; the references to the words "till the heavens be no more" plainly show the writer's thought. But while the text with its references throws no doubt on the question of a future state, so neither does it imply any doubt as to an intermediate state—a state of waiting between death and the final judgement. Indeed, taken in connection with the next verse, it plainly points to that state. "O that Thou wouldest hide me in the grave, that Thou wouldest keep me in secret until Thy wrath be past;"—the very idea of a state of waiting in security. And this is the Catholic faith, resting wholly upon the Bible. "It was the primitive belief, abundantly confirmed by Holy Writ, that the souls of the departed are reserved by God in some middle state of consciousness until the final judgment, and in this faith they came in very early times to commend the souls of their departed friends, together with themselves, to God's gracious care. It was an innocent practice in itself, from which no one could have foreseen the steps by which succeeding ages would proceed to the belief of their being purified by penal fires, from which the prayers of the faithful could release them." (Massingherd.) Herein lies the error, not that there is an intermediate state, but that that is a state of purgation. That a change takes place after death is probable, but only a change of progression; "the path of the just * * shineth more and more unto the perfect day." "Be ye, therefore, perfect, even as your Father, which is in Heaven, is perfect." That perfection is infinite, and, therefore, will require eternity to arrive at. There is no doubt a wide difference between the popular idea of Purgatory in the Roman Church, and that which that Church pronounces to be de fide, and it is much to be regretted that her priests do not assimilate the two.

"There is no repentance in the grave," is not a correct quotation, but it is a fair inference. "There is no work * * in the grave," and repentance is a most necessary work. The plain teaching of the Bible I believe to be:—

As the tree falls so shall it lie;
As the man dies so shall he be;
As the man lives so shall he die;
All through the years of eternity.

But that does not reject the truth of an intermediate state. There may be an analogy between the history of the world and the life of an individual; the world was partly cleansed by baptism in the flood, and will be wholly cleansed by fire in the fullness of time; so man, cleansed in baptism from all past sin, original and actual, not delivered from the influence of sin, but strengthened against its power, may by some purgatorial flames be wholly cleansed, but analogy is a poor thing on which to hang so important a doctrine; further we have the assurance that "The blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth from all sin." It may be asked when? I maintain in this life, and it shows itself in obedience to the injunction, "let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body," in bringing "into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ," in growing "in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," in short in being faithful to baptismal vows; and as certainly and more promptly for the time, by the blessing of priestly absolution. Dr. Magee, Bishop of Peterborough, England, says that "extremes meet, and that the man who could not believe in priestly absolution, believed nevertheless that he could absolve himself, for he has no other authority that he is absolved than his own strong impression." But man is a creature of extremes, and because a part of the Catholic Church has prostituted the doctrine of an intermediate state to a "fond thing vainly invented," Protestants reject the doctrine altogether. It may be said that this belief or not in an intermediate state is of no consequence; that while so many more urgent things required the attention of Christ's ambassadors,—warning the wicked,—bringing stragglers to His fold,—edifying the faithful, why dwell on that which is so so much in the future as to be out of this world? Because every truth of God, and the symmetry of that truth, is of consequence. God's word in its entirety never sets one truth against another. One strong argument against the belief that all go at once to their final state of reward or punishment, is that it entirely supersedes any necessity for a general judgment. And that judgment is not only to reward every man according as his work shall be, but it is the day of revelation of the righteous judgment of God. There is now often much murmuring against the appointments of God, and it is obvious that all His dealings must be justified before all His creatures. And He shall call the heavens from above and the earth, that He may judge His people; that He may be justified in His sayings and clear when He is judged; and the heavens shall declare His righteousness. But another argument is that there is no warrant for it in Scripture. Much is made to turn on the use of the word "Paradise"—a word of Persian origin, meaning a garden, orchard, or other enclosed place, filled with beauty and delights. It is applied in different senses, and partakes indeed of the nature of a figurative expression. In St. Luke 23, 43 it is called Paradise (Paradeiso); in Acts 2, 27 Hades (adou); while in Revelation 2, 7 it is spoken of as the Paradise of God (Paradeison tou Theou) as being the highest. Its original sense is an enclosed place, corresponding with the old Saxon Hele or Helle, a hidden or covered place. Paradise also occurs in 2 Cor. 12, 4 (it is the same word as in Rev. 2, 7, without the affix "of God") where St. Paul notes two places to which he was transported,—the third heaven and Paradise. By the third heaven we understand the highest heaven, the abode of the angels. By Paradise is to be understood the place of departed souls, the rest of the righteous between death and judgment. St. Paul's vision or trance therefore comprehended the two states of existence after death. That the penitent thief was not that day in heaven is evident, for our Lord, three days after, said unto Mary, "I am not yet ascended to My Father." That holy men of old did not at once ascend to heaven is evident from Acts 2-34, "For David is not ascended into the heavens." Further, in that sublime figure of the great judgment in Rev. 20, 13, "The sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and hell (or grave and Hades) delivered up the dead that were in them." Again, in the words of Prebendary Sadler, the non-believer in an intermediate state, almost wholly supersedes the resurrection of the body. I do not say that they who hold this view deny that Christ will come again and judge all men and raise up our bodies, but I say that in proportion as they hold the view, in that proportion they will make the Scripture statements respecting the second Advent, the Judgment, and the Resurrection, a dead letter. It must be so, for our Lord teaches us that He is the Saviour of our bodies as well as our souls. He assures us that they which are in the grave shall hear His voice and shall come forth. Respecting the state of the soul between death and the judgment there is but little told us in the Scripture. It is a state of rest, "they rest from their labors." The Martyrs are represented as under the altar crying, "How long, O! Lord?" and it was said to them that they should rest for a little season, but to call this a state of glory is not only to call it by a name which the Scriptures never apply to it, but to connect a thing with death which the Scriptures constantly connect with the second Advent of Christ."

I must occupy your time a few minutes longer in considering what is called a remarkably difficult passage. 1 St. Peter's, 3, 19, 20, "By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison, which sometimes were disobedient, when once the long suffering of God waited in the days of Noah." I cannot understand how any one denying an intermediate state can repeat the Apostle's Creed, except he hold the awful supposition of Calvin, that our Lord in His spirit and soul, spent the time, while his body was in the grave, in the Gehenna or hell of torment, working out there the full condemnation and literal torments of the lost in the prison of despair! There are two leading views in this passage of St. Peter; one is that which supposes St. Peter to affirm that our Lord as the Son, or Word, did with His divine or superior nature, or spirit, preach through and with Noah. This view does not suppose the passage to have any reference to our Saviour's visit in His human soul to the state of the dead; and it is a very laboured idea, and says no more than that God, by all the righteous men of old, did preach to the people, so making St. Peter in this very important passage utter only the simplest truism. The other view is that St. Peter here reveals that our Lord did, while his body lay in the grave, go in his human soul to the penitent antediluvians—the "spirits in prison"—in the place of departed spirits, and there proclaim to them th result of his work of attonement for their comfort an joy. This view is held by many of the Primitive Fathers, and by Bishop Horsley and others in recent times, and I believe by the present Bishop of Winchester in his work on the articles. And it does appear most reasonable, Men will resist God's word however authoritively it may be declared to them, but "when the judgments of God are in the earth the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness." Noah had for 120 years been preaching righteousness, and they mocked him; but when he was shut in the ark and the rain began to fall—a thing unknown before, and the windows of Heaven poured out a thousand Niagaras, and they heard "the last long bubbling cry of some strong swimmer in his agony," then indeed they think, "Verily there is a God that judgeth the earth." And they died—died with a wailing cry for mercy, but there was none to hear. And it fills our minds with a deep sense of the loving mercy and wisdom and goodness of the blessed Saviour of the world, that He should declare to them the good tidings of salvation. We have no reason to doubt that when those hitherto hardened and impenitent men saw the waters rising, rising, rising, till hills, the headlands, and the rugged rocks were covered, they would feel that Noah's preaching was dreadfully real; and some, perhaps many, would repent; but who was to assure them of the acceptance of their repentance? Who was there endowed with that merciful power to give absolution? The only preacher of righteousness was shut in the Ark; they could not go to him, and they died, not knowing if God were reconciled; there being none to whom is "committed the word of reconciliation" to whom they could appeal. Surely it was a characteristic and gracious act, as the first fruits of His sacrifice, to go to these spirits in prison—in the intermediate state, and to assure them that their repentance was accepted. There is no doubt it is an unnecessary attempt to prove that Christ preached by Noah; He preached by all the holy men of old. That fact does not at all in any way make it necessary that we reject the other hypothesis that He did preach to the spirits that were in prison—in the intermediate state—who were disobedient in the days of Noah; that fact stands by itself, a crowning act of mercy, a loving and most striking act of sympathy—comforting and consoling those long doubting spirits, and giving a bright and hopeful waiting till the consummation of all things. Let us beware of the neglect of duty; let us be warned of the consequences of disobedience to those who are rightfully sent of God to preach His word. We are reminded now by the Church that Christ came preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, and that He sent forth an order of men to prepare His people for that second coming when He shall reward every man according as his work shall be. Let us join in the cry of those souls under the altar, "How long, O Lord, Holy and True?" It may be white robes will be given unto us, and that we shall be encouraged to wait yet for a little season, that we and they together may be made perfect.

The Frog Pressure Horse Shoe

There is a horse shoe furnished with caulks complete, ready to place on the horse, which provides for the frog and natural expansion of the horse's foot and also for the natural distribution of pressure. This shoe will take the place of the blank shoe which is now in use, as its price will be cheaper than the blank shoe, including the blacksmith work. This is a machine-made shoe and has been practically tested on the horse for over three years successfully. The inventor is a Canadian from Brockville, and he purposes developing this very large enterprise in Hamilton. This article and machine-made shoe will doubtless revolutionize the horse shoe trade.

Train on Fire.

An exciting event occurred on the Kingston and Pembroke Railroad out-bound train on Thursday afternoon. It seems that one of the passengers had a valise which contained some kind of chemicals that beat affected, and while the train was running at a good speed an explosion occurred. About thirty people were in the car, and a great commotion followed. The fire communicated to the seats, three of which were burned, and but for the efforts of the trainmen and passengers, who applied snow, in the absence of water, the coach would have been destroyed. The contents of the valise are unknown. The valise was handed to the man in whose custody it was by one in Kingston to convey to another at a distant point on the line.

Revengeful Cadets.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Dec. 4.—The powder magazine, at the Virginia military institute, Lexington, containg five hundred pounds of powder, was blown up last night. The explosion was terrific. The windows were shattered at the institute, and the lights put out. Houses in Lexington, a mile off, were shaken to their foundations. The magazine was totally demolished and blown away. Five cadets dismissed from the instnute on Tuesday, for having stolen powder in their possession, are suspected.

"Hub" Cough Cure, 25 Cents.

Prescription of a Boston physician, dispensed years by a Boston Druggist. One dose will cure any ordinary cough. It acts almost magically Ask J. D. Tully for a 25 cent bottle of Hub Cough Cure.

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

The Rev. D. E. F. Gee, of Norwood, will occupy the pulpit of the Mark Street Methodist Church (Ashburnham) to-morrow morning and evening, at 11 a. m. and 7. p. m.

Thanks.

The Committee of the P. P. Home return very sincere thanks to a "Smithtown Farmer" and a "Peterborough Wheat Buyer" for the handsome donation of $25 to the Home.—J. G. HALL, Secretary.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh easterly winds; cloudy, mild weather, with rain.

Entertainment.

A social entertainment will be given in the school house of St. John's Church, on Tuesday evening, December 16th. There will be vocal and instrumental music, recitations, etc. The Fire Brigade Orchestra have kindly offered their services. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

Fell Through the Floor.

On Friday forenoon one of the workmen engaged in the construction of the dye house and office of the Brodie Woollen Mills, Mr. George Fligg, stepped on a defective joist and fell through to the next floor, a distance of about 18 feet. He received a cut on the head, but one not severe enough in its character to deter him from working in the afternoon.

The Ontario and Quebec Station.

This handsome station is now almost completed, and it is expected that it will be occupied in a few days. The painting and oiling has been very artistically done by Messrs. Fry and Bridges, new hanging gas lamps have been placed in position by the Peterborough Gas Company. They are pretty in design and are ornaments to the station.

Election of Officers.

At the regular meeting of L. O. L. No. 49, Peterborough, on Thursday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

J. B. McWilliams	W.M.
J. S. Hall	D.M.
S. Jamieson	Sec.
J. G. Weir	F.S.
J. O. Snider	Chap.
R. Baker	Treas.
John Belleghem	D. of C.
F. W. Weir	Lecturer.

COMMITTEE—Isaac Dormer, T. Chapman, T. Duncan, Jas. Ragan and W. Udy.

A Cosy Perch.

Mr. H. LeBrun has an electric light in front of his store, and while standing at the store door one evening lately observed an English sparrow fly under the lamp and then up immediately to the left of the light proper, when the little feathered wanderer took a comfortable perch for the night. This little adventure on the part of the bird (saying naught of Mr. LeBrun) has been repeated every night since, and almost as soon as the lamp is lighted, it takes up its perch for the night as above stated.

The First Division.

At the session of the Mock Parliament on Friday evening the Hon. J. D. McIlmoyle, Minister of Public Works, introduced a series of resolutions to appropriate $4,550,000 for the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. After remarks by several members the resolutions were carried without a division, Mr. Peck (Victoria, B. C.,) and Mr. A. Brodie (Peterborough), members of the Opposition, having spoken in favor of the early completion of the Canal. Mr. Watson introduced a bill to amend the constitution of the Senate. It provided for an elective Senate, the members to represent districts containing a population of 75,000, until the number of members reached 100, when each district would require a population of 100,000. The members were to be elected for eight years, but an arrangement was provided for by which one-fourth of the members retired every two years. The measure contained other provisions as to qualification, &c. Mr. E. A. Peck moved an amendment to the effect that the House was of opinion that a Senate was not necessary. The Hon J. D. McIlmoyle and the Hon. F. P. Henry opposed the amendment and Mr. A. Stevenson supported it. The Premier also opposed the amendment, and it was lost on a division, the Government being sustained by a majority of three. The debate on the bill was adjourned and soon after the House adjourned for one week.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

A Social and Bazaar

Will be held in the Charlotte St. Methodist Church on Thursday, Dec. 12th. Doors open at 6.30.

Sir John's Reception.

A meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association was held this afternoon to choose delegates to the Conservative Convention at Toronto and the reception of Sir John Macdonald. As the proceedings had not terminated when we went to press, our full report must be held back till Monday.

School Entertainment.

On Friday afternoon an entertainment was held in one of the rooms in the Central School, consisting of choruses, solos, dialogues, reading and recitations. Miss Perl Walker gave a Scotch reading, and Miss Lillian Ritchie also gave a reading. Solos were rendered by Chas. Templeton and Miss Ella Owen Miss Irene Noble and G. Wicher contributed recitations, and the Misses Thompson gave a dialogue. Several choruses were sung by the little folks.

Indefinitely Postponed.

According to notice given a ladies meeting was held in the Mechanics' Institute on Friday afternoon for the purpose of considering the best means to provide refreshments for the firemen after each fire. One solitary representative of the fair sex was present promptly at the appointed time, who after anxious waiting for about an hour for her co-philanthrepists to put in an appearance, decided that she was not a quorum and that any business done would not be legal. The meeting was adjourned 'sine die.

Beams of Brightness.

The eight electric lamps recently ordered from the Peterborough Electric Light Company by the Town Council, have been placed in their respective positions, viz; seven on George street, where it is intersected by McDonnel, Murray, Brock, Hunter, Simcoe, Charlotte and King streets, and one on the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets. The eight lamps, together with several private ones, send out their shafts of luminosity, and brighten our principal thoroughfares on the darkest nights. The light is indeed brilliant, and is most effective in lighting the streets in which it is used.

The Market.

This morning's market was largely attended. Considerable quantities of dressed hogs were brought for sale, and the meat market was abundantly supplied. The fowl, butter and eggs department was literally crammed with buyers and sellers and the quantities disposed of were unusually large. The following is a list of commodities with prices annexed:—Butter, 21 cents per pound; Eggs, 22 per dozen; Turkeys, 75 cents each; Geese, 50 cents each; Ducks, 50 cents per pare; Chickens, 35 cents per pair; Apples, 80 cents per bag; Potatoes, 40 cents per bag; Onions, $1.50 per bag.

Personal.

The Rev. Thos. Manning will preach the anniversary sermons in the Uxbridge Methodist Church to-morrow.

Mr. J. Watt, a candy maker of high reputation, has recently returned from Winnipeg and has assumed his former position, that of the chief of the canada department in Hall's wholesale biscuit and candy factory. Mr. Watt has an able staff of assistants, and with the department in such capable hands none other than good goods will be put on the market. Mr. Watt is at present engaged in the manufacture of fine holiday goods of the newest designs. From the grotesque to the pretty, all kinds are executed with the best workmanship.

If you want Underclothing, don't procrastinate, but avail yourself of the twenty per cent. discount now being offered on all sales of Winter Underclothing at Andrew McNeil's.

The Brodie Woollen Mills.

On account of the destroying by fire of the buildings in which the operations of the preparatory processes were carried on, the Brodie Woollen Mills have, since the fire, been shut down. New and substantial structures have, however, been built in the place of the frame buildings which were consumed, and Mr. Brodie expects to have the factory in full operation in the early part of next week. The brick work of the new buildings has been completed, and to-day the shingles are being laid on the roofs. The prompt manner in which the work of construction has been done reflects credit on the contractor.

Christmas Cally.

When the gay Christmas season rolls around each year, and when each and every one seeks to find something appropriate to present to his or her parents, brothers, sisters, or friends, it is customary for the merchants in every trade to mark down their goods especially for this season. Although the goods of an energetic townsman, Mr. D. Belleghem, are always to be had at the lowest prices compatible with the quality of the article, yet he will, during the next three weeks, mark his goods down to "hard pan." He has a large number of very handsome articles just suitable for Christmas presents, such as ladies' secretaries, music racks, fancy tables, easy chairs, etc., etc., and those who contemplate getting anything in these lines should go to his ware rooms on Hunter street and price the articles. Nothing makes Mr. Belleghem more happy than to show his goods to visitors even if they don't buy. We may just add that he will also make special inducements in the furniture line during the holidays.

Premonitary Symptoms of an Old Bachelor.

When he cuts a certain number of little square bits of paper every night, and lays them on his toilet table ready to wipe his razor when he shaves in the morning. When he carries his fingers perfectly straight in his gloves, for fear of friction on the knuckles. When he can't go to sleep till he has ascertained whether the seam of the sheet is precisely in the middle of the bed When he leaves a friend's house in the middle of the evening to avoid a walk home with a lady. When he keeps his hat on in a lecture room, till the latest permitted minute, on account of draught. When he turns a huge coat collar up over his ears every time there is a cloud in the sky. When he refuses a hymn book in church, because he don't like to be seen using glasses. When a coal fire and a wadded wrapper have greater charms for him than a pair of bright eyes. When whisky punch and a flannel nightcap are the ne plus ultra of his earthly felicity. When he will not avail himself of the 20 per cent. discount now being offered on all winter underclothing by ANDREW MCNEIL, Tailor and Clothier, Gents' Furnishings, &c., George Street.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1884.

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD

MEETING OF THE LIBERAL CONSERVATIVES OF WEST PETERBOROUGH.

Delegates Chosen to the Convention at Toronto, and the Reception of Sir John Macdonald—Confidence in the Dominion and Provincial Leaders.

On Saturday afternoon a meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association of the West Riding of the county of Peterborough was held in the old Music Hall. Mr. James Stevenson was chairman and Mr. G. W. Hatton secretary.

Mr. JAMES STEVENSON explained the object of the meeting, namely, to appoint delegates to the Conservative Convention at Toronto on Dec. 17th and the reception to Sir John Macdonald on the following day. For forty years Sir John Macdonald had rendered public service to Canada, and, therefore, to the British empire, of which our Dominion was such an important part. He had thus at the cost of great self-sacrifice devoted the labours of his life to his country. For this he had won honors both from the people and the sovereign, who had recently bestowed upon him new marks of honour. Briefly he reviewed some of the more saliant points of Sir John's policy; the confederation of our Provinces into one grand Dominion; their closer union by a great national highway from ocean to ocean, and the adoption of the National Policy to foster their industries. The meeting would beglad to hear any remarks from the gentlemen presen'.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

Mr. THOMAS WILLAN, of South Monaghan, after some introductory remarks, moved:

That the Liberal-Conservative electors of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough has learned with the greatest satisfaction that it has pleased our beloved Queen to confer further honors upon their chieftain, the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, in recognition of the many and valuable services which All Wise Providence has permitted him to render to this portion of Her Majesty's dominions in particular, and to the Empire in general, during the last forty years, and they desire to avail themselves of this opportunity to convey to him their appreciation of his distinguished services, especially those in which he conceived, built up and carried out the great scheme of confederation, and the consolidation of the same by the construction of a railway from ocean to ocean, and the adoption of a truly national policy, and their unabated faith in his patriotism and wisdom in guiding in a legitimate and constitutional manner the destinies of this important portion of the British dominions, and which they earnestly hope he may be long spared to do.

Mr. G. W. FITZGERALD, of Smith, seconded the motion.

The chairman put the motion, which was carried unanimously with enthusiastic applause.

MR. R. W. MEREDITH.

Mr. W. H. MOORE, of Peterborough, moved:

"That this meeting desires to avail itself of this the first opportunity afforded the Liberal-Conservative electors of the Riding to declare its entire confidence in Mr. W. R. Meredith, M. P. P., as Leader of the party in the Ontario Legislature; to express its strongest condemnation of the disgraceful means, which it is now too evident were countenanced, if not instigated, by his chief opponents, whereby public attention was, for the time being, diverted from the shameless legislation, the reckless bestowal of public property upon its partisans, and the unauthorized expenditure of the people's money by the Mowat Government; and to record its gratification that the recent decision rendered by the Privy Council in the Boundary dispute is the best possible proof of the wisdom of the course repeatedly advocated by Mr. Meredith and his followers in the Legislature with regard to this matter, and the strongest possible condemnation of those who resisted an appeal to that Court until they were compelled to go there.

Mr. THOS. KELLY, of Peterborough, seconded the motion, which was put and enthusiastically carried by a unanimous vote.

ADDRESS TO THE CHIEFTAIN.

Dr. GEO. BURNHAM moved,—That the Chairman and Secretary, Messrs. Poussette and Carnegie, Garvey and Billiard and the mover, be a Committee to draft an address on behalf of the Conservatives of the Association to be presented to Sir John A. Macdonald.

Mr. JOHN CARNEGIE seconded the motion, which was carried.

MANY LIVES LOST.

Drowned While Smuggling Chinamen across the Border.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 5.—A few days since it was reported that a three-ton sloop, which left here with nineteen Chinamen, who were to be smuggled, and two white men, for the American shore, had been swamped and that all hands were lost. In addition to this disaster two more white men, who left Foul Bay seven weeks ago in a leaky boat, with twelve Chinamen for Washington Territory, have not since been heard of, and all are believed to have been drowned. The temptation to smuggle Chinamen across the border is very strong, as for each one landed the owners of the boat generally receive $25.

Drowned in the Bay.

On Saturday night, Henry Carroll, a man of about 59 years of age, employed as a watchman on the Southern Belle, met his death by drowning in the dock in Toronto, at which his boat was lying. He was in the habit of stepping ashore for a few minutes every night to see what the weather was like, and about ten o'clock on Saturday evening went ashore for that purpose. It is supposed that the swell must have moved the Belle a little further out from the dock, and that the gangway fell into the water between the dock and the boat, and deceased, returning in the dark and thinking that the gangway was there, walked into the water and was drowned. The deceased was missed on Sunday morning and a search was instituted, which resulted in the finding of his body in the slip in close proximity to the boat.—Globe.

Boarding the Lion.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The British pleasure bark "Tyburnia" arrivedin Madeira on Wednesday with a pleasure party on board, including several ladies. On account of some petty infringement of the customs regulations the vessel was under threat of seizure by the Customs House authorities. The captian, not wishing to have the party under his charge detained for an indefinite, time got under way at midnight. The fort opened fire, but the "Tyburnia" ran the gauntlet, keeping well in shore. The Customs House steamer which was on the watch to see that the "Tyburnia" did not attempt to get off threatened to sink her, but derisive cheers came from the lady passengers on board and the captain and crew who kept on deck acknowledged each shot by dipping the British flag.

Cheaper Coal.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—A reduction in prices in anthracite coal, varying from 25 cents to 40 cents per ton, is announced by the coal companies. The officers of the companies say this great saving to consumers, amounting to 8½ millions a year, can be brought about by the abandonment of the present system of suspension of mining one week in every four and by a return to the quota plan. The new arrangement would result in a discharge of over 18,000 men now employed about the mines.

The Spanish Treaty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The cigar makers of this vicinity held a meeting to-day to protest against the adoption of the Spanish treaty. Mrs. Valasquez made an address. She said she had been sent by a number of United States senators to make a tour of the country and agitate the Spanish treaty question. She asserted that 41 Senators and 180 Congressmen would vote against the treaty, and that Senator Hill told her he would speak against it.

THE IRISH PARTY PLEASED.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Parnellites calculate to be able to return eighty-five members to the House when the Redistribution Bill goes into effect. The Nationalist press hails the coming electoral revolution with expressions of jubilant gratification. United Ireland declares the Redistribution Bill will produce the most momentuous change in the British constitution ever proposed to Parliament, and say it will lead to the final triumph of the Nationalist cause.

THE REDISTRIBUTION BILL.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Liberal electoral agents and associations of Birmingham, Glasgow, Leeds and Manchester are sending protests to Right Hon. Messrs. Gladstone and Chamberlain and Sir Charles Dilke, against the divisions of boroughs into sections, under the new Redistribution Bill. The managers of the London Association of Workingmen Clubs likewise protest against the sectional representation. They say it will destroy the caucus organization of the party and split the popular vote.

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—In consequence of the Foreign Office having ordered the Government at Hong Kong to refuse to allow the French fleet to coal or victual at that port, M. Ferry asks for an explanation, reminding Earl Granville that under the arrangement for the French blockade of Formosa, France refrained from searching neutral ships on the high seas on condition that England should not prevent the French fleet from revictualling at any point. It is reported Earl Granville holds this agreement stipulated the enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act at Hong Kong, inclusive of the interdict against coaling. The misunderstanding in the matter is widening the breach between England and France.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Parliament has adjourned to Feb. 19th. The royal assent has been given to the Franchise Bill. An angry scene took place in the House of Commons this afternoon. When Lord Richard D. Grasvenor, Secretary to the Treasury, moved that the Commons adjourn to February 19th, Mr. Thomas Power O'Connor immediately sprang to his feet and in a loud voice objected to such a motion being put, stating that it was a very unusual thing for the majority to spring an adjournment resolution on the minority while a number of important questions were impending and intimated that the Government wished to dodge the fifty-two questions that yet remained unanswered by voting an adjournment. Lord Grosvenor reminded Mr. O'Connor that a motion to adjourn was always in order, whereupon Mr. Callan and a dozen other Irish members jumped up and protested against the manner in which the motion was put, claiming that as a matter of etiquette some notice as to the time the majority wished an adjournment should have been given. They also protested against the count out, declaring that it was a ruse to stop the discussion of Irish measures. The discussion was resumed at 4 o'clock and another count was taken when the motion to adjourn was carried.

MARCHING ON KHARTOUM.

DONGOLA, Dec. 6.—A messenger has arrived here in eleven days from Khartoum. He says the Mahdi is within three hours' march of Khartoum. General Gordon had sent General Kashamebravo, with five steamers and 500 men, to harass the rebels on the Nile and to capture produce. The low water in the Nile prevents their reaching Berber. The troops are moving actively on Debbeh.

SAFE ARRIVAL.

CAIRO, Dec. 7.—The women and children of Tonheit have arrived safely at Massowah, the male population alone remaining. Money has been safely conveyed there for the payment of the troops.

THE CORNWALL LIBEL SUIT.

DUBLIN, Dec. 7.—The court has refused a new trial of the auction for libel brought by Secretary Cornwall of the post-office, against the editor of United Ireland.

SLAVE TRADE.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Advices from the west coast of Africa state that two Mohommedan slave catching tribes recently attacked the King of Talaba in his capital. The King's household and officers were blown up with gunpowder.

REPAIRING THE CABLES.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—The attempts to repair the Atlantic cables are being baffled by continued storms. There is daily communication between London and the steamship Faraday, which it trying to splice the Mackay-Bennett cables. Those in search of the Gould cables are encountering great difficulties on account of the deep water and storms.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

CAIRO, Dec. 7.—M. de Lasseps and the special commission that accompanied him have completed the examination of the canal and approve of the plans for widening the water-way.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—In the House of Commons yesterday the Speaker announced that the royal assent had been given to the Franchise Bill.

THE NORTH AMERICAN COLLEGE.

ROME, Dec. 7.—The Pope yesterday gave a private audience to the pro Rector of the North American College. His Holiness spoke in affectionate terms of the work performed by the American hierarchy at the Plenary Council of Baltimore.

BISMARCK'S COLONIAL POLICY.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Times says the annexation of territory by Germany in West Africa was planned in the spring of 1884, and completed in the summer. The first stage of Prince Bismarck's colonial policy has been marked by promptness, thoroughness, resolution and vigor, unsurpassed at any period of his career.

SANITARY PRECAUTIONS.

"The best way to prevent what is past, is to put a stop to it before it happens," is a maxim that was enforced in a paper read at a recent sanitary congress in the Old Country. This paradox, as it appears at first sight, in reality embodies very sound advice. It will be found to contain a useful lesson for us in Peterborough. We cannot do better for the prevention of evils that have occurred in other places, though fortunately not within our own experience, than by putting an end to their cause now, before it is too late. In fact this paradox is simply a startling form of the old proverb, "Prevention is better than cure."

The growth of our town, the increase in its population, and the accumulating results as time passes, make it more imperative each day that we should listen to the warnings of sanitary science. There is a constant risk of an epidemic, and if we have not suffered severely in the past, it has not been from the wisdom of our own course. And at the present time, besides the usual risk, there is a special reason for action. The cholera is approaching, and it is at least possible that it may visit Peterborough next year. If so, it should find us prepared. It would be too late to take precautions when it was upon us, for any steps taken then might only aggravate the evil.

We do not wish to be misunderstood as representing that Peterborough is especially unhealthy, or in exceptional danger. It is probably healthier than other places of its size. We fear that most of our towns are neglecting the teachings of modern sanitary science, at least as much as ourselves. But our good town is not usually satisfied with merely keeping abreast of its neighbours, aspiring to go ahead of them. It is not in keeping that we should have waterworks, electric lighting, the telephone, etc., and no efficient system of sewers. It is not consistent that we should have fine buildings, and many other marks of civilization, while on the especial property of our town, within the corporation limits, there should be a pestiferous swamp. In minor sanitary matters we are no more abreast of our own progress in other matters.

There is a growing feeling that such neglect should no longer be tolerated. The action of our Board of Health, the proceedings of our Town Council, the opinions of our medical men, and the various expressions of public opinion, all show that this matter is ripe for action.

What steps should be adopted is for the consideration of the experts, and also of the financiers. But one thing is certain, that there should be no unnecessary delay in adopting judicious plans for sanitary improvement, and in carrying them out.

THE SMALLPOX.

Additional Medical Help Sent—Whole Households Stricken Down.

Reports from the infected township of Hungerford, indicating that the smallpox was rapidly spreading, made it necessary for Dr. Bryce to visit the locality, and he accordingly proceeded there on Saturday, the 30th November. First obtaining information from the local Board as to what had been done, he commenced a tour of inspection of the whole infected district, comprising the townships of Elzevir, Roslin and Hungerford. In the latter township, outside the village of Stoco, some forty cases were seen, their condition in many cases being pitiable in the extreme, whole families being prostrated with the fell disease, and no one there to act as nurses. Many of these people were very poor, living in houses consisting of only one room, and necessarily very dirty and unwholesome. In one instance eight persons were lying sick in one room, two of them being infants. Other districts were passed through n which the disease had prevailed, and nearly all had died. In the village of Stoco there was scarcely a house in which the disease was not present. A large house, generously given up by its owner as a hospital, was filled with patients, but the number of attendants was altogether inadequate, Mr. Peter Murphy and Mr. Canniff being, on Wednesday last, the only persons in the village performing active duties for the relief of the sufferers. The Reeve, Mr. P. Murphy, had nobly remained at his post in the village, and, in spite of personal afflictions done all that he could to see that the contagion was not spreading. In the village of Marbank seven families were prostrated with the disease, and were without medical aid, the severity of the Medical Health Officer's duties in Stoco rendering it impossible for him to visit this district. Returning to Toronto on Monday, Dr. Bryce represented the state of affairs to members of the Ontario Government, and being authorized to at once procure all necessary assistance, returned to the stricken district on Wednesday with Messrs. Logan and Hawley, two medical students in their final year. These gentlemen have taken charge of different sections. More help is urgently needed, but in spite of the most liberal inducements only one nurse and one man have offered their services. Dr. Bryce estimates the number of cases to be more than one hundred, and a large portion of these have proved fatal. As much destitution exists, contributions of money and clothing will be needed, and a committee of relief is being organized in the city. In due time notice will be given as to where contributions for the sufferers may be sent.—Toronto Globe, Dec. 6.

Statue of Sir George Cartier.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—Precisely at 11 o'clock today the statue of the late George Cartier was placed on its pedestal in Parliament Square. Although no notice was given of the fact, there was a large attendance of French Canadians and others who were intimately connected with the deceased statesman. The statue was covered up as soon as those present got a view of it. Sir Hector Langevin was present.

Mr. Cleveland will not visit Montreal carnival.

SANITARY MEASURES

Spaulding's Bay and Sewers—Opinions of Medical Authorities.

The following letters, as to our sanitary condition, have been received by Mr. A. McNeil, as Chairman of the Board of Health :—

Peterborough, Nov. 28th, 1884.

Andrew McNeil, Esq., Peterborough :—

My Dear Sir,—In reply to your communication of 26th inst., I beg leave to state that, in my opinion, the sanitary condition of the whole town is in an exceedingly unsatisfactory state. The nature of the soil is such that poisonous matters very readily find their way into the wells, giving rise to various systematic diseases, notably, typhoid fever and diphtheria.

A good system of sewage is absolutely essential for the health and well being of the inhabitants of the town. I think it high time that active steps were taken in the matter, particularly in view of the fact that in all probability ere another twelve months passes by we will receive a visitation of that dreadful scourge, cholera. In regard to the matter of Spaulding's Bay there can be only one opinion, it is a fever breeding pest-hole, and the sooner the Council follow out the suggestion of Dr. Bryce and fill it up the better. The box drain on Hunter street is a disgrace to the town. The effluvia which arises from it is almost unbearable; and I was much surprised that the Council refused to act upon the suggestion of the Board of Health, when they so strongly urged it being closed up. I trust, my dear sir, that your efforts to have the sanitary condition of the town improved will meet with that success which the urgency of the case so deservedly merits.

Yours very truly,
R. P. Boucher.

Peterborough, 28th Nov., 1884.

Andrew McNeil, Esq. :

Dear Sir,—The need for a system of drainage is increasing every year with the age and population of the town. The soil will receive and disintect the water from stables, slops from houses and the liquid from privy vaults for a time, but it has come to that condition now in some parts of the town that the soil is so permiated by animal matter that it is dirty and can no longer disinfect. The effluvia from soil in this condition is dangerous to health. The porous nature of the soil on which the town is built has furnished natural drainage which has deferred the need for drains for a longer time than could have been tolerated if our town had been built on a flat clay soil. I am slow to recommend a very large expenditure of money that means heavy taxes, but I am convinced it would be false economy to much longer delay putting drains under the most populous streets. The drains should be made and then all baths, sinks and water-closets on the street made to empty into such drain, and a by-law passed that no person be allowed to build a privy within certain limits without first submitting a plan and obtaining the approval of the town architect or some person of sufficient skill to supervise the construction of such work.

Spaulding's Bay is an injury to its neighbourhood and should be filled up, but the injury is in a measure local. The want of drains is a general want. If it is not expedient to raise money to do both, the drains on the most populous streets should be made first.

I remain,
Yours respectfully,
Joseph A. Fife.

Peterborough, Dec. 1st, 1884.

A. McNeil, Esq., Peterborough :

Dear Sir,—Within the last few months a great deal of interest has been taken in sanitary matters in our town. But I fail to see what benefit can accrue so long as we have in our midst such hot beds of disease as our defective system of water closets affords.

No sanitary Board or Health officers can do anything effective in preventing the spread of contagious diseases in our midst until these and other conditions too numerous to mention are remedied. Any person who will take the trouble to walk through our town can satisfy himself on one or two matters which I intend to mention.

Peterborough has got to that size now that it is necessary that early and thorough measures should be at once put into force so that we may be regarded as in a fair sanitary state, which condition, owing to the want of necessary drains, sewers, &c., will require energetic action at the hands of the Council and also the Sanitary Board.

Spaulding's Bay is to be regarded as principally a local trouble, although other parts of the town suffers from its malarious giving principle at times being wafted thither by the wind. And when you have not only a typhoid poison, but also a malarial one working in consort, the chances of recovery are very doubtful.

Next to Spaulding's Bay I will say a few words on the water closet system, which is a very fruitful source for the spread of contagious diseases and which the nature of our soil rather encourages. The greater number of water closets consist of holes in the ground and these holes are generally at very short distances from the wells, so that the water of these wells become contaminated, the soil allowing free percolation to take place. Another form of water closet that we have is where boxes are used, but these are filled to the brim and remain so in consequence of the exhorbitant prices asked to remove them. Into these all manner of slops are thrown. These conditions of matters are not only detremental to the public health, but forms a fruitful soil for the spread of the germs of typhoid fever and other zymotic diseases. I will give you a history of a case of typhoid fever that occurred in our midst and which, with the present defective sanitary condition of our water closets, would allow of the spread of fever. I have no doubt but the history of many such cases can be given you by any medical man. A patient had been complaining for about a week before being taken to bed. Thinking that the sickness was due to a disordered state of the stomach and liver, a few doses of pills were taken. This patient had access to a water closet of one of our hotels in the centre of the town. This closet was used by numbers, I have no doubt. It was not on the dry earth system, but of the box variety. What more favourable soil could the typhoid germ have for spreading itself? Before any expense is incurred I would suggest that the services of a practical sanitary engineer be secured who would locate the situation of as many drains as he might deem sufficient and give such other practical information as we could not obtain from any other source.

This may be considered too costly by some, but it is better that we should be put to a little cost at first rather than that drains should be dug at the suggestions of persons who have no practical knowledge of sanitary engineering—the situation of our town and the nature of our soil demands that such matters as this should not be trifled with.

The people of the south end of our town have many things to complain of and if you can only obtain for them the filling in of Spaulding's Bay I have no doubt but the Sanitary Board, with their efficient staff of officers, will see that they are freed from the other nuisances. In conclusion, let me state the advisability of having a few medical men on the Sanitary Board. All American Boards of Health have always a full share of M. D.'s.

I remain,
Respectfully yours,
Richard King, M. D. & M. C.

Peterborough, Nov. 29th, 1884.

Dear Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 26th inst. I am of opinion that the most urgent sanitary necessity for the town is an unlimited supply of pure water. The well water at present used, on account of the sandy nature of the soil and the number of cesspools, is very unfit for drinking purposes, and I cannot but think the cause of the diphtheria and typhoid fever is in a great measure from this.

That sewers are becoming a necessity in the crowded part of the town I am aware, but unless you have ample supplies of water to flush them at dry seasons of the year they may become a source of great danger.

In regard to Spaulding's Bay, its filling up with good earth has become urgent, and I should strongly advise immediate steps to be taken so that it may be completed before another summer comes. I should think if the filling in is done as above suggested with good earth the place will become a valuable building site.

Wishing you every success in your laudable undertaking,

I remain,
Yours faithfully,
Henry Pigeon, M.R.C.S., Eng., L.R.C.P.

Dr. Clarke's views on this subject we have already published in his admirable report as Medical Health officer.

A BURGLAR AT BRANTFORD.

A Revolver held to a Woman's Head—Hote Thievesat Work.

Brantford, Dec. 5.—Yesterday afternoon four rooms in the Robinson Hall hotel were entered and ransacked by thieves. The occupant of one room is absent from the city, and his loss is not known, put it is supposed to be about fifty dollars. The same evening Mr. Hart and W. E. Palmer' s rooms in the Kerby house were entered and their trunks opened by the robbers, but they secured nothing of ony account.

Later on, at about eleven o'clock, two men entered the residence of H. Blaycock, on Clarence street. One of the men went to the front door, and the other to the back door. Mrs. Blaycock and her sister were alone in the house and the burglar who entered by the front door seized Mrs. Blaycock and said he would shoot her if she shouted or made a noise. Mrs. Blaycock's sister ran out to the back door shrieking, and the burglar there knocked her down. The noise she made aroused the neighbours, who were soon on hand, and the burglars made off without securing any booty.

Suspicion rests on late arrivals in our city. Chief Griffiths is working the case up. Detective Pnair, of London, is in the city on business connected with the London jewelleey robbery. Brobably the same gang who visited London are in our midst.

How She was Met.

A gentlemanly merchant traveller on a train met a lady and politely rendered her such assistance that she reciprocated by permitting him to talk to her. He became quite friendly, and desired to know where she lived, and who she was.

"Oh," she replied, "I'm only an ordinary little woman, but my friends persist in trying to make me somebody."

"Ah," was the gallant answer, "I am sure they act quite wisely and in good taste."

"You flatter me, sir, and yet I have no doubt a band will meet me at the station when I arrive in Cincinnati."

"Indeed?" he replied, in open-eyed astonishment.

"Yes, and the same band is always ready to meet me. Isn't that flattering?"

"Very, my dear miss; but may I ask what band it is that is always so honored?"

"Oh yes, certainly; it is a hus-band."

He caught unto the arm of the seat for a minute, and then went into the next car and bumped his head on the wood-box.—Merchant Traveller.

The Maid of Saragossa.

In the year 1800, when the city of Saragossa, in Spain, was being besieged by the French, a young woman named Augustina, belonging to the lower order of the people, greatly distinguished herself by her wonderful courage and bravery. She was engaged in carrying refreshments to the city gates, and one day she found herself in a certain battery at the very moment when the enemy had killed every soldier who had been stationed in it. Awed by the fact that not a single man had been left alive at the guns the citizens and soldiers seem to have hesitated to re-man the battery; but Augustina suddenly plunged forward over the wonded and slain, secured a fuse from a dying artilleryman, and at once not only fired off on the emeny a large cannon, but, jumping on to the gun, vowed that she would not quit it alive during the whole of the siege. And she kept her word, and encouraged by her bravery the soldiers and others no longer hesitated.

Mysterious Murder.

New York, Dec. 5.—The wife of John Pinot reported to the police to-day that her husband came home drunk last night and she fled from him and the house. When she returned to-day she could not get in, and had the door forced. Pinot was found dead in bed, his head split open and crushed in at the temple by a blow delivered with great force. A hatchet lay on the floor, but there was no blood on it. The affair is wrapped in mystery. The police are investigating.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold. A few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1 00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J D. Tully.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

A marvellous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Headache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by J. D. Tully, wholesale and retail agent.

Are you troubled with Salt Rheum, Rough Hands, or Old Sores of any kind that you cannot heal? Even though it be of years standing McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate will cure it. Beyond a shadow of a doubt it is the best healing compound ever known. Boils, Festerings, Frost-Bites, Burns or any Skin Trouble, are alike cured by it. Sold at 25 cents, by John McKee, Druggist.

Prominent among the greatest medical discoveries, by the many cures it has effected, McGregor's Speedy Cure leads the van. Subjected to the minutest chemical analysis, it has been found to contain none of those injurious ingredients characterizing the worthless specifics daily offered to the public. Every ingredient possesses a peculiar adaptability to the various complaints for which it has been compounded, and its efficacy is being established by testimonials hourly received. We are therefore confident that we have a preparation which we can offer to the public with the assurance that it will be found not only a relief but an absolute cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation and Impure Blood. Free trial bottles at John McKee's Drug Store.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY.

The Poem Read by the Bard at the Annual Dinner.

The following is the poem composed by Mr. Wm. Telford, Bard of the St. Andrew's Society, and read by him at the Society's annual dinner:

This wad be a queer world, if there wasna a Scot,
The big axle it rins on would sune gang to pot,
An' the great mukle globe would upset in mid-air
If there wasna a Scot in't to balance it fair.
It looks gie like a lee, though some big fules hae said
How that man lent a hand when this world was made.
If they helped wi' the makin' o' the sea or the land,
They were Scots—or it wadna hae been half so grand.
Our ain Queen, the guid bodie, though she wallows in wealth,
Has tae gang doon tae Scotia to build up her health.
Her fourth danchter might been an auld maid even now,
If that braw heelant laddie hadna' ta'en her in tow.
Britain's big ship of State, that presides o'er the realm,
Wad be wrecked if there wasna' a Scot at the helm;
An' the Lords an' the Commons would soon strip and fecht,
But for long-headed Sandy, why he keeps them baith richt.
Britain's glory is safe: to no foe she shall kneel,
While a Scotchman commands, or a Scot points the steel.
Egyptians and Arabs wad jest do as they please
If it wasna' for Scots, wi' their kilts and bare knees.
You may sail to the tropics, where the richest fruit grows;
You may penetrate Iceland, where the frost bites your nose;
You may search the hale world, in ilk civilized spot,
If you meet two white men, you will find ane a Scot

But come nearer oursels, and I'll bate you a groat
Canada owes more than half her success to the Scot.
But for Scots' perseverance, hard work, will and way,
Haf her wild woods and swamps had been standing to-day.
In party or politics, I tak' nae delight,
For I no care a preen how they bark or they bite,
But I whiles think mysel', quick to ruin we would float,
If the safety-valve, wasna well watched by a Scot.
Losh the wondrous machine that spins oot our affairs,
It is oft needing greasin' an bits o' repairs.
Its pinions and axles wad sune get red hot,
If it wasna' kept oiled by a sharp-sighted Scot.
While in makin' or mendin' the laws o' oor land,
As a rule for the best, the rale Scot takes his stand.
Baith Reformers an' Tories, at the head of their ranks
Hae twa Scots—though they turn upon opposite cranks.

In the pulpit, on platform, bench or the bar,
In the counsels of peace, or at field amang war,
In the counting house banks, at the office desks thrang,
If they speak—ten to one—has the rale Scottish twang.
In trade, or in commerce, by land or by sea,
Shrewd Sandy is foremaist, if it's worth a bawbee.
In land carriage or shipen, guids micht lie till they rot,
Ye wad heard no steam whussle had there no been a Scot.
They are canny an' cautious, but as cute as a millar,
Wi' two een like a cat's, always watchin' the siller.
The high places they fill proves the name they have got.
Hard, honest, trustworthy, sagacious Scot.
Now, there isna' a race that lives under the sun
But has faults—and some folks say the Scotchman has one,
An' they point their forefinger at ane little blot,
Sayin' they needna' brew whisky if there wasna' a Scot.
Now, I think that's a lee, though some Scots a drop tak',
But they no drink the ha'f o' the whiska fo'ks mak';
The unprejudiced man will agree with ma views,
Very few o' them dees in the treemans or blues.

The last nicht of November, it wad pass by in gloom,
Not a fine speech or Scotch song be heard in the room.
The big Haggis micht lie there—untasted, unshorn,
Till it moulded fair green, had a Scot ne'er been born.
That St. Andrew was Scotch, there is reason for doubt,
But for Scots he wad not hae been spoken about,
And they tell me in Scotia a few ashes remains
O' his toes an' his fingers, an' a wheen of sma' banes.
It's a grand world, this—but man fills it with woe,
And I wonder it wasna' destroyed long ago.
The big flood that spared Noah, or the fire that chased Lot
Wad sune mak' a clean sweep if there wasna' a Scot.

SOCIAL LIVES IN SICILY.

Curious Customs that Keep the Classes to Themselves.

Here in Sicily, the as elsewhere, seafaring population have little or nothing to say to the landsfolk by way of marriage; holding themselves more moral, more indnstrious, and in every way superior to those who live by the harvests of the earth or by the quick returns and easy profits of trade. But there is much more than this. The daughter of a small landed proprietor will not be given to the master of men in any kind of business, nor will the son of the former be suffered to marry the daughter of the latter. A peasant farmer without sixpence, would not let his girl marry a well-to-do shepherd. A workman, or rather a day labourer—"bruceiante"—would not be received into the family of a muleteer, nor he again into one where the head was the keeper of swine or cattle. The husbandman who can prune vines disdains the man who cannot dig, let him be what he will; the cow-herd disdains the ox-herd, and he again the man who looks after the calves. The shepherd is above the goat-herd; and soon, down to the most microscopic differences, surpassing even those of caste ridden India. When conditions, however, are equal, and there are no overt objections to the desired marriage, the mother of the young man takes the thing in hand. She knows what her son wants to marry, because he is sullen, silent, rude, contradicious and fault-finding; because last Saturday night he hitched up the ass to the hook in the house wall, instead of stabling it as he ought, and himself passed the night out of doors; or because—in one place in Sicily—he sat on the chest, stamped his feet and kicked his heels, so that his parents, hearing the noise, might know that he was disturbed in his mind, and wanted to marry so soon as convenient. Then the mother knows what is before her, and accepts her duties as a good woman should.—Temple Bar.

The Wealthy Apple.

The Wealthy apple is estimated to be worth a million dollars to Minnesota. For hardiness and other good qualities it is attracting much attention in all the Northern States. The history of this valuable apple is thus given by Suel Foster, of Muscatine, Iowa:—About 1865 or 1866 Mr. Gideon, of Excelsior, Minn., sent to Mr. Emerson, of Bangor, Me., for some crab-apple seed, for he had tried the common apples and they winter-killed. He received nearly two quarts of seed. He planted the seed, and in five years one bore a few specimens of apples. At seven years Mr. Gideon was so well pleased with the tree and its fruit, its quantity and its quality, that he took off 400 scions and brought them to me, asking me to graft them on the halves, and to send him one-half the trees at one or two years old. I confess that I very reluctantly consented to pay a high price for an unknown seedling. Mr. Gideon's knowledge and faith in the great value of the Wealthy, and his flattering me by saying that he heard that I was an honest man, induced me to accept his terms. I sent him 1,000 one-year trees the next fall, which was, I think, 1875. A few scions had been sent out by Mr. Gideon the winter before (1874). Such is the origin of the Wealthy, which is no doubt a hybrid of crabs and common apples. Mr. Gideon is quite sure of this, for, from the seed of the Wealthy he has obtained crab apples.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

BELLEVILLE.

A BOY STABBED.—A son of B. C. Hulme while on his way from the store on Thursday evening, was assaulted by two young boys in a brutal manner. One of the youths named Daw, stabbed him twice in the thigh, producing painful but probably not fatal wounds. The attack was the result of a quarrel during the day between young Hulme and Daw.

ORILLIA.

THE ASYLUM.—We have positive information that the Ontario Government has decided to remove the Idiot Asylum to Brockville, immediately after the approaching election in East Simcoe.

DROWNED.—A despatch from Parry Sound states that Miss Viola Armstrong, daughter of Mr. Geo. Armstrong, formerly of Orillia, was drowned on the 1st inst. An Indian messenger from Byng Inlet states that Miss Armstrong and Mr. Carter, Manager of the Georgian Bay Lumber Company's store, left the Inlet on skates at 8.30 in the evening, for Parry Sound, and both went through the ice. The bodies were recovered on the 2nd.

MINDEN.

FOOT CUT.—Mr. Robt. Phillips, who was cutting wood for Mr. McIntosh near this village, cut his foot very badly on Wednesday. His track was quite discernible in the snow all the way from the woods to Minden, the blood oozing from the wound and coming through his boots.

A WARNING TO BOYS.—A very sad accident happened on Wednesday by which a boy aged eleven years will probably be affected for the rest of his life. A number of the village schoolboys were engaged in snowballing and young McDougall got under the school bridge from which position he looked out to see if anyone was taking aim at him, when a snowball from the hand of Charles Peck struck him in the eye. He lost the sight of the eye for a time and great care will have to be exercised to keep it from being permantly injured.

MIDLAND.

EATING HONEY FOR A WAGER.—A couple of weeks ago two farmers who reside not far from Midland decided to set up a job on one of our merchants and have a good feed of honey for nothing. On several occasions one of them asked the merchant if he would give him all he could eat for 10c., but he did not care to fill him with honey at that price. About two weeks ago the two walked into the store and offered to bet a quarter each and the price of the honey that they could eat three pounds. The money was up, the honey weighed, and they were handed spoons to proceed with their contract. After swallowing a half a dozen spoonsfull one of them concluded that he was not quite prepared to die and that he wished to remain a little longer on the farm. The other was quite willing to risk anything and everything for a stomach full of honey and ate away until he began to change colors and feel very sick. He finished it all except about half a pound. They lost their quarters, had to pay for the honey and were so sick they could not attend church on Sunday.—Free Press.

Heroism Unsurpassed.

No higher type of heroism was ever presented than that manifested Thursday night by A. C. L. Sawyer, the janitor of the burning South End hotel. He did what no other modern hero has done—sacrificed his own children and almost his own life, to save more numerous, but to him less valued, lives. It was a choice deliberately made. Awakened in the midst of suffocating smoke, he grasped the situation instantly. His children were asleep in the next room, but the fire had made such progress that there appeared to be no time to save them and then to alarm the scores above. To some extent he owed a duty as an employe to the inmates of the hotel. But when that duty demanded the sacrifice of lives he loved better than his own, how many parents in such a situation would have made his decision? His action was as prompt and intelligent as it was heroic and self-sacrificing. Bidding his wife to do the best she could to save the little ones, he rushed through the smoke-filled halls and, without missing a door, roused every inmate in the building. The fire had gained too great headway for him to return, and so nearly suffocated was he that he had barely strength enough to make the passageway to the roof before he fell unconscious. Meanwhile, his wife had been able to save but one of the children, and two perished.

It is almost impossible to conceive a nobler act of human sacrifice. It detracts nothing from the nobilty of the deed that the sequel proved it unnecessary. Had the janitor first saved his family, and the others had perished no one could have condemned him. "The greatest good to the greatest number" is a rule that not one man in a million could apply if such a terrible test came to him. No man's bereavement will awaken more heart-felt sympathy. No recompense can assuage his grief, but a deed so matchless deserves some general public recognition.—Boston Journal.

Diabetes in Horses.

Horses sometimes suffer from this disease, which is characterized by excessive thirst and a profuse flow of urine. Among the several causes to which this complaint is attributed, the most common are thought to be faulty feeding and giving medicines containing something which stimulates the kidneys to over exertion. Hay which has been heated in the mow or has become musty is liable to produce this disease, and the feeding of damp, mouldy oats or damaged bran is also thought to be one of the causes. The symptoms are very great thirst, also the voiding of large quantities of urine as colorless as water, and sometimes amounting from three to five gallons daily. The appetite at first may be ravenous, but soon fails and often becomes depraved, as is shown by the animal licking the walls and the floor of his stall, the skin grows harsh and dry, the pulse is weakened and the animal becomes reduced in flesh and strength. Whenever the above symptoms are manifested the diet should be changed at once and the food given should be of the best possible quality. Give one pint of linseed oil from a bottle or horn. Give three times daily in a pailful of water one tablespoonful of common baking soda. Get from a druggist six powders, each containing iodine one half drachm, sulphate of iron two drachms, powdered gentian one-half ounce. Mix one of these powders with two tablespoonfuls of linseed meal, add sufficient water to make a stiff dough, mix and roll into a ball two or three inches long and tapering to a point at one end, open the mouth, draw the tongue gently forward and lace the ball upon the tongue as far down the throat as possible so as to insure its being swallowed. In ordinary cases one dose in twenty-four hours is sufficient, but in severe ones it will be best to give the above dose morning and night. In administering the ball great care must be used not to draw the tongue out of the side of the mouth, for there is great danger in such cases that it will be bitten off, as was that of the celebrated trotting mare Cozette, a few years since. Six doses of the above will generally effect a cure. Feed liberally so as to build up the wasted system in the shortest possible time. —American Cultivator.

Canada Pacific Extension.

It is stated in Montreal that the ten millions which the Ontario and Quebec Railway bonds will realize in England will be devoted to building the Lachine bridge, the extension of the Canadian Pacific line from Montreal to Smith's Falls, and for the extension of the Credit Valley line from St. Thomas to the Detroit river. These enterprises will commence on the return of Mr. George Stephen from England.

"Hello!" we heard one man say to another, the other day. "I didn't know you at first, why! you look ten years younger than when I saw you last." "I feel ten years younger," was the reply "You know I used to be under the weather all the time and gave up expecting to be any better. The doctor said I had consumption. I was terribly weak, had night sweets, coughs, no appetite and lost flesh. I saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised, and thought it would do no harm if it did no good. It has cured me. I am a new man because I am a well one."

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Slightly Colder.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Westerly winds, decreasing by night; fair to cloudy weather, with local showers of rain or sleet; slightly lower temperatures.

An Apology.

The following card appeared in the advertising columns of the Port Hope Guide of Saturday:—

"The proprietors of the Guide regret having published or permitted anything to appear in their paper offensive to Mr. D. Chisholm, and apologize to him for such offensive matter, and promise that in future they will be more careful in permitting any matter which may in any way be considered offensive to him to appear in their columns."

Personal.

Mr. N. D. Peck, LL. B., formerly of Peterborough, has, in partnership with Mr. Jas. E. P. Prendergast, A. B., LL. B., opened a law office at 344 Main street, Winnipeg, Man.

We are pleased to see that Mr. W. J. Sherwood, son of Mr. W. E. Sherwood, is in town. He has been for the last two years residing in the Prairie Province, and has sor some time occupied the position of Deputy Registrar at Brandon. He will remain in town until after the holidays.

The Fire Brigade.

As the meeting called by Mr. E. B. Edwards for Friday afternoon was not a success, the firemen have decided to carry out the plan proposed by that gentleman on their own account. They have purchased a gas stove, which has been placed in the fire hall, and will arrange to supply themselves with warm drinks after each fire, such as coffee, beef tea, etc. They have felt the necessity of this after their contests with the flames when they were both tired and wet. They wish to return their thanks to Mr. Edwards for making the suggestion and for the interest he has shown in this matter and also to the lady who attended the meeting on Friday.

Filled In.

During the past few weeks a trench was dug along Rubidge street for the Water Works Company. The pipes were laid, but before the trench was filled in hard frost had come and had frozen the earth. Pickaxes had to be brought into requisition to loosen the frozen material, and it was thrown in the trench in lumps, filling it up to the top and about a foot above. On Saturday when the rain came the frozen earth commenced to thaw, and by night it had sunk down below the surface of the ground to the distance of about two feet, rendering it for crossing dangerous in the extreme. It was fenced off and lanterns were hung along the line of the trench during Saturday and Sunday nights. It was promptly filled in this morning.

The Churches.

On Sunday morning the Rev. W. F. Campbell, who has for some ten years been associated with the mission work in Central India, preached in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham. In the afternoon he preached in St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, and in the evening again conducted the services in St. Luke's. At the evening service he took his text from Acts 1, 8., "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and you shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

The Rev. D. F. Gee, of Norwood, occupied the pulpit of the Mark Street, Ashburnham, Methodist Church, both morning and evening. In the evening he took for his text, Mathew 7, 19, "And a certain scribe came, and said to him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest."

At the Charlotte Street Methodist Church the Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Lakefield, preached in the morning, and the pulpit was filled in the evening by Mr. A. C. Courtice, a theological student of Victoria University. In the evening he took for his text, Mathew 5. 8. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

In the morning at the George Street Methodist Church Mr. A. C. Courtrice preached eloquently and, in the evening the Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Lakefield, conducted the service. He took for his text II. Samuel XIV, 14, "For we must needs die, and are as water spilt on the ground, which can not be gathered up again; neither does God respect any person: yet doth he devise means that his banished be not expelled from him." The services were, considering the inclement weather, very well attended.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

Among the Ice.

Several attempts have been made to bring the steamer Whistle-Wing into mooring for the winter at a convenient point to town. Former efforts have failed, and at last the boat was left ice bound at Margaret's Island, opposite Birdsall's, in Rice Lake, but this morning three of Mr. Calcutt's worthy seamen started on another "Greely" expedition, and hopes are entertained that the boat will be brought safely to anchorage at the locks. The Golden-Eye is lying in the lower lock, and during the winter will be completely overhauled for next season's work.

The Bazaar.

The day for the opening of the long expected bazaar, conducted in aid of St. Peter's Cathedral building fund, has at last arrived. Everything is activity, life and bustle in Bradburn's Opera House to-day. All day long boxes, barrels and parcels of different descriptions have been steadily streaming up the stair cases. The duties of arrangement of course have devolved upon the ladies, and no doubt everything will be shown off to the best advantage. There will be six tables for the display of the articles to be disposed of: one for each of the four wards, one for Ashburnham, and one to be conducted under the management of the Sisters of the Convent De Notre Dame. The bazaar will be open this evening, when the Opera House will be brilliantly illuminated by electric light.

The Vignaux Billiard Rooms.

Messrs. Crevier & Phelan have recently lessed the premises next to Mr. W. H. Chamberlain's restaurant, and have fitted up therein a neat and cosy essablishment known as the "Vignaux Billiard Rooms." The tables are from the celebrated factory of Messrs. Samuel May & Co, of Toronto, and are both new and handsome. The walls have been handsomely decorated with a cheery pattern of paper, put on by the skilful hands of Messrs. Fry & Bridges, who have also done the painting. A notable feature in these rooms is the bringing into use of strong inlaid cues. They are of a superior quality and clearly show that the proprietors are both enterprising and energetic, and are determined to have the best articles in the market. No doubt a large number of those billiardistically inclined will resort to the Vignaux billiard rooms.

One of the Largest.

Amongst other work which is being carried on in the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co.'s foundry, Peterborough, is a boiler of stupendous size for the steamer "Maganetawan," owned by the Georgian Bay Lumber Company. The boiler has been in course of construction for some time and is now assuming a natural form. The construction of the boiler is under the superintendence of the foreman of the boiler making department, Mr. Richard Reeves, a man of thorough practical knowledge and of high reputation. It is 9 feet in diameter, consequently 28 feet in circumference. It is 12 feet long and is made throughout of the finest dolzel steel. It has 147 smoke tubes and when completed will stand a pressure of 100 lbs. to the square inch. This monster boiler is one of the largest ever turned out of any shop in Ontario and is larger than any other turned out of this foundry. Its total weight, when completed, will be twenty-two thousand pounds.

If you want Underclothing, don't procrastinate, but avail yourself of the twenty per cent. discount now being offered on all sales of Winter Underclothing at Andrew McNeil's.

Premonitary Symptoms of an Old Bachelor.

When he cuts a certain number of little square bits of paper every night, and lays them on his toilet table ready to wipe his razor when he shaves in the morning. When he carries his fingers perfectly straight in his gloves, for fear of friction on the knuckles. When he can't go to sleep till he has ascertained whether the seam of the sheet is precisely in the middle of the bed When he leaves a friend's house in the middle of the evening to avoid a walk home with a lady. When he keeps his hat on in a lecture-room, till the latest permitted minute, on account of draught. When he turns a huge coat collar up over his ears every time there is a cloud in the sky. When he refuses a hymn book in church, because he don't like to be seen using glasses. When a coal fire and a wadded wrapper have greater charms for him than a pair of bright eyes. When whisky punch and a flannel nightcap are the ne plus ultra of his earthly felicity. When he will not avail himself of the 20 per cent. discount now being offered on all winter underclothing by ANDREW MCNEIL, Tailor and Clothier, Gents' Furnishings, &c., George Street.

Accidentally Shot.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 6.—The pressmen have returned from an investigation as to the cause of the death of Macdonald, the teamster, found near Cloyne. The inquest resulted in a verdict of accidental shooting. Macdonald and the Indian, White Duck, were going over a rough road when the whip dropped. White Duck handed Macdonald a gun while he got off the waggon to get the whip. Macdonald rested the muzzle of the gun at his side, the stock being braced against the foot board. It was half-cocked. The jarring of the waggon caused the hammer to fall, and Macdonald was instantly killed by the discharge. He fell out on the road, and when White Duck discovered his companion dead he reported the case to the nearest shanty. Macdonald was unmarried, and industrious, though addicted to drink. He owned a farm near Madoc. The pressmen and coroner's party had some thrilling experiences in passing over forty miles of country in a lumber waggon.

Matricide for Money.

HAMILTON, Ohio, Dec. 6.—George Snyder, a farmer aged 40, living near Darrtown, has been gaoled here charged with murdering his mother, Catharine Snyder, aged 75, who has been missing from this city a month. Mrs. Snyder has a mortgage on her son's farm and went four weeks ago for the interest. He paid her $125. His story is that he started with her next morning to the railroad station, when two robbers demanded her money, and upon her refusal killed her and made him promise under penalty of death to say nothing about it. He said they buried her. The body was disinterred, and found dressed in night clothes. The supposition is that Snyder killed her in his own house.

Another Monster of Iniquity.

DAYTON, O., Dec. 6.—Mrs. Thomas Benokin, of Toledo, had her husband arrested here yesterday on a charge of bigamy. She has been on his track three years. He has been living in Fort Wayne, Logansport, Muncie and other Indiana cities, also in Chicago and Cincinnati, in each of which he either married or engaged to marry some woman. She charges him with causing the death of a young girl by malpractice at Fort Wayne. At all of the places named Benokin became a conspicuous religious worker and ingratiated himself into the good graces of the younger females of the churches.

Severe Storm at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—A terrific storm commenced at midnight and continued all day. It was the most violent ever experienced here. Several vessels broke from their moorings and were washed ashore, many being seriously damaged. A portion of the sea wall was broken in, and the breakwater completely washed away. It is impossible to estimate the damage. No casualties are reported.

POLICE COURT.

ADJOURNED FOR ANOTHER WEEK.

MONDAY, Dec. 8.—Those cases which were not disposed of two weeks ago, and which were adjourned until to-day for trial, were further adjourned for a week.

The MAGISTRATE stated that he had received a communication from the Town Clerk informing him of a motion passed at the last meeting of the Town Council, requesting him to stay proceedings in these cases regarding infringement of the Building By-law. In deference to the Town Council he would further adjourn the cases mentioned for one week.

Renovating the Rhubarb Bed.

Take up the thriftiest plants with a good square of earth and set them aside until the bed is prepared. To prepare, remove the sod, or turn it well under; dig trenches eighteen inches deep, where the rows are to be. Fill up six inches or so with old bones, plaster and other coarse permanent manure as may be at hand. Over this put four or five inches of well-rotted stable manure, and finish filling the trench with earth and compost mixed. This gives a varied supply of plant food that will not soon become exhausted, and will result in an enormous growth of rhubarb. Take the plants laid aside and divide them up into three or four settings each. Set these at least 2½ feet apart in the row, with the crowns just beneath the surface of the earth. Keep them well watered at the start, especially if the weather is dry. It is not a tender root by any means, but will well repay good care. The bed should always be mulched in the winter with straw manure. This is particularly necessary with a newly-set bed. It will not yield heavily the first season after setting, as it takes some time to get firmly established. New plants taken from another location will often do better than old ones, but if the old ones are of good variety, they will do well under the improved condition.—Cor. Prairie Farmer.

Shaker Blood Syrup

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like Shaker Blood Syrup. It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take my word. Ask your neighbour, who has taken one bottle. He will tell you that, "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

Shaker Syrup Company: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I have heard of your Blood Syrup, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indegestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,
O. F. TWICHELL,
Gorham, N.H.

☞A gentleman who has been suffering from the debility and languor peculiar to this season, says: "Shaker Clood Syrup is putting new life right into me. I have gained ten pounds since I began to take it." Has taken two bottles.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1884.

A REFORM journal states that it is "a piece of impertinence" for the British authorities to bestow titles on Canadians, as Great Britain "is essentially a foreign power." It will be amusing to many to hear that Canadians should consider the Mother Country a foreign power, while we owe allegiance to the same sovereign. But the Reformers appear to consider any government that does not meet with their approval is a foreign power. One could scarcely be surprised at one of their organs expressing this view of England when it is not long since they appeared to hold the same view regarding our own Dominion because the people had given the reins of government into the hands of Conservatives.

THE Globe affects to believe that the removal of the tax from bill stamps will benefit a very large number of people, while the London Advertiser holds that a very large number will receive no benefit from its removal. Neither of the organs, however, attempt to show that the removal of the tax on tea or coffee does not benefit almost all the people. The Conservatives removed the tax entirely, but the Reformers not only imposed a duty on these articles, but made those who used a cheaper grade of tea pay higher duties than those who purchased a dearer grade.

The Late Kenneth Urquhart.

The sad death by drowning was announced a few days ago of Mr. Kenneth Urquhart, merchant tailor, of Lakefield, who was well and favourably known by a large circle of friends. Mr. Urquhart left his home on the morning of the 18th October last in a weak state of health, and after staying in the city of Toronto for a few days, he arrived at Niagara Falls, U.S., on the 22nd, when he informed his sister-in-law residing there that he left home to get a rest from business and a change of air, as he felt in very low spirits. On the morning of the 25th he disappeared, and after careful inquiry among the friends of the deceased no tidings could be learned until his body was found in the canal basin at that place. It is generally believed that he went out early in the morning for a walk, and in crossing a new bridge which is being built that he fell through one of the apertures, and being so very weak and no swimmer he lost his life. The body was found on the 19th November, and an inquest was held, when a verdict of accidental drowning was brought in by the coroner's jury. Mr. Bird, a step-son of the deceased, when telegraphed for, went and had the remains brought to Peterborough. They were followed to the Little Lake Cemetery on the 21st November by a large concourse of sorrowing friends from Lakefield and Peterborough. Deceased, who was born in Ross Shire, Scotland, came to this country in 1856, and resided in Peterborough for a few years, working with success at his business, when he removed to Lakefield and married in 1863. The deceased who had obtained his 53rd year, was a man of estimable character, an enthusiastic Scot, and took an active interest in church and municipal matters and held offices in both. He was also a member of the Masonic order. He was kind and generous and a good Christian. In politics he was a Liberal, and a zealous worker at election times. His widow, who survives him, has the heartfelt symyathy of all in her deep affliction. The deceased's relatives all reside in Scotland. His heart was always warm towards his native land, and he frequently expressed a desire to visit it.

Another Evidence.

Our energetic townsman, Mr. D. Belleghem, has just given another evidence of his business tact and enterprise. Having enlarged his furniture emporium to almost twice its former size, and having stocked it from front to rear with the latest designs of furniture, he necessarily needed more light to show to good advantage both his fine premises and excellent goods. He therefore concluded to introduce into his premises electric light. On Monday two lamps were hung, and on Monday night the whole establishment was ablaze with the luminous fluid. Mr. Belleghem may be complimented on the pushing way in which he conducts his business. His business career from the opening day has been one of marked success.

THE DOMINION PREMIER.

Sir John Macdonald's Arrival in New York—He is Interviewed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Sir John Macdonald arrived from England yesterday. He said he thought Canada was ready and willing, and even desirous for closer connection with the Mother Country, but no one had as yet settled on any definite plan. Regarding the subject of a reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada, Sir John stated that the United States must take the initiative. The Canadian Pacific railway, he said, would be open for traffic in the spring of 1886. He understands the company would have a line of steamships running to China from Port Moody as soon as the railway is open.

A delegation representing the woman's suffrage party called upon Sir John Macdonald this morning and thanked him for incorporating woman's suffrage in the pending Canadian Franchise Bill, and tendered him a public reception. Sir John replied that he would be unable to accept the offer, but hoped to be able to do so at a future date. He said the woman suffrage clause in his bill had been received with growing favour, and he had no doubt of its ultimate passage. He found the woman suffrage movement greatly advanced in England. The Conservative party was practically a unit in its favour.

FENELON FALLS.

NORTH STAR ROLLER MILL.—Messrs. McDougal, Brandon & Allen's new flouring and grist mill on Bond street west, Fenelon Falls, commenced work last Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and turned out 90 bags of chop at the rate of about 60 bushels an hour. The first lot of grain ground was owned by Mr. Wm Fell, and the second by Mr. Nathan Day. The chopping stones are the only ones yet in place; but the second run, for finishing middlings, and the rollers for flouring will be put in at the earliest possible moment. Its capacity will be 80 barrels per day, and it is expected that it will be finished by the 15th of January next. The many friends and admirers (as a man and a miller) of Mr. George Nie will be delighted to learn that he has been engaged by Messrs. McDougal, Brandon & Allen, and will take charge of their mill on the first day of the new year.

THE RACE.—Since we noticed the commencement of work on the mill race in this village the weather has been so favorable that considerable progress has been made, and as about twenty-five men and six horses and carts are employed, a large quantity of material is removed every day. The drill is used as well as the shovel and pick, and blasts are occasionally heard, but they are mere pistol shots compared to those which shattered windows and shook walls while the excavation for the locks was going on. The width of the cut is to be sixteen feet, and the depth about twelve feet, or two feet deeper than the canal. It will tap the canal a few feet east of the mammoth stone stable behind the McArthur House, diverge to the left when it reaches the main street, which it will cross diagonally, and then turn to the right, but of course neither of the turnings will be very abrupt. Where it crosses Colborne street it will be covered with three or four inch plank, but the remaining portion will be left open; and at the upper end there will be massive gates in order to exclude the water when necessary.—Gazette.

SUSPECTED INFANTICIDE.—A newly born infant was found in the lake shore on saturday by Chief of Police Rankin. An inquest has been summoned. The police have a strong impression that the culprit will be brought to speedy justice.

The Washington Monument.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The long expected completion of the Washington monument obelisk was accomplished this afternoon by setting in place the marble capstone and the pyramidal apex of aluminium. The ceremonies were few and simple, an elaborate celebration of the event being reserved for Washington's birthday. The flag over the monument floated to-day from the flag staff top, which is exactly six hundred feet from the ground, thus displaying the American colors at the greatest height of construction ever yet known in the world. The monument itself, with its total height of 550 feet, far overtops every other structure of human hands. The aluminum apex of the monument is engraved with inscriptions as follows:—On one face—"Chief Engineer and Architect, Thos. Lincoln Casey, Colonel of the Corps of Engineers; Assistants, George W. Davis, Fourteenth United States Infantry, and Bernard R. Green, Civil Engineer; Master Mechanic, P. H. McLaughlin." On another—"Corner-stone laid on the bed of the foundation July 4th 1848. First stone at a height of 52 feet laid August 7th, 1880. Capstone set December 6th, 1884." On another—"Joint commission at setting of capstone: Chester A. Arthur, W. W. Corcoran, Chairman; M. E. Bell, Edward Clark, John Newton, Act of August 2nd, 1876." And on the ourth face the words "Laus Deo."

The Mysterious Disease.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Dr. Field, agent of the Red Cross Association, writes a letter from the plague-stricken districts of Virginia and Kentucky, stating that about 300 persons had fled from the plague. He says first the cases were bloody flux, with vomit, the latter assuming the form of Asiatic cholera. The disease has nearly disappeared, but three critical cases remaining, but has left many cripples in a condition resembling rheumatism. The remedy which proved most effectual was a compound of castor and laudanum and camphor.

How to Choose a Husband.

A lady of experience observes that a good way to pick out a husband is to see how patiently the man waits for dinner when it is behind time. That is true. Never marry a man who places no value on time, but is willing to dawdle around all day. He will be sure to die in the almshouse. Pick out a man who gets mad when kept waiting.—Philadelphia Call.

REPORTS ABOUT THE MAHDI.

CAIRO, Dec. 8.—It is reported at Dongola that the Mahdi excepted the challenge to his prophetic powers proposed by Gen. Gordon, and will try to make his followers walk across the Nile. He therby lost 3,000 men. According to other reports, the Mahdi remains at Margiat and is making no attempt to intercept the convoys sent by Gen. Gordon to Shendy. This inactivity on his part, it is said, is having a tendency to weaken the popular belief in the sanctity of his mission.

CONTINUED CONFLICTS.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—It is reported that fresh encounters have occurred at Tonquin between Chinese and French. The Chinese were defeated and forced to retreat. The Chinese are preparing to throw a large force across the frontier into Tonquin. The French blockade of Formosa is only nominal. The fleet is anchored at Kelung, while trade with other ports proceeds as usual.

ATTACKS ON KHARTOUM.

CAIRO, Dec. 8.—A messenger from Khartoum says the officer sent by General Gordon to capture Shendy shelled the inhabitants out and took many prisoners. Small parties of rebels attack Khartoum daily, but they are invariably repulsed with heavy loss. The Mahdi fears to make an open attack, because it would result in a great slaughter of his followers.

ATTACK ON A RAILWAY.

SUAKIM, Dec. 8.—Fifteen hundred rebels attempted to destroy the railway here to day. They were repulsed by the Egyptian cavalry.

ANGLO-SPANISH TREATY.

MADRID, Dec. 8.—The Spanish Government has accepted a proposal for a treaty of commerce with England. Spain will concede to England the most favoured nation terms.

A WEAK DEFENCE.

The Globe seeks to draw a herring across the trail in the Coe case by abusing the Hon. Mr. Bowell. It accuses the Mail of working in his interest when it "attacks Mr. Coe." We have have already said more than once that no attack has been made on the latter gentleman. Nothing further has been said of him than that he is evidently shrewd enough to take a good thing when it is offered to him. If our contemporary is fearful lest he should lose any popularity which he may be striving to work up, it may calm its troubled breast. The Mail's business in this matter is with the men who have enriched him at the expense of the province. Attacks on the Hon. Minister of Customs will not divert attention from their misdeeds, especially as it is known that one motive which prompts such attacks is the desire for revenge for his exposure in Parliament of a still more disgraceful job.

The defence which is once more set up has already been fully dealt with in these columns. We need only refer again briefly to some of the most salient features of the case. We are told that Mr. Coe has purchased "forty or fifty thousand acres of Laurentian rock," etc., the only article of value upon which is the hardwood timber. The facts are that he has purchased at a price much lower than that charged the ordinary settler over fifty thousand acres of timber land in the county of Hastings; he has obtained the right of pre-emption to about 50,000 more in the same county; and there is good reason to believe that he has secured about 100,000 acres in an adjacent county. We are told at another time that he wants not only the timber for charcoal, but the ore. Then, again, it is said that the lands in North Hastings which he has obtained are only those unfit for settlement—"acres of Laurentian rock." At another time the organ depicts his magnanimity, as shown in the fact that he "actually offers any one a hundred acres "of such land for nothing, and is, in addition, "ready to pay him for clearing the "land. * * He is actually paid for "making his own land ready for a crop." Generous Mr. Coe! He will pay anyone to clear the timber off these acres of Laurentian rock—unfit for settlement—and will then make him a present of the rocks on which to sow his crops. There is a painful discrepancy here somewhere.

We are told that all these lands were reported by a Government inspector as "unfit for settlement." This gentlemen did not go alone on his errand. Mr. Coe's agent accompanied him. A Faraday settler resident there for six years was asked to give a description of five lots in Wollaston. He did so, stating that they were suitable for general farming. These lots now belong to Mr. Coe. The same thing happened with some exceptionally good lots which another resident was asked to describe. The Government inspector reported as "unfit for settlement" one of the best lots in Faraday, but discovered his mistake after he had been persuaded to go over it and examine it. The engineer who conducted the survey of the proposed extension of the North Hastings railway through Wollaston and Faraday gave a most favorable report of the quantity of the lands which he passed over. Mr. Coe now owns a large portion of them. Each township has been so cut up in this way that the formation of school sections will be an impossibility. Example, in the first concession of Wollaston he has secured by purchase lots 16, 18, south half of 19, 23 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, and 29, and lots 5, 7, 8, 9, 22, and 30 have been applied for and withdrawn from settlement. In this concession alone he has 960 acres sold to him and 600 located, while the settlers have only 1,043.

But the chief argument from the first has been that smelting furnaces should be established and the exploration of ore checked. We have shown what this amounts to. The Hon. Bill Flint paid a visit to the mines not long ago and stated afterwards that the only smelting that could be done would be that of the poorerores, and that the better class would be shipped out of the country. So much for Mr. Pardee's encouragement of the iron industry.—Toronto Mail.

Economic Science Association.

The Mail of Monday contains the following:

"The interest taken by Canadians in the proceedings of the economical and statistical section of the British Association at the Montreal meeting of that body has suggested to some of those who attended the meeting the expediency of forming a Canadian Association with similar objects in view. There are many questions of a practical kind within the domain of economic science with respect to which interesting and useful information might be collected and disseminated through the medium of such a society, and this might be made a most useful means of promoting the material prosperity of the country. A few persons interested in such matters recently held a meeting in this city and took the initial steps necessary for the organization of an association. After a spirited discussion it was resolved to hold a second meeting during the early part of the approaching session of the Ontario Legislature, and a committee was appointed to collect information and to prepare a form of constitution for submission to that meeting. The members of the committee are J. Carnegie, M.P.P. for West Peterborough; J. Howard Hunter, inspector of Insurance Companies for Ontario; W. Houston, librarian to the Ontario Legislature; A. Blue, deputy to the Minister of Agriculture; and W. A. Douglas, accountant to the Freehold Loan and Savings Company. As the association will have no platform on the trade question, or any other matter discussed at its meetings, members of all political parties may unite for the promotion of its object without prejudice to their own opinions."

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain and cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind, colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

COPPER AND BRASS.

BECAUSE the Montreal Gazette objects to the vulgarly offensive tone which the Globe adopts towards the Finance Minister, the London Advertiser assails Mr. Thomas White, M.P., for having criticised in the House of Commons Mr. Huntington's copper mine proceedings. The Advertiser alleges that Mr. Huntington's connection with the transaction was perfectly straightforward, and that it was a private matter. We must dispute this plea of privacy on three grounds. In the first place the companies in question were public chartered companies, and as such their affairs were open to fair public criticism. In the second place the Hon. Lucius Seth Huntington was either a Minister of the Crown or an ex-Minister at the time of these shady transactions, and in this capacity his complicity in such a dishonorable affair implicated the honor of Canada. In contrast with this there was the case of a member of the British Administration who, because he was the director of a company with which dishonesty was connected, though he was a victim, not like Mr. Huntington, a gainer, by the transaction, resigned office rather than allow the shadow of disgrace to fall upon his colleagues and his country. In the third place Mr. Huntington was a party to a heavy loss falling upon British investors, who resented both the loss and the dishonesty which had contributed to their exposure to it, so that for a time Canadian securities stank in the nostrils of British investors. There was in fact such privacy as is usually connected with deeds of darkness, but it was a public wrong and a public disgrace that called for public criticism of a public man.

As to the straightforward nature of Mr. Huntington's connection with these transactions why did he disgorge part of his ill-gotten gains to stop the legal proceedings that he found it inconvenient to face, if his conduct had been so immaculate? Why did he or his legal advisors, when he did pretend to have recourse to law in order to renovate his damaged reputation, fight so hard to prevent the facts from coming before the court?

Mr. Huntington's copper mine transactions were a disgrace to him, and those who defend them render themselves participators in that disgrace.

REFORM LOYALTY.

AFTER quoting a recent article from the Peterborough REVIEW, headed "Is It True?" in which we ask if the Toronto News is correct in stating that there are many among the leaders and the rank and file of the Reform party to whom the words "God Save our Queen" are distasteful, the Barrie Northern Advance answers our question in the affirmative, and continues as follows:—

"Since the above appeared in our contemporary, Sir Richard Cartwright, who made the independence speech in Toronto, has spoken, and so has Hon. Wilfred Laurier, a former member of the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's Cabinet. Sir Richard went back on himself, and came out in favor of an Anglo-Saxon Federation, but Mr. Laurier said, as reported in the Montreal Witness:—

'We might yet go further and seek political freedom. If we had not this now it was our own fault. It was because we had not had the spirit or the wish to stand alone. If we had not commercial liberty it was the fault of the people of the metropolis, Montreal. The Mother Country had long ago generously said to us through her leading statesmen, that when we wanted independence we could have it with her good will. For the present we were prepared to assert commercial freedom, and that would be an education to prepare us for national independence. We were now a colony, but it did not suit the ideas of true patriots that we should always be so.'

The Witness, which is a good Grit, further assures us that the last remark of Mr. Laurier 'was loudly applauded, and all through the speaker seemed to have gained the sympathies of his audience.' We trust that our esteemed contemporary, the REVIEW, will justify us in the use of the heading of this article. It is quite true of many members of the Grit party, not alone of the rank and file, but of the leaders also, that loyalty to Britain forms no part of their political creed. And we, who know the stability and assurance of respect such loyalty gives our institutions, know also that loyalty to Canada would not be allowed to stand in the way of the same persons if thereby the Tories could be ousted from power."

THE Brockville Recorder complains that we changed the meaning of what is said regarding the Mowat-Hart affair. We do not think so. The Recorder stated that, even were the charge that Mr. Mowat had purchased Mr. Hart's support well founded, it would be a compliment to Mr. Mowat. We quoted its exact words and held it to the point. It added the consideration which led it to that conclusion, and we referred to it in order to show that its assumption was not correct. We did not say that the Recorder acknowledged the truthfulness of the charge, although it must be aware that it is true, but we said that the Reform organs, finding that it was useless to deny the facts, tried to make their readers believe that even if the charge was well founded—if Mr. Mowat did bribe a member of the Legislature—it would be a compliment to him. That was what the Recorder tried to do, but if it has changed its opinion, and wishes now to recede from that position and acknowledge that bribery is not a trifling lapsus from strict integrity, and that even a trifling lapsus could not be construed into a compliment, no one will object to its shifting its ground.

KEARNEY vs. THE TOWN.

DISCUSSION IN THE COUNCIL ON THE QUESTION OF APPEAL.

The Insurance Rate—Police Cells Again—The Building By-Law—Miscellaneous Matters and Accounts.

A meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening, in accordance with a call of the Mayor.

PRESENT—His Worship Mayor Cox, and Councillors Cahill, Davidson, McNeil, Kelly, Rutherford, Yelland, Menzies, Kendry, Green, Millar and Douglas.

WHY CONVENED.

The MAYOR said that he had received two or three communications which, though not of a very important character, required immediate attention. One was a letter from Mr. E. B. Edwards, regarding the case of Kearney vs. the Town, in which a verdict of $100 had been given against the town.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, calling attention to the fire by-law and holding that the town, at the time it passed the by-law, had not power to compel people, in repairing a building, to build it of a different character from that of the original building, and also suggesting that some competent person be appointed to examine plans of buildings being erected.—Building Committee.

From D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, calling attention to the bad state of the lock-up.—Property Committee.

From B. Lefort, asking for remission of statute labor tax.—Court of Revision.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were read:—

Geo. Stethem	$22 75
B. Shortly	1 90
Grand Trunk Railway	1 60
D. Disautel	8 25
R. B. McKee	7 51
R. B. McKee	27 31

The account of the Grand Trunk Railway was ordered to be paid and the others were referred to the Finance Committee.

KEARNY VS. PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. Edwards' communication regarding the case of Kearney vs. the Town was taken up.

Mr. E. B. EDWARDS, Town Solicitor, was heard and said the question of the responsibility of the town had come up at the trial. He had proved that a fence had been put up around the place on Hunter street where the plaintiff had received his injuries, and that the fence had been removed by others. It was not usual to fully argue the questions of law at the trial, and the jury had found on the facts. He did not know what course Judge Dennistoun would take if it were brought before him again in term, but it appeared to him that it was not altogether clear that the town should bear this loss, and he thought it should be again brought up before the Judge.

Councillor CAHILL asked on whose authority the case had gone to trial?

The MAYOR—Not on mine, I assure you.

Mr. EDWARDS said that he was in the Mayor's office on other business and the writ was handed to him by the Mayor with the remark, "That is a case for you to attend to." Afterwards when he received notice of trial he sent notice to the Mayor.

The MAYOR,—Was not Messrs. Dumble and Henry's letter referred to the Finance Committee?

Councillor DAVIDSON said that it was, and that the Committee did not report on it.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said that the Committee considered that there were no grounds for the claim.

Councillor MENZIES said that one difficulty was that they could not decide on the value of a watch which had been injured.

Mr. EDWARDS said that he had not been asked as to the advisability of defending the action, and, indeed, he had difficulty it getting at the facts of the case. There should be an arrangement by which, when an accident occurred, there would be a thorough investigation into the facts, as in the case of railway accidents. He would advise bringing the case up again in term. It might cost $25 or $30 to do so. The cost so far would amount to about $110.

Councillor MENZIES said that he would be willing to risk that much to defend themselves.

Councillor MENZIES moved that the case of Kearney vs. Peterborough be appealed in term, and that the Town Solicitor give notice of such appeal.

It was finally agreed that the matter be left to the Town Solicitor to be dealt with as he thought best.

Councillor DAVIDSON said he thought that the Street Inspector should be censured for not attending to the place.

Councillor CAHILL said that the Street Inspector had a fence put up, but persons working at the house being built there took it down, and it would have needed a man there all the time to keep it up.

Mr. EDWARDS said that evidence showed that the Street Inspector had the fence put up twice and on one side three times.

Councillor YELLAND said that he should have found out who removed the fence and prosecuted them.

THE BAZAAR.

Councillor MENZIES moved, seconded by Councillor KENDRY,—That this Council grant permission to the managers of the bazaar to be held in the Opera House, commencing Dec. 8th, 1884, to dispose of articles by raffle or otherwise, in accordance with powers rested in this Council.—Carried.

AN OBSTRUCTION IN THE CREEK.

Councillor DOUGLAS moved, seconded by Councillor YELLAND,—That the Street Inspector be instructed to notify the contractor and architect to have the obstructions take out of the creek on the north side of Hunter street, and if they fail to do so, the Inspector to do so himself at the contractors expense.—Carried.

BALANCE OF SALARY.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor CAHILL,—That the sum of $25 be given to the widow of the late John McGhee as the full balance of his salary.—Carried.

REMISSION OF TAXES.

Councillor DOUGLAS moved, seconded by Councillor YELLAND,—That the income tax paid by John Babb for Mr. Trout be refunded.—Referred to Court of Revision.

STREET REPAIRS.

Councillor YELLAND referred to a place on Antrim street, at Mr. Chisholm's residence, that needed repairs.

The matter was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee, with power to act.

A motion to adjourn for two weeks was carried.

INSURANCE RATES.

Councillor KENDRY asked why the insurance societies had raised the town from class C to class D?

The MAYOR said that the Underwriter's Association had been informed that the hydrants on George street were not available. He (the Mayor) invited the Secretary of the Association to Peterborough, and had taken him to the President and Superintendent of the Water Company, and had given an exhibition of the works. He had also attended a meeting in Toronto, and notice had been given that the town would be placed in class C again in January.

THE BUILDING BY-LAW.

Councillor MCNEIL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the Building Inspectors be instructed to withdraw the cases before the Police Court in which the Building Committee had given permission to erect the buildings.

After some discussion the motion was put and carried and the Council adjourned.

Eighteen Animals Burned.

The dwelling and out houses of R. Warminton, farmer of Cote Ste. Antoine, Que, were burned down on Thursday night, sixteen head of cattle and two horses perishing in the flames. The family had a narrow escape from losing their lives, as the house had taken fire from the outhouses before the alarm was given from the outside. The loss is estimated at $2,500; fully insured in the Imperial and Commercial Union.

A Counterfeiter Caught.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7.—An Italian named Guiseppe was arrested yesterday for having counterfeit coin in his possession. He arrived from St. Paul, and on his trunk being searched by the Custom officials one hundred dollars in base coin was discovered in dollars, half dollars and nickels. The trunk also contained dies and tools for the manufacture of spurious coin. The bogus money is an excellent imitation. A number of the pieces were unfinished, the edges being untrimmed, and appeared to have been but recently taken from the mould. The prisoner comes from New York, and answers the description sent by Pinkerton's Chicago agency to the police here of a counterfeiter who has gone West, presumably to pass off base coin.

Killed by a Falling Sign.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 6.—A terrific rain and windstorm passed over western Pennsylvania this evening. Much damage was done to property. A sign fell on a woman name Pfaff and two children. The boy was killed instantly; the others were seriously injured.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE REASON WHY

Our Shoe Store is always Crowded

With Customers is very apparent to those that have visited it and seen our immense Stock and compared our prices with those asked elsewhere for the same goods. Never have we had such Bargains in Boots and Shoes as now. Never have we sold as many as now, and the more we sell the

GREATER BARGAINS

we have, as we are able to buy in larger quantities and at corresponding low prices. We retail as many Boots and Shoes as most jobbers sell at wholesale, consequently manufacturers make no difference in price to us than wholesale trade, while smaller dealers are obliged to pay which is about the same as our regular retail price for the same quality of goods. It must be very evident to any thinking person that there must be a reason for our immense Shoe Business, and that our low prices, complete stock, and attention shown to our customers can be the only attraction powerful enough to draw such crowds to our store, and place us, with but two years' growth, as one of the largest retail Shoe Houses in Eastern Ontario.

JOBBERS' PRICES,

Remember our system of business is square with all. Goods marked in plain figures and no second or third prices made.

CANADIANS IN EGYPT.

A COMPLAINT AGAINST THE COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT.

Our Correspondent Takes a Somewhat Pessimist View of Things—How Canards are Manufactured—A hauey Native.

(Special Correspondence of the Review.)

WADY HALFA, Nov. 3, 1884.

DEAR REVIEW,—November third finds us still idle and this most unaccountable delay so detrimental to an energetic prosecution of this enterprise leads me to reflect a little. I will ventilate the opinions of the more thoughtful amongst us on things in particular—selfish—and matters in general public interest. No. 1 being the first law of nature, I start with our light afflictions, which, I trust, won't last much longer, and my text, I regret to say, is an empty larder, which latterly is becomming by no means unusual, but not being of a very grumbling disposition—in fact, having a good deal of the Mark Tapley about me, trying to be jolly under the most adverse circumstances, I have tried by occasionally tightening my belt to entirely ignore it. Chapt. 6, verse 27.—Scant potatoes, no sugar, no bread, no hard tack—nothing but corned beef and a couple of potatoes a man. This you will allow is hardly fair, and we cannot, taking into consideration matters in general, lay the blame at the doors of our own officers, who hitherto have done everything reasonable to enhance our comfort and lighten our hardships. When rumours are daily flying about that the boats were not here when they might have been; that the commissariat, now coming along by petty instalments, could have been on the ground a month ago; that ammunition has not been forwarded with the rapidity so essential to the safety of a force in front of an enemy; that medical stores are at the minimum for a reasonably healthy locality, and that at any moment we are liable to have the maximum of disease in our midst—even now rumours of dysentery and small pox are hinted about daily; when it is said that General Wolseley is like an imprisoned lion beating against the bars of a cage, through finding his hands tied by the old stage coach style of business of the British War Office; when all these things press on our minds (or rather on our empty stomachs) it brings to my mind Dickens' immortal description of the circumlocution office—I have his words before me—"The most important department of the British Government," where it was impossible to do any right and equally impossible to do any wrong, and that whatever was wanted to be done, that office was ahead of all others in knowing "how not to do it," and if any poor devil who had a seat at the board, possessed of a little brains and a little conscience, attempted to "do it" he was instantly sat upon and utterly extinguished. And I have read of the efforts of this famous department (the revised edition reads infamous) to perfectly "not do it" during the Crimean war, when the finest army that ever Britain put in the field, battling for the support of an effete dynasty, were shoeless, shirtless and foodless, without fuel, without even an approach to medical stores, debilitated, decimated by disease and worn to skeletons by hunger and fatigue, while a large steamer (I forget its name) with over a million dollars worth on board of all that could make the strong comfortable, ameliorate the condition of the sick and alleviate the pangs of the dying, went to the bottom in Balaklava harbor, not being permitted to discharge her cargo, though lying there for many days. The officers in charge hustled about from one red tape circumlocutionist (this is not in Webster, though evidently not obsolete) to another whose Shibboleth was "how not to do it."

Aye, the folds of the blood-stained red tape had so knotted and twined and tangled themselves around every hawser and anchor that held the ill-fated ship that when the storm fiend was let loose they could neither slip their cables, cut them or hoist their anchors, and the noble vessel went to the bottom with all her precious freight of lives and stores, ano her offering to the great Moloch of incompetence, vaccillation and delay.

Let England take care lest a worst thing befall the gallant handful of men now so completely isolated from any base of supplies, with no seaboard, no floating armada as a refuge in case of disaster. A waterless, treacherous desert, and a dangerous and fickle river for 1 500 or 1,600 miles, their only line of retreat, open everywhere to the assaults of a blood-thirsty horde. The wild horsemen of this trackless waste, whose mode of warfare is something like the pounce of a hawk on its prey. The stroke in one moment and out of sight in the next. It would be a sad, sad day indeed if the only memorials of this expedition should be the bleaching skeletons of a lost host from Dongola to Khartoum.

Good Heavens, here I have been mooing all the morning forgetting that this is Monday with its inevitable fatalisms, dirty shirts and soap, Nile water and scrubbing.

I must hie me to the river, where my chum is hoarsely calling,
Without a shake, or quiver, like auld Clooty he is bawling.
"If you want to get the mud from out your dirty shirt
Stop your darned scribbling. You'll not shirk the work I hope:
Three of mine and three of yours, stiff as pokers with the dirt,
This is Monday, Monday, Monday; come along and bring the soap."

I've done a deed my soul abhors!

Heaven help poor washerwomen. I would sooner pull a fifty foot boat two trips any day than wash a couple of shirts.

Nov. 3.—Still idle. No boats yet. The camp above us is in the same fix, the last was taken up this forenoon. The river is about four feet lower than it was on the 28th Oct. It falls three or four inches every twelve hours.

Col. Dennison is at the camp while I write giving orders to reduce the number of men in each boat to seven. There are five hundred boats to go up yet, and we are tired waiting for them. If they were here we would hustle them up in a hurry.

It is laughable, yet annoying, to hear the reports that are continually flying around camp. Some mischievous fellows amuse themselves by starting them, then not a few of the credulous will swear to their truth. It bothers me often to get at the root of them.

This afternoon an officer rode into camp on the fly, stopped at Captain Field's tent for a moment, and then rode on to Wady Halfa. A few minutes afterwards the report that General Gordon had reached Dongola was flying around and that the messenger was going to give the order to stop the boats. The yarn seemed so plausible that for a moment I was deceived, but wishing to make sure, I took a stroll through camp, and soon found out it was only a canard.

Yesterday a native entered the lines at Wady Halfa camp. A sentry ordered him off, but he refused to go, and drew a long dagger from his sleeve and attacked him, but he missed his mark, the soldier was too quick for him. He drew his sword and struck him on the neck with the flat of it, and dropped the native, who got on his knees and begged hard to be let off, which after a time he was.

It is now 3 o'clock, p.m., and a steamer is approaching with more boats, so I must close pro tem. It is the sincere hope of all hands that they will not stop now until we get them all through.

Yours always,
J. A. S.

Pulled from His Pulpit.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 6.—Last night a mob of negroes, fifty strong, entered the Providence Church on Green and Ferry streets, while Rev. G. W. Martin was preaching, and after blowing out the lights, grabbed the pastor by the neck and would have hurled him from the building but for the interference of several members of the church. The church was crowded, the larger part of the congregation being women, and when the lights were extinguished their screams and scrambles for the door converted the church into a pandemonium. The men objected to Martin on account of his Democratic tendencies.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

THE "GLOBE" CRUSHED AGAIN.

It is useless for the Tory organs to attempt to humbug the people with statements that the Americans pay our coal tax. If Americans pay our coal tax, Sir Leonard Tilley must be a born fool not to make it $5 a ton instead of 50 cents. —Toronto Globe. It might pay a man to expend 50 cents in order to sell an article for five dollars. It would not pay a man to expend five dollars in order to sell an article of some value for five dollars. Perhaps Sir Leonard Tilley, not being a born fool, looked at the coal question in this light.—Hamilton Spectator.

ONE OF THEM.

It is interesting to observe that the Globe has at last abandoned its old fogy idea.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.)

PROTECTION AND FREE TRADE.

Let it be remembered that it is the goods produced at the cheap centres of labor in the United States that compete with ours. Even with the present duty goods are being sent here. The two leading factories of this town have this season found that their trade has been cut into by imported goods, some made in United States prisons and others made with cheaper labor and sent it here at a sacrifice, to get rid of large surplus stocks. This means less work and lower wages for our mechanics, but if this is so now it does not need much foresight to see what would be the result under free trade or a low duty with free trade nine-tenths of our factories would be closed and every branch of business paralyzed.—Oshawa Vindicator.

BENEFITS OF A CLOSER ALLIANCE.

But will the British Empire have any more weight in the councils of the world, any more influence upon events, any greater share of glory simply by calling itself by a new name and doing nothing more? It seems to us that any further movement towards federation must be made by the colonies, and by all the colonies. If they desire the advantages and security which a closer alliance with the mother country would undoubtedly confer, then they must be prepared to concede a great deal more than any of them has yet shown any disposition to do.—Glasgow Herald.

MANITOBA AND DAKOTA.

We have repeatedly shown that the land laws of Canada are far more liberal than those of the United States. In Canada a settler may preempt when he is eighteen years old: in the United States, he must be twenty-one. In Canada he may get his patent after three years: in the states he must wait five. The most important advantage is that in Canada he may take up a homestead wherever he can find an unoccupied even-numbered quarter section, may preempt an additional quarter section, and may take a third under the tree-planting act. In the United States he can homestead only 80 acres within the railway limit, can preempt only as much more, and must pay $2.50 for the 80 acres he preempts. In most of the western country the railway belt extends twenty miles on each side of the railway, but in Dakota it reaches back fifty miles. So that in that Grit paradise, if a settler gets within fifty miles of a railway his homestead will be restricted to 80 acres of land.—Hamilton Spectator.

FOOLISH AND UNFAIR.

Of course no one assumed that the Conservatives proposed to swallow everything they had said against Mr. Brown, and the Reform organs were foolish and unfair in putting the case that way.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.)

A DISGUSTING ATTACK.

The Globe's tirade against Sir David Macpherson is conceived in the worst possible spirit. Nobody believes that Sir David, if Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, would act in anything but a becoming and impartial manner. The Globe has never suggested that Mr. Robinson has acted in any other manner; but it must be remembered that before his appointment Mr. Robinson was for years the target for their bitterest Billingsgate. The time has come, but the Globe seems to be unaware of the fact, when this sort of malicious uncalled for attack only disgusts sensible people and disgraces the paper which indulges its cowardly propensities.—Toronto World (Indep, Ref.)

THE COLONIES ADD STRENGTH.

If the menace or the reality of war is through any unfortunate combination of circumstances to press heavily on the Empire, it is plain that England will have to face an unequal conflict, shorn of a large part of her strength, material and moral, should she be forced to fight as an insular, and not as an Imperial Power.—London, Eng., Times.

SALT AND SAW MILL WASTE.

There are doubtless many saw mill operators in the South, and on the Pacific coast, to whom saw mill waste is a nuisance, who are not acquainted with the part which this waste plays in the production of salt at several points in Michigan, notably in the Saginaw valley, where salt springs of great strength and purity occur adjacent to some of largest lumber industries in the country.

The principal item in the cost of manufacturing salt is the fuel required to evaporate the brine, which as pumped from depths of from 700 to 800 feet, and occasionally much deeper, usually contain about 95 per cent of a saturated solution of salt, and a certain amount of the water it contains must be expelled by heat before crystalization of the salt can take place. This operation is performed in the Saginaw valley in what appears at first to be a very crude and primitive method, but closer examination shows it to be the most effective which can be devised where artificial heat is used.

The salt solution, or brine, is pumped directly from the wells or springs into wooden tanks from which it is allowed to flow as required into shallow evaporating troughs of wood about 20 feet long, six feet wide, and 18 inches deep, each trough containing a series of galvanized iron steam pipes immersed in the salt solution from which the heat necessary for the evaporation is obtained. In large works a series of these evaporating pans are placed side by side in the same building and the steam coil carried through the whole series, the steam entering the coil in the first pan and the condensed water being discharged from the last.

Where the salt works are on a small scale the exhaust steam from the saw mill engine is sufficient to perform the work of evaporation, while in large works this supply is supplemented with live steam. In both cases, however, the steam used for evaporating the salt solution, as well as that required for power to drive the saw mill engine, is generated by the combustion of sawdust which is taken directly from the saws, usually by means of a conveyor chain and carried through a sheet-iron trough extending over the boiler furnaces, from which, through openings in the bottom, it drops between the boilers into the fires.

During the sawing season, steam is generated for both these purposes almost exclusively with sawdust, the remainder of the waste, consisting of slabs, edgings, etc., being piled in the vicinity and held in reserve to generate steam for evaporting the salt solution in the winter, when the mills are not running, and no sawdust is being produced.

By these means, nearly all the saw mill waste produced in the locality named above is very advantageously utilized, and the salt manufacturers, who are generally also saw mill operators, as has been seen, have an effectual method of "killing two birds with one stone," a method which gives them a decided economical advantage over their less fortunate brethren in other localities, who are obliged to purchase fuel to evaporate their brine.—Northwestern Lumberman.

A Soft Soap Swindle.

NEWTON, Mass., Dec., 6.—Seven well-dressed young men canvassed the town thoroughly selling two sample boxes alleged to contain six dozen boxes of fine soap for $1. The dupes were enjoined not to open the boxes for a day or two until the soap hardened. Eight hundred boxes were sold and the swindlers escaped. The boxes contained a mixture worth a few cents.

Murdered While Praying

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 6.—The body of John Harrington, Irish laborer, was discovered in an unoccupied store on Main street to-day. He was lying as he had fallen, with his knees bent as if he had been kneeling before he received his death blow, with his hands clasped as if in prayer.

HOW TO TELL GENUINE FLORIDA WATER.—The true Florida Water always comes with a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and in the paper of this pamphlet are the "Lanman & Kemp, New York," water-marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters. Hold a leaf up to the light, and if genuine, you will see the above words. Do not buy if the words are not there, because it is not the real article. The water-mark letters may be veay pale, but by looking closely against the light, you cannot fail to see them.

A FEW dozen maples, single or in clusters, along the hilside pastures where cattle can lie in the shade and feel the breeze, will add very much to the beauty of the farm, to the value of the pasture and the comfort of the stock, and will in a yew years yield an income in the syrup which can be made from them.

MAKING STRAW STACKS.—Straw has a considerable feeding value, and this greatly depends on preserving it in good condition. The fine chaff around the corner should be distributed through the stack as much as possible. What is not should be put into the barn before rain comes, as it is impossible to stack it when wet. The centre of the stack should be kept full and well packed, so that the straw will settle more on the sides than in the middle.

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Entertainment.

An entertainment will be given in the chapel of St. John's Church, on the evening of Tuesday, December 16th. Vocal and instrumental music will be provided, the Fire Brigade Band Orchestra will be present, and refreshments will be served during the evening.

Clearing and Colder.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Fresh winds from south and south-west, clearing, and colder weather, proceeded by rain in southern and snow in northern Ontario.

Billiards and Pool.

On Wednesday evening at Faucher's billiard rooms, Mr. W. J. Cronn, an old Peterborough boy, will give an exhibition of billiard and pool playing. Other noted billiardists will take a part in the exhibition, and some of our local "knights of the cue" will take a stick with Mr. Cronn. No admission fee will be charged.

Extensive Sale.

We call the attention of the public to an important sale of household furniture, that of Mrs. Geo. Cluxton. The articles to be sold will consist in tapestry carpets, centre and fancy tables, elegant mirrors, glassware, silverware, marble topped furniture, wardrobes, dressing tables, and a large number of culinary requisites. This will be an extensive sale and no doubt it will be largely attended.

Y. M. C. A. Bible Class.

The Rev. Mr. Munro announced last Tuesday night that this evening's study would be the last in the Old Testament for some time. The class will consider to-night the transfer of the leadership of the Israelites from Moses to Joshua. After this the lessons will be in the Acts of the Apostles. The class is growing all the time, a fact which testifies to its interesting nature.

A Life Like Portrait.

In the report of the bazaar we omitted to mention that the oil finished portrait of the Rev. Father Conway, was the free gift of Mr. G. B. Sproule to the ladies of No. 2 Ward. This work of art has been recently executed in the photographic establishment of Mr. Sproule and it is a life-like representation of the reverend gentleman. The two pictures, this one and that of His Lordship Bishop Jamot, form two of the most attractive features of the table of No. 2 Ward. The oil finished portrait of His Lordship is also one of the outputs of Mr. Sproule's establishment. It was presented to the No. 2 Ward department by His Lordship, the Bishop.

Mr. E. S. Laughton,

Agent of the Tavernier Dramatic Company, arrived at the Grand Central Hotel on Saturday night and is busily arranging for the appearance of his Company here on the 15th. A feature of special interest in connection with this Company is the fact that it is the first of the organizations, recognized as first class, to adopt low pieces without lowering the stone of its performances. The entire Company of twelve people, including Ida Van Cortland, Albert Tavernier, Wilson Day and little Annie Bird, will appear here in a choice reportoire at the low price of ten cents admission with a small advance for reserved seats.

Evening Entertainment.

The third fortnightly entertainment in connection with St. Luke's Branch of the Church of England Temperance Society was held on Monday evening in the Sunday School room of St. Luke's Church. The attendance was large and the programme a good one. The entertainment was opened by an overture by Messrs. Tate, Errett, Young, Thomas and Hartley, playing violins, flute, picolo and piano. Mr. B. Tate read "The Two Armies of Mortality," and Mr. Somerville followed with a vocal solo. Mr. Russell recited "John Maynard," and later in the evening recited "Bernardo del Carpio." "I Built a Bridge of Fancies," a vocal solo, was given by Mr. C. H. Geale; Mr. Wm. Dixon, the ventriloquist, gave some humorous imitations; and a song "Of Thee and Thee Alone," was given by Mr. A. D. Browne. An instrumental selection was given by Messrs. Tate, Hartley, Thomas, Errett and Young. Mr. Somerville gave a vocal solo, "The Postillion," and Messrs. J. G. French and A. D. Browne sang a duet, "What are the Wild Waves Saying?" The HarmonicQuintette Club played "In the Gloaming," and the entertainment closed with the charade "Using the Weed" by Messrs. Ellen and Carrie Bennett, and Misses Clara Ludgate, Katie Payne, Sophia Cameron, Florence Tivey, and Louise Butcher.

OPENING OF THE BAZAAR

BRADBURN'S OPERA HOUSE METAMORPHOSED INTO A FAIRY LAND.

An Unusually Excellent Collection of Articles—The Banner of the "Banner" Ward—Interesting and Prominent Features of the Tables.

On Monday night Bradburn's Opera House presented an unusually gay and brilliant appearance; an appearance which it has not worn for many a year. Above, the electric lamps shed out their brightness; beneath, the rays fell on alcoved tables, strings of clothing of bright and sombre hues, and on objects of every conceivable size, color and shape. Nor was this all. The seats had been all removed and the large hall was filled with an every changing bevy. Positive affirmations, flat denials, merry peals of laughter, emphatic assurances and half-meant expostulations were heard on every side. The bazaar was open.

For several months preparations have quietly but steadily been going on and articles to the number of hundreds have been manufactured or purchased. This bazaar, in aid of St. Peter's Cathedral building fund, is, so far as the opening is concerned, in every way successful, and, no doubt it will close equally successful. The total value of the goods displayed in the hall, and to be disposed of, is estimated at $4,500.

On entering the hall the sight is almos dazzling. The articles on the tables are exquisitely arranged and are shown off the the best advantage. The table of the ladies of is situated directly under the ledge of the gallery and is presided over by the following capable ladies:—Mrs. E. Hurley, Mrs. John Henry, Mrs. McDonnell, Mrs. Leplante, Mrs. Thos. Henry, Mrs. Coughlin; Mrs. Dunn, treasurer. The following are some of the most noticeable articles to be found in the department of the ladies of the "banner" Ward: An old gold satin bannerette, fringed with gold and with the words, vox populi, at the bottom. This flag is to be contested for between the temperance party and the licensed victuallers, those receiving the largest vote to receive the bannerette. It was presented by the ladies of No. 1 Ward. A handsome Cleopatra chair stands at the north corner of the table. It has a turned walnut frame, is covered with green plush on each side, and the centre piece consists of canvas, on which is worked in wool a maroon background, and on the background ornamental flowers. It is presented by Mrs. Laplante and is valued at $50. Mrs. Hurley presents a handsome fender stool valued at $20. It is trimmed with cardinal plush and ornamented by gold and cardinal cord. Messrs. A. Comstock and T. Moore present a marble topped walnut centre table valued at $20. Mrs. Dunn gives a collection of dolls and children's clothing. Among the dolls is Christine Nilsson, that was, in deep mourning. A few feet away is a bride 27 inches high, in full marriage costume, decked with real orange blossoms. A very handsome silver epergne is presented by His Lordship Bishop Jamot. It stands about twenty inches high, and is valued at $30. A centre table worth $10 with ebonized and gold veined frame, and draped with satin and plush, is presented by Mrs. T. Henry. Mr. E. White presents an easy rocking chair. A very serviceable sideboard of black walnut, worth $30, is given by Mrs. Coughlin. It stands under the gallery. Directly in front of it is one of Mr. P. Hamilton's celebrated I X L ploughs (presented by himself), and beside it is a fine set of harness, a saddle, and a trunk, given by Mr. W. J. Devlin. A lift pump is given by Messrs. Wright & Peyton, and a fancy wool needle work picture by Miss Louisa Laplante. Other articles of lesser value to a large number are arrayed on the table in a tasteful manner.

On the west side of the hall, immediately opposite the department of No. 1 Ward, is the department of the ladies of ably presided over by Mrs. B. Morrow, Mrs. Tierney, Mrs. Hackett, Mrs. Clancy, Mrs. T. Laplante, Mrs. Donoghue, Mrs. McFadden, Mrs. F. J. Daly, Mrs. Mayhew, Mrs. T. Kelly, Mrs. Pope, and Mrs. Doherty, Treasurer.

Among the many beautiful articles, artfully displayed, is two oil paintings, one of His Lordship Bishop Jamot, and one of the Rev. Father Conway. The work was executed in the photographic establishment of Mr. G. B. Sproule, and the pictures speak for themselves as to the ability of the artist. The ladies of No. 2 Ward present a set of furniture (7 pieces) with walnut frames and finished in cardinal plush. It is valued at $50. Miss McLaughlin presents a beautiful wax cross, with twining white flowers of wax. It is covered by a square glass case and stands on a pedestal of cardinal plush. A five o'clock tea set is presented by Mrs. B. Morrow, and a five o'clock tea table is presented by Mrs. Pidgeon. A very neat miniature bedstead, with canopy top and complete outfit, is presented by Mrs. McFadden. A handsome merino child's dress, ornamented with silk needlework and fuscid patterns, is presented by Mrs. T. Kelly. Mr. McFadden gives a willow rocking chair; Mrs. Hackett, a cardinal and light blue sofa cushion; Miss Kearn, a wool sofa cushion, ornamented by variegated silk cord, and Mrs. J. McAleer a fancy ottoman. A miniature iron bedstead is presented by Mrs. Doherty; a drape table with ebonized gold veined frame and arrosene work on felt, drapery and ball tinsel, and silk trimming, by Mrs. B. Morrow; a chamber set (eight pieces) by Mr. C. Butler; a large doll bride with veil and sprays of orange blossoms by Mrs. McAleer; and a silver card receiver and bouquet holder by Mrs. J. Doherty. Mr. R. B. McKee presents a silver butter cooler and one of the chiefest features is a cutter with handsome trimmings presented by Mr. T. Laplante, valued at $35. Quilts, piano covers, lamps, albums, child's dresses, handkerchiefs, etc., etc., make up a most pleasing display. The department occupies the space directly in front of the stage and is presided over by Mrs. J. Moloney, Mrs. O'Shea, Mrs. R. Muncaster, Mrs. Hickey, Mrs. Dolan, Mrs. J. Lynch and Mrs. Delaney, Treasurer. Among the multitude of beautiful articles several stand out in relief. A silver tea set (five pieces) valued at $50, presented by His Lordship Bishop Jamot, is one of the most valuable articles. Mrs. Delaney presents a graceful cleopatra chair. The centre piece is of arrosene work on cardinal plush back ground, and on each side myrtle green plush, ornamented by red, myrtle green and tinsel cord, runs from bottom to top. It is valued at $50. Mrs. J. Moloney presents a marble vase filled with wax flowers, the whole covered by a glass use and mounted on an ebonized stand. Mrs. R. Muncaster presents a silver smoking set, valued at $18; Mr. A. Hall, a silver butter cooler; Mr. A. Moffat, a hanging hall lamp; Mr. Jas. Henry, a Japanese buscuit holder; Mr. H. LeBrun a large silver pitcher; and the ladies of No. 2 Ward, a silver watch. A fancy chair is given by Mrs. Dr. O'Shea; an oil painting (executed by herself, and beautifully framed), by Mrs. R. Muncaster; a crazy work sofa cushion, by Mrs. J. Lynch; a dressing gown, piano cover and table drapery, valued at $32, by Mr. and Mrs. T. Dolan; and a black ostrich plume, valued at $13, by Miss E. Delaney. The Rev. Father Conway presents a very handsome China tea set (30 pieces), and Mrs. J. Lynch a servicable tea set. An ornamental fender stool, six feet long and very elaborately trimmed with figured wool work and plush is presented by the ladies of No. 3 Ward. These, together with minature bedsteads, whisk holders, handkerchief cases, articles of clothing, and toys of many discriptions, make the display of No. 3 Ward department as interesting as any other in the hall.

NUMBER THREE WARD

The Bazaar will be open to-night and each day and evening during the week. We will have something further to say of the display.

Vox Populi.

The voting on the bannerette, to be presented to the strongest side, whether the temperance people or the licensed victuallers, is still going vigorously on at the bazaar. Up to 3.30 o'clock this afternoon the temperance vote was thirty in advance of the licensed victuallers. This novel way of testing public opinion is in the hands of the ladies in charge of the No. 1 Ward table.

If you want Underclothing, don't procrastinate, but avail yourself of the twenty per cent. discount now being offered on all sales of Winter Underclothing at Andrew McNeil's.

Premonitary Symptoms of an Old Bachelor.

When he cuts a certain number of little square bits of paper every night, and lays them on his toilet table ready to wipe his razor when he shaves in the morning. When he carries his fingers perfectly straight in his gloves, for fear of friction on the knuckles. When he can't go to sleep till he has ascertained whether the seam of the sheet is precisely in the middle of the bed When he leaves a friend's house in the middle of the evening to avoid a walk home with a lady. When he keeps his hat on in a lecture room, till the latest permitted minute, on account of draught. When he turns a huge coat collar up over his ears every time there is a cloud in the sky. When he refuses a hymn book in church, because he don't like to be seen using glasses. When a coal fire and a wadded wrapper have greater charms for him than a pair of bright eyes. When whisky punch and a flannel nightcap are the ne plus ultra of his earthly felicity. When he will not avail himself of the 20 per cent. discount now being offered on all winter underclothing by ANDREW MCNEIL, Tailor and Clothier, Gents' Furnishings, &c., George Street.

Smith's Market.

First importation of the genuine Florida Oranges, very sweet and choice. Grapes, Apples, Pears, Lemons, Cranberries, Table Raisins (new crop) and Nuts. Oysters by the tin, quart or pail. Park's pure Pork Sausages, Clark's Bologna, Fearmon's Hams and Bacon, English and Canadian Stilton Cheeses, Corn, Peas, Tomatoes, Beans, Peaches, Strawberries, Pears, Cherries, Pine Apples, Salmon, Lobster, Haddie, Mackerel, &c., Jams and Jellies, Finnan Haddies, Smoked and Salted Mackerel, Bloaters, Herrings, Cod, &c., Fluid Beef by the tin or dozen. Canned Meats of all kinds. Green Vegetables, Game, and everything usually kept in places of this kind.

To Subscribers of "Picturesque Canada."

We take pleasure in informing subscribers to PICTURESQUE CANADA, that we are prepared to bind the work in various styles, at the lowest possible prices. We make the binding of PICTURESQUE CANADA a specialty, having secured artistic covers and having an experienced binder and gilder, who is prepared to produce the work as it should be. Parties at a distance desiring the work bound can send them to us and we will return to them when bound, paying express charges both ways.

LOW PRICES!

More than ever before people are now using the closest scrutiny in making their purchases. But few have money to waste on worthless goods, and many feel the necessity of being careful in their expenditures, every one wants to get the best value he or she can for the money they spend. This is true in the purchasing of Dry Goods or Clothing more than in other lines of trade. We have purchased our Stock of Goods to meet this condition of things. We have built up our trade by selling good goods with the lowest possible profits. Our Stock is large in the several departments of our business, and we can give better wearing goods for less money than can be done for you by any house in the country.

Special Lines at Reduced Rates for the next three weeks.

THE BAZAAR CONTINUES.

A FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF THE CHIEF ARTICLES ON THE TABLES.

The Exhibit of the Sisters of the Convent de Notre Dame—Number 4 Ward to the Front—The Refreshment and Dining Department—The Ashburnham Tables.

All day long Bradburn's Opera House has been filled with purchasers and spectators, and last night the attendance was particularly large. In to-day's issue we give a further description of the articles on the various tables not heretofore noticed.

THE NUMBER 4 WARD

department is situated directly opposite the main entrance. It is under the capable management of Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan, Mrs. P. McNamara, Miss Vignette and Miss Connin.

The department is elegantly decorated with a large number of very handsome articles. We give in the following a list of those articles which stand out more prominently than the rest:—A concave plaque, finished in frosted hand painting, and valued at $10, is presented by Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan. Miss Vignette gives a smoking tray and table. The table is ebonized the drapery of wool work on Java canvas and the design Oriental. Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan presents two toilet sets; one of light blue satin, garnished with hand painted lillies, and the other of cardinal satin ornamented with hand-painted pansies. The same lady also presents a sofa cushion, valued at $12, of garnet velvet, ornamented by Kensington painting, and trimmed with puffed cardinal satin, and gold and garnet silk cording. Two foot rests of gold veined ebonized frames, and covered with fancy wool work, and two bannerettes of wine colored velvet, on which are hand painted stalks of wheat and margaritue, are also the gift of Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan. The bannerettes are valued at $7 and the foot rests at $12 each. Miss Vignette presents a handsome Ottoman, valued at $12, of an ebonized, gold veined frame, and cut fancy raised wool work covering on a black background. She presents also a round footstool, valued at $7, with ebonized pedestals, cardinal plush band, and a fancy bead work and arrasene worked top. A horse shoe shaped footstool, valued at $10, with gold veined ebonized frame, cardinal plush trimming, and the top of arrasene embroidery on black velvet, is the gift of a friend. A toilet set, valued at $6, of pale blue satin, ornamented by rosebuds in crewel work, is presented by Miss Stevenson. A black velvet sofa cushion, valued at $8, worked with rosebuds and forget-me-nots is a gift of Miss Vignette. Bishop Jamot presents a dinner set (108 pieces), valued at $24. Mrs. Goodwin of Ottawa, presents a silver dinner set (7 pieces) worth $40. A wool worked hearth rug, valued at $25, is the gift of Mrs. P. O'Mara. Cut raised work, valued at $25, for a fancy chair, is presented by Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan, and a strip, in bead work, valued at $10, for a fender stool, is given by Miss Connin.

THE ASHBURNHAM DEPARTMENT

is situated at the northern end of the hall on the west side. It is presided over by Mrs. G. Buck, Mrs. P. Clancey, Mrs. J. C. Sullivan, Mrs. P. Begley, Mrs. N. Mercier, Mrs. Giroux and Miss Ella Buck. It is generally admitted that the $50 in gold is the leading feature of the department. The gold is in different sizes of coin and it is shown in a small oval glass case. Next comes a beautiful wax cross trimmed with white wax flowers, the whole covered by a glass and standing on an ebonized pedestal. It is the gift of Miss Ella Buck. Miss Hayes and the ladies of Otonabee present a handsome silver ice pitcher, valued at $12. A silver sugar bowl and spoon holder is given by Mrs. J. C. Sullivan. It is worth $10. Mrs. C. Young presents a silver cruet stand. A little child's silk dress and a pair of handsome pillow shams are presented by Mrs. R. Thorne. A lady's morning wrapper, of mummy cloth and a front piece of brocaded cardinal silk velvet and edged with lace, is presented by Miss Mercier. Mr. H. LeBrun presents an elegant steel engraving of ocean scenery and the ladies of Ashburnham contribute a bed room set in white ash. Other articles consisting of carving sets, quilts, wall brackets, etc., etc., to a large number are displayed with exquisite taste. The department of the Sisters of the

CONVENT DE NOTRE DAME

is situated along the south end of the hall. In this department is an infinite number of small articles, and of large expensive articles there is no lack. Each and every table is decorated and garnished with every ingenuity, but if any preference were given it would be to this department. As we enter the main entrance, on the left hand side is a long table covered with small articles for the 10 cent and 25 cent lotteries. further on is a second table covered with evidences of patient end dexterous work. The cleopatra chair, which was so long admired in the window of the furniture store of Mr. D. Belleghem is one of the chief articles of adornment. It is a model of symmetry and grace Two sofa cushions in the new style of fancy work (ribbon work) are very attractive. On one the flowering is worked on olive green plush, and on the other, garnet plush. The second is profusely trimmed with puffed garnet satin studded with gold buttons. They are each worth $10. A fruit stand of Italian marble stands on the west end of the table. Representations of various kinds of fruit in wax covers the four stories, and is terminated by a brilliant bouquet of wax flowers. It is valued at $45. Other beautiful specimens of wax work are exhibited. Each and every piece is life like in appearance. A singing doll is another attractive feature in this department. It is of wax and may be made to sing Scotch airs. The post office is also a novel feature. But perhaps two of most exquisite works of art shown in the hall are two oval bombed plaques, painted in water colors on white velvet and set in a sea green plush frame. They are given by the sisters of the Loretto Convent, of Lindsay, and are both valuable and beautiful.

THE DINING HALL

is situated in the hall adjoining the Opera Hall. It is under the joint management of the ladies of Otonabee and the ladies of the town. On entering at the south end four tables tastefully arranged and bearing choice viands are presided over by the following ladies from Otonabee:—Mrs. Redmond, Mrs. Galvin, Miss Kenesally and Miss Annie Redmond. Mr. Jas. Duffis, acts as Treasurer. At the north end three tables groaning under good things in the eatable line are presided over by the following Peterborough ladies:—Mrs. Phelan, Mrs. Garvey, Mrs. T. Cavanagh and Miss McCarthy. Each department has a separate culinary department and a friendly rivalry exists as to which will do the largest business.

WEDDED IN THE GAOL.

Romantic Marriage in the Cell of a Delaware Prison.

An exceedingly romantic marriage occurred several days since in a cell of the county gaol in Newcastle, Del., says a despatch, as the consumation of a woman's unfaltering constancy to a notorious thief and burglar. The groom is Charles D. Blake, serving a three years' term, this being his third sojourn in the penitentiary. He is about thirty years old, good looking and of pleasing address. The bride is Miss Gussie Turner, of Philadelphia, a young, very pretty and apparently well educated girl, said to be respectably connected. When Blake was last on trial, at Wilmington, for burglary, a woman who professed to be his sister, sat near the prisoner's dock, while the girl he has just married sat in the rear of the court room watching the trial with intense interest. The prisoner was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and thirty lashes at the whipping post. The girl and Blake's sister interceded in vain with the Sheriff and the Judges to have the whipping part of the sentence remitted, and finally Miss Turner visited the Governor and pleaded hard with him to save her lover from the lash. Her plea was at length successful. From that time forth the girl was a frequent visitor to Blake. Several times each week she came to Newcastle from her home, bringing delicacies for her lover, and her good looks and sweet manners so won upon the authorities of the gaol that she was never denied admission. At length, however, Blake was caught in the act of making his escape. He had burrowed his way nearly through the prison wall, and it was proved that tools for the work had been smuggled in to him by his sweetheart, concealed in loves of bread. After that Miss Turner, who tearfully confessed her share in the matter, was for a time excluded. But the warden again relented, and, as before, she took advantage of her priviledges to furnish her lover with tools. This time Blake got beyond the prison walls, where he fell in with friends, got on a spree and was recaptured. His faithful sweetheart finding herself now rigidly prohibited from seeing Blake save in the presence of a guard, still visited the gaol, and, seeing one day that a prisoner's wife was freely admitted to her husband's cell, inquired whether, if she became Blake's wife, like privileges would be accorded her. The reply was yes, and she at once expressed her readiness to be married. Blake was quite as ready, and, after some delay, the marriage was performed by Mayor Black, of Newcastle, with Notary Herbert and Prison Warden Hance as witnesses. The newly wedded couple took no bridal trip, but they were served with a dainty wedding supper in Blake's cell, and the bride in particular seemed marvellously happy. Since the wedding Mrs. Blake has come down from Philadelphia every two or three days to see her husband, and his cell is adorned with innumerable evidences of her taste in ornament.

A Human Holocaust.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Dec. 9.—Early this morning three blocks of houses at Trenton, a small mining patch near here, were burnt. Thomas Barlow, his wife, three children, and a boarder, named Fitzgerald, were burned to death. When the alarm was given it seemed impossible to arouse the occupants of the building in which the fire originated. Just before the blazing roof fell in the head of the family was seen at a window with a child, which he dropped out upon the ground. He returned, evidently to save others, and was not seen again. The bodies of four of the victims have been recovered.

A Murderous Georgia Desperado.

SAGE, Ga., Dec. 9.—C. B. Palmer, a gambler and a low character, while on a carouse yesterday, accosted Wm. Akers, with whom he had previously had an altercation, and commenced shooting. Several of the shots took effect, killing Akers. Palmer then beat an inoffensive negro nearly to death, and fled. A posse of citizens is in pursuit. Palmer will be lynched if caught. Though only eighteen Palmer has become notorious throughout this section as a swindler and desperado.

Hanged Himself.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—James Crawford, about thirty-eight years of age, a wealthy and respectable farmer of Brantford township, living two miles south of this town, hanged himself this morning. He went to the barn to attend to his horses and being longer absent than usual his wife went in search and found him hanging in the barn dead. He leaves a wife and three children.

THE CONGO CONFERENCE.

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—The Congo Committee today discussed the details of the navigation statute to be applied to the Congo and Niger rivers. The committee also discussed Gen. Sandford's railway and neutrality proposals, but made very little progress. Gen. Sandford will submit another proposal to the committee to-morrow, and he has decided to present his project to the full conference. It is stated the powers have agreed that the decisions of the Conference regarding the occupation of the unoccupied territory shall only take practical effect after a specified time. The object is to avoid a race between the powers that wish to annex territory. Mr. Kasson's neutrality proposals will be debated by the committee to-morrow.

THE STORMS IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—The two dry docks that broke adrift in the River Elbe during the recent gales have been removed from the dangerous positions. The quantity of floating ice in the river is lessening.

A NIHILIST MANIFESTO.

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—The Nihilist executive has issued a manifesto condemning Count Tolstoi, Minister of the Interior, to death. The trial of eight Nihilists began to-day, but was postponed owing to an important arrest made yesterday. Many arrests are being constantly made.

DYNAMITERS ACTIVE.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The Government authorities continue to receive alarming information as to the working of the dynamiters and from present indications must have received some startling intelligence during the past twelve hours. The sentries at Windsor Castle have been doubled, and effective measures have been taken for protecting all the members of the royal family from outrage. The guards at the Government buildings and railway stations have also been increased, and the Scotland Yard detectives are displaying an unusual amount of activity, which indicates that the Home Secretary must really believe that another outrage is about being perpetrated. It is rumoured the real cause of this display of precautionary measures by the authorities is that a large quantity of dynamite is missing from one of the Nobel Dynamite Company's deposits. The Company has 500 deposits, many of which are not guarded during the night, and no measures have been taken to prevent their being robbed, although the police have frequently urged the Home Secretary either to place guards over them or compel the Company to employ watchmen for that purpose. Another report has it that the Home Office has received information to the effect that the dynamiters in Paris had suddenly decreased in numbers, that many of the more active members were missing from their usual haunts in that city and were reported to be in London. A number of loiterers have recently been seen in the neighborhood of Windsor Castle, and this fact together with the report from Paris has led the Government to adopt extraordinary precautions to prevent any outrage being committed.

"Keep warm! Keep warm! Keep warm!" Twenty per cent, reductionon all Winter Underclothing at A. McNeil's.

A Child Burned.

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—A little girl about 12 years of age who lives with her mother, Mrs. McCarthy, at No 59 Anne street, met with a terrible accident yesterday afternoon while sifting ashes in the yard. She had removed some hot cinders and ashes from the stove, and was engaged in sifting them when one of the burning coals flew out and set fire to her clothing. Before help arrived she was very seriously burned, and Dr. Martin, of Calton street, who dressed her wounds, is afraid that the accident may result fatally.

Buffalo Bill's Menagerie Drowned.

ST. JOSEPH, La., Dec. 9.—The steamboat W. P. Thompson, which collided on Sunday night with the Captain Millar and sank on the bar, had on board Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. Most of the animals were disembarked, and the steamer was pulled off the bar this morning, and started down the river, but sank so quickly that the buffaloes and mountain sheep left on board were all lost, and the passengers narrowly escaped.

Mrs. Lynam at Liberty.

Judge Jette on Tuesday gave his final decision in the celebrated Lynam insanity case, ordering the release of Mr. Lynam, and placed her under the guardianship of Mr. Alfred Perry, who at once proceeded to Longue Pointe asylum and took the unfortunate woman to his home. An action for damages will be instituted against Dr. Howard, the medical superintendent of the asylum.

Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1884.

THE Reform party seem to have an antipathy to men who have risen to prominent positions through their own energy and ability. This feeling was manifested in their bitter attacks upon the Hon. John O'Conner when he was appointed to the bench, as it is now in the onslaught of the chief organ upon the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell. But this dislike to self-made men is not confined to their opponents, for they deposed from the leadership of the party one of the most prominent self-made men in the country.

THE Toronto Telegram says that "Hungerford, where the small-pox has been committing such ravages, is a thriving post village in Hastings County on the River Moira, twenty-five miles from Belleville." We were under the impression that Hungerford was a township in Hastings County. But perhaps our Toronto contemporary intended to refer to Tweed and used instead the name of the township in which the village is situated, or had some lingering remembrance of the old name of Hungerford Mills. But we understood that it was in the little village of Stoco, several miles from Tweed, that the disease was most prevalent. We noticed, too, that the Globe referred, in the same connection, to the township of Roslin, which was evidently a mistake.

THE news received by telegraph from Egypt if it cannot always be relied upon, has at least the value of variety. First we are told that Gen. Gordon has been killed, and, following this, reports come of his doings at Khartoum. Then, to give variety to the news, we are informed that the Mahdi has expired, and soon after we are informed of renewed activity among the rebels, and of active measures by the (supposed to be) dead False Prophet. But even that is not enough, and one despatch informs us that the Mahdi attempted to lead his followers across the Nile and that 3,000 were drowned, while at the same time the information is given that his followers are leaving him because he will do nothing. On the same day another despatch says that daily attacks are made upon Khartoum! People may complain a trifle of the unreliability of the despatches, but they cannot grumble for lack of variety, unless they claim that these contradictory reports are becoming monotonous.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

Return of the Premier to Ottawa—An Enthusiastic Reception.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—Sir John Macdonald arrived here by the Canada Atlantic Railway midday train. A great crowd of Conservatives met him at the station, and when he appeared cheered him heartily. Mr. D. O'Connor, President of the Conservative Club, read an address of welcome, to which Sir John made a felicitous reply. A procession was then formed, headed by St. Anne's band, and escorted the Premier to his residence. Crowds at several parts of the city on the route cheered him. Carleton County Council adjourned to join in the welcome.

THE KINGSTON MAYORALTY.

Dr. Stewart Elected, but the City Clerk Refuses to Swear Him In.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 9.—Yesterday Dr. John Stewart was elected Mayor. Whether the proceeding was regular or not is a question. After the death of Mayor McCammon the Council appointed an attorney, not desiring to hold an election until the regular time in January. Dr. Stewart claimed this as illegal, and looking up the statutes of Ontario found that if the clerk did not proceed to call for a new election, or refused to do so when requested, the ratepayers could do it themselves. Yesterday the electors were called, together, James Nesbitt, market lessee, was placed in the chair, and Dr. Stewart declared elected Mayor at the close of an hour. At the conclusion of the meeting the doctor went to the City Clerk and requested him to swear him in as Mayor of the city, but the clerk refused, saying that he would not swear in a man that was not Mayor-elect. "Very well," replied the doctor, "I order you to summon the Aldermen to meet me to-night in the Council Chamber. I'll be there." He then left the office. There is fun ahead.

A Touching Reconciliation.

A pathetic story of the reconciliation of a man nd wife after an estrangement of many years was made public at Albany to-day. The union of the couple occured over the body of their son, to whose funeral the father had been summoned without the wife's knowledge. Andrew Entrekin, of this city, was called to Albany through a telegram informing him of the death of his son, who had been killed by a railway train, and hastened to that city. Although aware that his wife, from whom he had long been separated, was living in Albany, he had made no enquiry about her. They resided in New York when the separation, growing out of jealousy on his part and supposed infidelity on the part of his wife, took place, the mother taking the son and the father the daughter. This was about twenty years ago, and during that period they never met, although Mrs. Entrekin received regular remittances from her husband, but never accompanied by a line. After gazing at the pallid face of the corpse the father kissed the lips, and bending down, gave way to grief he could not repress. Mrs. Entrekin stood supported by her friends, crying hysterically, and after kissing the dead boy, sobbed aloud. As she raised her head her eyes met those of her husband. The mourners withdrew and the undertaker closed the door quietly. Instantly the wife rushed into her husband's arms; he met her advance in the same spirit and a reconciliation followed. Mrs. Entrekin accompanied her husband to this city after the funeral last evening.—Exchange.

THE BARNARDO HOME.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In the name of truth and justice, and for the sake of a dead mother and her little orphan children, I ask you to publish the following communication.

Up to within the last two months Mrs. Donnelly lived in a tenement house on Water street, near the George Street Methodist Church. She had been living with her four little children, two boys and two girls—the oldest, a boy about nine years old, and the youngest, a bright, affectionate little girl about two years old. The mother is the daughter of the late Mr. Lee, is a Canadian born and has numerous relations in and around Peterborough, and everybody says that she was a good exemplary woman and mother.

About nine months ago one of the police of the town told me of the poverty and destitution of Mrs. Donnelly, and said that she and her little children were literally freezing and starving. She was also consumptive and in very low health, but she worked as long as she could, trying by means of her needle to eke out a scanty existence. This is how I became connected with her. I at once instructed a person to call and see her, and her condition was worse than described. From that time until near her death, which took place at her sister's house about two months ago, she wanted for nothing, and a physician regularly attended her. And very grateful was she for the assistance rendered her. Well, she died and was buried. But shortly before this she requested that her eldest little girl, of about seven years, should be given to an acquaintance, a wealthy, good man, by name of Mr. Linster, a farmer in the Township of Smith. A promise was given her that this should be done, and Mrs. Linster said she would take the little girl and bring her up carefully as one of her own children. And a good home the poor little thing would have had if she could have got there. As soon as the mother died the children were hurried off to the Barnardo Home, and Mr. and Mrs. Linster were told to apply there. They did apply there for the little girl, but some delay was always placed in the way, until at length they became discouraged, and said they would go there no more. The gentleman manager of the home told them that they must produce a certificate from parties that he knew that they were suitable persons to train the child. As soon as I was informed of this I immediately got a certificate signed by several of the leading public men of the town in favour of Mr. Linster, and recommending that the children should be given to him, and I myself took this certificate to the Home, and the manager afterwards told me that Mr. Linster should have the child, and that she would be kept at the Home until I could send him word, and to call for her. Accordingly I sent word to this effect, and in the course of a week Mrs. Linster came in and went to the Home for the child. But what a change! Miss Sanderson, who also has charge of the Home, met her at the door, and, as Mrs. Linster says, gave her a great deal of abuse for daring to call and it appears she also abused me for daring, so she termed it, to give Mrs. Linster a short note telling who she was, and saying that she had called for the little girl, expecting, of course, that now there would be no more excuses and delays. But what was Mrs. Linster's astonishment when she was told by this Miss Sanderson that she could not have the child, and that it had been sent off to some person away down back of Ottawa. I must not forget to mention here that this little two year old girl was given, shortly after she was sent to the Home, to some person in the country near Orillia. Whether the youngest boy is now in the Home, I know not, but I expect he is gone too. The eldest boy, thank goodness, was never there. I have been thus particular in my statement in order that you, and the public through you, may understand all these facts, in order to a better appreciation of the case, and so that you may have some idea of the paternal care which the officials of this so-called Home bestow upon some of those who happen to come under their control. I know that this little girl wanted to go with Mrs. Linster, and she told the officials of the Home that she did; and her mother wanted her to go also. And I can well realize how the poor little thing must have felt when she was told she had to be sent away to a stranger in a far off part of the Province. And I wonder if he was required to produce a certificate of character with as much solemnity as was required of Mr. and Mrs. Linster. I doubt it. I wonder, when they shipped away, as I am informed they did, some eight or ten children from the Home, away to a distant part of the Province, to the west, by some woman who was going in that direction, some to one point and some to another, if they were so very particular as to require the strictest certificates as to the character of those into whose hands these children might go; I doubt it. I wonder if, when they sent three or four others of the children, all alone, by railway, to other parts of the country, they were as particular; I doubt it. And I wonder, when they gave one of these little girls to a family in town, to support and clothe and bring up, who are hardly able to support themselves, if they were as particular; I doubt it. And when the attention of the manager was called to this particular case, as one requiring immediate investigation, and he was referred to a leading citizen for full information upon this point, why did he not make such inquiry. And I have known of another instance of a similar character, where word was sent to another person, like the last, to come and take away one of the children, if they were as particular as they were with Mrs. Linster. I doubt it. The people of the town have been appealed to for their liberal support of this Home, and some have responded to the call, and others are expected to do the same. Before doing so, however, I would like to tell them to think of the poor of our own town, and remember that charity begins at home. While Mrs. Donnelly and her little children were starving, some of our citizens were liberally giving to this Home and neglecting our own poor, and giving, I suppose, because they thought their names would be published to show how charitable they were, whereas, had they fed their own poor, their names might never have been known. But this is not charity. In all conscience, let everybody live, but always remember that charity begins at home. Pity the poor, but God help the destitute orphans who are thrown upon the care of a cold world; who have no mother to comfort them, and whose cries are never heard. Miss Sanderson, in her womanly heart, ought to have felt some sympathy for those little orphans, and should have been only too happy to have secured this little girl such a good home. She knows what a good friend Mrs. Linster was to a family in their time of need. For the present I have done, but I may recur to the subject again.

P. S.—Since writing the above I am informed that the little boy has been sent away also.

Crystabel's Chestnut Cry.

Crystabel Pendennis, with hot alkaline tears on her damascus cheeks, rushed into her mother's arms and frantically embraced the mantel, and called for a poultice of tea leaves for her aching and wounded orbs. A red sunset glinted on the western fog, and deep dark tar-flat-like shadow spread across the three-ply Brussels. Then she tore the chestnut from her pocket—the chestnut which since early childhood she had carried to prevent rheumatism—and threw it into the rosy rubicund grate, and lifted the red-and-yell w chamois-and-flannel waistcoat from her dimpled shoulders, and prepared to die of consumption. In vain her mother appealed to her in the name of bric-a-brac to reveal her sorrow. But at last she dried her Oolong tears and said: "My sister the beautiful but dreadful Irene, has fled with the coachman." "But why do you weep, Crystabel?" "Because, mamma, I was engaged to fly with him myself, only she stole my stockings and I couldn't get hers on."—San Francisco Post

Following Dominie Downs' Wife.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The third elopement within a week from Suffolk county, Long island, took place yesterday. The wife of Ephraim Arch, a wealthy farmer and earnest churchgoer of Quoque, ran away with a negro. Yesterday morning when Arch returned from service he found a card on which his wife had written that she heard of Dominie Downs wife's elopement, and she saw no reason why she should not elope with the man she loved.

TERRIBLE MINE EXPLOSION.

A Pennsylvania Mine Shakes the Earth by Accumulated Gases.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Dec. 8.—A terrible explosion occurred in the Henry Clay shaft, two miles from Shamokin, this afternoon while 200 men and boys were at work in the mine. Those who escaped the fatal damp made their way out through the manways. They told a story of a fearful explosion which occurred in the new slope which shook the entire mine from end to end. Of those who still remained in the mine and who worked in the vicinity of the explosion were Richard Tuckett, Jonathan Fox, Peter Kohlman, Henry Kobel, Joel Dusman, Thos. Williams, and a Polish miner whos name is unknown. Coal and iron experts promptly arrrived, and an examination of the mine was made, when it was found to be blocked with gas, which decided the fate of those inside. Many plans were suggested, and every means employed to drive out the poisonous gases. At five o'clock the rescuing party entered the mine, and near the bottom of the slope found the body of Henry Kobel, which was brought to the surface. It was horribly burned and disfigured, and almost beyond recognition. There was considerable risk in recovering the body, and some time elapsed before a second attempt was made. A crowd of five or six hundred persons gathered, among them the families of the imprisoned men. Whatever hopes they entertained for their friends was crushed out by the ghastly sight of Kobel's body. Two subsequent attempts were made to enter the mine, but the rescuers narrowly escaped suffocation, and were forced to return. The indications are that the unfortunates cannot be reached to-night. Uneasiness prevails among the superintendents that fire may break out owing to the great heat inside. Strict watch is kept and preparations are made to subdue the fire should it occur. It is believed that it was caused by the tapping of a large quantity of gas which had accumulated in one of the breaks which the men were working. The Henry Clay slope is owned and operated by Langdon & Co., of Elmira and Buffalo. The explosion is described as the severest ever experienced in the Northumberland region.

"No Physic, Sir, in Mine!"

A good story comes from a boys' boarding-school in Jersey. The diet was monotonous and constipating, and the learned Principal decided to introduce some old-style physic in the apple-sauce, and wait the happy results. One bright lad, the smartest in school, discovered the secret mine in his sauce, and pushing back his plate, shouted to the pedagogue, "No physic, sir, in mine. My dad told me to use nothin' but Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and they are doing their duty like a charm!" They are anti-bilious and purely vegetable.

THE WORK THE CANADIAN BOYS ARE DOING IN EGYPT.

The Curative Qualities of the Nile Water —A Native Spy Shot—The Sport of Riding Camels—Dangers of the Desert

(Special Correspondence of the Review.)

WADY HALFA, Nov. 6, 1884.

DEAR REVIEW,—I am giving you quite a shower of letters from this place, which is not Wady Halfa but Khor Mousa camp, forgetting all the time that what helps to kill my time and keep me from sulking, may be boring you to death, and trespassing on your splendid sheet, which might be filled with far more entertaining matter than my crude outpourings. However, I do not think it probable that the offence will be repeated in a hurry. Wady Halfa is seven miles below this, and our post-office being there I have been in the habit of heading my letters so, though all the time we have been camped here.

On the 3rd, at 4 p.m., more boats came up, and we made one trip that evening. We struck a new channel and found plenty of water and—plenty of work also. We had to climb cliffs thirty or forty feet high, carrying our tow rope, and slippery and dangerous indeed was our path. There was hardly as much footing as a long clawed cat would require, and so worried and so wearied were we that we became thoroughly convinced of the old adage that "The longest way round is the shortest way home," and have determined to keep our old channel until the water gets so low we cannot use it.

Nov. 4.—We make two trips by noon. I got badly sunburned yesterday while washing on the bank of the river with my shirt off. I passed a sleepless night with pain, and to-day feel as if I had been toasted before a hot fire. The boys laugh at my misery, and console me occasionally by shouting out, "Keep your shirt on, Johnny; don't get excited," &c.

It is reported to-day that we will not have to take all the boats up, but are to go ahead on the eighth to more important work, and that our places are to be filled by Kroomen from the west coast of Africa, who are on their way up the Nile for this place.

On the 5th 20 more boats came up and we disposed of them quickly.

Coming back on our last trip I undertook to mount a dromedary in a train going our way. The ugly beast did not seem inclined to let me. He reached out one of his long legs and gave me a kick in the stomach that lifted me full a yard. For about a minute I thought my bread basket was ruined, but soon recovering, I mounted a more peaceable pack camel. The train then started on the trot, and we lads on the rack.

Oh, voyageurs! your quite at home amid the whirl of waters,
But all your confidence is gone while on the camel trotters;
With hands and feet you try to cling unto the fleshy mountain,
And wished to heaven you'd walked and never tried to mount them.
If those at home could only see my present situation,
Would they survive the laughing fit caused by my agitation?
A boat, a boat forever, boys, amid the swirling waters,
And keep me now and evermore from humped backed camel trotters.

We will not be sorry to go ahead, our life here is getting so very monotonous, we wish for a change even if we had to work harder. Our whole trip so far has been a huge picnic, barring the goodies, and the sweet faces of our dear Canadian girls.

The Sussex Regiment had a sligh skirmish with the rebels a few miles above Dongola the other day, but it did not amount to much.

Not long before we reached here a strange native was employed along with others taking up the boats. Something peculiar in his manner drew the attention of one of the officers, who, watching for a few days, found him to be a spy in the employ of the Mahdi. He was shot at once. On his person were found letters describing our movements and those of the army, so they made short work of him. I forget now whether they shot him first and tried him afterwards, or tried him first and shot him afterwards, but it is of no moment—it amounts to the same thing in the end.

Col. Kennedy borrowed the home papers from me and requested me to loan them to him as I received them. He was interested in my scribbling and would like to see more of it. He is a great favorite with all the men; they have always a good word for him. He has well earned it by his kindness to all and his great attention to and care for all our little wants.

Yesterday morning one of the Stafford regiments, in heavy marching order, passed our camp. The evening before part of the camel corps and a troop of native cavalry passed by.

It must be terrible work for the infantry to march through the deep yielding sand encumbered with all their traps and the hot sun—and it is hot—scorching the life out of them, it takes the grumble out of me when I think of what they may have to encounter. We may have our little troubles, but what can they be compared to theirs. We have the Nile—plenty of water at any rate—and even if we run entirely out of provisions, fish and crocodiles are plenty.

But when I think that there is a possibility of their supplies being cut off—or even delayed—say for a couple of days, in the lone barren desert, not a drop of water mayhap to assuage their fearful thirst, I tell you it makes me shiver as if I had the ague.

A few of the men are laid up with ailments, but we have a cure all in the muddy Nile. The doctor's Sergeant, who is a Frenchman, uses this formula for all complaints:—

If you have dysentery, drink ze Nile water; if you are troubled with indigestion, drink ze Nile water; if you bruise yourself, wash wid ze Nile water; if you cut yourself, bathe de cut plenty in de Nile water; if you feel sick, you eat too much; if you can't eat, you have eat too much; if you eat too much it will make you sick; if I give you too much medicine, (of which, Heaven help us! there is no danger, as it is not here to give) it will make you sick, &c.

It's well the Sergeant has such a well supplied dispensary and that the one liquid it contains is such a panacea for every disorder—for he doesn't seem to have anything else. And I can assure you I am heartily glad to see such good results from this scientific formula. Our voyageurs seldom keep sick over a day. Their blooming cheeks and good appetites (tough though the food may be) testify to the wisdom of the treatment.

The barbers of Peterborough had better pay the closest attention to their business or Sidney Blade will take all their trade away on his return. With the greatest possible tenderness he lays his customer out on a corn straw mat, deftly slips a kit bag under his head, lathers him gently with bar soap and Nile water, keeps the flies away by the swift swing of his razor, and gives the weary voyageur a half hour's quiet sleep, and when the noble savage—boatman, I mean—awakes, feels for the missing stubble, looks into a three piastre glass (borrowed for the occasion from grandpa's tent) he can hardly recognise his mother's fair haired boy.

Playing poker for lovely agates, three stone ante, fills in the time not occupied in making belts and tobacco pouches out of our useless shoe-packs.

I must add one more of the benefits to be derived from the Nile water, and some of the weak backed boys around town have made a mistake in not coming with us. The sergeant says if your back is weak "Bathe in ze Nile water," and from the number of his cures I am sure the weak ones at home have missed it sadly.

I will now close for a time, as we soon leave here. You are not likely to hear from me at this place again, in fact I would not have troubled you now but writing seems to bring me near home somehow, and I may not get a chance again for some time.

Judging from the tone of the boys' conversation, home is ever present in their thoughts. Those who may have deemed them thoughtless or careless at home would not do so now if they could hear the quiver in the voice and see their eyes soften when thinking and speaking of the far distant home and its loved ones.

Good-bye, from Khor Mousa Camp.

J. A. SHERLOCK.

ENNISMORE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEATHER NOTES.—November now gone has been a fine month of almost uniform temperature, the highest at sun rise only being 42° on the morning of the 12th, and the lowest on the mornings of the 18th and 19th. Although the weather was fine throughout there has been fully up to the average of both snow and rain. Snow fell on thirteen days, although some only slightly, to the depth of 10 inches, the corresponding month of 1883 having 11 inches. On the 5th and 6th, with a cold wind, we had some drifting. A considerable amount of work was done during the short time our sleighing lasted. Rain fell on ten days to the depth of 2 and 07-100 inches, the heaviest storm being on the 5th, falling 1 and 05-100 inches, but it must be borne in mind that although we had 13 days of snow and 10 of rain we actually had not that 23 days of downfall, because often both rain and snow fell on the same day, and must be counted one for snow and one for rain, so it was only one day. The temperature of the month being 32° we ought to be thankful for one of the finest Novembers ever seen in Canada.

The Barrister and the Witness.

There is a point beyond which human forbearance cannot go, and the most even of tempters will become roused at times.

At an assize held during the past year both judge and counsel had a deal of trouble to make the timid witnesses upon a trial speak sufficiently loud to be heard by the jury, and it is possible that the temper of the council may thereby have been turned from the even tenor of its way.

After this gentlemen had gone through the various stages of bar pleading, and had threatened, and even bullied witnesses, there was called into the box an ostler, who seemed to be simplicity personified.

"Now, sir," said the counsel, in a tone that would at any other time be denounced as vulgulary loud, "I hope we shall have no difficulty in making you speak out."

"I hope not, zur," was shouted, or rather bellowed, out by the witness, in tones which almost shook the building, and would certainly have alarmed any timid or nervous lady.

"How dare you speak in that way, sir?" said the council.

"Please, zur, I can't speak any louder," said the astonished witness, attempting to speak louder than before, evidently thinking the fault to be in his speaking too softly.

"Pray, have you been drinking this morning?" shouted the counsel, who had now thoroughly lost the last remnant of his temper.

"Yes, zur," was the reply.

"And what have you been drinking, sir?"

"Corfee, zur."

"And what did you have in your coffee, sir?" demanded the exasperated council.

"A spune, zur!" innocently bawled the witness in the highest key, amidst the roars of the whole court—except the now thoroughly wild council, who flung down his brief in disgust.—Exchange.

A Model Mill.

The Ottawa Sun of a recent date says:—The model mill of Canada, built on the Nation river for Messrs. Flatt & Bradley, timber merchants of Hamilton, is the source of attraction for the lumbermen of Quebec, as well as all over the Province of Ontario. It was visited yesterday by two prominent lumbermen of Montreal, and after inspecting the machinery, anxious to know her capacity, they requested Mr. Flatt, the senior partner of the firm, who happened to be there, to try her for one hour, which he did, and the result of which, to their astonishment, was equivalent to one hundred and ten thousand per day, which, they said, far surpassed any previous record for a single circular mill. This enterprising firm are to be highly complimented upon having thus reached the height of their ambition in this respect.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

A Truthful Cat Story.

"One night last summer, after midnight, when all the family were asleep, Taffy ran up from the door of one bedroom to another crying and mewing violently; evidently something was the matter. My mother opened her door and I opened mine to wonder what was wrong. As soon as the cat saw us she ran a few steps forward and then back, as if urging us to follow her. She guided us first down the stairs, and then through the kitchen to the door at the head of the stairs leading to the cellar. Upon our opening it we discovered to our great surprise that the outside cellar door, at the foot of the steps, had been carelessly left wide open by the servants, thus allowing free ingress to any evil disposed person who chose to avail himself of it. I closed the door and locked it, whereupon Taffy quietly returned to her bed and slept peacefully the rest of the night."—Exchange.

Keep Out the Cold.

Cracks in floors, around the mould board, or other parts of a room, may be neatly and permanently filled by thoroughly soaking newspapers in paste made of one pound of flour, three quarts of water, and a tablespoonful of alum, thoroughly boiled and mixed. The mixture will be about as thick as putty, and may be forced into the cracks with a case knife. It will harden like papier-mache.

Riotious Italians.

Italian navvies employed in constructing the Port Rowan and Lake Shore railway, having been disappointed in receiving their pay from the contractor, and being suspicious of an attempt to defraud them, have assumed such a menacing attitude that a draft from the 9th Battalion proceeded to Port Rowan to protect the lives and property of the citizens.

HOW TO TELL GENUINE FLORIDA WATER.—The true Florida Water always comes with a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and in the paper of this pamphlet are the "Lanman & Kemp, New York," water-marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters. Hold a leaf up to the light, and if genuine, you will see the above words. Do not buy if the words are not there, because it is not the real article. The water-mark letters may be very pale, but by looking closely against the light, you cannot fail to see them.

IN the United States Senate on Monday the bill to grant a pension to General Grant was withdrawn in deference to Grant's wishes, he having written to Senator Mitchell stating that under no circumstances could he consent to accept a pension.

Shaker Blood Syrup

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like Shaker Blood Syrup. It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take my word. Ask your neighbour, who has taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

Shaker Syrup Company: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I have heard of your Blood Syrup, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indegestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,
O. F. TWICHELL,
Gorham, N.H.

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

A Correction.

It was M. B. Earl who read "The Two Armies" and "Mortality" at the entertainment given in Ashburnham on Monday evening.

More Electric Light.

The petition for lighting Hunter street, from George to Aylmer, by three electric lights, to be paid for by local tax, has been sufficiently signed, and the company has already commenced operations to carry the scheme into effect at once.

Councillors.

The Building Committee meet on Thursday evening to take into consideration the proposed amendments to the Building or Fire By law. It is to be hoped that something tangible will be done. The Fire, Water and Gas Committee meet on the same evening.

The Rev. Dr. Rice's Illness.

The Toronto Mail says the Rev. Dr. Rice, senior general superintendent of the Methodist Church, who has been ill for some time back, has become much worse. On Tuesday he was very low all day, and his physicians are alarmed at his condition.

Town Council Meeting.

A special meeting of the Town Council will be held on Thursday evening to arrange about another polling place for the Third Ward at the approaching municipal elections, as the owner of the premises fixed by by-law refuses to let his building for the desired purpose.

Without Reserve.

Again we call the attention of our readers to the extensive sale of household furniture which will be held at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Cluxton, on Stewart street, to-morrow. All the beautiful and costly furniture will be sold out positively without reserve. This will be a rare opportunity for house keepers and others desiring to secure good furniture at prices to suit themselves.

Entertainment.

An entertainment will be held at the opening of St. Paul's Sabbath school rooms on Wednesday, 17th, at 8 o'clock. The programme will consist of music and recitations. In the afternoon, from 3 o'clock, there will be a sale of fancy and useful articles, which will continue during the evening. Refreshments both afternoon and evening. Admission, afternoon, 10 cents; evening, 15.

The Cairo "Times."

A member of the Canadian contingent has sent to a friend a copy of the Cairo Times of Egypt. It is a four-page daily paper, with five columns on each page. A page and two thirds is printed in English, one-third of a page in French, one page in Egyptian characters and the fourth page is devoted to advertisements. The display of telegraphic news is meagre. In fact, it could scarcely be called "newsy," although it publishes a short letter from a correspondent who was had travelled within a six days' journey of Khartoum.

The Credit System.

The Monetary Times says:—"It is refreshing to find a man with a 'stiff upper lip' on the matter of terms of credit. We find the following upon a neat card bearing the signature of J. W. Flavelle, Peterborough:—

"CREDIT.—Provisions and seeds of all kinds ought always to be net cash; custom, however, of years' standing has established a credit of thirty days. Lately I find a growing disposition on the part of the purchasing public to lengthen this period, and the request to have prompt payment is received with much disfavor. That no misunderstanding may occur, I ask my customers to note that all accounts must be paid up on the first of every month, unless otherwise specially arranged for, credit will only be granted upon these terms. A compliance with this will be of as much advantage to the purchaser as myself, as a month's account is much easier met than three months."

The Missing Link Again.

On Tuesday, at about noon, a portion of the embankment forming the approach to the eastern end of the bridge on the Missing Link about five miles from town, known as Tully's bridge, slid out of position. The embankment is about sixty feet high and is formed of earth taken from the cuts. Men were at work near the bridge and soon after they returned to work after dinner they noticed that a portion of the embankment had given way, and that along the track for a distance of about fifty feet the earth had slid from under the ends of the ties. As it was a train might have been taken over it by running slowly, but the afternoon trains and the train going to Toronto this morning were sent around by Millbrook. The work of repairing the damage was commenced at once, and it was completed in time for the noon train from Toronto to come over it to-day.

Just Fancy! 80c. for a $1 Undershirt, at Andrew McNeil's.

WEST RIDING AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Agreement with Mr. Morrow Approved—No Material to be Laid on the Grounds until After the Annual Meeting.

A meeting of the Directors of the above Society was held last Saturday, there being present,—James Campbell, Esq., President, and Messrs. Riddell, Walton, Rutherford, Garbutt, McClelland, Bell, Collins, Davidson, Young and Elliott.

The Secretary read the agreement with Mr. Morrow, which had been prepared in accordance with the instructions given at the last meeting.

Moved by Mr. McCLELLAND, seconded by Mr. WALTON,—That the draft of lease submitted be approved, and that the President and Secretary be and are hereby instructed to execute the same on behalf of this Society, and have the same registered.

Moved in amendment by Mr. BELL, seconded by Mr. YOUNG,—That the whole matter be deferred until after the annual meeting in January next.

The amendment was lost, Messrs. Bell, Young and Elliott alone voting for it, and the original motion was carried on the same division.

Moved by Mr. COLLINS, seconded by Mr. McCLELLAND,—That the offer of the Peterborough Driving Park Association be embodied in a proper and legal agreement as soon as possible. —Carried.

Moved by Mr. BELL, seconded by Mr. YOUNG, —That no material be laid on the ground until after the next annual meeting.—Carried.

The directors then adjourned.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate variable winds, fair weather, with light falls of snow in the northern portion to-night; not much change in temperature.

Number Four.

In mentioning the leading features in the Number 4 Ward department at the bazaar we ommitted to mention the gifts of Mrs. J. E. McIntyre, a handsome ebony table and a wall bracket, valued at $18, and also a chest of tea by Mr. H. Rush and a large box of soap and other articles in the grocery line by Messrs. W. J. Morrow & Co.

The "Canada Presbyterian."

Mr. J. M. Goodwillie is at present in town in the interest of the Canada Presbyterian, and will call upon subscribers and non-subscribers during the week. The Presbyterian has grown to be an able exponent of the Presbyterian body and the editor and publisher are both to be congratulated for sending so valuable a weekly paper into the homes of so many families in Canada. We bespeak for Mr. Goodwillie an encouraging reception from all he calls upon.

A Serious Fall.

At about two o'clock this afternoon Mrs. Rubidge, widow of the late Mr. Charles Rubidge, and mother of Mr. George Rubidge, met with a severe accident at her residence on Rubidge street. By some means while she was commencing to descend the staircase she became overbalanced and fell forward down the stairs from the top to the bottom. She was very severely bruised, but fortunately no bones were broken. Dr. King attended. Mrs. Rubidge was slightly better at four o'clock.

Engine vs. Larry.

At shortly after two o'clock on Tuesday afternoon a construction train was moving northward on the Lakefield branch of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway. At the Nassau Mills some labourers were unloading iron rails from a larry which stood on the track. All the rails but seven had been taken of when the construction train came along. Before a stop could be made the engine of the train had struck the larry and the rails which were on it were, by the force of the blow, at once brought in contact with the engine. The larry was shattered, and the rails were sticking up vertically in front of the train. The movement of the train had not ceased and the engine in running over them was staved in in several places. The track was torn up for a distance of ten yards, the engine was disabled and thrown from the track, the iron rails were turned and twisted, and the regular train in passing was obliged to take to the siding. The engine, No. 625, was pulled into town, and this morning was sent to the work shops at Port Hope. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Chit Chat.

—Mild.

—Warm winter weather.

—More snow has come and gone.

—Will we have sleighing for Christmas?

—The ice on the Little Lake has disappeared.

—Nature has cheated the skaters out of their sport.

—There was a blank at the Police Court this morning.

—How will Mr. Calcutts "Greely" expedition turn out?

—The stores are beginning to put on their holiday attire.

—Large numbers of people visit the bazaar daily.

—Will the Whistle-Wing be again frozen in or will the gallant crew bring her safely to the locks?

—The temperance vote is forty-nine ahead in the No. 1 Ward bannerette.

—Who's going to win the $50 in gold?

—Don't fail to attend the important sale of household furniture at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Cluxton, on Stewart street, to-morrow.

The Well Dressed Man.

The golden rule in dress is to keep clear of extremes. The well dressed man never wears anything striking or peculiar, and his garments are always of the best material, one suit that costs $20 being preferable to two suits that cost $12 each—and the tailor's risk it will be observed is just the same in both cases. We are bound to add, however, that the gentleman who has but one suit instead of two cannot escape embarrassment when it comes to sending his trousers to the shop for the purpose of having the wrinkles pressed out of them. A man should always have the second suit of clothes. The proper cut for coat and vest is that which makes them fit snug around the waist and loose over the chest, as the polite citizen is thus admonished at every turn that he will not only look better, but also feel better, if he stands straight. There is a good deal in getting a perfect fitting pair of pants—in fact it is absolutely necessary in order that the coat and vest will look well. This is Christmas advice, and if you wish to test the genuineness of the argument pay a visit to Habiliment Hall, and get A. McNeil to make you a fashionable holiday suit.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

Murdered by Their Mother.

WHAT CHEER, Ia., Dec. 9.—At Thornburg Station yesterday Mrs. Wm. Schultz murdered her two children by cutting their throats with a razor, and then ended her own existence in the same manner. The eldest child was two years of age, the youngest six months. Their heads were almost severed from their bodies. The deed was committed while Schultz was out doing his morning chores. Mrs. Schultz and her husband lived together apparently very happily, and no cause is known for the act. It supposed she was temporarily insane.

HARPER'S BAZAR

ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S BAZAR is the only paper in the world that combines the choicest literature and the finest art illustrations with the latest fashions and methods of household adornment. Its weekly illustrations and descriptions of the newest Paris and New York styles, with its useful pattern sheet supplements and cut patterns, by enabling ladies to be their own dress-makers, save many times the cost of subscription. Its papers on cooking, the management of servants, and house keeping in its various details are eminently practical. Much attention is given to the interesting topic of social etiquette, and its illustrations of art needle-work are acknowledged to be unequalled. Its literary merits is of the highest excellence, and the unique character of its humurous pictures has won for it the name of the American Punch.

JUDICIAL SALE

OF VALUABLE

FLOURING MILL

AND

Mill Privileges.

BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER OF THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE, Chancery Division, made in the matter of Margaret Elizabeth Rogers and others, infants,

TENDERS WILL BE RECEIVED

till Three o'clock P. M., on THURSDAY, the 15th DAY OF JANUARY, 1885, for the purchase of the property situate in the Village of Ashburnham, and the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, Ontario, known as the OTONABEE MILLS PROPERTY, and owned by the late George Charles Rogers, and comprising the following buildings and privileges:

A Flouring Mill and Oatmeal Mill. The Flouring Mill is a stone building, 40x60 ft., four stories high, covered with iron. It is furnished with a system of stones and rolls and has all necessary machinery. Has a storage capacity of 15,000 bushels, and is fitted with elevators for receiving and discharging grain. Has a capacity of about 160 barrels per diem. The Oatmeal Mill is a stone and wooden building, 60x20 ft., three stories in height and furnished with proper machinery. Brick kiln for drying Oats adjoining. Capacity about 30 barrels per diem. The Mills are situate in the Village of Ashburnham, at foot of a raceway, about 1,000 ft. in length, by which water is brought from a point on the Otonabee River, where a dam across the river is constructed—nine feet head. Along this race are powers utilized in driving a Planing Mill, Carding Mill, and Furniture Factory, Agricultural Implement Factory and Saw Mill. The Saw Mill is furnished with proper machinery and has a capacity of about 20,000 feet per diem. The buildings, dams and other parts of the property are in fair order and condition. The land sold with the property comprises in all about 91 acres, affording piling ground for Saw Mill and for other purposes. A small storey and a half frame dwelling on the and, leased to tenant. There are three store-houses and two offices in connection with Flouring and Saw Mills. There is also a large Ice House, with storage capacity of about 12,000 blocks.

A switch from the Grand Junction Branch of the Midland Railway runs through the grounds to the mills. These mills are well situated for business and do a fair share of the local trade, and a large gristing business. The Flouring and Oatmeal Mills are now operated by the estate, and the business and good will will be transferred to the purchaser. Horses, Waggons, &c., and Office Furniture will be sold with the property.

Ashburnham adjoins the Town of Peterborough and is separated therefrom by the River Otonabee. The population of both places is from 9,000 to 10,000, and they are well supplied with railway facilties by the Grand Trunk and Canada Pacific Railways. Full particulars of the property to be sold, leases, diagrams, etc., of the property, can be had on application to John Burnham, Solicitor, Peterborough. Tenders must be addressed to Charles Alexander Weller, Master at Peterborough, and will be binding upon the person tendering for the period of two weeks after the 15th day of January next, within which time the party whose tender is accepted will receive notice thereof. No tender necessarily accepted.

TERMS:

Ten per cent. on acceptance of tender, and the balance within one month thereafter without interest. $20,000 may remain on mortgage at 6 per cent. if the purchaser desires. Other conditions to be the standing conditions of the said Court.

Dated 10th Dec'r., 1884.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1884.

POLICE COURT.

VAGRANCY.

THURSDAY, Dec. 11.—Daniel Burgess was charged by Constable Pidgeon with being a vagrant and with having no visible means of support. He acknowledged the charge and asked to be sent to an hospital to have cured a constitutional complaint. As the Magistrate had no power to send him to an hospital he was sent to the gaol for six months instead.

NORWOOD.

CONSERVATIVE MEETING.—A meeting of the Liberal-Conservatives of the Village of Norwood was held in that place on Tuesday evening the 9th inst. to appoint delegates to attend the convention and the reception to the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, in Toronto, on the 17th and 18th inst. Considering the short notice given convening the meeting, the attendance was good, all present being really anxious to do what they could to show their undiminished loyalty to, and their continued estimation of, their great chieftain. The meeting was an enthusiastic one, and all, too, felt proud of the honors conferred upon Sir John by Her Majesty, and unanimously agreed to have prepared and engrossed an appropriate address of congratulation to the honorable gentleman, upon his great political achievements during his forty years of public life, and his great success as a statesman and leader of the Conservative party of Canada. Below are the names of the gentlemen appointed at the meeting to attend the convention and reception of Sir John:—J. B. Pearce, President I. C. A., E. R.; Thos. Burke, Secretary I. C. A., E. R.; S. P. Ford, M.D.; W. J. Riseboro, Geo. Jones, Geo. A. Pettigrew, M. D.; John Harper, jr.; John Harper, sr.; Jos. Jerey, J. D. Ackerman, S. H. Brown, Robt. Scott, W. H. Umaker, John Vosburgh, John Powell, D. Mahoney, W. H. Breathen, Thos. Armstrong, Wm. Hutchinson, John P. Brown, W. H. Stephenson, R. M. Foster, Jas. N. Paget, Thos. Howson, Wm. Rodgers. A number of leading Conservatives from Asphodel and other Townships in the East Riding have signified their intention of being present at Toronto on the 7th of December.

SHIPPED TO MONTREAL.—Last week two cargoes of sheep were shipped from here, by the Ontario & Quebec Railway, for the Montreal market. The cattle and sheep trade is booming here, and large lots of both have lately been sent over the O. & Q. for Montreal. Good prices in all cases have been obtained by the shippers.

NORWOOD MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The annual report of the Mechanics' Institute of our village for the year 1884, just forwarded by the Education Department, shows that the receipts during the year have been $197.81, and the expenditure for books, periodicals, etc, $156.53, leaving a balance in the hands of the treasurer of $41.18. The stock and assets amount to $1,111.18. The total number of books in the library being 1,063. The membership is about 50. The Graphic, London Illustrated News and Grip are weekly received at the reading room. A number of new books have recently been added to the library, which now comprises a large variety of first-class works, and which certainly deserves a greater patronage from the reading public than it now receives.

PRESBYTERIAN LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—The Literary Association of the Presbyterian Church here, met on Tuesday evening last. The number present was largely in excess of any of this season's meetings, the commodious and cheery school room of the church being well filled. The Association has resolved to have an essay on and readings from some one of the British and Irish poets at each of its meetings of this winter. On Tuesday evening the poet read was Tennyson. Mr. Davidson, M.A., President of the Association, occupied the chair. The Minister of the church read an essay on the poet's life and writings. The reflections read shewed good taste, while the reading was on the whole good. Miss Raddon, Miss Errett, of Peterborough, and Mr. James Meikle, sang each in her and his own inimitable manner some of the poet's songs. We know nothing better adapted to beget a good literary taste among the young and make good readers than an association of this kind. We are indeed much pleased to see it so successful in its aim, and so liberally patronized by the public.—Register.

Broke through the Ice.

ALMONTE, Dec. 11.—To-day, while one of our most prominent young men, Charles Shearn, jr., was attempting to cross the river on the ice he broke through, and before assistance reached him became chilled and went down. The body was recovered in a few moments, but life was extinct.

Judge Lynch at Work.

MARYSVILLE, Mo., Dec. 9.—Chas. Stevens, a desperado known as "Omaha Charley," who killed Hubert Kramer on the 3rd inst., was this morning taken from the gaol by a mob of sixty masked men, who went to the gaol at two o'clock this morning, called up the sheriff and demanded that he deliver Stevens to them. The sheriff refused, and told the crowd he would fight to the last in defence of his prisoner. The mob then rushed for the door, and notwithstanding that the sheriff repeatedly fired into the crowd they forced an entrance, overpowered the sheriff, seized the murderer, and marched him under cover of a score of cocked revolvers to a railroad bridge, half a mile away, and hanged him. One of the mob was dangerously wounded by the sheriff.

Mangled by a Train.

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 10.—Samuel Warwick, a farmer living near Springfield, was walking on the Canada Southern track, near Springfield, when he came to a culvert. Seeing an express train coming he tried to cross the culvert, but when about half way over he slipped and fell between the ties, and before he could extricate himself the train struck him. His leg was mangled from below the knee to the thigh, and his body badly bruised. The engineer blew the whistle and reversed the engine, but could not stop in time. The injured man was taken to the station and medical assistance obtained. The leg was amputated, but Warwick did not rally, and died soon afterwards. The company are in no way to blame.

Narrow Escape from a Fearful Death.

One of the most remarkable escapes from a horrible death we have had occasion to chronicle for some time, occurred on Tuesday to a man named Rogers, living in the vicinity of the back pond, a short distance from town. He was assisting at a threshing and had been deputed to work on a scaffold directly over the machine. While thus engaged he missed his footing, and in falling landed in the mouth of the cylinder into which the straw is fed. It happened that scarcely two seconds before the machine had been stopped to oil the bearings, and when Rogers fell the cylinder had scarcely ceased revolving. By the fall one of his arms was broken, but had it occurred an instant sooner the victim would have been literally ground to pieces. Dr. Sparham was sent for and set the injured arm.—Brockville Recorder.

Horses Drowned by Thieves.

WINDSOR, Dec. 9.—On Saturday night two horses were stolen from the stables of Daniel Marantette and Daniel Field, on the Grand Marais road, in Sandwich West. The horses were finally traced to the river near the ice-house, Sandwich. It is supposed that the thieves had a boat here and intended to take the horses across the river. A tremendous gale was blowing on Saturday, and the river was unusually rough. It is evident that the parties did not succeed in getting the animals across owing to this fact, for yesterday both animals were found drowned and washed up on the beach near the breakwater at the Sandwich fish hatchery, about a mile below the village. Both the horses' heads were tied together with halters which belonged to the stables from which the animals were taken. They also had bridles on which belonged to the stables. The animals were valued at $300.

Scotch Adventurers.

The Russians and Turks in the war of 1739 having diverted themselves long enough in the contest, agreed to treat for a peace. The commissioners for this purpose were Marshal Grand Keith, on the part of Russia, and the Grand Vizier, on that of the Turks. These two personages met, and carried on their negotiations by means of interpreters. When all was concluded they rose to separate, the marshal made his bow with his hat in his hand, and the vizier his salaam with his turban on his head. But when these ceremonies of leave taking were over, the Vizier turned suddenly, and coming up to Marshal Keith, took him cordially by the hand, and in the broadest Scotch dialect declared warmly that it made him "unco happy to meet a countryman in his exalted station." Keith stared in astonishment, eager for an explanation of the mystery, when the Vizier added, "Diona be surprised, mon, I'm o' the same country wi' yourself. I mind weel seeing you and your brither, when boys, passing by to the school at Kirkcaldy; and my father, sir, was bellman of Kirkcaldy." What more extraordinary can be imagined than to behold in the plenipotentiaries of two mighty nations two foreign adventurers' natives of the same village!

LIBERAL CONSERVATVE CONVENTION.

It is now certain that the Banquet Hall, which by-the-bye is the largest hall that could be procured for the purpose, will not accommodate all who desire to attend the banquet in honour of Sir John Macdonald, on December 18th. As the Toronto representatives will give the preference to non-residents, tickets will not be sold to them (the Toronto men) before noon of the 15th December. Delegates who which to attend the banquet from here will therefore have to hand in their names not later than the afternoon of Saturday next, the 13th December, to Mr. G. W. Hatton, at his office. The tickets remaining undisposed of after the above date (the 15th December) will be sold to residents of Toronto and others, in the order of their application.

We wish also to remind delegates that if they desire to take advantage of the single fare for the return trip, they must apply to Mr. Hatton for certificates, which on presentation at the Grand Opera House will entitle them to tickets of admission to the Convention and return tickets on the railways.

RECIPROCITY.

Some of the Reform journals are attacking Sir John Macdonald because, in reply to interviewers in New York, he has expressed his opinion that in regard to reciprocity, it is for the United States to make the next advances. With their customary disregard for truth when they are dealing with the foremost statesman in Canada, these reform critics are misrepresenting this as an avowal that Sir John is opposed to reciprocity, and that the Conservatives will not grant it so long as they are in power. They well know that this is an absolute perversion of the truth. The reason why it is now the turn of the United States to make advances towards reciprocity, is not because the Conservative Administration of Canada is unwilling to do so, but because Canada has already, under Conservative guidance, adopted the principal of reciprocity, which only awaits the acceptance of the United States to be carried into operation. Our statute books now contain the provision that the repeal of the customs duties on Canadian produce by the United States is to be followed by a similar repeal of our duties on produce from the United States. Canada has consented to the remission of duties, which the acceptance of the United States would make reciprocal. Our protective tariff, far from being an obstacle to reciprocity, has promoted a desire for it among our neighbours.

On the other hand, the free trade Reformers have taken the very course best adapted to delay reciprocity. They have clamoured for the free admission of goods from the United States, whether this freedom was reciprocated or not. They have urged that the Reform party, if recalled to power, would abrogate or at least greatly diminish the duties on foreign goods. They have falsely asserted that the people of Canada were growing tired of the National Policy, and would soon reverse their decision in regard to it. Thus they have incessantly held out hopes to the people of the United States of obtaining free access to our markets without opening to us their markets in return. Thus the Reformers have as a party offered strong inducements to our neighbors south of the line to grant no reciprocity, since would soon obtain all they desired without making any concessions in return.

ALBERTA DISTRICT.

The following is an extract received by a resident of Peterborough from Calgary, N.W.T.:—

"It is a beautiful country round Calgary in the Bow River Valley. It is very hilly with swift and odd mountain streams; there is beautiful natural grades on which they raise very fine cattle ranches; the beef beats any meat I ever tasted. The cattle are left out on the hills all winter because the snow never lies deep on the ground, and is often swept clear away or melted by the warm Chinook wind from the Pacific, but they cannot raise wheat here on account of July frosts.

"Calgary is a lively, pretty and neat little town which will some day become a considerable city. There is plenty of good timber on the mountains which is floated down the Bow River.

"As I sit in the tent I enjoy a magnificent view of the Rocky Mountains. It is worth going a long way to see their immense blue masses capped with dazzling snow. Our work will lie principally among the foot hills of these grand old Rockies, to Fort Micheal and back to Calgary and so northeast to Edmonton.

Yours, &c.,
C. N. T."

Napoleon's Carriage.

The carriage in which the First Napoleon made his famous retreat from Moscow, and in which he, as Emperor, set out from Paris in the campaign which closed at Waterloo, is now preserved in London among the effects of the Duke of Wellington. It is a two-seated conveyance, and the top, or cover, is lined with thin sheet iron. There is also a front curtain of iron, which can be lowered at will. The wheels are large and heavy, and the steps at either side silver finished and of a curious design. The rear seat was the one used by Napoleon. Under the cushion of the seat he carried blankets and pillows. The back of the front seat opens, and at the right hand forms a small cupboard, in which were tin plates, knives, spoons, water can and a small fluid lamp. On the left is a long opening, extending forward nearly to the dashboard, and into which the Emperor of the first nation of Europe was wont to extend his feet and legs, in order that he might lie at full length. The blankets, pillows, spoons, knives and lamps that were used by the Emperor are still preserved.

WOULD NOT GIVE IT UP.

All that would be necessary to put an effectual stopper on the idea of imperial federation in Canada, would be the intimation that our people would have to surrender such measure of commercial freedom as they now enjoy and as is imbodied forth by the N.P.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.).

A WISE CONCLUSION.

After patiently following the controversy between the Hamilton Spectator and other Grit papers, in re the North-West, we have come to the sagacious conclusion that Dakota is a better place to stay away from than Manitoba at this season of the year.—Toronto World (Ind. Ref.).

PRACTICAL SANITATION.

That the public mind is rapidly advancing in its views of practical sanitation in Ontario, is learnt from the action taken by many local boards in intelligent attempts to deal with the difficult question of sewage disposal. Galt has discussed the question of passing a by-law introducing the earth closet system, under municipal direction. Brantford is pressing forward in the same direction. Hamilton is discussing the question of adopting intercepting tanks with upward filtration to clarify her sewage before pouring it into the bay; Waterloo manufacturers are purifying the output from their vats before turning it into the village creek to pollute it; London and all its suburbs seem determined to settle the question of the pollution of Carling's Creek and the Thames, while polluting the rivers by sawdust has aroused public opinion at Ottawa and Peterborough. Such are only a few of the more noticeable examples of the advance which public health work is making in the province. Regarding the notification of infectious diseases, and their isolation, there is much reason for gratification at the manner in which it is being carried out in a number of localities.—London Free Press.

LENGTHENED LIFE.

In the last thirty years the average of a man's life has improved 5 per cent. and a woman's 8 per cent. Out of every 1,000 males born at the present day 44 more will attain the age of 35 than used to be the case previous to 1871; and every 1,000 persons born since 1870 will live 2.7 years longer than before. This is due to civilization, and especially to improved sanitary methods, through the establishment of such efficient organizations as our Boards of Health, which are adding an average of nearly ten years to human life in every country.—Barrie Northern Advance.

THE YANKEES JEALOUS.

If the report of a local geographical society is to be relied on, the Canadians have within a distance of three hundred miles of Quebec a larger lake than has ever been discovered in all our territory. They also have a divided interest in all the great lakes we are so fond of boasting of. This is quite too much for our patriotism to quietly stand. Our fourth of July orators would blush to acknowledge the fact, if indeed it is a fact. The Canucks will next be trying to discover a river longer than the Mississippi and its tributaries, and a range of mountains that will put our Rockies to the blush.—Chicago Times.

A GRAVE PROBLEM.

It may not be found impossible to devise a plan under which the colonial subsidies for imperial defences should be safeguarded, as the colonists most naturally desire, by conditions securing them a consultative voice in matters of peace and war. This is the largest and the most urgent of the many grave problems which the Imperial Federation League have forced upon the attention of the English people, not in these Islands only, but all over the world.—London (Eng.) Times.

A MOTLEY CROWD.

THE CANDLE FISH.

How the British Columbia Indians Manage a Fish Hunt.

I first observed the candle fish when I was on the shore of British Columbia. I had lived in an Indian village for nearly a week before I heard anything about the fish, and one beautiful moonlight night I was standing on the beach when I saw something that appeared exactly like the reflection of the moon, only it was in the opposite direction. I called the attention of a native who was not far off to it, and immediately it seemed to throw him into the greatest excitement. He sang out "eulachon" as loud as he could, and in a few moments at least fifty men were on the beach launching their canoes. There was so much confusion that I could not what was the matter, but I tumbled into one of the canoes and off we went.

There were two men in all the boats but ours, I making the third. One sat in the stern and paddled, while the other stood in the bow with a curious instrument in his hand that until now I had not observed. It looked like an enormous rake or comb, made of a piece of pine at least eight feet long, with a hold for a grip at the top, the lower part thinning off to an edge, into which was driven sharp iron or bone teeth from three to four inches apart, so that the weapon resembled a great comb held by the back. The ripple I had seen on the watter was an enormous school of fishes, and to surround them now seemed to be the chief object.

The canoes were swiftly paddled out until they were all upon the outside, and then they rushed at them full speed each man wielding his comb-like scoop and dashing it into the sparkling mass that gleamed like silver, and at every stroke so thick were the fishes that the teeth of a comb came up covered with their impaled forms. These were quickly jerked into the boat and another dash made, and so on until the school was finally driven in shore, where the excited natives leaped into the water, knee deep in the throng, and fairly scooped them into their canoes, where their vivid phosphorescence made them look like molten gold. The school seemed so terrified and demoralized that they hugged the shore, and if the men had had nets instead of those outlandish combs, they could have captured millions where they only took thousands. The boats were rapidly filled, however, and in an hour the excitement was over and the canoes were hauled by the exhausted fishermen upon the beach.—Exchange.

A SMART FEMALE CROOK.

A Warning to Ladies Who Have Jewelry Out Getting Repaired.

A piece of very sharp practice on the part of a female crook was perpetrated in this city the other day, and it was yesterday repeated. On the first occasion a respectably dressed young woman called at the residence of N. G. Bigelow in Grenville street. Mrs. Bigelow came to the door and the woman asked the time of day. Mrs. Bigelow said she had left her watch at the jewelers, and she did not know. The caller then said that she was introducing an article for cleaning jewelry, and she asked Mrs. Bigelow if she could give her addresses of several respectable jewelers, and she would endeavor to have them handle her new preparation. The first name that Mrs. B. gave the woman was J. P. Mill, who keeps a jewelry store on Young street, opposite the avenue. This was where Mrs B. had left her watch. The woman walked straight to the store and said Mrs. Bigelow had sent her for her watch, which was given her. Since then neither the woman nor the watch, which was a valuable gold one, have been seen. The same trick was played on another lady on Church street yesterday, but the World reporter could not learn the victim's name.—Toronto World.

SPREAD OF TRUTH.

Some of the Decrees Passed by the Plenary Council.

The plenary council held at Baltimore, closed its sessions on Sunday.

Bishop Spaulding of Peoria preached a sermon devoted chiefly to a review of the work of the council. Even to a casual observer, he said, the work of the catholic church must prevent marks which stamp her with the impress of God's hand. During the past four weeks there have been gathered together men of many tongues and lands with various lines of thought, sentiment and manner, and when they met in council all differences were merged into unity of faith and all that was looked to was the enactment of just and wise laws. The questions discussed by the council had a direct bearing on the social, moral, religious and intellectual welfare of the people and of the country at large. It was through the church in Europe that woman was raised up and childhood cared for. In this country where womanhood is honored, childhood watched over and the poor aided, the prelates of the church have come together in a spirit of universal charity and world-wide benevolence to frame decrees which shall inspire greater reverence for and lead to the spread of truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Priests, as well as people, they believe should be raised up to the highest ideal and they have sought to divert the steps of the priesthood that in it may be seen the sweetness, meekness, and gentleness of Christ. They have begun by advocating more advanced studies and have laid the foundations of what will yet be a great American Catholic College. They have treated of education in a general system which will combine in it the rights of religion and of government. They have dealt with questions affecting the family, which is the basis of the church. They want to inspire a holier reverence for the sacrament of marriage. Marriage must be a perpetual union with no cause for divorce but death. They have pleaded for the cause of sobriety and temperance. They stand on the side of good laws and customs and wish to make the world so that man may be truly free and grow in moral purity and intellectual worth. They have tried to estimate the Catholic press and Catholic literature, and have laid down laws for the guidance of societies which co-operate with the church. The deliberations have been conducted with dignity and full thoughts have been spoken without restriction. They have laid low all disorder, rebellion and schism, have gathered together many forces and tongues, and while banishing defects have preserved virtues, and throughout all the church has shown that her forces are indestructible and bring life from death, and beauty and harmony from chaos.

An Uncanny Monster of the Mud.

Monday last an octopus was caught in Commencement Bay in about 300 feet of water by fish hooks. When brought to the surface it was almost unmanageable, and it was only by a severe struggle that it was hauled into a boat and brought ashore. Once it seized upon the bottom of the boat and no effort could loosen it, until it did so of its own accord and after the vessel was set in motion. One of its feelers came in contact with one of the boy's arms and it was only induced to let go by beating the feeler to a jelly with a club. It is plenty large enough to master a man and would be a dangerous customer to meet in the water. It was a monster specimen, having arms or feelers fully four feet long. The arms were eight in number and are each supplied with 120 pairs of suckers, by which they seize their prey. Its body is purse shaped, without fins, and is a foot long and nearly the same width.—Portland Orgonian.

Burglars Balked

Prescott Dec. 9.—Last night the dry goods store of Messrs. Hillyard & Carman and E. Mundle were broken into by burglars. The safe of Messrs Hillyard & Carman was bored and the door partially sprung open. The burglars were no doubt disturbed, as they left some of their tools behind, and did not succeed in opening the safe. The goods do not appear to have been disturbed; their object was money.

DISTRICT INTELLIGENCE

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondents.

COUNCIL.—A regular meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday, the 8th inst. Present, the Reeve in the chair, Messrs. McWilliams, Cox and Moore, Councillors. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Clerk made his return of the election held to fill the seat of the late K. Urquhart, Mr. Isaac Garbutt being elected by acclamation. Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor McWilliams,—That before taking any action on the petition of David Smith, T. G. Nelson, and others, that the petitioners should provide the Council with the legal opinions of the Village Solicitor as to the power of this Council to make the exchange asked for.—Carried. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Cox,—That tenders be received for rent of a Council Chamber for village purposes, light and care taking included, at the next meeting of the Council.—Carried. Moved by Councillor Cox, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That an extension of ten days be granted the Collector to return his roll. —Carried. Moved by Councillor Cox, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That the following accounts be paid, and the Reeve's orders be issued for the same, viz.:

Isaac Watson, wages	$4 05
" " salary as health inspector	8 00
Wm. Smith, wages, half day	50
James Richardson, team, half day	1 37
Total	$13 92

—Carried. Moved by Councillor McWilliams seconded by Councillor Cox,—That Mr. James Smith be refunded one half of the taxes paid by him on the Bible Church property, on which he was assessed.—Carried. Moved by Councillor Cox, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That Mr. J. Griffin be permitted to move the old cheese factory down on the road providing he keep another road open for the public while moving the building.—Carried. A By-law No. 88, to prohibit the interment of the dead within the municipality, received a first, second and third reading, and was passed, sealed and signed by the Reeve and Clerk. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That this Council do now adjourn, to meet at the call of the Reeve.—Carried.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.—The Lakefield Public School Board met in the Council Room on Tuesday evening last. Members present—Mr. Sanders in the chair, Drs. Armour and Caldwell, and Messrs. Casement and Dench. The minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed. Moved by Dr. Armour, seconded by Mr. Dench,—That the ensuing election of members of this Board be held in the Council Room, Lakefield, and that Thomas Casement be and he is hereby appointed returning officer to hold the said election.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Dench, seconded by Mr. Casement,—That Mr. Henderson's account be referred to the secretary and paid, if found correct.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Casement, seconded by Dr. Armour,—That Mr. Watson be re-engaged as janitor for the ensuing year at a salary of $80.—Carried. Moved by Dr. Armour, seconded by Mr. Casement,—That this Board do now adjourn.—Carried.

THE DAM.—Mr. Chas. Wynn is getting along rapidly with the construction of the new dam here. The weather, if he had ordered it, could not be more favorable for the works in progress. Your correspondent was courteously shown over all the works by Mr. Greenwood, belonging to Mr. Rubidge's staff, an energetic public servant he is, and will certainly rise in his profession. Our old friend, Mr. John Dinwoodie, was also at his post, seeing that all material is sound, from the rock foundation up, and all done on the square. If a stick of timber has any flaw, Mr. Dinwoodie will quietly get it laid to one side, with the mark on it "not wanted here." He is the right man in the right place. Mr. Wynn has an excellent staff of workmen in his employ, and has to be congratulated on the fworkmanship of this dam, so ar as it has gone.

ORANGE OFFIEERS.—At the December meeting of L.O.L., No. 112, held in the Orange Hall, Lakefield, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, viz.:—

Jas. Horner	W.M.
S. Northey	D.M.
D. Arnott	Chap.
R. Waram	Treas.
W. Carter	Secretary

Committee—John Madill, John Edwards, C. J. Burgis, Jas. Morrison, Wm. Charlton.

MASONIC OFFICERS.—At the regular meeting of Clementi Lodge, No. 313, A. F. & A. M., held in the Masonic Hall on Tuesday evening, the 3nd inst., the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing term :—

Alex. Bell, M.D.	W.M.
S. Shieldrake	S.W.
T. J. Bird	J.W.
John Chalm	Chaplain.
R. Q. Dench	Secretary.
Wm. Caldwell, M.D.	Treasurer.
W. H. Casement	Tyler.

NOMINATION.—On Monday, Dec. 1st, at noon, a meeting of the electors of Lakefield was held in the Council room for the purpose of selecting a candidate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Urquhart. Dr. Bell acted as Returning Officer. Mr. Isaac Garbutt, sr., was nominated as a candidate. Dr. Armour protested against the proceeding on account of there only being three days' notice of the nomination meeting. The Reeve and Clerk held that the notice was sufficient under the statutes. There being no other candidate proposed, Mr. Garbutt, at the end of the hour, was duly elected and the meeting closed.

THE WEATHER.—The ice has left the lake from here to the Point, and the steamer Fairy is plying from the Point to this place, doing towing, &c.

BUSINESS.—Your correspondent did not hear much grumbling among the merchants. An old friend of mine was doing a little quoting about the N.P., &c., &c., and low prices, but when I told him things were worse in the old sod, we changed the subject, and dwelt on other matters and talked about Auld Lang Syne, &c. Mr. Bird, the druggist, is certainly to be congratulated for not being behind the times, as he has one of the largest and best stocks of beautiful Xmas cards to be seen outside of any city. I said he had too many. He said not at all; he would sell them all and give the rest in birthday presents. Look out for his new advertisement in WEEKLY REVIEW.

STAGE.—Mr. John Cooper has started a stage from this place to Peterborough. He has his bills, which were printed at the REVIEW office, distributed around the villarge. We wish him success, as it is an accommodation for the public.

THE INDIAN ISLANDS.—It is only proper to put "Asterisk" of last week's Examiner right with reference to the appointment of Mr. R. C. Strickland as overseer of the Islands in the Otonabee River and its tributary waters. At the request of Mr. Bertram the Mackenzie Government appointed Mr. Robt. A. Strickland overseer of these islands, the salary being nil. When he left for England he deposited all the papers referring to this matter in the hands of his brother, Mr. R. C. Strickland, who, when last in Ottawa, was asked by Mr. Vankoughnet to take the appointment (the salary still being nil) as the Indian Department was most anxious to have some one in the district who would have the Department's authority to prosecute any persons found wilfully burning or otherwise destroying these beautiful islands. So it will be seen that this was not an appointment created by Sir John A. Macdonald, as a reward (or as "Asterisk" would say, "more pap"), for his political friends, but simply that the Department of Indian Affairs was only too glad to get some one who would be willing to take all the trouble and annoyance the position will entail without what seems to be the great desiratum with our Reform friends—a salary.

GYMNASIUM.—There seems to be a growing desire among the young men of Lakefield to start a gymnasium and boxing club, but a lack of funds appears to be the chief obstacle. Could they prevail on our "Caste" Company to go to Peterborough and give a performance of that popular play for the benefit of the proposed club? Perhaps the Peterborough Cricket Club would assist and share receipts.

WOOLLEN FACTORY.—Mr. Baptie yesterday began raising the new woollen factor on the raceway of Messrs. R. & C. Strickland, and the building will evidently be a large and substantial one. This is just what is wanted in our village, a few factories to draw the farmers of the surrounding country into the place and give us a chance to compete with our overgrown sister Peterborough.

"Rough on Coughs."

Ask for Rough on Coughs, for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Troches 15c. Liquid, 25c.

HASTINGS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SOME MORE WEATHER.—Snow, slush, sleet, mud, rain, gloom, fog, damp—fine!

LAWSUIT.—The case of Gough vs. Coughlin, a suit arising between landlord and tenant owing to disputed rent and terms of lease, which led to seizure of merchandise in store last fall, has led to further litigation. The trial was decided in plaintiff's favour in Cobourg, but the landlord being dissatisfied, had application for a new trial, the venue being changed to Toronto, whither many witnesses from here have been subpoened. The costs will be heavy, the sum in dispute will not nearly pay the half-dozen witnesses expenses in the city. McCarthy, Hoskin & Co. have the case for the plaintiff.

SPORT.—A party of hunters passing through here last Friday put up at the Clarendon, and exhibited a fine lynx which one of them had shot, besides other smaller animals and some deer. Venison is easily sold here at 10 cents per lb.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.—"Committee on handcuffs benches, &c., reported progress and asked leave to sit again." Poor, tired mortals, "sit again" by all means, rearrange the municipal nest, turn over the eggs carefully, and sit patiently for three weeks more; not a minute longer—then you will be able to report progress in spite of being handicapped with handcuffs and benches. Very unfair indeed to make you, Gilpin like, "carry weight." "Committee on cistern reported that it would be better to abandon cistern until spring, and build a porch over the kitchen door." Why, of course, abandon the cistern until spring; no one expects you to be on it this inclement weather! do not make martyrs of yourselves gentlemen, so near the end of the year. Build a porch, by all means, if you wish, over the soup kitchen door, and stay there till the sweet refrain is wafted to your ears, "Do they miss me at home."

A REWARD OFFERED.—The council offer a reward of $50 for such information as will lead to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who maliciously set fire beneath the harness shop of T. Howard, who suppliments the reward by another half century. Now is the time for our amateur local detective.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.—The following are the names of those appointed as delegates to attend the demonstration and banquet at the reception of Sir John A. Macdonald in Toronto on the 17th inst.:—H. M. Fowlds, J. A. Howard, F. W. Fowlds, P. Kennedy, Dr. O'Gorman, P. Brennan.

PLENTY OF THEM.—Four concerts on the cards for Christmas week:—Lacrosse, Grangers, Methodist and English Church, in the order named.

THE Presbytery of London at its meeting on Tuesday refused to adopt the recommendation of the committee in favour of marriage with a deceased wife's sister.

TWENTY-FIVE cents invested in "Hub" Cough Cure saves sweating under a cough. It stops a cough quick and sure. Think the price for a cough. Ask J. D. Tully.

THE recent convictions by the Kingston police magistrate of livery keepers for hiring rigs on Sundays were on Tuesday quashed by the Court of Quarter Sessions.

A SAFE INVESTMENT.—Investing twenty-five cents for a bottle of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best throat and lung healer known. Cures coughs, bronchitis, asthma and all pulmonary complaints.

JAS. WOOD, St. Catharines, is a loser by burglars to the extent of $100, 60 pairs of slippers and a quantity of French calf skin having been stolen.

A SUCCESSFUL RESULT.—Mr. Bloomer, of Hamilton, Ont., suffered for many years with a painful running sore upon one of his legs, which baffled all attempts to heal until he used Burdock Blood Bitters, which speedily worked a perfect cure.

JOHN BALDWIN, of St. George, was found dead in bead at Cornell's hotel, in Glenmorris, last week. He had been drinking and had taken some opium to sober up.

PROF. LOW'S SULPHUR SOAP is highly recommended for the cure of Eruption, Chafes, Chapped Hands, Pimples, Tan, &c.

THE building owned by A. Bissell, and occupied by Bissell & Collins, tinsmiths, Mount Forest, was destroyed by fire. All the household effects of C. Bissel were consumed.

PROMPT MEASURES.—Prompt measures should be used to break up sudden colds and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually.

IT is an unusual to see farmers ploughing at this season of the year. But on Monday several farmers in Guelph Township and Eramosa were busy turning over the soil.

OH! how tired and weak I feel, I don't believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning! O yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Doctor Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50c.

HOW often do we hear of the sudden fatal termination of a case of croup, when a young life might have been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral! Be wise in time, and keep a bottle of it on hand, ready for instant use.

A TELEGRAM from St. Thomas village, Que., states that a young man of that town named Adelard Caron, who was married last week, became insane the day of his marriage and will have to be sent to Beauport Asylum immediately.

AN AGREEABLE SURPRISE.—Those who try Burdock Blood Bitters as a regulator of the bowels, or to purify the blood, aid digestion, regulate the liver and kidneys, or strengthen tired nature, are agreeably surprised at the prompt benefit derived.

A MONUMENT is being erected by the Mohawks on the reserve at Deseronto to the memory of Chief Deserontyon, who landed there with the band just one hundred years ago. It will be about forty feet high and have 11x12 base.

A DECIDED HIT.—Hagyard's Yellow Oil touches the right spot every time when applied for rheumatism, neuralgia, pain, soreness or lameness, and internally for colds, sore throat, etc., it is equally infallible.

NOTHING succeeds like success, is as true in medicine as in anything else. By the wonderful effect of Dr. Van Buren's Kidney cure in promptly alleviating the sufferings experienced in kidney troubles and producing a permanent cure in these distressing ailments, his fame has been carried over the four quarters of the globe.

HOW TO TELL GENUINE FLORIDA WATER.—The true Florida Water always comes with a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and in the paper of this pamphlet are the "Lanman & Kemp, New York," water-marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters. Hold a leaf up to the light, and if genuine, you will see the above words. Do not buy if the words are not there, because it is not the real article. The water-mark letters may be very pale, but by looking closely against the light, you cannot fail to see them.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold. A few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1 00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. D. Tully.

A Remarkable Escape.

Mrs. Mary A. Daily, of Tunkannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until last October she tried a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50lbs. in a few months. Free trial bottles of this certain cure for all throat and lung diseases at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

Are you troubled with Salt Rheum, Rough Hands, or Old Sores of any kind that you cannot heal? Even though it be of years standing McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate will cure it. Beyond a shadow of a doubt it is the best healing compound ever known. Boils, Festerings, Frost Bites, Burns or any Skin Trouble, are alike cured by it. Sold at 25 cents, by John McKee, Druggist.

PHOSPHATINE is nature's remedy for chronic diseases.

Phosphatine will benefit consumptives in any stage.

Phosphatine cures sleeplessness, nervousness, &c., &c.

Phosphatine does not make fat, but solid flesh.

Phosphatine in female weaknesses is invaluable. For sale by all druggists.

A HOME DRUGGIST TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."

River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Railroad War.

The war in rates which has existed for some time between western railway companies is now at an end. Legitimate rates have again been restored.

Christmas Cards.

Mr. G. B. Sproule, with his usual good taste, has provided a choice selection of Christmas and New Year's cards, many of them being of true artistic merit. They are not likely to remain long on hand.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Winds shifting to east and south-east; cloudy weather, with snow or rain.

Personal.

Mr. C. Young, of Ashburnham, has returned from his extended trip through the Western States for the benefit of his health. He travelled considerably in Nebraska and the adjoining States. He informs us that the climate had a peculiarly vivifying effect upon him, that he is much improved in health. He now presides over the counters of his grocery.

Entertainment.

An entertainment will be held at the opening of St. Paul's Sabbath school rooms on Wednesday, 17th, at 8 o'clock. The programme will consist of music and recitations. In the afternoon, from 3 o'clock, there will be a sale of fancy and useful articles, which will continue during the evening. Refreshments both afternoon and evening. Admission, afternoon, 10 cents; evening, 15.

Personal.

Mr. John D. Macmurchy, General Agent of the Lindsay and North Ontario District, for the British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, has been appointed to the important position of Inspector of Eastern Ontario for this wealthy and popular English corporation. We are informed that the appointment is a first-class one, Mr. Macmurchy being personally very popular, and a gentleman of superior education with a pleasing address.

The Toronto Convention.

The Conservatives of Ashburnham will unite with those of the other parts of the Dominion in the reception to be given to Sir John Macdonald in Toronto. The following delegates have been appointed to attend the convention and reception: Messrs. J. Burnham, M.P., Henry Calcutt, J. Z. Rogers, Charles Brealey, Geo. Lipsett, E. A. Peck, Geo. Helson, A. Ingram, T. Giroux, R. Meade, Wm. Heap, Henry Bennett, H. Butcher, J. Stevenson, C. Young, J. P. Phillips, Albert Hall, T. Dobbin.

Magazines for Sale.

The sale of magazines on file at the Y.M.C.A. rooms will take place on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. This will be a good opportunity of procuring cheaply such publications as Graphic, Punch, Grip, Harper's, Chambers', Methodist Magazine, Sunday at Home, Leisure Hour, Chatauquan, Carpentry and Building, Boys' Own Paper, Harper's Young People, Youths' Companion, The Christian Illustrated Weekly. The purchaser will receive the periodicals on the receipt by the Association of the succeeding issue.

The Late Thomas Buck.

Mr. Thomas Buck, one of our oldest settlers, and one of our sturdiest yeoman, has passed away. Mr. Buck was born in the County of Cork, Ireland, in the year 1806. At the age of 19 he emigrated to Canada and settled in the Township of Otonabee. He took up farming on Lot No. 9, in the 13th Concession, and has worked the same farm ever since. A few weeks ago he came to Peterborough to visit his daughter, Mrs. Coughlin, and on Friday, Nov. 28th, met with the accident which caused his death. In coming into the house of his daughter he slipped and fell, striking his head against the brick wall. Erysipelas set in and notwithstanding that the best medical assistance was procured Mr. Buck succumbed on Wednesday morning. The deceased was the father of five sons and six daughters, of which now survive two sons, Mr. Geo. C. Buck, of Lindsay, and Mr. Wm. Buck, of Otonabee, and four daughters, Mrs. Welsh, Otonabee; Mrs. O'Brien Douro; Mrs. Coughlin, Peterborough, and Mrs. Butler, Rochester, N. Y. He was a firm adherent to the policy of the Conservative party. For many years he was a Justice of the Peace. The funeral will leave the residence of Mrs. Coughlin, Rubidge street, at 1 o'clock on Friday afternoon and proceed to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

THE TREACHEROUS NILE

A MEMBER OF THE PETERBOROUGH CONTINGENT MEETS WITH A SAD DEHTH.

John E. Falkner is drowned—A Telegram Received from Col. Lambert Apprising Mrs. Falkner of the Sad End of Her Husband—A Young Wife and Two Small Children Left to Mourn.

It is with feelings of sadness and sorrow that we chronicle the sad death of John E. Falkner, one of those who left Peterborough only a few months ago to join the Canadian contingent of the Nile expedition.

This morning at about nine o'clock, Mrs. Falkner received the following telegram:—

To Mrs. John E. Falkner, Peterborough:

A telegram was received by his Excellency, the Governor General, from Egypt, stating that voyageur John E. Falkner was drowned. Tendering you sincere sympathy in your affliction. I have written.

THOS. LAMBERT.

The deceased, who met with so sudden and terrible death, was a strong, hardy young man of 27 years, and an excellent swimmer. Some nine years ago he emigrated to this country from Sunderland, county of Durham, England. About three years ago he was joined by his brother, Mr. Thos. Falkner, and for some time previous to the departure of John to Egypt, the two brothers were working in the bakery of Mr. W. Stock. The deceased was a good workman, and was earning high wages.

The news of her husband's death fell like a thunderbolt on Mrs. Falkner this morning, for only last night she received the following letter from her husband assuring her of his good health, and expressing a fond and assuring hope of again returning in the spring:—

GEMANI, EGYPT, Nov. 14, 1884.

DEAR WIFE,—I now address a few lines to you, hoping to find you all in good health, as I am enjoying the very best of health myself, and to tell you I have enjoyed myself the whole trip. We have only done two days' work since we left Canada. When we left Canada we expected to see some lovely sights in Egypt, but we find that the Egyptain race is a forsaken lot of people. They are ignorant heathens and live in houses made of mud or a few cornstalks stood upright, forming a circle, and they get into this and sleep, and half of them lay down on the hot sand wherever night overtakes them, and up as far as I am now the people go half or nearly naked. I could not describe in this letter some of the things I have seen, but I will have a great deal to talk about when I get home. I have been into some of the temples, and also two catacombs and vaults, where the old Pharaohs were laid on the shelves and turned to dust. The work of sculpturers inside of this place is magnificent. It would take too long to describe all the different kinds of engravings which are upon the walls. At the door of or on either side sits a god or godess, which at least is eight feet high. There were 21 of us got into the lap of one of the these gods and stood inside the palm of his hand, so great is its size.

I want to tell you that we are in no danger at all. Do not let it run in your mind that we are; but you may expect a safe return of me in the spring. I do not think I will be able to bring you much of a present from this part of the country, for I don't even see a child's play toy, so little is there in the county.

Do not answer this letter, for we expect to all be in Khartoum on Christmas Day, and after that we will return home, so no more at present. I wish you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

You will get this letter just about on our return, if things go on all right, so good-bye and God bless you all. I send my best respects to all enquiring friends, and if you should see Mr. Stock tell him to accept my best respects and best wishes.

From yours truly and most sincerely,

JOHN E. FALKNER,

Gemani, Soudan, or Upper Egypt.

Mrs. Falkner, who has two small children, a boy two years old and a girl of five, has the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community in her great loss.

Town Council.

A special meeting of the Town Council will be held this evening at 7.30 o'clock.

Stable Burned.

At about 1 o'clock this morning a stable belonging to Mr. David Doig, situated in North Monaghan, on the Drain Road, took fire and was burned to the ground. His stock narrowly escaped being burned, but were all taken safely out. About two hundred bushels of oats were burned. The cause of the fire is supposed to be incendiarism. The loss is about $400, fully covered by insurance in the National Assurance Company of Ireland.

The Ivories.

An exhibition of billiard and pool playing was given in Faucher's billiard rooms on Wednesday night by Mr. J. Cronn. The first match was a three ball, fifty point, game of billiards between Mr. Cronn and Mr. J. S. Morrison. The second was a game of pool between Mr. Cronn and Mr. A. D. Faucher, and the third a four ball, three string, (102 points) game of billiards between Mr. Cronn and Messrs. A. D. Faucher and Chas. Jewett. Mr. Cronn won each match with ease.

Bazaar Notes.

The attendance at the bazaar still continues large.

Mr. Charles Grant efficiently presides at the main entrance and collects the admission fees.

A refreshment table to the right of the main entrance, under the management of Mrs. Dieneen, is well patronized.

The vote on the No. 1 Ward bannerette is briskly going on. The temperance people have 82 of a majority.

It was Mr. Geo. Stethem who presented the valuable silver dinner set to the No. 2 Ward department. It was presented through Mrs. Goodwin, of Ottawa.

Mrs. Phelan informs us that a large business is being done in the dining hall.

Mrs. John Henry has presented a handsome china dinner set to the No. 1 Ward department. It consists of 32 pieces and is valued at $16.00.

The bazaar will continue open the remainder of this week, and will close on Saturday night.

The Well Dressed Man.

The golden rule in dress is to keep clear of extremes. The well dressed man never wears anything striking or peculiar, and his garments are always of the best material, one suit that costs $20 being preferable to two suits that cost $12 each—and the tailor's risk it will be observed is just the same in both cases. We are found to add, however, that the gentleman who has but one suit instead of two cannot escape embarrassment when it comes to sending his trousers to the shop for the purpose of having the wrinkles pressed out of them. A man should always have the second suit of clothes. The proper cut for coat and vest is that which makes them fit snug around the waist and loose over the chest, as the polite citizen is thus admonished at every turn that he will not only look better, but also feel better, if he stands straight. There is a good deal in getting a perfect fitting pair of pants—in fact it is absolutely necessary in order that the coat and vest will look well. This is Christmas advice, and if you wish to test the genuineness of the argument pay a visit to Habilment Hall, and get A. McNeil to make you a fashionable holiday suit.

The stock of Fine Scotch Lamb's Wool Underclothing is now being offered at 20 per cent. reduction at Andrew McNeil's.

Smith's Market.

First importation of the genuine Florida Oranges, very sweet and choice. Grapes, Apples, Pears, Lemons, Cranberries, Table Raisins (new crop) and Nuts. Oysters by the tin, quart or pail. Park's pure Pork Sausages, Clark's Bologna, Fearmon's Hams and Bacon, English and Canadian Stilton Cheeses, Corn, Peas, Tomatoes, Beans, Peaches, Strawberries, Pears, Cherries, Pine Apples, Salmon, Lobster, Haddie, Mackerel, &c., Jams and Jellies, Finnan Haddies, Smoked and Salted Mackerel, Bloaters, Herrings, Cod, &c., Fluid Beef by the tin or dozen. Canned Meats of all kinds. Green Vegetables, Game, and everything usually kept in places of this kind.

Gold Medal Ale.

If you want a glass of Labatt's prize medal fine ale (special brewing) call at W. H. Chamberlain's Parlour Restaurant. This ale has received four gold medals at the World's Exposition, Paris, Australia, Philadelphia and Canada. It is kept in one of the best cellars in Canada, and is pleasant to the taste, and at the same time a wholesome beverage.

Dress and Mantle Making.

Notwithstanding the great and urgent demand for Dresses and Mantles at the "Golden Lion," Miss Johnston it most attentive and prompt in executing all orders most satisfactorily. Also the Millinery Department, which is in full activity, and every attention shown the ladies in making their selections.

Sweet Apple Cider.

We take pleasure in announcing to our numerous patrons and the public generally that we still hold the exclusive agency for the Belleville Cider Works. This Cider needs no comment from us, as the quantity we sold last year is sufficient proof of pureness and delicacy of flavour. CARTON, BROS., opposite Market Square.

If you want Underclothing, don't procrastinate, but avail yourself of the twenty per cent. discount now being offered on all sales of Winter Underclothing at Andrew McNeil's.

Notice.

You can depend on getting your Oysters always nice and fresh, and at the lowest possible prices, at Carton Bros., as we import direct from the best packers in Baltimore. Special quotations to those who buy in large quantities. CARTON BROS.

WEDDING BELLS.—On Wednesday, Dec. 10th, there was a very pleasant social event at the residence of Mr. Jos. Barnard, when his eldest daughter, Miss Etta, was united in holy matrimony with Mr. W. A. Bell, of Smith. There was a large gathering of the friends of both families to witness the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. T. Manning. Miss Lizzie Anderson, of South Monaghan, cousin of the bride, and Miss Evalina Bell, sister of the bridegroom, acted as bridesmaids, and Mr. William J. Bell, cousin of the groom, as best man. The presents to the bride were much admired, being very numerous and beautiful. A very pleasant evening was spent by the friends of the happy couple, who expressed the warmest wishes for their future welfare and happiness, in which we beg to join.

Two Fatal Accidents.

About the close of last week an Italian was working under a bank near the village of Scotia, on the Northern and Pacific Junction Railway, when the earth came down and the poor man was suffocated before help could reach him. On Monday of this week another labourer was killed by the accidental discharge of a blast while tamping it down. This accident happened at Bracebridge, and it could not be ascertained whether the accident was due to his own carelessness or not. When the blast went off his body was blown about twenty-five feet into the air, and it was found impossible to gather together enough of his remains to make a decent funeral of.—Globe.

It's no nostrum. We speak of Dr. Pierce's Extract of Smart-Weed, composed of best French Brandy, Smart-Weed, Jamaica Ginger and Camphor Water. It cures cholera morbus, colic or cramps in the stomach, diarrhœa, dysentery or blood-flux, and breaks up colds, fevers and inflammatory attacks.

DR. BARNARDO'S HOME.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Ordinarily the writer of an anonymous letter deserves no answer, but when such a writer assumes the representation of our town, whose social heart-throbs are constantly propelling rich streams of help and blessing in every direction, we are constrained to believe that the purest of motives must have prompted the concealment of his name, and we therefore beg to reply with the courtesy due to our noble town by every loyal citizen.

Some time in August application was made for the admission of Mrs. George Donnelly's three children into the "Home" at Hazel Brae. The case was laid before Dr. Barnardo, who sanctioned the admission of the children, but at the same time gave the authorities of the Home an order of procedure to be observed in all such cases. Our observance of this order caused delay. Mrs. Donnelly grew rapidly worse and was greatly troubled about the future of her little ones, and another appeal was made by her friends that in consideration of the circumstances, the children should at once be admitted. With the approbation of Mr. Geo. A. Cox and others, the appeal was granted, and the dying mother's anxiety relieved by a solemn promise that both the present and future interests of her little ones would be most carefully guarded. She then most gladly placed them under the complete control of the managers of the House, making no reservation in favour of any one, although grateful mention was made of the many kindnesses she had received. I understand that Miss Kelly and Mr. Elias Burnham were very good to her in many ways. The children came to us on the 4th of October, and because of the peculiar circumstances received special kindness, Mrs. Duff allowing little Harry to sleep in her children's bedroom, and the sisters being equally well cared for. Through the kindness of a lady friend Mrs. Donnelly was driven up to see her little ones, and went away thankful and satisfied, having found them well and happy, and thoroughly at home.

On the 4th Nov. Mrs. Donnelly was buried, and on the following Friday an exceptionally good home in the neighboring town of Orillia was found for the baby, wee, winsome, brown eyed Minnie, for whom loving hearts and tender hands are already at work, making life's pathway smooth and bright. Mabel and Harry are still with us, but a fine home has been offered to Mabel, not far from Ottawa, by warm hearted Christian people who have large property and no children to inherit it. I had almost completed this arrangement during a recent trip eastward in total ignorance of any application for the child by Mr. and Mrs. Linster, worthy people, no doubt, and most warmly recommended, both in person and by letter, by Mr. Elias Burnham. A conditional promise was given, I believe, by Mr. Duff respecting the child, as he had not then received any intimation from me of the first class offer already made. But Mr. Duff, as Superintendent of this Home for orphan and destitute children, both English and Canadian, is too thoroughly imbued with the real spirit of the work to allow that to weigh against what we all consider to be the child's best interests.

The rules of the institution demand that application for our children shall in each case be accompanied by a reliable testimonial, and although your correspondent's faith seems to be severely taxed upon this point, the rule is strictly enforced, particularly where our little girls are concerned. The case of the child who has been placed for a time in the pleasant though humble home of Mr. Wm. Curtis, to which Mr. Duff's attention was called by Mr. Elias Burnham, was at once thoroughly investigated, and I have now beside me a testimonial to the quiet industry and Christian consistency of this family, written by Dr. W. H. Taylor. In addition to this I have again and again visited the child, and have always found her well cared for and happy.

The lady referred to by your correspondent, to whom we entrusted eight of our little girls, is the wife of the Rev. J. H. Harris, the Church of England clergyman at Price's Corners near Orillia. This lady, a well known and active Christian worker, took these children to her own home and cared for them until suitable places were secured, and in each case a testimonial was required and received.

A firm but kindly refusal to give little Mabel to Mrs. Linster, because of the previous arrangement already referred to, and a quiet setting aside of Mr. Elias Burnham's alleged right to say where and with whom the child should be placed, has been termed abuse by your correspondent. As I am well known in Peterborough, that accusation needs no reply.

A Pretty Little Poem in Prose.

A little rain, the sun again, a shadow; a summer day, some new-mown hay, a meadow. A girlish face, a matchless grace and beauty; we spend the day in making hay, sweet duty. Some fading flowers, some happy hours, but fleeting; a week of rain, and then again a meeting. One quick, shy look, a rippling brook, some clover; a sky of gold, the story old, a lover. A fair sweet maid, a short word said; what is it? I try my fate, and not too late, to miss it. The years have gone, and still love, on that lover; he love always, as days and days pass over. A loving wife, a long, long life together, have made him bless that shy, sweet "Yes," forever.—Chambers' Journal.

Geo. P. Rowell & Co., No. 19 Spruce Street, New York, are the most prompt and reliable advertising agents we have ever had any business dealings with during our seven years' experience. We have handled considerable advertising through them, and never had a dispute on an account, never had a delay of one moment more than is absolutely necessary to glance over their books. They have their system so complete that our last statement, containing the accounts of eight different advertisers and covering different dates, which was sent from this office on Monday, Nov. 17th, was received in the advertising department of Rowell's in New York on the 19th, and at five o'clock on the 20th we had their draft for the full amount.—Tiffin (Ohio) Herald.

Protection in England.

A special to the Mail from London, dated Dec. 11th, says: "A very important meeting of the Central Chamber of Commerce was held to-day. There was a full attendance, and the question of fair trade versus free trade was discussed with much ability and at great length. A motion was put asking for the appointment of a Parliamentary committee to enquire into the causes of the prevailing agricultural depression, with a view to adopting protection. An amendment was proposed in favour of free trade. The amendment was defeated and the original motion carried by a vote of 28 to 9.

A Blasphemer's Awful Fate.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 11.—While James Lyman, of Brown County, Indiana, who was noted for his profanity, was pouring forth a volley of oaths a few days ago, he was stricken to the earth. His sight was destroyed, his speech gone, and motion impossible. After thirty minutes' prostration he recovered slightly, but was unable to regain his speech. His eyes were also bedimmed. He has since been in a half conscious condition.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—A reporter of the United Press, in seeking for further information to-day in regard to the report from Paris that Earl Granville, British Foreign Minister, had informed Prime Minister Ferry that the English negotiations with China with a view to settling the Franco-Chinese difficulty amicably have resulted in failure, learned, on good authority, that the report was without foundation. Earl Granville, in conversation with a well-known member of Parliament to-day, expressed hopes of an early adjustment of the difficulty. M. Waddington leaves for Paris this evening, and it is expected that immediately after Prime Minister Ferry has been informed of the result of M. Waddington's interviews with Earl Granville and the Marquis Tseng, that an official announcement will be made of the successful termination of the negotiations.

A MELEE.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—A melee occurred at the Vienna University between Semitic and anti-Semitic students on account of the election of Jewish students to membership in the mutual aid commitee. Several students were injured.

CHOLERA CASES IN ITLAY.

ROME, Dec. 11.—There have been fifteen cases of cholera, five of which were fatal, at Tegiano in Salerno.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—A deep feeling has been aroused in France on the news that the United States has secured a direct concession from Nicaragua, authorizing them in their National character to construct a canal across the Isthmus. It is expected there will be a general demand on the Government to protect the holders of Panama canal bonds. It is understood that M. de Lesseps' agents are in Washington to oppose the Nicaraguan treaty. The holders of the de Lesseps bonds claim that their Government should not stand still and see numerous classes of its citizens impoverished without making a vigorous protest, even up to a point of interference. It is understood that England may also protest against what the United States proposes to undertake.

ANARCHISTS ARRESTED.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—Four Anarchists, one of whom is a woman, have been arrested at Sternberg, Moravia. Eight kilogrames of dynamite were found secreted in the garden of one of the prisoners. It is learned that the prisoners were implicated in planning a robbery, the proceeds of which were to be used in furthering the interests of the Anarchist party.

MARRIED.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Mr. Adams and Miss Coleridge were privately married to-day.

DEPOSED.

CAIRO, Dec. 11.—The Khedive has received a despatch from the Mudir of Dongola stating that the Sultan of Darfur has deposed and imprisoned the Mahdi's Emirat Khalid, and stripped and expelled his dervishes.

MADAGASCAR.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—Gen. Miot, the French commander at Madagascar, telegraphs that the troop now occupy Vobemar and Fort Embanion. The Hovas have fled southward and all the chiefs are submitting. The French have suffered no losses and the health of the troops is satisfactory.

IRISH ELECTION FUND.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The President of the Irish National League in America has asked the Irish National party if he should organize an election fund. Mr. Parnell stated in reply that politics are unsettled at present and the dissolution of Parliament uncertain; but he will decide the matter when the elections become certain.

Painful Suspense.

"My dear," he said, as he entered the house, "who is that gentleman across the street?"

"I am not sure, but I think he is an old beau of mine."

"How long has he been waving his handkerchief?"

"Oh, more than half an hour."

"Is he trying to flirt with you?"

"That's just what annoys me. He may mean it for me or for the lady in the bay-window above. If it's for me, I ought to know it, and it it's for her I'll never speak to the shame-faced thing again as long as I live! Oh, George, you don't know how vexatious and uncertain it is to have rooms above you! I wish we had a little cottage of our own."—Detroit Free Press.

Maud—I think no young man should ask a lady to go out riding unless he is complete master of his horse.

Nicefellow—Perfectly right. That's how so many accidents happen. I have made a special study of horses and can drive the most savage ones with safety.

Maud—With one hand?

Nicefellow—Yes, or I can hold the reins between my teeth if necessary, and leave both arms free. By the way, Miss Maud, won't you take the first sleigh ride of the season with me?

Maud (enthusiastically)—Indeed I will.—Philadelphia Call.

LIBERAL CONSERVATVE CONVENTION.

It is now certain that the Banquet Hall, which by-the-bye is the largest hall that could be procured for the purpose, will not accommodate all who desire to attend the banquet in honour of Sir John Macdonald, on December 18th. As the Toronto representatives will give the preference to non-residents, tickets will not be sold to them (the Toronto men) before noon of the 15th December. Delegates who which to attend the banquet from here will therefore have to hand in their names not later than the afternoon of Saturday next, the 13th December, to Mr. G. W. Hatton, at his office. The tickets remaining undisposed of after the above date (the 15th December) will be sold to residents of Toronto and others, in the order of their application.

We wish also to remind delegates that if they desire to take advantage of the single fare for the return trip, they must apply to Mr. Hatton for certificates, which on presentation at the Grand Opera House will entitle them to tickets of admission to the Convention and return tickets on the railways.

REFORM DISLOYALTY.

We have before remarked, and we repeat it, that there are a large number of men who are known as Reformers, and who have heretofore acted with that party, who are as loyal to the Queen and the throne of Great Britain as any Conservative or any resident of England itself. But we are nevertheless forced to admit the fact that all the members of that party are not so intensely loyal,—that several, at least, of their leaders can and do talk flippantly of severing our connection with the Empire, and of becoming independent or being annexed to the American Republic.

We referred recently to the views of Sir Richard Cartwright, the Hon. G. W. Ross, and the Hon. Wilfred Laurier, and the country is now favored with the views of another member of Mr. Mowat's Cabinet, the Hon. A. S. Hardy, Provincial Secretary. That gentleman was in New York recently and was, as a matter of course, interviewed by a reporter. After giving his views as to the condition of business in the Dominion, the large crops, the tariff, and reciprocity, he stated that "America should have a great system of continental free trade and protection against the outside world." It is somewhat significant that so good a Reformer should believe in protection at all, but his view of protection is that it should be against all countries, including England, we presume from the words, but his extreme friendliness to the United States is shown by the fact that he would desire to see our markets thrown open to the manufacturers of that country. But Mr. Hardy was more pronounced than that in his disloyalty. He is reported as saying:—

"I am told by my business friends that there is a strong under current of feeling in favor of annexation. The manufacturers think it would be of great advantage to them to be under the Government of the United States. Many business men seem to be of the same opinion. There are probably more people in favor of independence than in favor of annexation. To me a republic would not be altogether distasteful."

It would appear from this that Mr. Hardy favors annexation. He does not, perhaps, directly say so, in this interview, but it is difficult to draw any other conclusion from the above extract. He desires to see free trade between the United States and Canada, and England excluded from the benefits of such a treaty —in fact, protection against the remainder of the world. He states that many people in Canada would prefer "to be under the Government of the United States," and adds that to him "a republic would not be altogether distasteful." The American Government is Republican and such a form of Government would not be distasteful to him. Mr. Hardy went further and referred to the Imperial Federation scheme, but of course anyone favoring annexation would not approve of it. "It does not seem probable," he says, "that this scheme will gain favor. Our interests are on this continent. It is not natural for us to seek an alliance with distant India or Australia." So that Mr. Hardy does not even favor Sir Richard Cartwright's scheme of an Anglo-Saxon Confederation, for such a confederation would be incomplete without Australia.

There has been not a little talk by different leaders of the Reform party on this subject. Sir Richard Cartwright, from the remarks he made at Toronto, was supposed by many to favor independence, but at Montreal he appeared to give more prominence to the great federation scheme. But it should be remembered that he appeared to think a change desirable. Mr. Laurier, who was a member of Mr. Mackenzie's Cabinet, favored independence, and Mr. G. W. Ross thought it quite proper to discuss annexation. Now Mr. Hardy expresses his preference for a Republican form of Government and emphasizes the benefits that it is supposed would accrue from annexation. Thus four leaders of the party have spoken, two not very distinctly and two quite pointedly. Along with this we have the sneers of the party press against imperial favors and honors, and the refefences to England as "a foreign power." But there is one leader of the party who is silent as the grave in these subjects while his lieutenants chatter. Mr. Blake has not said a word upon it since he became leader of the party. He has a habit of keeping silent on important subjects, even when the leaders of the party nearest to him are making the welkin ring with their declamations regarding it, and this subject, or subjects, of independence and annexation, are not exceptions. He says nothing, but he does nothing to interfere with those who are willing to talk in favor of either of these changes, or to hint in that direction. This is unfair to the county and unfair to the members of the party whose support he desires. They should be informed of his views and have the distinct views of the leaders of the party. It is Mr. Blake's opportunity to "speak now," and the party as well as the country should insist on having an understanding on the subject.

THE TOWN COUNCIL.

The Municipal Legislators Hold One of the Shortest Sessions on Record.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held on Thursday evening.

PRESENT — Councillors Cahill, Davidson, McNeil, Kelly, Millar, Rutherford and Menzies.

In the absence of the Mayor, Councillor Menzies was, on motion, called to the chair.

THE BUSINESS OF THE SESSION.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved that the Council only attend to the business for which the meeting was called.

Councillor DAVIDSON said that he had a report of the Finance Committee ready, recommending the payment of some accounts that should be passed, and he would like to have it considered.

The CHAIRMAN ruled that as the meeting was a special one, called for a special purpose, no other business could be taken up.

After further discussion on the point by Councillors Cahill, Rutherford and Davidson, it was dropped.

THE ELECTIONS.

A by-law was introduced appointing the office of Wm. Yelland's coal yard on Murray street the polling place for No. 3 ward. It passed the several readings and was signed.

PUSHING THE BUSINESS.

Councillor DAVIDSON arose and began reading the report of the Finance Committee.

A smile spread over the countenances of several Councillors, and finally Councillor Millar left his seat and was followed by others. Councillor Davidson laid down the report, and joined in the general laugh at his attempt to push the consideration of the report being burked.

Several more members arrived just after the Council had adjourned.

BILLIARDS AND BULLETS

A Dispute in a Toronto Saloon Settled by a Revolver.

The American custom of settling disputes with the revolver is seldom adopted in Toronto. A shooting affray, however, occurred on Wednesday afternoon in the billiard-room of the Woodbine Hotel, Yonge street, which was in strict accordance with the rules governing such affairs in the far West. About five o'clock two men named Charles Murray and Frederick Bunting were playing at one of the tables. They had played several games and were apparently deeply interested. Murray, who is about thirty-five years of age, had the advantage of his oppenent, who is a much younger man. The two, after playing some time, had a dispute about the count. They were both under the influence of liquor, and angry words soon led to blows. Before any of those present could interfere, they had clinched, and were fighting desperately. Finally Murray wrenched himself free, and in his drunken rage drew a revolver. He comes from California, and with true American instinct he proceeded to discharge its contents at his opponent. Luckily he was too drunk to take very good aim, and the first shot merely grazed Bunting's left arm. The bullet passed through the coat and grazed the skin. The whole house was alarmed at the report of the revolver, and several rushed into the billiard-room. A second shot was fired almost immediately afterwards, but without effect. Murray was then overpowered, and seemed to realize that he had got himself into trouble, as he hid the weapon so that it could not be used in evidence against him. A policeman arrived and detained those who were in the hotel. Detective Reburn and other constables arrived, and Murray was pointed out to them. He was taken in charge, and together with Bunting went to the Central station. They both refused to tell onything about the affair, and Bunting said he had not been shot at by Murray. They had not sufficiently recovered from their spree to give an intelligible account of their conduct. Murray was detained, and a charge was entered against him of shooting with intent to kill. Detective Reburn searched the billiard room and hotel in order to find the revolver. He was successful, and found that it was loaded with the exception of two chambers which had been discharged.—Mail.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE RIVALS.

Doubly Fatal Affray Growing Out of Love for a Beautiful Girl.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 8.—The doubly fatal affray between William Moore and John Adams, two prominent young men living near McKinney, Tenn., causes widespread comment and is in all respects the most sensational incident that has occurred in this section in years. The following particulars of the tragedy have been ascertained:—The young men were rival suitors for the hand of a beautiful mountain belle, the daughter of a wealthy farmer residing in their county. The rivalry was of long standing, but the young men were fast friends and they did not permit it to lessen their regard for each other. Recently the young lady began to show marked preferance for Adams, and their engagement soon followed. Moore, on becoming cognizant of the fact, ceased his attentions and seemed to accept his defeat gracefully. The friendly relations between the young men consinued, and they frequently alluded to the approaching marriage. Last Saturday they went hunting, and after a day's successful sport they started home, each laden with game, and were chatting in the best of spirits. In the course of their conversation Adams spoke of the approaching nupitals and boasted of the superior attractions which had won the lady's heart. Moore seemed nettled by the taunts of his quondam rival and retorted sharply. At this Adams began to taunt him, and intimated that he lacked the qualities to win a female heart, and from this a hot quarrel arose. Moore suddenly became white with rage and jealousy, and throwing his gun to his shoulder he levelled it at the deriding rival, and before he took a second thought fired. Adams received the load in his breast. He staggered and reeled, but in falling caught himself and fell on his knees. The blood gushed forth from a score of wounds, but consciousness still remained. Nerving his strength with the desperation of a dying man, he shrieked, "You shall not live to win her," and fired on his adversary. The aim was true, and Moore fell to the ground on his face, his head riddled with shot. The rivals lay in death throes within a few feet of each other for some hours, and when they were discovered Moore was dead, but Adams was still alive, and had strength remaining to relate the circumstances ere he died shortly afterwards.

A Green Christmas.

Previous to Mr. H. G. Vennor's death he made the following forecast of the weather for the fall of 1884. He was not far astray. He said: "From all appearances we are at present in a very moist period, which, I believe, will continue for about two years, both in the United States and Canada, Europe will also be affected. The fall of 1884 is likely to be very open and a mild unsettled winter will follow, with a great deal of down-fall in the shape of snow and rain. I look for a green Christmas and a mild New Year."

Commercial Traveller Murdered

GOLDEN CITY, B. C., Dec. 10.—A commercial traveller named Baird has been killed and robbed of $4,500 near here. A large number of men are in hot pursuit of the assassin. The house for whom Baird was travelling offer areward of $1,000 for the capture of the murderer.

A Chip from a Wonder of the World.

Sixty tons of rock fell yesterday afternoon from the arch of the Natural bridge in Virginia. The report was deafening and the shock considerable. There is nothing to indicate the place from whence it fell but a square niche. The curved lines of the bridge were not disturbed. This is the first fall of rock from the bridge since it was struck by lightning in 1789.—Baltimore Sun.

A Huge Swindle.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 10.—W. M. Castle was arrested to-day charged with using the United States mails to promote a fraudulent enterprise known as "The miniature pearl oil painting company." Castle advertised in New York and other large cities for correspondence and succeeded in swindling a large number of persons all over the country out of $10 each. The amount he obtained is supposed to be very large.

Foreign Treaties.

BUFFALO, Dec. 11.—The Express Washington despotch says:—There is no chance that the foreign treaties can be ratified during the present session, as the Democratic party leaders have given it to be understood that they don't propose to allow the present administration to have any of the credit that might attach to these radical steps in the direction of commercial unions to countries of the American continent. Mr. Perry Belmont, of New York, has, since his first election to Congress, been an ardent supporter of measures looking towards a reciprocity treaty with Cadada. He seems to have changed his tactics this session. When asked for his views on the prospects of the passage of a resolution favouring the Canadian treaty which he reported late last season, he replied, "I think the whole question of treaties should be postponed until Mr. Cleveland is inaugurated. His administration should be left perfectly free to indicate its own policy."

TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

THE REASON WHY

Our Shoe Store is always Crowded

With Customers is very apparent to those that have visited it and seen our immense Stock and compared our prices with those asked elsewhere for the same goods. Never have we had such Bargains in Boots and Shoes as now. Never have we sold as many as now, and the more we sell the

GREATER BARGAINS

we have, as we are able to buy in larger quantities and at corresponding low prices. We retail as many Boots and Shoes as most jobbers sell at wholesale, consequently manufacturers make no difference in price to us than wholesale trade, while smaller dealers are obliged to pay

JOBBERS' PRICES,

which is about the same as our regular retail price for the same quality of goods. It must be very evident to any thinking person that there must be a reason for our immense Shoe Business, and that our low prices, complete stock, and attention shown to our customers can be the only attraction powerful enough to draw such crowds to our store, and place us, with but two years' growth, as one of the largest retail Shoe Houses in Eastern Ontario.

Remember our system of business is square with all. Goods marked in plain figures and no second or third prices made.

FREEDOM.

BY LORD TENNYSON.

O thou so fair in summers gone,
While yet thy fresh and virgin soul
Informed the columned Parthenon,
The glittering Capitol;

So fair in southern sunshine bathed,
But scarce of such majestic mien
As here with forehead vapour-swathed
In meadows ever green;

For thou—when Athens reign'd and Rome,
Thy glorious eyes were dimmed with pain
To mark in many a freeman's home
The slave, the scourge, the chain;

O follower of the vision, still
In motion to the distant gleam,
However blind force and brainless will
May jar thy golden dream;

Who, like great Nature, wouldst not mar
By changes all too fierce and fast,
This order of our Human Star,
This heritage of the past;

O scorner of the party cry
That wand ers from the public good,
Thou u—when the nations rear on high
Their idol smeared with blood;

And when they roll their idol down—
Of saner Worship sanely proud:
Thou loather of the lawless crown
As of the lawless crowd;

How long thine ever-growing mind
Hath stilled the blast and strewn the wave,
Though some of late would raise a wind
To sing thee to thy grave;

Men loud against all forms of power—
Unfurnished brows, tempestuous tongues,
Expecting all things in an hour—
Brass mouths and iron lungs!

THE FARM AND GARDEN.

Ventilating Hay Mows.

After adding his testimony to the correctness of our theory as to the cause of frequent fires in barns, an architect from Iowa writes to the American Arthitect, into which paper our article was copied, the following letter:—We believe the idea of the writer is not new, and that patents have been granted for similar models of ventilating hay mows and grain bins, nevertheless the suggestions of the writer are good.

"As this matter is of more vital importance than most people, even scientific men, are aware of, I will," says the Archhitect's correspondent, "venture to suggest a mode to ventilate hay lofts, and to give veterinary surgeons something to think of. I believe that one-half of the diseases in horses and cattle is brought on by feeding spoiled hay, either taken from hay mows or stacks, also from grain feed that has been heated and spoiled. I believe that the heating process, the mouldy parts and must that it produces, will create germs of various kinds that cause diseases in horses and cattle, and perhaps swine. I will now venture to suggest a mode of ventilating hay mows, stacks or granaries. I will suggest introducing various air ducts through the hay mows, both horizontal and perpendicular, opening directly ontside so as to admit a current of fresh air, which will cool and cure the hay and grain, and leave it in a healthy state. This may be done by building board ducts and perforating them as much as possible, and then running from the horizontal ducts perpendicular ducts up through the mow, not more than eight feet to ten feet from each other. Or this may be accomplished in another manner. by using some round instrument, six inches to ten inches or even larger in diameter, say a galvanized iron tube; stand it over the openings in the main air duct, and as the mow is filled up, draw these pipes up through the hay, until the top is reached. This will afford complete ventilation, which will be increased as the mow becomes heated; hence the fresh air drawn in will cool and cure the hay or grain, and by this process thousands of tons of hay and grain can be saved and a vast amount of property will be saved from the destroying elements."—Family Herald.

Manuring in Winter.

We would prefer spreading manure early enough so it can be cultivated before the ground freezes. It is then secure from all danger from washing or blowing away while the ground is frozen or bare, though the loss from exposure in cold weather is much less than many suppose. It is very rarely that manure would waste as much, spread on the surface of a field in winter, as would equal the extra cost of hauling in the spring, or when the cost of team and men be reckoned at high rates. Many good farmers are now endeavouring to haul all their stable manure at such seasons as the men and teams have the most leisure. A farmer recently told us that the manure for all his corn land for next year's planting was hauled out, spread, and worked in the soil in October. The saving in labor bills, as compared in hauling manure in. April or May, will greatly reduce the cost of the corn grown. But it is not necessary to cart manure early enough to cultivate it in before the ground freezes. It may be hauled out at any time during the winter. Mr. J. H. Perrin, of Vermont, recently stated at a meeting of the State Board of Agriculture, that he manured a side hill in the fall, expecting that it would wash more or less, so he set a strip, a rod or two wide, at the bottom of the hill to be fertilized by the washings from above. He saw some coloured waters running down the hill in winter and spring, and settling upon the unmanured strip, and he supposed that part would be rich enough without the regular application. But he was mistaken, for, although he ploughed, cultivated and planted the whole field alike, yet where no manure was spred the crops were light and inferior. The coloured water had failed to fertilize the soil as he had expected, and there was no apparent diminuation on the fertilized part on account of the waste from washing. Mr. Perrin has had no fear about losing manure from spreading it upon the surface from that trial. We hope many farmers who are usually hurried by their work in spring will try manuring at least a small field this winter, and see for themselves how it works.—New England Farmer.

Take Care of Farm Implements.

Some one once drew a graphic pen picture of a mortal foe of the farmer—one who labored for his destruction by night as well as by day, on Sundays, holidays, and workdays alike. It was a "mortgage" that the writer of the sketch wisely regarded as one of the most active enemies to the farmer's purse and peace of mind.

There is, however, another agent for evil quite as active, to be found on every farm. It is known as rust. And although it annually destroys in the aggregate a vast amount of property, farmers too frequently neglect to take the measures necessary for protection from the ravages of this insidious foe. Hundreds of agriculturists are buying farm machinery which, if properly cared for, the Forest, Forge and Farm suggests, ought to last at least ten years. Most of it will be worthless in one-fifth of that time for lack of a little care.

A machine that is taken apart and properly cared for when not in use will do good work years and years after its counterpart has been thrown away by the man who had the habit of leaving it unprotected. Then the delays caused by broken machinery, loose bolts, and rotten or twisted frames, discovered just at the time when the loss of time means danger to the crop, more than counterbalance any time, trouble, or expense incurred in properly putting away the machine. The provident farmer will always clean and house his implements as soon as the harvest is ended. Whenever paint on an implement shows sighs of wearing off, it ought to be renewed. And when tools and implements are housed they should be placed just where they can readily be found when again sought for.

What a Cow!

The following is vouched for by a brother editor, and notwithstanding his general reputation for his veracity, is, without doubt, true. An elderly and well known gentleman of Boston, who, while he likes to sit at the convival board, will not touch anything spirituous, devoting all his attention to the lacteal fluid, was invited out a few nights ago by a party of choice spirits. A huge milk punch had, however, been prepared for him, and when he was asked what beverage he would prefer, his reply was as usual: Well, I guess I'll take a little milk." The punch was brought, and all eyes were turned toward him to note the effect. Raising the glass, he took a sip, and then another; at the third, however, he drained the tumbler, smaked his lips, and looked lovingly at the empty glass, observed: "Great Cæsar! what a cow!"—Boston Post.

THE HALIFAX DYNAMITERS.

Extraordinary Power of the Explosive Taken from Them.

HALIFAX, Dec. 10.—When Holmes and Bracken, the dynamiters, were arrested here in November, 1883, the dynamite they had was given into the custody of the customs. It was then considered dangerous, but no test was made of it, and its strength has only been discovered lately. A few days ago an auctioneer sold it by order of the customs. It was bought by Willoughby Anderson, and afterwards by S. D. Oakes, who has been using it on the railway at Dartmouth. It was carefully tested. One stick of ordinary dynamite is generally used for a charge, but they were careful, and started by cutting one stick in three, and the first charge of one-third, when it exploded, astonished the Cornish miners, who had used dynamite for years. They were surprised at its power, and called it a special brand at once, and said that one plug was equal in explosive strength to six of the ordinary kind. An eight-ton boulder was in the way on the track. Three of these sticks were put under it and fired. The boulder was lifted bodily out and fired completely out of the way of the workmen, and needed no further handling. The fifty pounds have been estimated as strong enough, if properly placed, to blow St. George's Island all to pieces, and half a dozen or so of the cartridges, properly placed against the stern or side of a man-of-war, would tear a hole in her big enough to make her sink instantly.

ALIVE FROM THE GRAVE.

A Disinterred Woman Shows Signs of Life on the Dissecting Table.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 10.—A strange story comes from Egremont, among the Berkshire hills, near the New York line. The town and surrounding villages are in great excitement. The story runs that Estelle Newman, about 30 years old, died in Egremont in 1878, and was buried in the town cemetery and forgotten. The sensation comes from the dying testimony of H. Worth Wright, in Connecticut, who is said to have confessed to his brother that he, being a student at the Albany Medical College, was present at the funeral, and with other students lay in wait near the cemetery till the burial was over and the graveyard deserted. He then helped to disenter the body and carry it in a sack to the medical college. They at once went to work on it in the dissecting room. While on the table the body showed signs of life, and was resuscitated by the students. Finding the woman alive on their hands the authorities of the college had her taken to the insane asylum in Scoharie county, New York. This is the last Wright is said to have known of her whereabouts. The woman's grave will probably be opened to see what the story amounts to.

A Ride on a Whale.

"We take white whales on the run sometimes," said an old sailor, "and the last one I took last season got a joke on me that ain't quite worn off yet. We went out in a gang that day, some with rifles and some with harpoons, and I reckon there was ten boats all told, and right down by the mouth of the creek we struck a school of them, so big that there was nothing but heads a poppin' all around. When we got into the let the boys began a shootin' and strikin', and got so mixed up that we didn't know where we was for a while. My boy had my harpoon, and the only thing I got hold on was a lance, just like this one, and I was standing in the bow when a big whale came up under me. I let drive and sunk the lance into him about two feet, and at the same moment one of the other boats struck us right amidships. I lost my balance and, before I knew it, I was a settin' on that old whale's back, hangin' on to the pole and goin' along like greased lightnin'. The boys set up a yell and made way for me and off I went."

"Ye see," continued the speaker, "the water was only about four feet and the critter couldn't dive, so I just clung to it. First she struck in shore, and then skirked along the beach, a snortin' and puffin' and beatin' the water with her tail, so't you could hear her clean across the bay. But she couldn't shake me off. I jist clung to the handle and let her rip, and pretty soon when we came to a shoal place, I beached her, or she beached me, I couldn't tell which. Anyway, I reckon I'm the first one that ever rode a whale in these diggin's."

Imagination Among the Humble.

Those who look upon miners as a plodding, unimaginative race are greatly at fault. They are particularly strong in imagination. Speaking of a lot of rich specimens of gold quartz from the Peabody mine, the Nevada, Cal., Transcript of last Saturday says: "One of them resembled an eagle sitting on a mountain of quartz. It weighed five ounces, the weight of the gold being estimated at four ounces. J. E. Brown paid $5 for it and will send it to a friend in New York state." We have never known an old pacer miner who had not found a nugget or chispa in which he could trace a likeness of some bird, beast or reptile. They are generally pretty strong in eagles. Being very patriotic the miner makes an eagle out of every piece of gold that shows the semblance of wings, though the specimen may look more like a goose or a sandhill crane. Besides eagles the miners find fishes, frogs, turtles and the like, and have them mounted as pins. The more they look at these things the stronger becomes the likeness in their eyes. It is like picturing faces, castles and the like in the clouds. The miner can make of his nugget a camel, a weasel or a whale.—Virginia City Post.

A Remarkable Bird.

Andrew Store, of Waterbury, has a beautiful trained blue jay, which is a most remarkable mocking bird. He was captured while very young and educated by a man in Watertown. Perhaps the most remarkable of the bird's imitations is his perfect mocking of a crowing rooster, which is so exact as to deceive everybody. Still his other imitations are quite perfect and wonderful. Not a cock crows, not a hen cackles, not a horse neighs, not a man whistles, nor any kind of a fowl utters its natural note without being perfectly mocked very promptly by this blue jay. The shrill cry belonging to its kind is rarely heard from its throat.—Hartford Times.

A Fox Chasing Hunters.

Thanksgiving day when the West Chester fox hunt was out in West Bradford, a resident witnessed a scene which made him indulge in no small amount of laugher. He saw the horsemen and dogs go down over the brow of an adjacent hill and no sooner had they disappeared from view than a good-sized fox, with all the cunning of its race depicated in its movements, crept along in the wake of the hunters, keeping about 100 yards in the rear and all the time out of sight.—West Chester News.

Shaker Blood Syrup

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like Shaker Blood Syrup. It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take my word. Ask your neighbour, who has taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

Shaker Syrup Company: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I have heard of your Blood Syrup, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indegestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

No Sham.

These Pillow Sham Holders. A. CLEGG Agent for the County.

Entertainment.

An entertainment will be given in the School House of St. John's Church, on the evening of Tuesday, December 16th. Vocal and instrumental music will be provided, the Fire Brigade Band Orchestra will be present, and refreshments will be served during the evening.

A Fine Instrument.

There is now on exhibition at the music emporium of Mr. E. J. Hartley, a beautiful piano from the celebrated makers of Heintzman & Co., Toronto. It is a four round concert grand square, rosewood case, with three strings to each note. It is pronounced by all who have seen it to be one of the best pianos in Peterborough.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Fresh to strong north-east to north-west winds; mostly cloudy weather, with local falls of snow or sleet in the southern portion, followed by partially clearing colder weather to-night and to-morrow.

The Olivette Club.

The Olivette Club held another of their pleasurable gatherings on Thursday evening, this one being at the residence of Mrs. S. White. The gay dancers indulged in the undulating pastime and tripped lightly to the music of an excellent orchestra until the evening hours had flown. The company dispersed after having spent the evening most agreeably.

Panorama of Canada.

Mr. James Dolan has just given another evidence of his "speculating propensities." Some years ago a local company had painted a panorama of Canada, with the intention of visiting Europe, but by some means the scheme fell through. Mr. Dolan purchased the full right to the work of art, and is now arranging to go on an extended tour through Canada. A special artist has been engaged to fit the different scenes in first-class order. The panorama consists of forty-nine pieces of the most picturesque Canadian scenery, and covers more than five thousand feet of canvas.

It is now an acknowledged fact that we have the finest Stock of Xmas Cards in town. Come and see for yourselves. A. L. DAVIS & CO.

The Saved Army.

Capt. Munt is expected to arrive in Peterborough this afternoon and will remain here for ten days or two weeks. He will be at the Army meeting to-night. Capt. Munt's many friends will no doubt avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing him again. Mr. James Stubbs, who has taken a deep interest in the Army for some time, has decided to enter more actively into the work, and will to-morrow go to Port Hope to take charge of that station for a time. He will conduct the experience meeting this evening, and this will be the last occasion on which he will be with the Peterborough soldiers for some time. Mr. Stubbs is not only popular with the Army, but is also much respected by all his acquaintances. No doubt there will be a large attendance at this evening's meeting.

Bazaar and Entertainment.

An entertainment and sale of fancy and useful articles was held in the school room of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Young People's Floral Club. The was a very large attendance, the room being filled to overflowing. A lunch table was set up in one of the class rooms, and supplied with delicacies, and another class room was used for the bazaar. The lunch table was well patronized, and the sale of articles appeared to be fairly brisk. A good programme had been prepared for the entertainment of those present. It consisted of a quartette, "Along the River," by Misses E. Miller and M. Stevens and Messrs. J. Miller and H. Stevens; a recitation by Miss May Snider; a duet (vocal) by Misses A. Brundrett and J. Coe; a solo and chorus by Miss G. Stevens; and instrumental duet (cornet and tenor slide) by Messrs. J. Miller and W. Pearse; a dialogue by Misses Stock, Barrie, Alford and Webber; a vocal duet by Mr. J. Miller and Miss E. Miller; a recitation by Mr. F. H. Wood; a duet (vocal) by Misses G. Stevens and Lumsden, and a vocal solo by Miss May Snider. The entertainment was a very enjoyable one. Mrs. Chambers and Mr. George Schneider played the accompaniments creditably, the piano having been kindly loaned for the occasion by Mr. D. Smart.

JOHN FERGUSON CONVICTED.

Three Years in the Penitentiary for Implication in the Late Burglary.

The case of John Ferguson, adjourned for a week, came up at the Police Court this morning.

On the night of the 23rd of October last the fur store of Mr. Joseph Mills, a George street merchant, was burglarized, and goods to the value of $400 taken therefrom. Some weeks after Chief of Police Johnson received certain information which led him to believe that the furs were in a barn at the lower end of the town. He accordingly proceeded thither and found the furs, together with other stolen articles.

Charges were laid against three persons, on suspicion. Two were discharged, but the third, John Ferguson, fared not so well. On Friday last the most conclusive evidence was taken, but judgment was reserved until to-day.

This morning Constable Pidgeon brought the prisoner into court to receive his sentence.

On taking his seat at the bench the Magistrate asked him if he had anything to say with regard to the matter why sentence should not be passed upon him.

The prisoner rose to his feet but remained silent for several minutes.

The Magistrate then passed the following sentence upon him:—I find that the charge laid against you is proven. From all that has taken place before me in reference to you, I have good reason to think that the charge is laid in a form most to your advantage. Had it been laid for burglary you would have been liable to a term of 14 years imprisonment. As it is it is laid for larceny. I think that all the circumstances connected with the case are such as warrant me to impose upon you a heavy sentence. You have deliberately chosen the life of a felon. A number of robberies have been committed in this town under circumstances which make it more than probable that you have been concerned in them all. The charge laid against you is a serious one and the sentence of this Court upon you is that you be imprisoned in the Central Prison of Ontario for a term of three years.

The prisoner asked that his sentence be changed to "three years in Kingston Penitentiary." His request was complied with.

The prisoner is a handsome boy of about eighteen years of age, with a clear complexion, dark blue eyes, and dark brown hair. When he entered the Court there was a slight glow on his cheeks, but on the sentence being pronounced upon him, it gradually faded. Otherwise he took matters coolly. His parents were residents of Peterborough, but are now both dead.

We would like to see all our regular patrons avail themselves of the 20 per cent. reduction on Winter Underclothing. Andrew McNeil.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Mr. Cox will Probably be a Candidate for the Mayoralty—Councillors' Intentions.

The time for the holding of the elections for representatives in the Town Council for the year 1885 is drawing near, and interest is beginning to be felt in the subject. The first question that naturally arises is, whether the present Councillors will again be candidates at the approaching election. We have endeavored to ascertain how many of them would be willing to represent their constituents for another year.

THE MAYORALTY.

The principal interest, of course, centres in the Chief Magistracy. Mr. Geo. A. Cox has occupied this position during the past year, and was asked whether he had decided to again be a candidate or not. His arrangements for the coming year are not fully decided, but he informed us that it was probable that he would be a candidate.

WARD NO. ONE.

The present representatives of No. One Ward are Messrs. Thos. Cahill, R. S. Davidson, and Andrew McNeil, and these three gentlemen will be candidates for the representation of the Ward in next year's Council.

WARD NO. TWO.

No. Two Ward was represented this year by Messrs. Thos. Kelly, Melville Millar and R. H. Green. Messrs. Kelly and Green will be candidates at the approaching elections, but Mr. Millar has decided not to seek re-election. He is also a member of the Board of Education, and he states that he has found that his double duties take too much of his time from his business. Consequently, as he remains in the Board of Education for another year, he will not be a candidate for a seat in the Council for 1885.

WARD NO. THREE.

Messrs. Arthur Rutherford, John Douglas and Wm. Yelland represented No. Three Ward during the year that is now drawing to a close. Messrs. Rutherford and Yelland will again be candidates for the representation of the Ward, but Mr. Douglas, after about ten years of faithful service in the Council, has decided to retire from active participation in municipal affairs.

WARD NO. FOUR.

The North Ward has this year been represented by Messrs. Thos. Menzies, J. J. Hartley and James Kendry. Messrs. Menzies and Kendry will again be candidates, and it is very probable that Mr Hartley will also, although his answer was not positive.

Make Yourself Comfortable.

Just received at A. CLEGG's a lot of those Woven Wire Spring Beds. Price only $4.50. Try one. If not satisfactory you can return it after a reasonable trial.

A Merry Christmas to All.

This is the season for greetings of a friendly nature; a time when well wishes are exchanged among fellow beings; when hearts that have perhaps been shrouded with an icy coldness during the year now fast drawing to a close throw off their cold burden and put on instead the broad mantle of charity and forgiveness, and "peace on earth, good will toward men" is for a time, at least, observed. This is, too, a time when reformation in many forms is steadily going on among men; some who have in the past indulged, more or less, in the various temptations that are daily strewn in the path of every-day life, are making resolutions of amendment for the future, and moral reformation is progressing. This is as it should be, and many who have in the past indulged in the silly, and, what is more, expensive habit of buying cheap and trashy clothing, are now leaving their orders as Habiliment Hall, where the quality of the goods is undoubted and the workmanship guaranteed. A. MCNEIL, George street.

POLICE COURT.

LARCENY.

FRIDAY, Dec. 12.—John Ferguson, charged with being implicated in the robbery of Mr. Mill's fur store on the night of the 23rd October, received his sentence this morning. See another column for the particulars.

DRUNK.

Samuel Levit was charged by P. C. Adams with having been drunk in a public place.

The MAGISTRATE,—What have you to say to the charge?

SAMUEL,—Yes sir.

The MAGISTRATE,—Have you been in this court before?

SAMUEL,—Yes Sir.

The MAGISTRATE,—$2, or 10 days in gaol.

The prisoner was allowed three days to procure the funds.

VAGRANCY.

Maria Shine was charged with being a vagrant, and with having no visible means of support. She has been for the last seven years a continual inmate of the gaol and was unable to appear. She was remanded for a week.

Painted Window Shades

VOODOISM IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

Graves Robbed in Order to Obtain Ingredients for Love Powders.

A strange story has been told me, on a positive assurance of its correctness, writes an Orangeburg, S. C., correspondent. Two negro men were brought in yesterday and lodged in jail on the following charge:—One of them had been refused the affections of a dusky sweetheart. He consulted a witch doctor (of whom a lot abound among the coloured people). He was told that it was necessary to mix the powdered bone dust of an old person and an infant in the food of the heartless maiden to win her otherwise lost love. The deluded fool (said to be a quiet negro) obtained help and dug up the remains of an aged lady, which had been interred twenty years, also that of an infant which had been buried six years. The grave robbery was discovered, and after a careful hunt the crime was traced to these negros. The mutilated remains of the old lady were found, but those of the child are gone. The indignation is intense. The former good behavior of the principal negro saved him from violence He was brought to jail for the regular course of law. The witch doctor, some old negro scoundrel, has fled.

The superstitions of many of the blacks are so general that charms (balls of string, fragments of wool, hair and leaves rolled together) were found on them when arrested. They always insist that they would have escaped if the charm hadn't failed. The sight of a rabbit's foot, particularly a grave-yard rabbit, is to them worse than any other horror. Recently a gentleman was called upon to visit a negro, who told him he was done for; he was witched; he did find a piece of rabbit skin in his left hand coat pocket. The gentleman suspected the witch and ordered him off the place, with the promise of 50 lashes if he returned. The charm lost its power and deluded fellow is well.

Mapping the Weather.

(To the Editor of the Witness.)

SIR,—We are hearing a great deal of talk concerning "remarkable weather," "unprecedented mildness," etc., but there is really nothing very remarkable thus far in the present season. It is almost an exact repitition of the early part of the winter of 81-82. Persons having weather diaries reaching as far back as that can easily discover this for themselves. The cold dips of December, 1884, do not, I think, promise to be very severe. I localize them about the 10th and 11th, 15th and 16th, and 23rd and 24th, the weather moderating on Christmas day. Heavy rains are probable during the last week of the old year, 1884, ending with but little snow on the ground in this section. January looks to me like a "chop-wave" month with four or five severe terms and two or three mild spells. To locate the probabilities:—The year enters windy and cold; a "dip" at Montreal about the 4th and 5th days; the mercury dropping to say—40° followed by snow and drifts. I would look for brilliant cold weather again about the 12th and 13th. The probable period of the "snow blockade" bluster and drifts with severe weather is, I think, most likely about the 17th and 18th of the month sacret to Janus. But the severest term, or the "January cold spell," does not seem to me as likely to arive until about the 23rd, 24th or 25th, when some pretty low readings—sufficient to gladden the hearts of the most gloomy of ice men—are probable, the mercury dropping to—20° or even—25°. After this, I would expect a reactionary spell, giving us milder weather, with snow or rain, in fact, I look for the "January thaw" during the last week of that month.

A Factory Horror.

DETROIT, Dec. 12.—A fire broke out this evening in the second story of Gray, Tovnton & Fox's candy factory, where a number of girls were employed. A rush was made for the front building for the fire escape. In descending the ladder one girl fell and was slightly hurt. Three were seen at a window, but the flames burst through and drove them back. When the flames were subdued their bodies were discovered lying near the window. Their faces were were burned black, but their bodies had not been touched. The names of the girls burned are:—Frances Messmere, aged 14; Annie Lynch, 28; and Ellen Colgase, 17. The loss to the building is trifling.

"No Physic, Sir, in Mine!"

A good story comes from a boys' boarding-school in Jersey. The diet was monotonous and constipating, and the learned Principal decided to introduce some old-style physic in the apple-sauce, and wait the happy results. One bright lad, the smartest in school, discovered the secret mine in his sauce, and pushing back his plate, shouted to the pedagogue, "No physic, sir, in mine. My dad told me to use nothin' but Dr Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and they are doing their duty like a charm! They are anti-billious and purely vegetable.

THE ITALIAN ROW.

Port Rowan the Scene of a Turmoil and Almost Civil War.

PORT ROWAN, Dec. 11.—Last evening the Italian disturbance did not abate, and to-day the excitement ran as high as yesterday. About ten o'clock last night Col. Collier made his appearance upon the street, and was quickly seized by about twenty Italians, and carried by force to one of their camps. His cries for help were soon heard, and the magistrates were quickly on hand to keep the peace. They effected his release on the condition that he should appear upon the street at nine this morning. He was put under a bodyguard of volunteers, and marched to the guard house, where he passed the night. A. J. Oishie, the employment agent, informed the authorities this morning that he would hold himself responsible for the actions of the men until five in the afternoon, and after that he would not answer for them. The actions of the men were very threatening, and so much so that an application was made by the magistrates for 50 more volunteers. Col. Mabee ordered 20 from Simcoe. A vigilants committee was formed and 30 citizens were sworn in as special constables, who have been armed and placed on the streets. An information was laid against Colonel Collier this afternoon for obtaining money under false pretenses, and Chief Constable Ponting arrested him and took him from Stearn's Hotel to Simcoe about four this afternoon. The Italians did not offer to molest him. This was his first appearance on the street since nine o'clock. The trouble reached the highest point when a fight between Italians broke out on the main street in front of McKenzie & Beckers' store at 4 30. The fight only lasted about a minute when the fire bell rang, and cries of "guards turn out" were heard. The volunteers were soon on the street, but the fight was ended before they arrived on the scene. One Italian was stabbed slightly. The man who did the cutting was placed under arrest half an hour after the fight. The Italians were ordered to their camps by the bosses, and all were quiet. During the day citizens have been busy soliciting subscriptions to remove these Italians from the town. The amount due them is something like $1.500, and the employment agent offered to settle for six hundred, and this amount has nearly been subscribed, so that a settlement has been arrived at. The matter has taken a very decided change since six o'clock this evening, and apparently the end of the Italian trouble has at last arrived. An adjourned inquest will take place to-morrow on the body of James Thorold, the volunteer, who was accidentally shot at the camp last night.

NEWBOLD AS A BOOK AGENT.

A Glimpse of the Polygamist—His Remarkable Veneer of Knowledge.

The "Knickerbocker Brothers," in their New York letter in Sunday's Cincinnati Enquirer, have the following regarding the polygamist Newbold:—This man, who has a half dozen wives in this country, and no doubt as many more in England, possesses unusual gifts of imposture. His best hold, however, is that frank and confident manner which at once disarms suspicion. He talks to you with an artless freedom as though you were a friend, and this, of course, makes you friendly. A few years ago, a well built and pleasant looking man of about 30 called on me to solicit my subscription for Appleton's encyclopedia. He was very agreeable and though of English birth had a wide range of information, such as could only be obtained by travel. His card bore the name of "George H. Perry," and during our interview he referred to his adventures among the Zulus, and denounced the Zulu war in an earnest manner. The favourable impression he made was deepened by subsequent conversation. His information was surprising, and I never found him at fault. He had studied at Oxford, and when I asked him what office corresponded to our college president, he readily replied: "Sir, our president is the chancellor." The correctness of this reply proved that he knew something of university life. Again, while talking of Africa, I inquired concerning the routes of travel, and he immediately replied: "Sir, the best way is to follow the mountains." Other questions were answered in an equally correct manner. As an agent for the sale of the encyclopedia he was remarkably successful, and the Appletons felt highlf favoured in obtaining his services, and yet he was at that very time robbing them in a very ingenious manner, and had his fourth wife at his boarding house. This wonderful traveller, George H. Perry, suddenly disappeared. The Appletons arrested him for fraud, and he only escaped penalty through the efforts of his wife, who solicited enough among her friends to settle the claim. He rewarded her by abandonment, and renewed the same fraud at another place, keeping up the system till he appeared in Cleveland as Neveille, and is convicted of bigamy. Had this man devoted himself to an honest business, he would have succeeded, but he is one of that class which seems born for crookedness. He he has served one term in the states prison, and has harrowly escaped other liabilities to penalty, until at last justice has overtaken him, and he will spend the best part of his life in penitential service.

SWINE STEALERS.

Arrest of Farm Produce Thieves at Sandwich—One of Them Confesses.

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—During the past two months there have been numerous depredations committed in Sandwich, Ont., and vicinity. Scarcely a night passes without some person having property stolen. Persons who have gone into the poultry business in the village have suffered most, and two poultry yards have been completely cleared out. The thieves were so bold as to rob pigstys on Monday, when swine weighed over 300 lbs were stolen and taken to a thicket near the suburbs of the village and slaughtered. The thieves proved to be Alex. Clark and his son George, who were both arrested, when the son confessed the crime. It is said that Clark has a small sail boat with which he coasts along the shores, robbing potato pits, and bringing the property to town, disposing of the same to stores.

Yesterday an additional force of special constables was sworn in at Sandwich. These officers will watch the frontier, from Windsor to Petite Cote, and also a portion of the interior of the townships.

A Favorite Dead.

Another of the Queen's favorites is dead, and no less a personage than her fiddler, william Blair, at the age of 90 years. He was born on the Abergeldie estates, and during the last thirty-six years of his life, his services were in great request at balls held at Balmoral, during the Queens stay there. Blair's house was a frequent resort of the youthful members of the Royal family. He was one of the last of the Neil Gow school of fiddlers, and his playing of strathspeys and reels was marked by a true Highland enthusiasm and style. Her Majesty attended the funeral, and a monument will be raised by her command.

A Real Hero.

A Balaklava hero is exercising more heroism now in a Pennsylvina mine than when in his youth he fought in the celebrated battle. Last year he lost the sight of both eyes from flying bits of coal and for some time was supported by his fellow-workman. He determined that he would be no longer dependent and resumed his occupation with the aid of his fourteen-year-old son. The boy leads him to the "face" of the coal and he picks away, judging of the distance by feeling instead of sight. He earns enough to pay his way, and is a living example of quiet heroism.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1884.

THE Lindsay Post informs its readers that it has loyalty nerves, and that its loyalty nerves have had reason to shudder. It was not Mr. Laurier's remarks regarding independence that caused them to tremble, and Mr. Hardy's assertions regarding annexation did not cause a tremor. Even Sir Richard Cartwright's rasping utterances did not grate upon them, but an unnoticed grammatical error in our columns (a "trifling lapsus" from the strict rules, as the Brockville Recorder would say) pained them greatly. Poor Post!

POPULAR OPINION.

THE leading organ of the Reform party expresses its opinion that it is a "crying shame" that London, for a quarter of a century, should have "supported a man of such corrupt character and evil political methods as Sir John Macdonald." This is only a fresh specimen of the Reform policy, as exemplified by the Globe. Sir John is vilified and insulted because he is supported by the majority of the electors of Canada. In their turn the majority of the electors of Canada, because they support Sir John, are vilified and insulted by the Globe and its friends. The Reformers pretend to attach great importance to the expression of the will of the people, but the people are insulted and abused if they venture to form an opinion for themselves, instead of showing blind submission to the dictation of the Globe and its allies.

CONSERVATIVE ONTARIO.

THE Toronto Globe speaks of Ontario as "Sir John Macdonald's political estate in the West." We are glad to see the Globe thus recognizing the fact that the majority of the electors of this Province return representatives, a majority of whom, as in the case of all the other Provinces, except Prince Edward's Island, support the Administration of Sir John Macdonald. But we object to exaggeration, and we would submit that the Globe is not warranted in putting the case so strongly. Ontario is too independent to be the "estate" of any political party, even when so meritorious as the Conservative party of Canada. So, too, Sir John Macdonald, though the foremost statesman of Canada, and the trusted and beloved leader of the Conservatives, is not in himself the Conservative party. The bare facts of Ontario's support of the Macdonald Administration are sufficiently satisfactory, and the Globe need not exaggerate them, while admitting them.

THE DUFFERIN LITERARY CLUB.

An Amusing Essay—The Government Defeated in the Mock Parliament.

At the meeting of the Dufferin Literary Club on Friday evening, after the transaction of some business, the entertainment for the evening was taken up, and Mr. J. E. Hawkins read the following essay, entitled "The Baby":—

"THE BABY."

"The above mentioned name is applied to all newly born members of the human family.

"It looks very insignificant when lying calmly asleep in its little downy cot, but when aroused the inborn spirit of the British Lion cometh forth with a force awful to behold.

"This species of human being is not very particular in regard to getting outside of the regulation three meals a day, but will eat, drink and make merry upon any occasion when it is not sleeping or crying. Its food principally consists of milk, mud pies, thimbles, rubber rings, old spoons, and any other little articles that may happen to fall in its way, from a needle to an anchor.

"It seems to be a prime favorite with the old folks, and takes a special delight in pulling hair, punching out eyes, and tearing the shaggy whiskers of any male members of the family it may happen to get its hands on.

"Not having any further time at my disposal to continue this article, I am compelled to come to a close, and no doubt if baby was aware of the style in which its dear little self has been dealt with, I am afraid it would rise en masse and demand satisfaction."

The Club then resolved itself into the Mock Parliament and the Speaker (Mr. Cushen) took the chair. The debate on the bill to amend the constitution of the Senate and providing for the election of its members by the people was resumed. On the Oppostion side the measure was opposed by Messrs. Armstrong, Roger, Stratton and Long, and it was supported by Messrs. Horning (Premier), Clegg (Minister of Finance), Hill (Minister of Militia), and Watson. The last mentioned, who had charge of the bill, closed the debate, after which a vote was taken and the Government was defeated by a vote of 12 to 15. The result was received with cheers by the Opposition. Mr. Horning then tendered the resignation of the Ministry and the House adjourned until the second Friday in January. In the meantime Mr. Long, who was leader of the Opposition, will form a Cabinet.

The programme for the next meeting of the Club will be two readings, an essay, and a debate on the question, "Is England rising or falling as a nation?"

Charged With Forgery

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 11.—Chief of Police Hinde, of Trenton, arrested D. H. Hunt, druggist, Wellington, on a charge of forgery, and lodged him in gaol. He is charged with forging the name of Geo. B. Last summer Hunt was sold a bill of goods and offered in payment a three months note for $200, but Mr. Borland refused to accept his note whithout the name of some other party. The above note was then produced and the signatures were represented to be genuine, but when Mr. Borland proceeded to collectet the amount of the note from Jones he repudiated his signature, stating that it was a forgery

CANADIANS IN EGYPT.

A VOYAGEUR DASHED AGAINST THE ROCKS AND KNOCKED SENSELESS.

An Interpretation of Bab-el-Kebir—One of the Worst and Most Difficult Places on the River Nile.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GEMAI,
Sunday, Nov. 9.

THE REVIEW, Peterborough,—On the evening of the 6th, after closing my last letter to you, one of the men from McLaren's gang, Jas. Edge, (you may remember that I wrote of him as being very ill on board the Ocean King with bronchitis, or incipient consumption), met with a serious accident. He had been in hospital at the camp above us, and was returning convalescent. But when near our camp he jumped off the train and was dashed against the side of a rock, picked up insensible, and carried to his tent in a blanket. For an hour or two it was doubtful whether he would recover or not. He could not speak for a long time and appeared to be hurt internally. However, he was somewhat better on the 7th, and was removed to the military hospital at Wady Halfa, where he is likely to remain until we come back from Khartoum. On the 6th we packed all our tents and traps on camels, and take the sweat train ourselves about ten miles to Bab-el-Kebir camp, which is commanded by Lord Charles Beresford. We arrived there in due time and found it the worst looking spot we have yet encountered. It is in the eastern channel of the Nile, and is considered one of the most difficult runs on the river. Bab-el-Kebir interpreted is Big Gate. Here the river runs through a narrow ravine or chute, forming a cataract of about one hundred feet in length, the fall in that distance being from 6 to 8 feet. The advance guard of our men have been taking boats through it, but the water getting so very low that the boats had rough usage, the authorities decided to portage them about a mile and a half, thus avoiding a stretch of very bad water.

The portaging is managed by Egyptian soldiers. Thus, the boat is turned bottom upwards and carried on its masts by 50 men for a quarter of a mile or so at a spell, then they are relieved by another 50 stepping in one at a time —never stopping the boat from the time it is taken out of the water until it is set afloat again.

8th.—30 men left Bab-el-Kebir this morning en route to Dongola.

9th.—Two month's service for the Queen put in yesterday. Received orders this morning to get our kits, kettles, tents, &c., together, which we did, and pack them on our backs about half a mile, where some boats are waiting to take them four miles up the river to Gemai, where the sailors are stationed, fitting up the boats for their long trip to Dongola. Each is manned with 12 men and one Canadian, who is to be in charge as steersman. They are fitted with axes, lanterns and oil, camp equippage for cooking, rubber bags for wrapping up blankets, &c., slings for portaging, small portable charcoal stoves, bake pans, kettles, rations for about 90 days and stilyards for weighing the latter with. The commissary in charge of the boat fitting informed me that all kinds of presserved meat, fruit and vegetables are among the boat's rations; lime juice and a small medicine chest, and said that if we did not overdraw our allowance we would be well fed and never come short.

At Gamai, where we now are, the boats are repainted, and fitted with oars, sails, rowlocks and everything necessary to put them in good shape for the arduous work they have to do. After walking from Bab-el-Kebir to this place we had to wait for the boats containing our kits, and when they arrived we had to portage their cargoes about a quarter of a mile, when we were ordered to pitch our tents, which we did, built our fire places, had one meal, and were just comfortably settled when we got the order to strike tents and move half a mile further on—for whose convenience I am not quite certain but am quite sure it was not for ours. I had this letter half written, and was about giving you a magnificent description of everything in the heavens above, the rocks around and the earth (rather sand) beneath, but shifting camp shifted thought also, so you must wait patiently till another time.

I was placed with two men on guard for the night over the traps, and I assure you that it was very cold. I do not think it could have been 50°. This morning our men were all turned out to pack the stuff to our present camp, but having been on guard all night myself and two comrades were exempt from that disagreeable duty.

The mails have all gone astray, and although our officers seem to think that they will eventually turn up. Yet it goes hard to know that they are in the country and cannot be got at.

There are so many conflicting reports of the movements of the army I shall not trouble you with any of them. I find from experience that few, if any, are at all reliable.

Camp life seems to agree with us. Speaking for myself, I have enjoyed the trip immensely so far. Just enough work to keep me from getting lazy, and although the grub is pretty rough sometimes, yet I generally manage to tighten my belt with it.

There is considerable grumbling and growling among the lads about rations and other things, but there is so little to do that they have to grumble to fill in the time.

Col. Denison is ahead at Serras, the end of the railroad, which place is about thirty miles from Wady Halfa. The Caughnawagas have made one trip to New Dongola, which I believe is about 100 miles from Serras, and are now starting from that place on their second trip.

The amount of supplies going forward to the front is simply enormous. The trains are on the move day and night, loaded to their utmost capacity. By trains I mean both rail and camel. There is no lack of energy here, whatever there may be behind us, and I am of opinion that if they intend to take half of the accumulated freight upon boats, they will need three times as many bottoms and men to mann them.

But the whole expedition is shrouded with mystery, and if any correspondent to Canadian papers seems too well posted, don't be ashamed of being stigmatized as "O ye of little faith," for only the select, or elect (?) few, such as General Wolseley and his staff, know anything at all about our future movements.

Best wishes from all, who hope that you are all as well as your prodigals in Egypt.

Gambling in Paris.

Few people are aware of the extent to which gambling is carried on in Paris. It is almost as bad as Monte Carlo. According to a Parisian journal, there are 24 of these tripots in Paris, and between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000 are commuted to have been lost during the last five years. The minimum profits of the banks in the Clubs are put down at $1,200 daily, and in the less select gambling houses at $200. Taking the average at $400 per day, the total for the five years comes out at the respectable figure of $17,500,000. Nearly $12,500,000 are set down as the five years' pickings of the croupiers and preteurs. Some of these men make enormous incomes, and it is well within the mark to put down their receipts at an average of $20,000 per annum. Then there is another half million for the administrators and their staffs. These facts are indeed most startling, and make Paris out the most wicked capital in all Europe.

Mr. Gladstone's Kindness.

Mr. Gladstone had a narrow escape of being run over in Piccadilly yesterday afternoon. As he was walking along Piccadilly an aged and lame man asked him to pilot him across the road and Mr. Gladstone instantly complied, and taking the man by the arm proceeded to cross the street, which was very much crowded at the time. Mr. Gladstone held up his umbrella to several cab drivers who were passing, but one of them did not pull up until he was almost upon the Premier.—Times, Nov. 27.

LINDSAY.

A SUCCESSFUL HUNT.—Messrs. Wm. Needler T. Sadler, and Alex. Ross returned this week from a hunting expedition back in the township of Anson. They brought with them twelve fine deer.

AN ACCIDENT.—Mr. Andrew Marshall, living four miles south of Lindsay, met with an accident Friday morning last that resulted in breaking his right arm. He was riding a horse from water when the other horse in the span got restive and frightened and pulled Marshall off. In falling to the ground the arm sustained a painful fracture. It was reset and he is now doing well.

TELEPHONIC.—Mr. Johnston, the manager of the Lindsay telephone agency, informs us that a conversation was carried on over the wires between Lindsay and Hamilton on Tuesday morning without difficulty. As the line doubles between Lindsay and Peterborough, and reaches Toronto by way of Port Hope the length of wire over which the message passed was about 156 miles.

SHIPPING CATTLE.—Mr. D. Scully shipped a carload of cows and heifers to Toronto, on Saturday, 27th, for Mr. E. A. Bowles, of Oakwood, and on the 29th he shipped a carload of stockers to the Buffalo market for Mr. P.B. McIllhargy. These three buyers are taking large numbers of cattle. Farmers are every year going more and more into stock-raising, and are getting better breeds and higher prices.—Post.

Some choice Astrachan Mantles from one of the best manufacturers in Canada to be found at Turnbull's.

BOBCAYGEON.

ICE.—The rise of water and the storm of Saturday night, broke up the greater part of Pigeon Lake, and it is again open. It is not often that the Harvey people can boat, skate and boat again, across Pigeon Lake, within a week. Whilst the water was frozen two Indians skated from the Indian village to the mouth of Big Bob. They each carried a pack of furs, and did the distance from their own house to Mr. Bradfield's store, in an hour and three-quarters.

STRANGE.—Three young ladies were crossing the swing bridge on Monday evening, when, to their intense surprise and no little alarm, three balls of fire appeared in the heavens almost directly over them. The glaring orbs shot down street, apparently hovered over the Commercial House corner, and then sheered off towards the Baptist Church. At this pont the three merged into two and darted down Sherwood street. Passing over the top of the elm tree in front of Mr. Ritchie's, the two again merged into one and then appeared to plunge into the canal just in front of the "Esturion." There is no reason to doubt the veracity of the young ladies, but it seems peculiar, indeed, particularly Smiff-like.—Independent

A HOME DRUGGIST
TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

READING FOR SUNDAY.

Written for the Review.

SHE IS ONLY GONE HOME.

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE OF MY ONLY SISTER, SARAH TILLEY, WHO DIED IN LONDON, ENGLAND, JUNE 26th, 1884, AGED 46 YEARS.

You are only gone home, dear sister,
To the Shepherd's kind loving care,
To one of those heavenly mansions
Jesus said I go to prepare.

You are only gone home, dear sister,
To dwell in that glorious land,
Gone home to receive from your Saviour
A crown from His bountiful hand.

He'll lead you beside the still waters,
To pastures both fertile and green,
To rest on the banks of the river
And drink from its life-giving stream.

In that beautiful home, dear sister,
Sweet flowers are ever in bloom.
No cankerous care will embitter,
No fear of there being no room.

I shall meet you again, dear sister,
Where numbers, like sands on the shore,
So countless they cannot be numbered—
You are only just gone before.

To that beautiful home, dear sister,
Our Saviour arose from the tomb,
And millions are travelling thither,
Yet for millions more there is room.

In that sanctified home there's no night,
No need of the sun or the moon,
God in His word says He is the light,
There is not a shadow of gloom.

In that home you are now, dear sister.
And there we shall meet bye and bye;
In that happy home God says He will Wipe away tears from every eye.

—ELIZA DOBBIN.

Keep the Lamp of Faith Burning.

It is not given to any man always to walk in the sunshine of prosperity, or health, or gladness; but it is given to every man who will, in all the vicissitudes of life, to preserve unruffled in his heart of hearts the peace of God which passeth understanding. Happy he who, in his seasons of sickness, adversity, and discouragement, no less than in his seasons of exuberant happiness, keeps his lamp of faith burning, with a steady and undimmed light.

Faith.
